INTRODUCTION

TO VOLUME III

In sending this volume to press the Editor desires again to make his acknowledgments for help received to the genealogists whose names are mentioned in the previous volumes. The additions to the original edition which deal with the politics of individual peers, are, as stated in vol. i, p. ix, inserted on the authority of the Rev. A. B. Beaven, who has in Appendix I to that volume explained fully the principles by which he has been guided in classifying them by party designations.

CANTELOPE

The title of Lord Cantelope was assumed by Lord Zouche of Harringworth in or before 1552, but not on any good ground. If he claimed the Barony as h. of the body (he was really only coh.) of William de Cantelou of Abergavenny (d. 1254), this William was not, according to any doctrine, a Baron of Parliament. If he claimed as the h. of the Lords of Ravensthorpe [see CAUNTELO], he was only coh. general, and not h. of the body of William de Cauntelo, sum. in 1299, and could not therefore, according to any doctrine, inherit his title.

CANTERBURY

VISCOUNTCY.

I. 1835. I. CHARLES MANNERS-SUTTON, 1st s. and h. of Charles MANNERS-SUTTON, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY (1805-28, d. 21 July 1828), by Mary, da. of Thomas THOROTON, of Screveton, Notts; was b. 29 Jan. 1780, at Screveton afsd.; ed. at Eton, and at Trin. Coll. Cambridge; B.A. 1802, M.A. 1805, LL.D. 1824; Barrister (Linc. Inn), 1805, and subsequently Bencher; Judge Advocate Gen., 1809-17. He was M.P. (Tory) for Scarborough, 1806-32, and for the Univ. of Cambridge, 1832-35. P.C. 8 Nov. 1809. Speaker of the House of Commons in 7 successive Parls., June 1817 to Dec. 1834,^(a) but in Feb. 1835 was rejected by a majority of 10 (316 to 306) in favour of Abercromby, the nominee of the Whig party. Registrar of the Court of Faculties of the Archbishop of Canterbury

^(a) His wife's brother, John Denison, also became Speaker in 1857; see sub OSSINGTON. V.G.

1827-34. G.C.B. 31 Aug. 1833.^(a) Three weeks after his rejection for the Speakership he was cr., 10 Mar. 1835, BARON BOTTESFORD OF BOTTESFORD, co. Leicester, and VISCOUNT CANTERBURY of the city of Canterbury. He m., 1stly, 8 July 1811, at Lambeth Palace, Surrey (spec. lic.), Lucy Maria Charlotte, 1st da. of John DENISON, of Ossington, Notts, by his 1st wife, Maria Charlotte, da. of John HORLOCK, of Ashwick, co. Gloucester. She d. 7 Dec. 1815, at Ossington. He m., 2ndly, 6 Dec. 1828, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Ellen, widow of John Home PURVES, da. of Edmund POWER, of Curragheen and Clonea, co. Waterford, by Ellen, da. of Edmund SHEEHY, co. Tipperary. He d. 21 July 1845, at Southwick Crescent, Paddington, of apoplexy, and was bur. at Addington, aged 65.^(b) Will pr. 16 Feb. 1846. His widow d. s.p.m.s., 16 Nov. 1845, at Clifton, co. Gloucester, aged 54, and was bur. there. Will dat. Oct. 1845, pr. Jan. 1846.

II. 1845. 2. CHARLES JOHN (MANNERS-SUTTON), VISCOUNT CANTERBURY, &c., s. and h., by 1st wife, b. 17, and bap. 22 Apr. 1812, registered 20 July at Lambeth chapel; ed. at Eton. A Conservative. He d. unm., 13 Nov. 1869, in Chesterfield Str., Mayfair, Midx., aged 57. Admon. 29 Nov. 1869, under £2,000.

III. 1869. 3. JOHN HENRY THOMAS (MANNERS-SUTTON), VISCOUNT CANTERBURY, &c., only br. and h., b. in Downing Str., 27 May, and bap. 8 June 1814, reg. 3 Aug. at Lambeth chapel; ed. at Eton, and at Trin. Coll. Cambridge; M.A., 1835. Registrar of the Court of Faculties of the Archbishop of Canterbury 1834 till his death. He was M.P. (Conservative) for Cambridge, 1839-40,^(c) and 1841-47; Under Sec. of State for Home, 1841-46; Lieut. Gov. of New Brunswick, 1854-61; Gov. and Com. in Chief of Trinidad, 1864-66; Gov. and Com. in Chief of Victoria, 1866-73. K.C.B. 23 June 1866, G.C.M.G. 25 June 1873. He m., 5 July 1838, at Great Witchingham, Georgiana, da. of Charles TOMPSON, of Witchingham Hall, Norfolk, by Juliana, da. of Thomas KETT, of Seething Hall, in that co. He d. 24 June 1877, at 12 Queensberry Place, South Kensington, aged 63. Will pr. 26 Sep. 1877, under £40,000. His widow d. 14 Sep.

^(a) This distinction was at the express desire of the King; the Order of the Bath had not been conferred on any of his predecessors in the Office of Speaker, excepting Sir Spencer Compton. In 1834, after the destruction of his official residence, together with the Houses of Parliament, by fire, he brought an action against the Crown claiming £10,000 for loss occasioned by negligence of Crown servants, but he did not succeed. See State Trials, N.S., p. 768. G.E.C. and V.G.

^(b) He is described as having "a commanding presence, sonorous voice, and imperturbable temper," and as being particularly efficient in dealing with the private business of the House of Commons. V.G.

^(c) Really a Peelite, becoming later in life, like many of Peel's followers, a Liberal. V.G.

[HENRY FREDERICK WALPOLE MANNERS-SUTTON, only s. and h. ap., b. 8 Apr. 1879.]

Family Estates.—These, in 1883, consisted of 5,177 acres in Norfolk, valued at £8,399 a year. Principal Residence.—Witchingham Hall, near Norwich.

CANVILLE or CAMVILLE^(b)

BARONY BY WRIT. 1. GEOFFREY DE CANVILLE or CAMVILLE,^(c) s. and h. of William DE CANVILLE,^(d) of Clifton Campville, co. Stafford, Llanstephan, co. Carmarthen, Fedamore, co. Limerick, and Caher, co. Tipperary (who d. in 1260, before Michaelmas),^(e) by Lucy, his wife (living 14 Aug. 1284).^(e) He was of age, but not yet a knight, before 20 June 1272.^(e) He was in the Army of West Wales in 1282,^(f) and was sum. for Military Service from 12 Dec. (1276) 5 Edw. I to 21 June (1308) 1 Edw. II, to attend the King wherever he might be,^(e) 8 June (1294) 22 Edw. I, to attend the King at Salisbury, 26 Jan. (1296/7) 25 Edw. I, and to Parl. from 24 June (1295) 23 Edw. I to 3 Nov. (1306) 34 Edw. I, by writs directed Galfrido de Caunvilla, Caumvilla, Canvilla, or Camvilla, whereby he is held to have

(b) This article has been kindly contributed by G. W. Watson. V.G.

(c) His arms were, Azure, three lions passant Argent. The name is probably derived from Canville in La Manche, not from Canville in the Pays de Caux.

(d) This William was 2nd s. of Geoffrey de Canville, of Clifton (dead 1219), by his 2nd wife, Leuca (d. 1236), granddaughter of William de Braiose. By his 1st wife, Felice (da. of Philip de Worcester), from whom he was divorced on account of consanguinity, Geoffrey had also a son, Richard. The half-brothers had a long dispute about the manor of Clifton, which William claimed from Richard, and it was finally adjudged to him. Geoffrey was s. and h. of William de Canville, by Auberée (living 1233), da. and h. of Geoffrey Marmion, of Clifton, and of Arrow, co. Warwick. Auberée and her husband are stated by Dugdale and others to be the parents—instead of the great-grandparents—of the Geoffrey in the text.

(g) It was accordingly ordered that he should not be sum. for Gascony 14 June following: he was however sum. therefor, 16 July.

become LORD CANVILLE or CAMVILLE.^(a) He m., 1stly, Maud, widow of Nicholas MARTIN (s. and h. ap. of Nicholas FITZ MARTIN, of Cemais or Kemes, co. Pembroke, and Blagdon, Somerset), da. of Guy DE BRIAN, of Laugharne, co. Carmarthen, by Eve (to whom she was h.), da. and h. of Henry DE TRACY, of Barnstaple, Devon. The King took his homage and they had livery of the lands of her grandfather, the said Henry de Tracy, 24 Sep. 1274.^(b) She, who was b. 25 Dec. 1242,^(c) d. before Michaelmas 1279.^(d) He m., 2ndly, Joan.^(e) He d. shortly before 21 Sep. 1308.^(f) His widow had livery of her inheritance in Ireland, 26 Oct. 1308.^(g)

he d. v.p. before 3 Feb. 1322/3.^(a) (2) Alianore, unm. (3) Isabel, wife of Gilbert de Bermingham. (4) Nicole, wife of John de Saint Clere. (5) Katherine, wife of Robert de Greseleye. Among their representatives any hereditary Barony, that may be supposed to have been created by the writ of 1295, is in abeyance.

CAPELL OF HADHAM^(b)

BARONY.

I. ARTHUR CAPELL, of Hadham Parva, Herts, and Rayne Hall, Essex, s. and h. of Sir Henry C., by his 1st wife, Theodosia, da. of Sir Edward MONTAGU (which Sir Henry, who d. v.p., 29 Apr. 1622, was s. and h. ap. of Sir Arthur Capell, of Hadham and Rayne Hill afsd.), was b. 20 Feb., and hap. 11 Mar. 1603/4, at Hadham afsd.; suc. his grandfather in Apr. 1632; M.P. for Herts in the Short Parl., Apr. to May 1640, and again (in the Long Parl.) 1640-41. On 5 Aug. 1641, he was cr. BARON CAPELL OF HADHAM, co. Hertford. Knighted 17 Jan., and P.C. 1 Mar. 1644/5. He fought valiantly in the Royal cause,^(c) especially (when Lieut. Gen. of Shropshire, Cheshire, and North Wales) against Sir William Brereton. He was one of the garrison at Colchester, which surrendered 27 Aug. 1648, when he was sent a prisoner to the Tower of London, whence he escaped, but was recaptured 2 Feb. following at Lambeth. He was condemned to death by the High Court of Justice, and (together with the Duke of Hamilton [S.] and the Earl of Holland) was beheaded (a few weeks after the King) in Palace Yard, Westminster,^(d) 9, and was bur. 20 Mar. 1648/9, at Hadham, aged 45. M.I.^(e) He m., 28 Nov. 1627 (settl. 5 Nov.), Elizabeth, da. and h. of Sir Charles MORRISON, Bart., K.B., by Mary, da. and ^(b) There is a very full genealogy of the Capell family, by Duncan Warrand, in Hertfordshire Families (Victoria Co. Hist.), to which J. H. Round has prefixed a narrative sketch. V.G.

^(c) Of him Clarendon writes that "he frankly engaged his person and his fortune from the beginning of the troubles, as many others did, in all actions and enterprizes of the greatest hazard and danger; and continued to the end, without ever making one false step, as few others did," and, again, "whoever shall after him deserve best of the English nation, can never think himself undervalued when he shall hear that his courage, virtue, and fidelity are laid in the balance with and compared to that of the Lord Capel."

"The poet, not unhappily, alluding to his arms; (a lion rampant in a field of gules between three crosses) expresseth it

'Our lyonlike Capel undaunted stood

(Lloyd, 1665). V.G.

II. 1649. 2. ARTHUR (CAPELL), BARON CAPELL OF HADHAM, s. and h., bap. 28 Jan. 1631/2, at Hadham. On 20 Apr. 1661 he was cr. VISCOUNT MALDEN, co. Essex, and EARL OF ESSEX. See "Essex," Earldom of, cr. 1661.

CAPELL OF TEWKESBURY^(b)

BARONY.

I. HENRY CAPELL, 2nd s. of Arthur, 1st BARON CAPELL OF HADHAM, by Elizabeth, da. and h. of Sir Charles MORRISON, Bart., K.B., was bap. 6 Mar. 1637/8, at Hadham Parva, Herts. K.B. 23 Apr. 1661. M.P. (Whig) for Tewkesbury, 1660-81, and 1690-92, and for Cockermouth 1689-90. P.C. [I.] Apr. 1673 to Mar. 1684/5, re-appointed June 1693; P.C. [E.] 22 Apr. 1679 to 31 Jan. 1679/80, resworn 14 Feb. 1688/9. First Lord of the Admiralty Feb. 1678/9 to Feb. 1679/80; was a zealous supporter of the exclusion bills; one of the Lords of the Treasury, 1689-90. On 11 Apr. 1692 he was cr. BARON CAPELL OF TEWKESBURY, co. Gloucester. He was one of the three Lords Justices of Ireland, 1693. LORD DEPUTY OF IRELAND, 27 May 1695 till his death. He m. (settl. 16 Feb. 1658/9) Dorothy, da. and coh. of Richard BENNET, of Kew Green, Surrey (br. of Sir Thomas Bennet, Bart., of Babraham), by his 2nd wife, Mary, da. of Robert LEMAN, of Ipswich. He d. s.p., of convulsions, at Chapelizod, 30 May, and was bur. 8 Sep. 1696, at Hadham, aged 58, when his honours became extinct. Will dat. 8 Sep. 1692, pr. 4 Jan. 1696/7.^(c) His widow d. at Kew, Surrey, 7, and was bur. there 15 June 1721, aged 79. M.I. Will, in which she states that she was b. in St. Andrew's, Holborn, dat. 18 Aug. 1719, pr. 21 June 1721.

CAPPOQUIN

(a) See vol. ii, p. 516, note "a." Clarendon speaks of her as "an excellent wife, a lady of very worthy extraction, of great virtue and beauty."

(b) See note "b" on preceding page.

(c) "Lord Capell was a very weak, formal, conceited man; had no other merit than being a violent party man." (Note to Burnet's History by Lord Dartmouth). His skill in gardening (which he shared with his elder br., the Earl of Essex) is mentioned by Evelyn. V.G.

CARBERY (co. Cork)

V. 1790. 5. JAMES (BRUDENELL), EARL OF CARDIGAN [1661], BARON BRUDENELL OF STONTON [1628], and BARON BRUDENELL OF DEENE [1780], br. and h. male; b. 20 Apr. 1725, in London; ed. at Winchester 1736; matric. at Oxford (Oriel Coll.) 6 Apr. 1743, B.A., 1747. He was M.P. (Tory) for Shaftesbury, 1754-61; for Hastings, 1761-68; for Great Bedwin, Mar. to Nov. 1768, and for Marlborough, 1768-80. Dep. Cofferer to the Household, 1755-60; Keeper of the Privy Purse to the Prince of Wales, as also 1760 till his death, to the King; Master of the Robes to the Prince of Wales 1758-60, and

Earl of Cardigan, however, objected to such limitation, and though he afterwards obtained the Dukedom free therefrom, it was not till a few weeks after the advancement of Northumberland, who consequently, though a much junior Earl, ranked, as a Duke, above him. V.G.

^(a) Now (1913) belonging to the Duke of Buccleuch. V.G.

to the King 1760-91. On 17 Oct. 1780 he was cr. BARON BRUDENELL OF DEENE, co. Northampton. Constable of Windsor Castle, 1791 till his death; High Steward of Windsor, 1802. He m., 1stly, 24 Nov. 1760, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Anne, sister of William, 2nd EARL OF DARTMOUTH, 1st da. of George LEGGE, styled VISCOUNT LEWISHAM, by Elizabeth, da. of Sir Arthur KAYE, Bart. She d. Jan. 1786, and was bur. at Trinity Minorities. He m., 2ndly, 18 Apr. 1791, at her house in St. James's Place, St. James's, Westm., Elizabeth, 1st da. of John (WALDEGRAVE), 3rd EARL WALDEGRAVE, by Elizabeth, da. of John (LEVESON-GOWER), EARL GOWER. He d. s.p., 24 Feb. 1811, in Grosvenor Str., aged 85, when the Barony of Brudenell of Deene [1780] became extinct. Will pr. 1811. His widow, who was b. 26 May, and bap. 22 June 1758, at Kensington, was a Lady of the Bedchamber to the Queen Consort 1793-1809. She d. in Seymour Place, Mayfair, "of inflammation," 23 June, and was bur. 1 July 1823, with her father's family, at Navestock, Essex.

VI. 1811. 6. ROBERT (BRUDENELL), EARL OF CARDIGAN, &c., nephew and h., being posthumous s. and h. of the Hon. Robert BRUDENELL, by Anne, da. of Sir Cecil BISSHOPP, Bart., which Robert was next br. to the last two Earls. He was b. 25 Apr. 1769, in the par. of St. Geo., Han. Sq.; M.P. (Tory) for Marlborough, 1797-1802. He m., 8 Mar. 1794, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Penelope Anne, 2nd da. of George John COOKE, of Harefield Park, Midx., by Penelope, only da. of Sir William BOWYER, 3rd Bart. [E. 1660]. She, who was Lady of the Bedchamber to Queen Charlotte in 1818, d. 2 Feb. 1826, at Gopsall, Notts, aged 56. He d. in Portman Sq., 14, and was bur. 21 Aug. 1837, at Deene, Northants, aged 68. Will pr. Sep. 1837.

VII. 1837. 7. JAMES THOMAS (BRUDENELL), EARL OF CARDIGAN [1661], and BARON BRUDENELL OF STONTON [1628], also a Baronet [1611], 2nd but only surv. s. and h., b. at Hambleden, Bucks, 16 Oct., and bap. there 5 Nov. 1797; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.), 27 Nov. 1815. M.P. (Tory) for Marlborough, 1818-29; for Fowey, 1830-32; and for North Northants, 1832-37; entered the army as Cornet in the 8th Hussars, May 1824, Lieut. 1825, Captain 1826, Major 1830; Lieut. Col. 15th Hussars 1830-34, and of the 11th Hussars (on which regiment he is said to have spent £10,000 a year), 1836-54;^(a) Col. in the Army 1846; Major Gen. 1854, and Lieut. Gen. 1861; Inspector Gen. of Cavalry,

(^a) He was quarrelsome, arbitrary, unpopular, and a loose liver, but remarkably handsome. On 12 Sep. 1840, he fought and wounded in a duel on Wimbledon Common, Capt. Harvey Tuckett, in consequence of some remarks of the latter on the Earl's conduct (to Capt. Reynolds) as Commander of his regiment, in connection with what was known as the Black Bottle Riot. The Earl was tried by his Peers at Westm. Hall, 16 Feb. 1841, for firing a pistol with intent to murder, and unanimously found "not guilty," the identity of Tuckett not having been legally proved. See State Trials, N.S., vol. iv, p. 602. There had been no other trial before the Upper House as a Criminal Court since that of the "Duchess of Kingston" for bigamy in 1776. See vol. ii, p. 326, sub "BRISTOL," under the (vith) 3rd Earl.

1855-60; Col. of the 5th Dragoon Guards, 1859-60; and of (his old regiment) the 11th Hussars, 1860-68. In 1854 he commanded a Cavalry Brigade in the Crimean War,^(a) under (his br.-in-law) the Earl of Lucan [I.], and received the four-clasp Crimean medal in May 1855. K.C.B. 5 July 1855; Commander of the Legion of Honour of France, 2 Aug. 1856; Knight, 2nd class, of the Medjidie of Turkey, 2 Mar. 1858. A Conservative. He m., 1stly, 19 June 1826, at Chiswick, Midx. (where she is described as "being now single and unmarried"), Elizabeth Jane Henrietta (formerly wife of Lieut. Col. Christian Frederick Charles Alexander James JOHNSTONE, of Hilton, from whom she had been divorced a few months previously), sister of John, 1st BARON TOLLEMACHE, 1st da. of Admiral John Richard Delap TOLLEMACHE (formerly HALLIDAY), by Elizabeth, da. of John (STRATFORD), EARL OF ALDBOROUGH [I.]. The union proved unhappy, and she was separated from the Earl in 1846.^(b) She, who was b. 8 Dec. 1797, d. 15 July 1858, at 36 South Str., Park Lane. Admon. 30 July, under £2,000. He m., 2ndly, 28 Sep. 1858, at the King's Chapel, Gibraltar, Adeline Louisa Maria,^(c) only da. of Spencer Horsey DE HORSEY, formerly KILDERBEE, by Louisa Maria Judith, da. of John (ROUS), 1st EARL OF STRADBROKE. He d. at Deene Park, from injuries sustained by a fall from his horse, 27 Mar., and was bur. there 9 Apr. 1868, aged 70. Will pr. 23 June 1868, under £60,000. His widow, who was b. 24 Dec. 1824, in Charles Str., Berkeley Sq., m., 28 Aug. 1873, at the Rom. Cath. Chapel, King Str., Marylebone, Antonio Manuelo, COUNT DE LANCASTRE^(d) in Portugal. He d. in 1898, of bronchitis, in Paris, and was bur. at Père la Chaise. She was living 1912.

(^a) "His personal gallantry at Balaklava, when he charged the Russians at the head of his Brigade, forcing his way, with about 600 cavalry, through some 3,600 of the enemy, and leaving half of his men and horses dead upon the field, will long be remembered, when the controversy as to the mistaken order, in obedience to which he led the charge in the teeth of the enemy's guns, is forgotten." (Annual Register for 1868). The exploit was commemorated by the Poet Laureate Tennyson, in the well-known Charge of the Light Brigade.

(^b) This was on account of her intrigue with Lord Colville. V.G.

(^c) Her intimacy with Lord Cardigan during his first wife's lifetime led to her having to leave her father's house, and to her being "cut" by respectable people. Her own account of Lord C. coming hot from his wife's deathbed and bursting into her bedroom to urge their immediate marriage is peculiarly shameless. See My Recollections, pub. by her in 1909, a scandalous and valueless book, in which she describes herself as having been "a very pretty girl with a slight but fine figure, and long hair that fell in curls below my knees"; in this work she gives, with very doubtful taste, a list of seven widowers, including Disraeli, and some single men, who she alleges had asked her in marriage. Incidentally she tries to take away the character of a good many men and women. The style which she adopted of Countess of Cardigan and Lancastre, gave annoyance to Queen Victoria, who had formerly travelled incognito as Countess of Lancaster. V.G.

(^d) The title of Lancastre, or Alancastre, is borne by a Portuguese family, a bastard branch of the old Royal house, and is a memorial of the match with John of Gaunt's daughter. V.G.

VIII. 1868. 8. GEORGE WILLIAM FREDERICK (BRUDENELL-BRUCE), MARQUESS OF AILESBUURY, EARL OF CARDIGAN, &c., cousin and h., being s. and h. of Charles, 1st MARQUESS OF AILESBUURY, who was only s. and h. of Thomas, EARL OF AILESBUURY, which Thomas was 4th and yst. s. of George, 3rd EARL OF CARDIGAN, being br. to the 4th and 5th Earls of Cardigan. See "AILESBUURY," Marquessate of, cr. 1821, under the 2nd Marquess.

Family Estates.—These, in 1863, consisted of 7,210 acres in Northants; 2,931 in co. Leicester, and 5,583 in the West Riding of Yorkshire. Total 15,724 acres, worth £35,357 a year. These, by the will of the 7th Earl, devolved on his widow for life, with rem. to trustees for 21 years to accumulate, rem. to Robert Thomas Brudenell-Bruce, 4th s. of Ernest, afterwards Marquess of Ailesbury, with other remainders. Principal Residence.—Deene Park, near Wansford, Northants.

Note.—The ruins of Kirkstall Abbey and 12 acres were sold for £10,000, and the Abbey House for £3,500, in Dec. 1888, by the trustees of the Cardigan estates, to Col. North, who presented them for the use of the city of Leeds, from which the Abbey is but three miles distant.

CARDROSS

BARONY [S.] I. JOHN (ERSKINE), EARL OF MAR [S.], obtained, 27 Mar. 1604, from the Crown, a charter creating him Lord of Cardross^(a) together with a grant of the lands of the Priory of Inchmahome and of the Abbeys of Dryburgh and Cambuskenneth. This grant, which of itself was invalid, was confirmed by Act of Parl. 9 July 1606,^(b) the lands being erected into the Barony of Cardross, and the Earl, his heirs and successors therein, being granted the dignity of a Lord of Parl. to be called LORD OF CARDROSS [S.]. A new charter of the lands and title was therein ordered to be made, which on 10 June 1610,^(c) was done. By it the BARONY OF CARDROSS was granted to the Earl and his heirs male and assignees whatsoever, with the rights, &c., of a Lord of Parl. He nominated, accordingly, as his successor in that dignity^(d) (reserving his

In 1646 he was one of the few Peers [S.] who protested against delivering up Charles I to the English army at Newcastle. He was a promoter of "the engagement" of 1648, for which he was fined £1,000, and, in 1649, was debarred from sitting in Parl. On 10 Feb. 1663/4, he obtained a new charter of the Lordship and Parliamentary Peerage of Cardross, with a power of nominating his successor, which failing with rem. to the heirs male of his body, rem. to his heirs and assigns whatever. (^a) The question has also been raised whether this Henry Erskine did not actually become in 1617 Lord Cardross [S.], on the ground that his father's reservation of the life-rent applied to the lands only and not to the title; such seems to have been the view held by Riddell; but though on one occasion at least (Acts of Parl., vol. v, 547) he is called "Lord Cardross," he appears never to have sat in Parl. (Whig) for co. Wexford, 1812-30, and 1831-34. He was, on 13 June 1834, cr. BARON CAREW,

^(a) "He was the most typical pupil as well as one of the warmest adherents of Peel . . . like Peel he was dry and like Peel somewhat stiff and formal; there was nothing about him brilliant or impressive to anyone who was not impressed by duty. He was not and never could have been a party leader; he had not the fire, the magnetism, the eloquence, or the skill as a tactician . . . He was content to do the business and solve the question of the hour . . . by an honest sort of opportunism rather than on any very broad principle . . . He was an indifferent partisan, his mind was too fair and his judgment too cool. On the other hand he was a true comrade, a fast friend, and not a bad hater of the enemies of his friends . . . He was cautious, perhaps reticent, to a fault. Without being eloquent, he was a good and convincing speaker in Peel's manner, and particularly clear in exposition . . . It was as an administrator and practical legislator that he was really great. . . . His great achievements and monuments are the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, which is still the code of our Mercantile Marine, and the transformation of the Army to a professional and scientific force." Reminiscences, by Goldwin Smith (1910), pp. 187-9. - EARLDOM [I.] I. 1785.
- TRELLSTOWN, co. Dublin, and, subsequently, 9 Jan. 1781, VISCOUNT CARHAMPTON^(d) OF CASTLEHAVEN, co. Cork, and, finally, 23 June 1785,^(e) EARL OF CARHAMPTON [I.].^(d) He m., 1737, Judith Maria,

^(a) His desertion of the cause of James II is said to have caused the fatal defeat at Aughrim, a piece of treachery which excited "the abhorrence of the Roman Catholic population" in Ireland, by one of whom, finally, he was assassinated in Dublin, 22 Oct. 1717, aged 63. "Eighty years after his death, his grave, near Luttrellstown, was violated by the descendants of those whom he had betrayed, and his skull was broken to pieces with a pickaxe." (Macaulay). G.E.C. His elder br., Simon, who remained loyal to James II, was attainted, and d. s.p., 15 Oct. 1698, in France. V.G.

^(b) This estate was owned by the Luttrells from the time of Henry VI until early in the 19th century, when it was sold to the bookseller Luke White, father of the 1st Baron Annaly [I.]. V.G.

^(c) His will was proved 18 Aug. 1730. V.G.

^(d) These titles were taken from Irnham, in Lincolnshire, where a family of Luttrell (from whom the Luttrells of Somerset claimed descent) was long (1200-1400) settled; and from Carhampton, in Somerset, of which manor the Luttrells of Dunster in that co. were possessors, the implication being that the Irish Luttrells were connected with the lords of Dunster. No such connection, however, has been established. See Sir Henry Maxwell-Lyte's History of Dunster (1909), Appendix D.

^(e) He had been struggling to obtain this Earldom, certainly as early as July 1774, and there is a letter of that date from Lord North printed in the Harcourt Papers, vol. ix, p. 216-17, which gives a typical picture of 18th cent. Irish politics. Col. Luttrell had applied that his father Lord Irnham should be advanced to an Earldom, and Lord North had replied that it would be impossible to recommend Lord I. for a mark of the royal favour while he was in declared opposition to the L. Lieut. of Ireland. Shortly after Lord I. called on Lord N. and informed him that he had "desisted from giving any further trouble in Parl.:—zealously contributed to voting the address"—which, to use Lord North's words, "he seemed to consider as a valuable consideration which entitled him to an Earldom immediately." For a list of the profuse creations and promotions in the Irish Peerage see Appendix H to this volume. V.G.

2. HENRY LAWES (LUTTRELL), EARL OF CARHAMPTON, &c. [I.], being styled LORD LUTTRELL from 1785 to 1787, s. and h., b. 7 Aug. 1743; entered the army, becoming Adjutant Gen. [I.] 1770-83; Major Gen. 1782; Lieut. Gen. of the Ordnance [I.] 1789-97, and Master Gen. thereof 1797-1800; Lieut. Gen. 1793; Commander of the Forces [I.] 1796-97; finally Gen. 1798; also Col. of the 6th Dragoon Guards 1788 till his death. M.P. (Tory) for Bossiney 1768-69, for Middlesex 1769-74,^(c) for Bossiney again 1774-84,^(d) for Old Leighlin [I.] 1783-87, for Plympton 1790-94, and for Ludgershall 1817 till his death; P.C. 3. JOHN (LUTTRELL-OLMIUS), EARL OF CARHAMPTON [1783], VISCOUNT CARHAMPTON OF CASTLEHAVEN [1781], and BARON IRNHAM OF LUTTRELLSTOWN [1768], all in the peerage of Ireland, only surv. br. and h., being 3rd s. of

^(a) His 1st da. Anne, m., 1stly, 4 Aug. 1765, Christopher Horton, of Catton, co. Derby, and 2ndly, 2 Oct. 1771, H.R.H. Henry Frederick, Duke of Cumberland (br. George III), who d. s.p. 18 Sep. 1790, aged 44. She d. Feb. 1809, aged 56. Another da., Elizabeth, is described by Sir H. Heron, in his Notes, as living with the Duchess, playing high and cheating much; afterwards as being in gaol and giving a hairdresser £50 to marry her; then as being convicted of picking pockets in Augsburg, and being condemned to clean the streets chained to a wheelbarrow; and finally, as poisoning herself. V.G.

^(b) His eldest s. is said to have accepted his challenge to a duel, provided his father could get any gentleman to act as his second! He was at law in the Court of Chancery [I.] with this son as to the possession of the mansion house at the time of his death. They seem to have been an unlovely race. V.G.

^(c) As Col. Luttrell, he was the well-known opponent of Wilkes.

^(d) He was one of those, for the most part Whigs, who, having supported the Coalition of North and Fox, were turned out of their seats at the general election of 1784, when Pitt swept the board, and were known as "Fox's Martyrs." For a list of them see vol. iv, Appendix A. "As a speaker he is by no means high in estimation; his manner is vehement and passionate." (Sketches of Irish Political Character). V.G.

^(e) In 1795 he was charged with the pacification of Connaught, and as Commander in Chief took a vigorous and unrelenting part in suppressing the Irish rebellion. V.G.

(^b) In 1798 he "gave his sentiments very firmly on the question of the Union" but altered these views and became a declared supporter in 1799. The "secret and confidential" correspondence of Lord Cornwallis and the Duke of Portland shows very clearly that this alteration was produced by allowing him to retire from the Bench, on the plea of ill health, with a pension and promising to make him a representative peer. "As a lawyer he holds the middle rank, not having ever been considered as a first-rate man; persevering industry and methodical arrangement being the leading traits of his professional character. I. 1661. I. THEOBALD TAAFFE, s. and h. of John, 1st VISCOUNT TAAFFE OF CORREN [I.], by Anne, da. of Theobald (DILLON), VISCOUNT DILLON [I.], was M.P. for co. Sligo, 1639; suc. his father as Viscount Taaffe 1642. He was in command of the rebel Rom. Cath. Irish in Connaught in 1644, and in Munster (of which province he was Gov. till 1646) in 1647, being severely defeated by Lord Inchiquin at Mallow 13 Nov. 1647. Master of the Ordnance, 1649. He actively supported the Royal cause in Ireland, and was excepted from pardon by Cromwell's Act of Settlement. At the Restoration he obtained a considerable pension, and was, 26 June 1661, cr. EARL OF CARLINGFORD^(c) co. Louth [I.], his lands being restored to him in Mar. 1660/1. A sign manual warrant for his being cr. Earl of Limerick is dat. 1661, and another 17 June 1661 for his creation as in the text. He m., 1stly, Mary, 1st da. of Sir Nicholas WHITE, of Leixlip, co. Kildare, by Ursula, 1st da. of Garrett, 1st VISCOUNT MOORE OF DROGHEDA. Carte calls him "a bold and forward undertaker." His name, with that of his 1st son, William, appears in the "Faithful and humble remonstrance of the Roman Catholic Nobility and Gentry of Ireland"—presented to the King in 1663, setting forth "the prodigious afflictions under which the Monarchy had groaned these 20 years," and identifying themselves with a "humble remonstrance" of the Roman Catholic Clergy, praying the Royal Protection. CARLISLE

Randolph LE MESCHIN has often been wrongly described both as EARL OF CARLISLE, and EARL OF CUMBERLAND,^(a) which County he is said to have exchanged with the King for that of Chester. In 1121, he did in fact become EARL OF CHESTER. He d. circa 1129. See "CHESTER," Earldom of.

(^a) "The old belief was that the Conqueror conferred the Earldom of Cumberland, or Carlisle, on Randulf le Meschin in 1072. This was corrected in the Introduction to the Pipe Rolls for Cumberland, &c. (1847), and in Mr. Hinde's paper on the subject.
 (Arch. Journal, vol. xvi, pp. 217, &c.) Freeman in his Norman Conquest asserts that 'Cumberland now [1092] became an Earldom.' But in his William Rufus (Appendix on 'Earldom of Carlisle') and in his 'Place of Carlisle in English History' (English towns and districts, p. 422) he corrects himself and refers to Mr. Hinde as proving that the Earldom was not of Cumberland but of Carlisle, and was not founded by William Rufus, but by Henry I. Even this, however, is wrong, for, as Eyton rightly observes (Addit. MSS. 31,930, fo. 171), Randulf was never 'Earl,' but merely 'Lord' of the district." (ex inform. J. Horace Round). It may also be added, as to the district, that he "was never Lord of Cumberland, but of the Lordship of Carlisle, which extended from the Solway on the north to the Duddon on the south. This was only a small part of Cumberland, which included, until 1239, the Bishoprics of Glasgow and Whiterne." (ex inform. E. Chester Waters).

EARLDOM.

I. SIR ANDREW DE HARTCLA, OF DE HARCLA,^(a) s. of Michael DE HARCLA,^(b) Sheriff of Cumberland 1285-98. He was Warden of Carlisle in 1296, served in the Scottish wars 1304-11; was Sheriff of Cumberland, 1312-15 and 1319-22; M.P. for Cumberland, 1312; Warden of Carlisle Castle, 1313; Warden of the West Marches and of Cumberland and Westmorland, 1319. He was sum. to Parl. 15 May (1321) 14 Edw. II, by writ directed Andree ae Hartcla, whereby he is held to have become LORD HARCLA.^(c) Having routed the insurgents at Boroughbridge, 16 Mar. 1321/2,^(d) and taken prisoner the Earl of Lancaster, their leader, he was, a few days afterwards, 25 Mar. 1321/2, cr. EARL OF CARLISLE^(e) "to him and the heirs of his body," with a grant of lands to the value of 1,500 marks a year.^(f) Jealous of the favour shown by the King to the family of Despenser, he intrigued with the Scots, and aspired to marry the sister of their King. He was detected, and tried at Knaresborough, 27 Feb. 1322/3, and condemned to be hanged, drawn, and quartered, his sword to be taken from him and his spurs hacked from his heels. He m. (—).^(g) He d. according to the sentence, 3 Mar. 1322/3, when, having been degraded, all his honours were forfeited.

He was one of those who, in the reign of James I, "lay sucking at the breasts of the State." (Osborne's Queen Eliz.) Carlyle calls him "Heliogobalus Hay." His letters show tact, courtesy, and amiability, but neither diplomatic power nor penetration. V.G.

(^a) She, who was one of the beauties of her time, is said to have been the person who gave Pym notice of the King's coming to the House to seize the five members. She appears to have then been Pym's "mistress," having certainly previously been so to the famous Earl of Strafford. She is appropriately styled "the Erinnyes of her time," her charms and foibles being celebrated by Waller, Suckling, &c. Sir E. Nicholas bitterly writes of her 16 Apr. 1654, "His [Northumberland's] dear and virtuous sister Carlisle, who hath been throughout the whole story of his late Majesty's misfortunes a very pernicious instrument." Sir Philip H., the s. and h. ap. of Lord William Howard,^(a) also of Naworth, is said to have been b. 1629, but probably earlier; suc. his elder br. William Howard shortly before Nov. 1646. Sheriff of Cumberland 1649-50; was "Capt. of the Lord Protector's Body Guard," and Col. of a regt. of Horse; Member of the Council of State July to Dec. 1653; M.P. for Westmorland, 1653, for Cumberland 1654, 1656 and 1660. He is said to have received an hereditary Peerage^(b) from the Protector, by having been cr. 20 July 1657, BARON GILSLAND and VISCOUNT HOWARD OF MORPETH, anyhow he was sum., 10 Dec. 1657, to Cromwell's "House of Lords," where he is described as "Lord Viscount Howard." Being, at the time of the Restoration, M.P. for Cumberland and, until Nov. 1660, Governor of Carlisle, he promoted the cause of the King. P.C. 2 June 1660 till 21 Apr. 1679; Custos Rot. of Essex July to Nov. 1660; Lord Lieut. of Cumberland and Westmorland Oct. 1660 till his death. On 30 Apr. 1661 (no recognition being made of his Cromwellian honours) he was cr. BARON DACRE OF GILLESLAND, Cumberland, VISCOUNT HOWARD OF MORPETH, Northumberland, and EARL OF CARLISLE.^(c) In 1663 he was sent on an Embassy to the Czar of Muscovy; in 1664 to the King of Sweden and Denmark, and in 1668 (to convey the Order of the Garter) to Carl XI of Sweden.^(d) F.R.S. 14 June 1665. ^(a) He appears in 1773, "The E. of C. and Mad^e. La M. . n," in the scandalous tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. v, p. 65, for an account of which see Appendix B in the last volume of this work. "A young man of fashion, fond of dress and gaining, by which he had greatly hurt his fortune; totally unacquainted with business, and though not void of ambition, had but moderate parts and less application." (Last Journals of Horace Walpole, Feb. 1778). In The Abbey of Kilkhampton (1780), p. 41, by Sir Herbert Croft, there is a see-saw account of him, balancing compliments and criticism; it may be gathered therefrom that he was a good man in private life, and a capable speaker, but vain and extravagant. As for his liking for those who cheated him, see some satirical verses in vol. i, Appendix H. "His Lordship is distinguished for his genius and acquirements, and is author of a volume of well-known poems." See Sir Egerton Brydges' note in Collins' Peerage, vol. iii, p. 509. His fame as a Poet and Play-writer rests however chiefly on the notice of him by his relative, and sometime ward, Lord Byron, in English Bards and Scotch Reviewers—

"What heterogeneous honours deck the Peer!
Lord, Rhymester, Petit-Mâitre and Pamphleteer!
So dull in youth, so drivelling in his age,
His scenes, alone, had damn'd our sinking stage;
But Managers, for once, cried 'Hold, enough,'
Nor drugg'd their audience with the tragic stuff;
Yet at their judgment let his Lordship laugh,
And case his Volumes with congenial Calf."

As to his politics, he supported the Court during Lord North's Govt., of which he was a member. He was one of the leaders in the Coalition of 1783, and thenceforward, except between 1793 and 1801, voted steadily with the Whigs. G.E.C. and V.G.

^(b) As a child, Madame d'Arblay says she had "a fine animated, sweet, and handsome countenance," and Lord Ronald Gower in his Reminiscences describes her charm and beauty of expression in old age. V.G.

(^a) "The Viceregal Court at the time of Lord Carlisle was most stately and dignified. He was not an imposing person to look at, being small and thin, but he had a pleasant word and a kind smile for everyone, and he was extremely popular." (^b) Possessing a "high reputation as a graceful scholar, he was especially distinguished for his skill in versification, and, in 1821, obtained two of the Univ. prizes for his poems [i.e.] the Chancellor's prize for Latin verse, and the Newdegate [prize] for English verse" at Oxford, where, in 1823, he took a first class degree in classics. He was author (1853) of A Diary in Turkish and Greek Waters. Although, perhaps, "he did not attain the highest eminence as a Statesman [he] yet played no inconsiderable part in public life," and, as Lord Lieut. of Ireland, his "career of popularity [was] almost without example among Viceroys." See Annual Reg. for 1864. "A most amiable and popular man, was happy in displaying his admirable social qualities by making the after-dinner speeches in which, thanks to his unique flow of heart-felt flummery, he was unrivalled, and by occasionally scoring at cricket." II. 1501. 2. WILLIAM (CARLYLE), LORD CARLYLE OF TORTHORWALD [S.], grandson and h., being s. and h. of John CARLYLE, MASTER OF CARLYLE, abovenamed. He was knighted 29 Jan. 1487/8. He had a charter of the Barony of Carlyle, on his grandfather's resignation, 12 Jan. 1500/1, and had seizin of certain of his lands 11 May 1503. He m., before 12 July 1487, Janet, 1st da. of John MAXWELL, MASTER OF MAXWELL, by Janet, da. of George (CRICHTON), EARL OF CAITHNESS. He d. between 22 Feb. 1523/4 and 28 May 1525.

III. 1524 3. JAMES (CARLYLE), LORD CARLYLE OF TORTHORWALD or [S.], s. and h. He had sasine 28 May 1525. He m.
1525. Janet, da. of Sir James SCRIMGEOUR, of Dudhope, Constable of Dundee. He d. s.p., shortly before 15 Jan. 1525/6.
His widow was living Nov. 1546.

^(b) On 4 Mar. 1580/1 the charter (made "per quondam consanguineum nostrum, &c.") was confirmed under the great seal to the said Michael, his heirs male "et assignatis hereditarie de totis et integris terris Baronix de Carlyle, cum castro et fortalicio de Torthorwald, &c." This settlement, however, after long litigation, appears to have been set aside, and the Barony of Carlyle was found to belong to Elizabeth, the heir general. In 1730 William Carlyle of Lochartur was served h. to Michael, 4th Lord Carlyle, as s. and h. of Robert C. of L., who was s. and h. of William C. of L., who was s. and h. of Michael C., 2nd s. and h. male of Michael, Lord Carlyle. The Peerage appears never to have been assumed or claimed by any of the above as heirs male of the grantee.

William Stewart, the Earl's nephew. Sir James was cited by the Privy Council for the purposes of the Decreet of Ranking 6 Mar. 1605/6, as James, Lord Carlyle, presumably jure uxoris, and was placed between the Lord Cathcart [cr. 1447] and the Lord Sanquhar [cr. 1485]. He is styled LORD TORTHORWALD in a crown charter of that year, as also in all references to his death. His widow m., between 1613 and Mar. 1615, William SINCLAIR, of Blans, in East Lothian. In June 1624 she was under arrest, probably for debt, and was apparently still living 8 May 1642.

VI. 1608 6. JAMES (DOUGLAS), LORD CARLYLE OF TORTHORWALD to [S.], s. and h. Immediately after his father's death he 1638? was recognised as Lord Torthorwald. On 6 Apr. 1609, he received a charter uniting the Barony of Carlyle, &c., with the Lordship of Torthorwald.^(b) He sat as a Baron, in the Parl. of 1612, in his mother's LORD HERRIES [S.]. In 1615 he was suing for divorce against her owing to her adultery with William Bannatyne. He m., 2ndly, Nov. 1618, at the parish church, Ludgate Hill, Ann Saltonstall. On 8 Aug. 1622 she divorced him for adultery. In 1638 he (according to Crawford), or (according to others) William Douglas,^(c) his s. and h. by 1st wife, resigned the Peerage to William (Douglas), 1st Earl of Queensberry [S.], MARQUESSATE. I. THOMAS (OSBORNE), EARL OF DANBY, was, on 9 Apr. 1689, cr. MARQUESS OF CARMARTHEN. On 4 May 1694 he was cr. DUKE OF LEEDS. See "LEEDS," Dukedom of, cr. 1694.

CARMICHAEL, and CARMICHAEL OF CARMICHAEL

BARONY [S.] I. JAMES CARMICHAEL, only s. and h. of Walter C., of Westraw and Hyndford, co. Lanark (who d. 25 Sep. 1625), by Grizel, da. of Sir John CARMICHAEL, of Meadowflat, in Cowanton, was b. 1579. Having been Cupbearer, Carver, and Chamberlain to James I, he was, by Charles I, cr. a Baronet [S.] 17 July 1627, as "of Westraw," though the patent was not sealed till 4 Dec. 1632. He suc. his distant cousin, Sir John Carmichael, of Carmichael (who was living 12 Feb. 1630/1), and had a charter thereof 3 Mar. 1633/4. Knighted 2 July 1632. Sheriff of Lanarkshire 1632; Lord Justice Clerk 1634-36, and again 1649; Treasurer Depute [S.] 1636; a Lord of Session 1639-49; P.C. [S.] for life (by Parl.) 1641. He was one of the "engagers" for the rescue of Charles I. Having been of service to the King, he was, on 27 Dec. 1647, cr. LORD CARMICHAEL [S.] "to him and his heirs male whatever."^(a) He did not assume the title till the patent had been ratified by further letters patent 3 Jan. 1651, with the same precedence.^(a) He was dismissed from his offices by Cromwell, and fined £2,000 by the Act of Grace, 1654. He m., 1 Nov. 1603, Agnes, da. of William WILKIE, of Foulden, co. Berwick. He d. 29 Nov. 1672, in his 94th year.

[WILLIAM CARMICHAEL, MASTER OF CARMICHAEL, s. and h. He served in his youth as one of the Gens d'Armes of Louis XIII of France; was one of the Committee of Parl., 1644 and 1645, for whom he commanded the Clydesdale regiment at the battle of Philiphaugh, in 1646, against the Duke of Montrose. He m. (cont. dat. 23 Mar. 1635) Grizel, da. of William (DOUGLAS), 1ST MARQUESS OF DOUGLAS [S.], by his 1st wife, Margaret, da. of Claude (HAMILTON), LORD PAISLEY [S.]. He d. v.p., Aug. 1657.]

^(a) The patent is not enrolled, but is quoted in Douglas, vol. ii, p. 686, from the original in the possession of the then Earl of Hyndford. It is there, however, added that the patent of 27 Dec. 1647, "according to the list of creations in the Lovat case" was to the "heirs male of the body."

II. 1672. 2. JOHN (CARMICHAEL), LORD CARMICHAEL [S.], grandson and h., being only s. and h. of William CARMICHAEL, MASTER OF CARMICHAEL, by Grizel, his wife. He was b. 28 Feb. 1638. On 25 June 1701, he was cr. EARL OF HYNDFORD, VISCOUNT OF INGLISBERRY AND NEMPHLAR and LORD CARMICHAEL OF CARMICHAEL [S.], "to him and his heirs male and of tailzee, &c." See "HYNDFORD," Earldom of [S.], cr. 1701, dormant 1817.^(a)

EARLDOM.

I. 1628. 1. ROBERT DORMER, only s. and h. of Sir William D., by Alice (m. 21 Feb. 1609/10), da. of Sir Richard MOLYNEUX, 1st Bart., of Sefton, co. Lancaster, which Sir William was 1st s. and h. ap. of Robert, 1st BARON DORMER OF WYNG, but d. v.p., being bur. 22 Oct. 1616, at Wing. On 8 Nov. 1616, he suc. his grandfather abovenamed as BARON DORMER OF WYNG, as also in his hereditary office of Chief Avenor and Keeper of the King's Hawks and Falcons, &c., being then aged about 6 years. Ed. at Eton 1621-24; matric. at Oxford (Exeter College) 30 Apr. 1624, M.A. 25 May 1627. On 2 Aug. 1628, being still under age, he was cr. VISCOUNT ASCOTT, co. Bucks, and EARL OF CARNARVON. Lord Lieut. of Bucks 1641. Knighted by the King, at York, 18 Apr. 1642; D.C.L. Oxford, 1 Nov. 1642. He was a zealous Loyalist, being one of those who subscribed the King's declaration in 1642, in which year also he commanded a regt. of Horse. He fought at the battle of Roundwaydown, 13 July 1643, but was slain a few months afterwards at the first battle of Newbury, after having routed the enemy.^(c) He m., 27 Feb. 1625, Anna Sophia, 1st da. of Philip (HERBERT), 4th EARL OF PEMBROKE, by his 1st wife, Susan, da. of Edward (VERE), EARL OF OXFORD. He d., as above mentioned, 20 Sep. 1643, aged about 33, and was bur. at Jesus Coll. Oxford, but removed 3 Aug. 1650 to Wing. Will pr. 1643. His widow d. shortly before 7 Feb. 1694/5, at a great age.

^(a) The Barony of Carmichael, cr. 1647 and ratified 1651, "was not at any time resigned. Whatever construction be put upon the grant of the Earldom, the heir male is certainly entitled to the dignity of Lord Carmichael under the letters patent of 1651." See Hewlett, p. 48.

^(b) The arms of Dormer are azure, ten golden billets, on a chief or a lion rampant sable. V.G.

^(c) Lord Clarendon says of him that though "before the war he seemed to be wholly delighted with hunting, hawking, and the like, after the troubles began he wholly gave himself up to the office and duty of a soldier, no man more diligently obliging or more dextrously commanding, for he was not only of a very keen courage, but an excellent discernor and pursuer of advantage upon his enemy. He had a mind and understanding very present in the article of danger; was a great lover of justice and practised it then most deliberately when he had power to do wrong. By his death the King found a sensible weakness in his army." See vol. ii, Appendix A, for the Loyalists' Bloody Roll, in which he is included.

VI. 1793.

1. HENRY HERBERT, s. and h. of Major Gen. the Hon. William HERBERT (5th s. of Thomas, 8th EARL OF PEMBROKE), by Catherine Elizabeth, da. of (—) TEWES, of Aix la Chapelle. He was b. 20, and bap. 24 Aug. 1741, at Islington, as "Henry Broune"; suc. his father 31 Mar. 1757 in the estate of High Clere, Hants. Matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 9 May 1760,^(a) and subsequently at Cambridge (Magd. Coll.); cr. LL.D. Cambridge 3 July 1769. He was M.P. (Tory) for Wilton 1768-80.^(b) On 17 Oct. 1780, he was cr. BARON PORCHESTER OF HIGH CLERE, co. Southampton. Thirteen years afterwards, he was, on 3 July 1793, cr. EARL OF THE TOWN AND COUNTY OF CARNARVON. Col. in the army during service 1794; Master of the Horse 1806-07; P.C. 12 Feb. 1806. He m., 15 July 1771, at her father's house in Piccadilly, St. Geo., Han. Sq., Elizabeth Alicia Maria, 1st da. of Charles (WYNDHAM), 1st EARL OF EGREMONT, by Alicia Maria, da. of George (CARPENTER), 2nd BARON CARPENTER OF KILLAGHY [I.]. He d. 3 June 1811, in Tenterden Str., aged 69. Will pr. 1811. His widow, who was b. 29 Nov. 1752, in the parish of St. Margaret's, Westm., d. 10 Feb. 1826, at Petworth. Will pr. Mar. 1826.

VII. 1811.

2. HENRY GEORGE (HERBERT), EARL OF CARNARVON, &c., s. and h., b. in Hill Str., 3, and bap. 22 June 1772, at St. Geo., Han. Sq.; was M.P. (Whig) for Cricklade (as Lord Porchester) 1794-1811;^(c) High Steward of Newbury; F.S.A. 9 June 1814.

^(a) As "Comitis de Pembroke, vitâ functi, nepos nat. max," a somewhat misleading description, inasmuch as that Earl was not represented by this his eldest "nepos" [which here means "nephew"] but by his son, the 10th Earl.

^(b) While in the Commons he steadily supported Lord North, but after the Coalition appears to have drifted into the Whig camp. He opposed Pitt's Govt., and took office under Fox in 1806. V.G.

^(c) On the introduction of the Reform Bill he went over to the Tories and strongly opposed that measure. In 1805 he had been one of the 24 managers of the impeachment of Lord Melville. V.G.

He m., 25 Apr. 1796, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Elizabeth Kitty, sister and h. of Sir John ACLAND, 8th Bart., being only da. of John Dyke ACLAND, of Pixton, Somerset, by Christian Harriet Caroline, da. of Stephen (FOX-STRANGWAYS), 1st EARL OF LICHESTER. She, who was b. 13 Dec. 1772, and who brought the estate of Pixton, Somerset, to this family, d. 5 Mar. 1813, at Shooters Hill. Will pr. 1813. He d. 16 Apr. 1833, in Grosvenor Sq., and was bur. at Burghclere, Hants, aged 60. Will pr. July 1833.

VIII. 1833. 3. HENRY JOHN GEORGE (HERBERT), EARL OF CARNARVON, &c., s. and h., b. 8 June 1800, in Grosvenor Sq.; ed. at Eton; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) (as Lord Porchester) 22 Oct. 1817. M.P. (Tory) for Wootton Bassett, 1831-32; High Steward of Newbury; F.R.S. 27 May 1841. He m., 4 Aug. 1830, at Aldingbourne, Sussex, Henrietta Anne, 1st da. of Lord Henry Thomas HOWARD-MOLYNEUX-HOWARD (br. of Bernard Edward, 12th DUKE OF NORFOLK), by Elizabeth, da. of Edward LONG, Ch. Judge of the Vice Admiralty Court at Jamaica. He d. 10 Dec. 1849, at Pusey, Berks, aged 49.^(a) Will pr. Feb. 1850. His widow, who was b. 17 July 1804, d. 26 May 1876, at Pixton Park. Will pr. 7 July 1876, under £10,000.

IX. 1849. 4. HENRY HOWARD MOLYNEUX (HERBERT), EARL OF CARNARVON, 1st s. and h., b. 24 June 1831, in Grosvenor Sq. Ed. at Eton; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) (as Lord Porchester) 17 Oct. 1849; first class in classics, B.A. 1852; Constable of Carnarvon Castle, 1854; Under Sec. of State for the Colonies, 1858-59; High Steward of the Univ. of Oxford, 16 Apr. 1859 till his death; D.C.L. Oxford (by diploma), 10 June 1859; LL.D. Cambridge, 3 June 1864; Secretary of State for the Colonies (Conservative) July 1866 to Mar. 1867^(b) and Feb. 1874 to Feb. 1878; P.C. 6 July 1866; Dep. Grand Master of Freemasons 1870-74, and Pro Grand Master 1874 till his death. F.R.S. 8 Apr. 1875; F.S.A. 6 Apr. 1876, and President of that Society 1878-85. High Steward of Newbury, 1884; P.C. [I.] 1885. LORD LIEUT. OF IRELAND, June 1885 to Jan. 1886; Lord Lieut. of Hants 1887-90. He m., 1stly, 5 Sep. 1861, at Westm. Abbey, Evelyn,^(c) da. of George (STANHOPE), 6th EARL OF CHESTERFIELD, by Anne Elizabeth, da. of Cecil WELD (WELD-FORESTER), 1st BARON FORESTER OF

^(a) Sir Walter Scott described him as "A young man who lies on the carpet and looks poetical and dandyish . . . fine lad too." "An intelligent man, but a great alarmist and very desponding; he thinks we are going on step by step to an utter subversion of all interests and institutions." (Greville Memoirs, vol. iii, p. 116). He spent large sums on the restoration of Highclere. V.G.

^(b) He voted in 1869, as did Salisbury and other Tories, for the disestablishment of the Irish Church. V.G.

^(c) "Amiable, clever, accomplished, and kind, with a charm of voice and manner peculiar to herself, she was the most perfect hostess, and in her time no place was more delightful to stay at than Highclere." (Lord Ronald Gower's Reminiscences). V.G.

WILLEY. She, who was b. 3 Nov. 1834, at Chesterfield House, was sister and sole h.^(a) of the 7th Earl of Chesterfield, who d. unm. 1 Dec. 1871, aged 40. Coll. Cambridge. High Steward of Newbury. A Conservative. He m., 26 June 1895, at St. Margaret's, Westm., Almina Victoria Maria Alexandra, only da. of Frederick Charles WOMBWELL, by Marie, formerly Mdlle. Marie BOYER.

[HENRY GEORGE ALFRED MARIUS VICTOR FRANCIS HERBERT, s. and h. ap., b. 7 Nov., and hap. 17 Dec. 1898, at the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace.]

Family Estates.—These, in 1883, consisted of 12,800 acres in Somerset (valued at £6,654 a year); 9,340 in Hants (£6,500); 8 in Wilts (£96); 68 in Devon (£36); 13,247 in Notts (£23,825) and 120 in co. Derby (£100), of which the last two (in value considerably more than half of the whole) were the ancient inheritance of the Stanhope family. Total 35,583 acres, valued at £37,211 a year. Principal Residences.—Highclere Castle (near Newbury), Hants, and Pixton Park, West Somerset.

(^a) As to her inheritance of Bretby Hall and other Stanhope estates, see note sub George, EARL OF CHESTERFIELD [1866]. V.G.

(^b) "Had everything, beauty, talent, charm and goodness." (Lady Waterford, 5 Feb. 1875). V.G.

(^c) "Very cultivated and refined, he has a manner which is too mincing to inspire confidence . . . he wants both grip and grit" (Society in London, 1885, p. 218). "Of broad sympathies, liberal mind and warm imagination" (Life of Lord Randolph Churchill). "His literary ability was remarkable. He was a fine scholar, and possessed a really astonishing fund of information on every subject . . . His deep affection for his wife, and her devotion to him, combined with the complete sympathy of their tastes and occupations, made them . . . an ideal couple, and in his own house and among his own people, no one was ever more beloved. He was too chivalrous a man for the hurly-burly of public life." (Memories of Fifty Years, by Lady St. Helier, 1909, p. 265).

CARNEY OF KINNAIRD and CARNEY OF KINNAIRD AND LEUCHARS

BARONY [S.] I. SIR DAVID CARNEY, of Kinnaird, was, on 14 Apr. 1616, cr. LORD CARNEY OF KINNAIRD [S.] to him and his heirs male bearing the name and arms of Carnegy.^(a) On 22 June 1633 he was cr. EARL OF SOUTHESK, LORD CARNEY OF KINNAIRD AND LEUCHARS [S.] to him and his heirs male for ever. See "SOUTHESK," Earldom of [S.], cr. 1633.

CARNWATH

EARLDOM [S.] I. ROBERT, MASTER OF DALZELL, s. and h. of Robert, LORD DALZELL [S.], so cr. 18 Sep. 1628, by Margaret, da. of Sir Robert CRICHTON, of Cluny, had, in 1634 and 1635, charters of the Barony of Carnwath. He suc. his father in the Barony between July 1635 and July 1636. On 21 Apr. 1639 he was cr. EARL OF CARNWATH [S.], with limitation to him and his heirs male bearing the name and arms of Dalzell.^(b) He was accused in June 1643 by the Scottish Convention of betraying the designs of the Scots to the King, and they, on his retiring to England, fined him £10,000 Scots. On 25 Feb. 1645, he was "forfeit," sentenced to death, &c., the act providing "that his only lawful son, Gavin, Lord Dalzell, shall enjoy not only all the estates but the title of Earl as if his father were dead."^(c) He fought at the battle of Naseby, 14 June 1645, the loss of which is attributed, by Lord Clarendon, to his hindering the King from charging the enemy at the head of his Guards. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Worcester, 3 Sep. 1651, and committed to the Tower, whence on 25 June 1652, he was allowed to go to Epsom to drink the waters. He m., 1stly, Christian, 3rd da. of Sir William DOUGLAS, of Hawick, by Margaret (tocher 20,000 marks), da. of James GORDON, of Lochinvar. He m., 2ndly, Katherine, da. of John ABINGTON, of Dowdeswell, co. Gloucester. He was bur. 21 June 1654, at St. Margaret's, Westm. Admon. 30 Oct. 1660 to ^(a) Being erected "in Baronem majorem et Dominum Parliamenti," a peculiar and probably unique form, marking, very clearly, the distinction between the Greater and the Lesser Barons of Scotland.

^(b) The proof that it was he (and not his father, as has hitherto been stated in all previous accounts, including the recent Scots Peerage) who was created Earl, has been kindly furnished to the Editor by J. Maitland Thomson, LL.D. The person who was Master of Dalzell 11 July 1635 (Reg. Mag. Sig.) was Lord Dalzell at the date of his son's marriage contract, 21 July 1637 (Reg. of Deeds, 526, 69); and the first Lord Dalzell was dead July 1636 (Lanark Sas., Upper Ward, III, 342). "It therefore follows as the night the day" that it was Robert the son who was created Earl of Carnwath 21 Apr. 1639. V.G.

his widow. She m. (mar. lic. at Fac. off.), 30 Dec. 1661, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, William WATKINS, of Westminster, aged about 60, a widower, she being aged 24. He appears to have d. before June 1662, when an admon. (not now existing) occurs of a person of that name. She m., 3rdly, as his 2nd wife (mar. lic. 13 Feb. 1662/3, Vic. Gen.), Samuel COLLINS, of London, Doctor of Physic, then aged about 40. He, who entered and signed his pedigree at the Visit. of London, 1665, d. 11, and was bur. 19 Apr. 1710, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields. The Countess Dowager of Carnwath was bur. (as such) 12 Aug. 1712, at St. Martin's afsd. Will dat. 15 May 1710, pr. 9 Aug. 1712.

II. 1654. 2. GAVIN (DALZELL), EARL OF CARNWATH, &c. [S.], s. and h. by 1st wife, who, as early as 1646, was, in consequence of the act of Parl. above referred to, styled v.p. EARL OF CARNWATH. He fought on the King's side, Sep. 1651, at the battle of Worcester, where he was taken prisoner and detained for many years. He m., 1stly (cont. dat. 21 July 1637), Margaret, 1st da. and coh. of David CARNEG, styled LORD CARNEG (s. and h. ap. of David, 1st EARL OF SOUTHESK [S.]), by Margaret, da. of Thomas (HAMILTON), 1st EARL OF HADDINGTON [S.]. She was living as his wife 4 July 1648. He m., 2ndly, before 14 Dec. 1663, Mary, 1st da. of Alexander ERSKINE, styled VISCOUNT FENTOUN (s. and h. ap. of Thomas, 1st EARL OF KELLIE [S.]), by Anne, da. of Alexander (SETON), 1st EARL OF DUNFERMLINE [S.]. By her he had no issue. He d. June 1674.^(a) Fun. entry in Lyon office. Will pr. 13 May 1675.

III. 1674. 3. JAMES (DALZELL), EARL OF CARNWATH, &c. [S.], s. and h. by 1st wife, b. before 4 July 1648, served h. to his father, 30 May 1676. Ed. at Glasgow Univ. 1659. He sold the estate of Carnwath to Sir George Lockhart in 1682. He m., 10 Dec. 1676, Mary, 6th and yst. da. of George (SETON), 3rd EARL OF WINTOUN [S.], by his 2nd wife, Elizabeth, da. of John (MAXWELL), LORD HERRIES [S.]. He d. s.p.m. 1683.^(b) His widow d. 15, and was bur. 19 Jan. 1697/8, at Holyrood Chapel. Fun. entry in Lyon office.

IV. 1683. 4. JOHN (DALZELL), EARL OF CARNWATH, &c. [S.], br. of the whole blood and h. male. Ed. at Glasgow Univ. 1659. Served h. to his br. 13 Nov. 1688. He d. unm., 7 June 1702.^(c) Fun. entry in Lyon office.

^(a) Scots Peerage says Nov. or Dec. 1673.

^(b) Scots Peerage in error quotes his will as showing that he died in 1688, but in the Great Seal charter of Carnwath, dated 15 Feb. 1683/4, ratifying a disposition of Earl James of 15 Jan. 1681/2, he is described as "quondam," and therefore must have died between those two dates. The date of 1683 comes from Crawford, who quotes "Records of the Abbey Church of Holyrood." (ex inform. J. Maitland Thomson). V.G.

 Dumfries, who was 2nd s. of Robert, 1st EARL OF CARN-WATH [S.] abovenamed. In Mar. 1689 he suc. his father in the Baronety and in the estate of Glenae afsd. He was b. probably about 1687; was ed.
at Cambridge, and was of the English Episcopal Church. Engaging in the Rising on behalf of the exiled Royal line, he was taken prisoner at Preston, 14 Nov. 1715, and his impeachment was read 19 Jan. 1715/6 before the House of Peers. He pleaded guilty, and was on 9 Feb. sentenced to death as a traitor, and, being attainted, his estate of £863 per annum, as also his Peerage honours were forfeited.^(a) His execution was, however, first respited, and afterwards altogether remitted. He m., 1stly, 19 Jan.
1710 (date of cont.), Grace, 3rd da. of Alexander (MONTGOMERIE), 9th
EARL OF EGLINTOUN [S.], by his 1st wife, Margaret, da. of William COCH-RANE, styled LORD COCHRANE. She d. s.p.m., Jan. 1713. He m., 2ndly, 3 June 1720, Grizell, da. of Alexander URQUHART, of Newhall. She d. and was bur. 4 Sep. 1723, at Bath Abbey. He m., 3rdly, 15 Nov. 1728, Margaret, da. of John HAMILTON, of Bangour. She d. 13 Feb. 1730, at Edinburgh. Fun. entry in Lyon office. He m., 4thly, 19 June 1735, at Worksop, Notts, Margaret, 3rd da. of Thomas VINCENT, of Barnborough Grange, co. York, by Isabel, da. of Philip PACKER, of Groombridge, Kent.
He d. 4 Aug. 1737, at Kirkmichael, aged about 50. His widow, who was hap. at Barnborough 5 Nov. 1696, d. in London 11, and was bur. 15 Apr.
1758, at St. Margaret's, Westm.

*The following is an account of the successive heirs to the Grantee of the above
Peerages after the forfeiture:—*

- VI. 1737. 6. ALEXANDER DALZELL, styling himself, and who, but for the attainer in 1716, would have been, EARL OF CARNWATH, &c. [S.], s. and h. by 2nd wife, b. 2, and hap. 4 Feb.
1721/2, at St. James's, Westm. He m., before 1753, Elizabeth JACKSON, spinster. He d. 3 Apr. 1787, at Kirkmichael, aged 65.

[RICHARD DALZELL, styling himself MASTER OF CARNWATH OR LORD
DALZELL, s. and h. ap., b. 23 July 1753. He m., in 1775, Elizabeth dix E.

VII. 1787. 7. ROBERT DALZELL, of Glenae afsd., who, but for the attainder in 1716, would have been EARL OF CARNWATH, &c. [S.], but who never assumed that title, 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h. male, b. 1755. He became a Member of the Faculty of Advocates, Edinburgh, in 1776. He m., 18 Mar. 1783, Anne, da. of David ARMSTRONG, of Kirtleton, co. Dumfries, Advocate. She d. at Edinburgh, 21 Feb. 1797. He d. 13 Feb. 1808, at Glenae House, aged 52.

VIII. 1808. 8. JOHN DALZELL, of Glenae afsd., who, but for the attainder, would have been EARL OF CARNWATH, &c. [S.], but who never assumed that title, only s. and h., b. 18 Aug. 1795. A Major in the Marines 1798, when aged 3! He d. unm., 10 Oct. 1814, aged 19, being slain in action off New Orleans.

[IX. 1814.] [9, or] 6. ROBERT ALEXANDER DALZELL, who, but for the attainder, would have been EARL OF CARNWATH, &c. VI. 1826. [S.], cousin and h. male, being only s. and h. of Robert DALZELL, by Elizabeth, da. of John ACKLON, of Wiseton Hall, Notts, which Robert was yst. s. of Robert, the 5th (and attainted) Earl, by Margaret, his 4th and last wife. He was b. 13 Feb. 1768, and suc. his father 31 July 1788. He was in the army, Major Gen. 1814, Lieut. Gen. 1830. He obtained an act "for the restoration to the dignity and title of EARL OF CARNWATH," 26 May 1826.^(a) He m., 1stly, 23 Sep. 1789, Jane, da. of Samuel PARKES, of Cork. She d. 30 Sep. 1791. He m., 1stly, 9 Sep. 1834, Mary Anne, widow of John BLACHFORD, of Altadore, co. Wicklow, 1st da. of the Right Hon. Henry GRATTAN. She d. 22 May 1853, at Bushey Park. He m., 2ndly, 2 May 1855, Isabella

(^a) See vol. i, Appendix E for a list of such restorations. It is to be observed that in this particular act of restoration no mention is made of the Barony of Dalzell [S.], cr. 1628, which, it is to be presumed, still remains under forfeiture. The Barony of Scot of Tindal was expressly mentioned in the act (1742) for the restoration of the Earldom of Doncaster, though those two dignities (unlike this case) originated in one and the same patent, and might, therefore, be held to be one and the same Peerage.

CARPENTER OF KILLAGHY

BARONY [I.] I. GEORGE CARPENTER, yst. s. of Warncombe C., by Eleanor, widow of John HILL, da. of William TAYLOR, of Withington, co. Hereford, was b. 10 Feb. 1656/7, at Pitcher's Ocell, co. Hereford, and at the age of 14 was Page to Ralph Montagu (afterwards 1st Duke of Montagu) in his embassy to France, after which he entered the 3rd troop of Guards as a Private; was many years Lieut. Col. of Peterborough's regt. of Horse, and subsequently Col. of the 3rd (King's own) Dragoons 1703 till his death; in this regt. he served with great gallantry both in Flanders and Spain. Brig. Gen. 1705. He distinguished himself again by helping to mitigate the severe English defeat at Almanza, 14/25 Apr. 1707; Major Gen. 1708; Lieut. Gen. 1709/10, and was severely wounded, 27 July 1710, at the battle of Almenara. M.P. (Whig) for Whitchurch, 1715-22, and for Westminster 1722-27. Envoy to the Court of Vienna, 1715. Gov. of Minorca 1716 till his death; and Commander in Chief of all the forces in North Britain, 1716-25.^(a) On 29 May 1719 he was cr. BARON CARPENTER OF KILLAGHY,^(b) co. Kilkenny [I.]. He m., (lic. 20 Jan. 1693/4, at the Fac. office, each being said to be aged 33) 23 Jan. 1693/4, at St. Edmund the King, London, Alice (a large fortune), widow of James MARGETSON, da. of William (CAULFIELD), 1st VISCOUNT CHARLEMONT [I.], by Sarah, da. of Charles (MOORE), VISCOUNT DROGHEDA [I.]. She d. 7 Oct. 1731, at Bath, Somerset, and was bur. (from her husband's house at Longwood) at Ouselbury, Hants. Admon. 17 Feb. 1731/2. CARRICK (district of) SCOTLAND

EARLDOM [S.] I. DUNCAN, son of GILBERT (who d. 1 Jan. 1185), yr. s. of FERGUS, the Celtic LORD OF GALLOWAY (who d. 1161), having compromised matters with his cousin Roland, who had rival claims, obtained from King William the Lion, before 1196, the district of Carrick, formed out of the old Cumbrian Kingdom, part of ancient Galloway, with the title of EARL OF CARRICK [S.]. He took part with King John of England in his Irish wars. He d. 13 June 1250.

II. 1250. 2. NEIL, EARL OF CARRICK [S.], s. and h., one of the English faction, and under the protection of Henry III, was appointed one of the Regents of Scotland and Guardians of Alexander III, 20 Sep. 1255. He m. Margaret, da. of Walter, High Steward of Scotland. He d. 1256.

III. 1256. 3. MARGARET,^(*) suo jure COUNTESS OF CARRICK [S.], da. and h. She m., istly, Adam DE KILCONQUHAR, who thus became jure uxoris EARL OF CARRICK [S.]. He d. s.p., being killed in the French Crusade of 1268, at Acre in Palestine in 1270. The Countess m., the next year, 1271, at her castle of Turnberry, Robert DE BRUCE, who thus became jure uxoris EARL OF CARRICK [S.]. For this marriage, which was without the Royal consent, she had to pay a heavy fine. Her husband was

(*) She is called, erroneously, by Fordun "Martha, da. and h. of Adam, Earl of Carrick, making her thus a da. of (Margaret) the above Countess, by her husband Adam de Kilconcath. The Melrose chronicle designates her correctly, and there is abundant record evidence to the same effect." (ex inform. G. Burnett, sometime Lyon).

s. and h. ap. of Robert DE BRUCE, of Annandale (one of the Competitors for the Crown of Scotland), by his 1st wife, Isabel, da. of Gilbert (DE CLARE), EARL OF GLOUCESTER AND HERTFORD. In 1278 he swore fealty, as proxy for Alexander III, for the Kingdom of Scotland, to Edward I, to which King, on 13 June 1291, he also swore fealty. He was sum. to be at Shrewsbury for the trial of David ap Griffith, 28 June (1283) 11 Edw. I,^(a) by writ directed Roberto de Brus Comiti de Carrick, his name appearing as 11th and last of the earls who were then sum. His wife, the Countess, having previously died, he, on 27 Oct. 1292, resigned the Earldom of Carrick to his 1st son, though he appears still to have been styled Earl thereof. On 1 Apr. 1295 he suc. his father (who d. aged about 85), and was made Gov. of Carlisle Castle. On 24 June (1295) 23 Edw. I, he was sum. to Parl. [E.] by writ directed Roberto de Brus, whereby he may be held to have become LORD BRUCE.^(b) He was also sum. to attend the King at Salisbury, 26 Jan. (1296/7) 25 Edw. I.^(c) He accompanied Edward I into Scotland, and fought 28 Apr. 1296, at the battle of Dunbar. To that King he again swore fealty 28 Aug. 1296, at Berwick. He m., 2ndly, Eleanor.^(d) He resided latterly in England, and d. there or in Palestine, 1304, before 14 June, and was bur. at Holmcultram. His widow m., in 1305/6, as his 1st wife, Richard WALEYS [LORD WALEYS]. She d. between 16 Mar. and 19 Oct. 1330.

IV. 1292 4. ROBERT (DE BRUCE), EARL OF CARRICK [S.], by the to signation of his father on 27 Oct. 1292, as above mentioned, 1306. 1st s. and h. He was b. 11 July 1274, at Writtle, Essex.
 By the death of his father he may be held to have become
 (as his s. and h.) LORD BRUCE [E.]. He had livery of his father's lands 14 June 1304, having done homage to the English King. On 27 Mar.
 1306 he was crowned KING OF SCOTLAND (as ROBERT I), when his Scottish dignities merged in that Crown; any English Barony of Bruce that may be imagined to have been cr. by the writ of 1295, would either have been forfeited in 1306, or after the death, s.p., of his only s. and h., King David II, 22 Feb. 1371, would, according to modern doctrine, have fallen into abeyance between his daughters and coheirs, the sisters of the late King.

V. 1313. I. SIR EDWARD DE BRUCE, 2nd s. of Margaret, suo jure
 COUNTESS OF CARRICK [S.], by her 2nd husband, Robert DE BRUCE abovenamed, was, by his eldest br. King Robert I, cr., shortly before

(^a) Though this summons may be held, according to modern doctrine (on the analogy of the startling Segrave decision in 1877) to have conferred on him a Barony [Lord Bruce], it certainly cannot be regarded as having cr. an English Earldom. See similar cases sub Angus and Atholl, and see also Preface. V.G.

(^b) This writ is fully discussed in Round's Peerage and Pedigree. As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title, see Appendix A in the last volume of this work. V.G.

24 Oct. 1313, EARL OF CARRICK [S.], with rem. to the heirs male of his body. He appears to have been also LORD OF GALLOWAY. The Irish and Scots in Ulster having been oppressed by the English, he landed at Carrickfergus, 25 May 1315, and, on 2 May 1316, was crowned KING OF IRELAND. He is said to have m. Isabel, da. of John (OF STRATHBOGIE), EARL OF ATHOLL, by Margaret, da. of Donald, EARL OF MAR. He had a dispensation for marriage (which probably never took place) 1 June 1317, with Isabel, da. of William, EARL OF ROSS [S.]. He d. s.p. legit., being slain at the battle of Dundalk, 14^(a) Oct. 1318, when the Earldom reverted to the Crown [S.].

VI.^(b) 1328 I. DAVID DE BRUCE, PRINCE OF SCOTLAND, s. and h. to ap. of KING ROBERT I, b. 5 Mar. 1323/4, was by his said 1329. father (who himself had held that title, 1292-1306), cr.
EARL OF CARRICK [S.], in 1328. On 7 June 1329, he became KING OF SCOTLAND, as DAVID II, when the Earldom merged in that Crown.

VII. 1330? I. ALEXANDER DE BRUCE, illegit. son of Edward, EARL to OF CARRICK [S.] abovenamed, by Isabel, sister of David 1333. (OF STRATHBOGIE), EARL OF ATHOLL [S.], was, about 1330 or soon after, cr. EARL OF CARRICK [S.]. He submitted to Balliol in 1332, but was slain fighting against the English at Halidon hill. He m. Eleanor, only sister of William, 1ST EARL OF DOUGLAS [S.], da. of Archibald DOUGLAS, Regent of Scotland, by Beatrice, da. of Sir
Alexander LINDSAY, of Crawford. He d. as afsd., s.p.m., 19 July 1333.
His widow m., before 1349, James SANDILANDS, of Calder, who d. before 1358; 3rdly, before 1364 (and probably before 1361), William TOWERS, of Dalry; 4thly, before 1368, Sir Duncan WALLACE, of Sundrum; and, 5thly and lastly (as his 2nd wife, dispensation granted 18 Mar. 1376), Sir Patrick HEPBURN,^(c) of Hales, who was living in 1402, being then above 80 years old.

(a) Following Camden's Chronicle, books of reference such as Haydn give 5 Oct. as the date of this battle, but there can be but little doubt that it was fought on Saturday, St. Kalixtus' day, 14 Oct. V.G.

(b) The succession, as given in Wood's Douglas, at this date is (1) Robert de Bruce, said to be Earl of Carrick, 1318 to 1332, (2) Alexander de Bruce, as (more or less) in the text, and (3) Thomas de Bruce, said to be Earl of Carrick, 1333 to 1334 or soon afterwards. These three are stated to be bastards of Edward, Earl of Carrick (1314-18) abovenamed—but, of them, Robert never existed, while Thomas (though, probably, a son of the said Earl, and, certainly, ancestor of the Bruces of Clackmannan, &c.) was never EARL OF CARRICK. (ex inform. G. Burnett, sometime Lyon). See also Exch. Rolls [S.], vol. i, p. cxxxi, and pp. 189, 190, 258 and 259.

(c) Ancestor of the (Hepburn) Lords Hales, afterwards Earls of Bothwell. V.G.

VIII. 1362? I. SIR WILLIAM CUNYNGHAME, probably s. and h. of to Hugh C., appears by an undated^(a) charter of David II 1365? to have been cr., about 1362, EARL OF CARRICK [S.].
The Earldom, however, appears soon afterwards, and before 1369 (probably by resignation), to have reverted to the Crown. He m. Margaret,^(b) who was living as his wife 18 Apr. 1369. He d. between Dec.
1396 and July 1399. His 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h. is called (merely) Sir
William Cunynghame.^(c)

IX. 1368 I. JOHN STEWART, s. and h. ap. of Robert, afterwards to ROBERT II, King of Scotland, but at that time EARL OF 1390. STRATHERN [S.], by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, da. of Sir Adam MURE, was b. about 1337. He was, by his grand-uncle, King David II, cr. EARL OF CARRICK [S.], 22 June 1368, and, as such, was present in the Parl. at Perth, 23 Oct. 1370. He m., in 1367 (commission to grant disp. 13 Mar. 1365/6), Annabel, 1st da. of Sir John DRUMMOND, of Stobhall, by Mary, 1st da. and coh. of Sir William DE MONTIFEX. She d. in 1401. Soon after his father had suc. to the throne, he obtained, 1 June 1374, a new charter of this Earldom to the heirs of his body by Annabel his wife, in fee. On 19 Apr. 1390, he suc. to the throne as KING ROBERT III, when the Earldom merged in the Crown.

X. 1390 I. DAVID STEWART, PRINCE OF SCOTLAND, 1st s. and h. to ap. of KING ROBERT III, was b. 1378, and on, or soon after, 1402. his father's accession to the throne, 19 Apr. 1390, was recognised as EARL OF CARRICK [S.]. On 28 Apr. 1398 he was cr. DUKE OF ROTHESAY [S.], and on 6 Sep. following EARL OF ATHOLL [S.]. He d. s.p. and v.p., 26 Mar. 1402, when his Peerage honours became extinct or reverted to the Crown. See fuller account under "ROTHESAY," Dukedom of [S.], cr. 1398.

XI. 1404 I. JAMES STEWART, PRINCE OF SCOTLAND, 3rd but 1st surv. to s. and h. ap. of KING ROBERT III, was b. 1394, and having, 1406. by the death of his elder br. (David) abovenamed, become in 1402 h. ap. to the Crown, received by charter, 10 Dec.
1404 (though for his life only), certain lands and lordships (including the entire lands of the entire Earldom of Carrick), whereby he, possibly, became ^(a) The date of each of the charters immediately preceding and following is 12 Sep. 1362. The charter is incomplete in the record, but the nominee soon afterwards grants a charter as Earl of Carrick.

^(b) He is often stated to have m. Eleanor, widow of Alexander (de Bruce), Earl of Carrick, but though she had five husbands it is pretty clear that he was not one of them. Others say that he m. their only da. and h., Eleanor, but there seems to be no evidence of her existence. V.G.

^(c) Exch. Rolls [S.], vol. ii, p. 165.

EARL OF CARRICK, &c. [S.]. He is, however, never designated either as "Earl of Carrick" or "Duke of Rothesay," but always as "Prince," or "Steward of Scotland." On 4 Apr. 1406 he suc. to the throne as KING JAMES I, when his Peerage dignities (if any) merged in the Crown.

ROBERT STUART, PRINCE OF SCOTLAND, 3rd s. of King James VI, b. 18 Feb., and d. 27 May 1602, appears to have been designated DUKE OF KINTYRE, MARQUESS OF WIGTON and EARL OF CARRICK [S.]. See under KINTYRE.

[By Act of Parl. [S.] 27 Nov. 1469 it was declared that "THE EARLDOM OF CARRICK" [S.] and other lands and lordships therein mentioned should be annexed for ever to the first born princes of the Kings of Scotland, and "it is understood that from this period the Dukedom of Rothesay, the Earldom of Carrick, the Lordship of the Isles and Barony of Renfrew" [S.] were so vested, with the privilege of a Peer of Scotland.^(a) See under "ROTHESAY," Dukedom of [S.], cr. 1469.]

CARRICK (in Orkney) [Scotland]

EARLDOM [S.] 1. JOHN STEWART, 2nd surv. s. of Robert (STEWART), EARL OF ORKNEY [S.], by Janet, da. of Gilbert (KENNEDY), 3rd EARL OF CASSILLIS [S.], was, being h. presumptive to his br., sometimes styled MASTER OF ORKNEY, and having had grants of the dominical lands of the Monastery of Crossregal, &c., was, on 10 Aug. 1607, cr. LORD KINCLEVEN [S.].^(b) On 22 July 1628, he was cr. EARL OF CARRICK (in Orkney) [S.].

This dignity was called in question at the Privy Council, as being the proper style of the eldest son of the King of Scotland and one not communicable to any subject. The difficulty is supposed^(c) to have been got over by an explanation that an imaginary place in Orkney, called "Carrick," was the territory intended; at all events, on 14 Dec. 1630, he received his patent from

^(b) This Barony (as also that of Balfour of Burleigh) was created without any mention of heirs, and Lord Kingleven sat (by proxy) in the Parl. See Hewlett, pp. 52-56, where it is remarked that "by the law of Scotland the grant of a heritable subject [which a Scottish peerage is] to a person without mention of heirs is a grant to him and his heirs." The grantee's only da. and h., Margaret, m. Sir Matthew Mennes, K.B. CARRINGTON OF BULCOT LODGE and

BARONY [I.]

I. 1796.

BARONY [G.B.]

I. 1797.

I. ROBERT SMITH, of Bulcot in Burton-Joyce, Notts, Banker of London, 3rd but 1st surv. s. and h. male of Abel S., of Nottingham and London,^(a) Banker (some-time M.P., who d. 12 July 1788), by Mary, da. of Thomas BIRD, of Barton, co. Warwick, b. 22 Jan., and bap. 21 Feb. 1752, at St. Peter's, Nottingham, was M.P.^(b) for Nottingham in 5 Parliaments, 1779 to 1797. On 11 July 1796, he was cr. BARON CARRINGTON^(c) OF

(a) The banking firm of "Smith, Payne and Co." is first found in the London Directory for 1759. In 1773 it became "Smith Payne and Smith"; in 1785 "Smith Payne Smiths and Payne"; and finally (1786) "Smith Payne and Smiths."

(b) He was a Whig till the Coalition of 1783, and thereafter supported Pitt. After Pitt's death in 1806, he acted with the Whigs again till about 1820, when he reverted to the Tories, and voted for the proceedings against Queen Caroline, and was one of the 22 "Stalwarts" who voted against the 3rd Reading of the Reform Bill, 4 June 1832. For a list of these see Appendix I to this volume. V.G.

(c) The title of "Carrington" was doubtless selected because the ancient family of Smith, alias Carrington (though in no way connected with the family of the grantee) had, under the latter name, been ennobled in 1643. The grantee's father (who established the London Banking House) and grandfather, each named Abel Smith, were bankers at the county town of Nottingham. The grandfather of the last, with whom the pedigree begins, was one John Smith, of Cropwell Boteler in Titheby, Notts, who d. 1641, whose son Thomas Smith (great-grandfather of the first Peer) was "a respectable draper at Nottingham," who, by keeping account of the "market transactions" of the farmers near there and by receiving their cash, eventually became a Country Banker. See F. Martin's Stories of Banks and Bankers. He m. Fortune, sister

BULCOT LODGE [I.], and on 20 Oct. 1797 was cr. BARON CARRINGTON OF UPTON, co. Nottingham [G.B.]. He m., 1stly, 6 July 1780, at Tottenham, Midx., Anne, 1st da. of Lewyns BOLDERO-BARNARD, of Cave Castle, co. York, by Anne, da. of William POPPLEWELL, of Monk Hill, near Pontefract. She d. at Whitehall, 9, and was bur. 19 Feb. 1827, at St. Peter's, Nottingham, aged 70. He m., 2ndly, 19 Jan. 1836, at Bath, Somerset, Charlotte, widow of the Rev. Walter TREVELYAN, Vicar of Henbury, 3rd da. of John HUDSON, of Bessingby, co. York, by Susanna, 2nd da. of Sir George TREVELYAN, 3rd Bart. He d. at Whitehall, 18 Sep., and was bur. 3 Oct. 1838, at Wycombe, Bucks, aged 86.^(a) Will dat. 22 July 1836, pr. 2 Nov. 1838, under £120,000. II. 1838. 2. ROBERT JOHN (SMITH, afterwards CARRINGTON), BARON CARRINGTON OF UPTON [G.B.], &c., only s. and h.,
by 1st wife, b. 16 Jan. 1796; was ed. at Christ's Coll. Cambridge, M.A.
1815. He was M.P. (Whig) for Wendover 1818-20; for Bucks 1820-31; and for High Wycombe 1831-38.^(b) Lord Lieut. of Bucks 1839 till his death; F.R.S. 14 Feb. 1839. By Royal lic. 26 Aug. 1839, he and his issue took the name of Carrington in lieu of that of Smith, in compliance with an of Abel Collin, of Nottingham, to which match apparently the family owed their greatness, as the griffin in the coat of Collin forms the chief charge in the coat of Smith granted in the 18th century to their more distinguished descendants. G.E.C. See J. H. Round's Peerage and Pedigree, vol. ii, pp. 213-220, where the true descent of this family is shewn to have been established by one of its own members, Augustus Smith, who describes it as "altogether plebeian in its source." Although retaining Carrington as its surname, the family has now abandoned any claim to a Carrington descent. V.G.

^(a) Maria Edgeworth describes him as "most amiable and benevolent, without any species of pretension, thinking the best that can be thought of everything and everybody." His unobtrusive benevolence is alluded to by Cowper in The Task, Book IV:—

"I mean the man, who when the distant poor Need help, denies them nothing but his name."

"His character was without reproach, and his fortune ample, but he possessed no parliamentary talents." He was raised to the English peerage by Pitt, "not however, as was well known, without experiencing a long resistance on the part of the King" on account of his being engaged in trade. Wraxall, Posth. Memoirs, vol. i, p. 66-68, where it is insinuated that he gave pecuniary assistance to Pitt, but Carrington in a letter to Thomas Grenville, dated 7 Aug. 1836, expressly states that "during the twenty five years in which I enjoyed Mr. Pitt's friendship, not only no money transactions ever passed between us but not a single word of allusion to such a subject was ever spoken by either of us." He d. in Whitehall yard, 17, and was bur. 25 Mar. 1868, at Moulsoe, Bucks, aged 72. Will pr. 13 July 1868, under £70,000. His widow, who was b. 3 Nov., and hap. 24 Dec. 1815, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., d. after a short illness, 26 July 1879, in Berkeley Sq., Midx.

On the death of his mother, 26 July 1879, he inherited a moiety of the office of JOINT HEREDITARY GREAT CHAMBERLAIN OF ENGLAND,^(e) held by his maternal grandfather and maternal uncle, both Lords Willoughby (of Eresby), abovenamed. By Royal lic. 21 Aug. 1880, he and his two brothers were authorised to continue to use the name of Carington in lieu of Carrington.^(f) Capt. of the Gentlemen-at-Arms 1881-85; P.C. 15 July 1881; G.C.M.G. 6 June 1885; GOVERNOR OF NEW SOUTH WALES 1885-90; Lord Chamberlain of the Household 1892-95; Member L.C.C. CARRINGTON OF WOTTON and CARRINGTON OF BURFORD [i.e. BARREFORE]

VISCOUNTCY [I.]

I. 1643.

I. CHARLES SMYTH, s. and h. of Sir Francis S., of Wootton Wawen, co. Warwick, and of Ashby Folville and Queenborough, co. Leicester (d. 6 May 1629), by Anne, da. of Thomas MARKHAM, of Ollerton, Notts, was aged 21 in 1619, the date of the Heraldic Visitation of co. Leicester, receiving knighthood on 28 June in that year. He was a zealous Royalist and gave considerable aid to the King. On 31 Oct. 1643, he was cr. "BARON CARRINGTON OF WOTTON, co. Warwick," and, a few days afterwards, on 4 Nov. 1643 was cr. "VISCOUNT CARRINGTON OF BURFORD" [i.e. BARREFORE] in the Province of Connaught [I.]^(e)

(a) The order of the Court had been that the office should be filled in turn by the Earl of Ancaster, the Marquess Cholmondeley, and the Earl Carrington. V.G.

(b) For this and other great offices of state see vol. ii, Appendix D.

(c) No less than 10 members of the royal family, including the Prince and Princess of Wales, were present at the ceremony. V.G.

(d) The Marquess purchased, from the Earl of Ancaster, Gwydyr Castle and the estates, formerly belonging to their common ancestors, the family of Wynn. V.G.

(e) The only record of either of these creations is in Black's Docquets of Letters Patent in the years 1642-46; Commissioners having been ordered by the Parliament to cancel and deface all patents conferring honours after 4 Jan. 1641. See vol. ii, p. 454, note "b." The title of "Carrington" was chosen from a traditional descent of the family from a mythical Sir Michael Carington or Carrington, standard bearer to Richard I in the Holy Land, whose alleged descendant, one John

On 25 Sep. 1646 his estates were directed to be sold by the Parliamentarians, and "the Lady Carington" was fined £714 as a composition for her estate at Ashby Folville. He m. Elizabeth (sometimes called "Anna"), da. of Sir John CARYLL, of South Harting, Sussex, by Mary, da. of Robert (DORMER), 1st BARON DORMER. She d. and was bur. 21 Mar. 1658, at Wootton-Wawen. He d. 22 Feb. or 4 Mar. 1664/5, aged 65, being murdered, for the sake of plunder, by one of his own servants, near Pontoise in France, and was bur. in the church of St. Maclou there. M.I.^(a) Admon. 21 Apr. 1668, to his son.

II. 1665. 2. FRANCIS (SMITH), VISCOUNT CARRINGTON OF BURFORD [I.] and BARON CARRINGTON OF WOTTON [E.], s. and h., b. about 1621. Lord Lieut. of co. Worcester 1687-89. He did not Carrington, is said from his adherence to the unfortunate Richard II to have "expatriated himself" and to have for security changed his name to Smith! It is to be observed, however, that no such descent is mentioned in the Her. Visit. of co. Leicester 1619, where the pedigree begins with Sir John Smith, Baron of the Exchequer, 1539. Sir John was son of Hugh Smith of Cressing, Essex, who was probably a yr. son of John Smith of Rivenhall, Essex, by Millicent (a great heiress in that co.), da. and h. of Robert Lainham, the said John Smith being presumed to be the fugitive John Carrington, alias Smith, above-mentioned. The following note on this subject is in Vincent's handwriting in "Vincent's Leicestershire," one of the MSS. in the College of Arms: "I cannot but feare this descent from which y^e Smiths of Ashby Folvill and others of that name derive themselves; because it is scarce known that, upon any occasion, both name and arms should be changed, and Sir John Smith, Knt., Baron of y^e Exchequer, gave first [as the armorial ensigns of his family] *Argent, on a chevron, sable, 6 fleur de lis, or: on a chief, of the second, a lion passant, of the first, and y^e, after many years, y^e issue of him gave [as such armorial ensigns] y^e cross, between 4 peacocks, proper; and now they flye to CARRINGTON, sed quo jure penitus ignoro. Ex libro Thomæ, Baronis Brudenell, a^o 1641." An allusion to the descent from the Standard Bearer is probably made by the red cross on a white field (the Cross of St. George), in the Arms above quoted, and certainly in the grant of supporters, the dexter of which is a man in armour supporting "a standard ensigned with the cross of St. George." See [Delamotte's] Historical Arms, &c. 1803, pp. 451-452.*

The legend of Sir Michael Carington is elaborately worked up in The History and Records of the Smith-Carington Family, by Walter A. Copinger, LL.D., 1907, an enormous tome which was offered for sale to the public at £5 5s. The historical and genealogical value claimed for this work led J. H. Round to submit it to a searching scrutiny, the result of which—disastrous to the book and its author—is set forth in the article "The Great Carington Imposture" in his Peerage and Pedigree, vol. ii, pp. 134-257, where the whole "Carington" story is shown to rest on a document concocted apparently in the time of Elizabeth. The Smith family, however, which is now of Ashby Folville by purchase, has been allowed to take the additional name of Carington by Royal licence. A pedigree has been entered at the Heralds' Coll. deducing the descent of this family of Smith from the afsd. Sir Michael Carington, and a copy (certified 30 Oct. 1890 by H. F. Burke, Somerset Herald) is in the possession of R. Smith Carington of Ashby Folville. G.E.C. and V.G.

1540/1, he had a charter of the Fief of Cassillis, &c., to himself and the heirs male of his body,^(a) with divers remainders over. He was taken prisoner by the English at Solway Moss, 24 Nov. 1542,^(b) but finally discharged in Feb. 1545. Extraordinary Lord of Session 1546 till his death; he shared in the Scottish defeat at Pinkie 10 Sep. 1547. He became a Protestant,^(c) and went over to the English party.^(d) HIGH TREASURER [S.], 1554. He was one of the 8 members chosen to represent his country at the marriage of Mary, Queen of Scots, with the Dauphin of France, which was celebrated at Paris 24 Apr. 1558. The sudden death of no less than 4^(e) of these (who had opposed the French views as to the settlement of the Scottish crown) led to a strong suspicion of poison. He m., in 1540, Margery, widow of William WALLACE, of Craigie, and da. of Alexander KENNEDY, of Bargeny. He d. at Dieppe, 28 Nov. 1558, and was bur. with his ancestors at Maybole. Will dat. at Dieppe 8 Nov. 1558. His widow's will pr. at Edinburgh 12 Jan. 1596/7.

IV. 1558. 4. GILBERT (KENNEDY), EARL OF CASSILLIS, &c. [S.], s. and h., b. about 1541. He was a Rom. Cath., but became a Protestant after his marriage. He was P.C. to Queen Mary 1562, and fought on her behalf at Langside, 13 May 1568. For the purpose of obtaining a lease of tithes he was guilty of horrible cruelty in torturing the commendator of Crossraguel in 1570, for which he was compelled to find security for £2,000.^(f) He joined the King's party at Stirling in 1571. He m., in 1566 (cont. dat. 30 Sep. 1566), Margaret (tocher 10,000 merks), da. of John (LYON), 7th LORD GLAMIS [S.], by Janet, da. of Robert KEITH, MASTER OF MARISCHAL, s. and h. ap. of William, EARL MARISCHAL [S.]. He d. 14 Dec. 1576, through a fall from his horse.^(g) His widow m., between 30 Dec. 1577 and 10 Feb. 1578, John (HAMILTON), 1st MARQUESS OF HAMILTON [S.], who d. 6 Apr. 1604, in his 72nd year. She d. 1626, at Evandail.

(a) See infra, p. 79, note "a," as to a conjectural effect of this charter.

(b) The other Scots Lords taken prisoners at the same time were William, Earl of Glencairn, John, Earl of Monteith, Malcolm, Lord Fleming, Robert, Lord Maxwell, Patrick, Lord Gray, Lawrence, Lord Oliphant, James, afterwards Lord Somerville, and Robert, s. and h. ap. of John, Lord Erskine. V.G.

(c) Archbishop Cranmer, to whose custody he was committed, is said to have effected his conversion.

(d) In May 1545 he offered to the English Council to have Cardinal Beaton assassinated, and received the reply that the King did not mislike the offer! V.G.

(e) Lord Fleming d. in Paris 15 Dec., and the Earl of Cassillis, the Earl of Rothes, and Bishop Reid (President of the Session), d. at Dieppe, all three in one night, 28 Nov. 1558, while the Earl of Moray felt the ill effects for the rest of his life.

(f) "Ane particular manne and ane werry greidy manne, and cairitt nocht how he gott land, so that he culd cum be the samin." (History of the Kennedys). V.G.

(g) His next br., Sir Thomas Kennedy, of Culzean, being his h. presumptive, was sometime styled MASTER OF CASSILLIS. He d. in 1602, being ancestor of the 9th and succeeding Earls of Cassillis.

V. 1576. 5. JOHN (KENNEDY), EARL OF CASSILLIS, &c. [S.], s. and h., b. 1575. HIGH TREASURER [S.] 22 Mar. 1598/9, but removed therefrom 1599. He m., Nov. 1597 (cont. dat. 4 Nov.), Jean, widow of John (MAITLAND), 1ST LORD MAITLAND OF THIRLISTANE [S.], only da. and h. of James (FLEMING), 4th LORD FLEMING [S.], by Barbara, da. of James (HAMILTON), EARL OF ARRAN [S.], Regent of Scotland. The desire "to keep his estate entire" was the cause of his marriage with a woman past child bearing. He was warded in Blackness 1 Nov. 1604, for assaulting his wife. She d. 23 June 1609, aged 55, and was bur. at Haddington with her 1st husband. He d. s.p., Oct. 1615.

VI. 1615. 6. JOHN (KENNEDY), EARL OF CASSILLIS, &c. [S.], nephew and h., being s. and h. of Hew KENNEDY, sometimes styled MASTER OF CASSILLIS, by Katherine, da. of Uchtred MACDOWALL, of Garthland, which Hugh was next br. and h. presumptive of the last Earl, and d. before 25 Mar. 1607. He, who was served heir to his uncle 25 July 1616, was called "the grave and solemn Earl." He was a zealous Presbyterian and one of the 3 Elders sent to the Divines at Westm., in 1643, to ratify "the solemn league." He was also sent to Charles I in Sep. 1646 to urge him to accept the English propositions; and to Charles II at Breda in Mar. 1649, with other instructions from Parl. Justice Gen. and an Extraordinary Lord of Session 1649 to 1651, at which date, after the defeat of Worcester, he resigned office. He was, however, appointed one of the 62 members of Cromwell's "House of Lords," but did not sit.^(a) Appointed P.C. [S.] 13 Feb. 1660/1. From June 1661 to July 1662 he was again one of the 4 Extraordinary Lords of Session [S.]. He m., 1stly, he under age and she under 15 (cont. dat. Edinburgh 21 Dec. 1621, Whitehall 7 Jan. 1621/2), Jean, 5th da. of Thomas (HAMILTON), 1ST EARL OF HADDINGTON [S.], being 3rd da. by his 2nd wife, Margaret, da. of James FOULIS. She, who was b. at Edinburgh, 5 Feb. 1607, d. shortly before 15 Dec. 1642, and was bur. 5 Jan. 1642/3, at Maybole.^(b)

^(b) She is supposed to have been the heroine of the ballad of "The Gypsie Laddie":

"The gypsies they cam' to Lord Casillis 'yett,
And oh, but they sang bonnie:
They sang sae sweet, and sae complete,
That doun came our fair Ladie.
She cam' tripping down the stairs,
With a' her maids before her
As soon as they saw her weel-far'd face,
They cast their glamourie owre her."

According, however, to another tradition, the lover was not a gipsy "laddie" who thus bewitched her, but Sir John Faa, of Dunbar, to whom she had been attached before her marriage with the "solemn Earl." Anyhow, having been recaptured, she d. at or near Maybole. The story is altogether mythical, and is discredited by a letter written shortly after her death by her husband, speaking of her with great respect and tenderness.

He was b. Apr. 1700. In 1747 he was allowed £1,800
(in full for his claim for £13,100) for the Regality of Car-

Dunbarton Castle c. 1737 till his death. He m. (cont. 25 Sep. and 6 Oct.), 24 or 26 Oct. 1738, his 1st cousin, Susan (with £8,000), yst. da. of (his abovenamed, by (his father's sister of the whole blood) Anne, da. of John (KENNEDY), 7th EARL OF CASSILLIS [S.], the first wife of the said Earl of Selkirk. Having executed (unknown to his wife) a strict entail of the estate of Cassillis, on 29 Mar. 1759, in favour of his distant cousins and heirs male, he d. s.p., in Arlington Str., Midx., 7, and was bur. 14 Aug.

[From 1759 to 1762 these honours were in dispute between the heir male and the heir general. The latter, William (DOUGLAS), EARL OF RUGLEN and of MARCH [S.], who, in 1778, became Duke of Queensberry, was s. and h. of William (DOUGLAS), EARL OF MARCH [S.], by Anne, suo jure COUNTESS OF RUGLEN [S.], 1st da. and h. of line of John (HAMILTON), EARL OF SELKIRK AND OF RUGLEN [S.], by his 1st wife, Anne, the only da. that had issue of John (KENNEDY), 7th EARL OF CASSILLIS [S.] abovenamed. He claimed the estates under an entail of 5 Sep. 1698, which he contended could not be set aside by the entail of 1759. The entail of 1759 was however upheld, though by a narrow majority, in the Court of Session, and confirmed, on appeal, by the House of Lords. He then, under the designation of "William, Earl of Cassillis, Ruglen and March," claimed "the titles and honours of Earl of Cassillis and Lord Kennedy," on the ground of

She then led him to the door, and calling out 'My Lord Cassill's chair!' wished him good-night." (Scotland and Scotsmen in the Eighteenth Century; ex inform. Bright Brown). V.G.

IX. [1759]. 9. THOMAS (KENNEDY), EARL OF CASSILLIS [S.], cousin and h. male, being 2nd surv. s. (out of 12 sons) of Sir John K., Bart. [S.], by Jean, da. of Capt. Andrew DOUGLAS, of Mains, co. Dunbarton, which Sir John was s. and h. of Sir Archibald Kennedy, Bart. [S.] (so cr. 1682), who was s. and h. of John K. of Culzean, co. ^(a) That these two charters were "inept as to the honours" is shown in Riddell, p. 558, who seems, however, to consider the original grant to have been one to heirs general, and states that even the very "ratio adopted by Lord Mansfield in [this] Cassillis case should have justly given the Peerage to the heirs female." (ib. p. 567). Riddell's style, however, is somewhat obscure and involved, and may be construed (ib. p. 560, &c.) as expressing (1) a doubt, whether the charter of 6 Feb. 1540/1 (proceeding on resignation), should not operate either as a reconveyance of the honours to heirs male, or as a reversal of the ordinary presumption in favour of heirs general; and (2) a suggestion that the original charter constituting the Earldom (now, but, perhaps, not then lost), was in favour of heirs male, and so that, though Lord Mansfield's reasons were all wrong, the result arrived at may have been right.

^(b) "The old dignity of Lord Kennedy [1450] was allowed to the heir male upon Lord Mansfield's untenable ratio in 1762. It is not in the most remote manner carried by any of the deeds referred to, nor did it take its name from, or give it to a fief, however feudal the form of creation may have been; so that this Peerage, different so far from Lovat, may be the more argued to be affected by the principles of our [S.] common law, in favour of heirs general (having never passed the latter), as directly warranted by the decision of the Session in 1633, in the case of Oliphant, the precedents of Salton and Athol, &c." ^(a) The Book of Dignities, Professor Frith in Dict. Nat. Biog., and other authorities state that Lord Castlecomer held the office of Secretary at War from Mar. to May 1718. The appointment is not noted in The London Gazette, and although The Political State of Great Britain for Mar. 1718 records that "about this time" he was "made Secretary at War in the room of Mr. Secretary Craggs," the same publication in May 1718 says that Robert Pringle (who in Haydn appears as Castlecomer's successor) was "made Secretary at War in the room of James Craggs, Esq., one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State," no mention being made of Castlecomer. No new writ issued for Ripon at this time in place of Castlecomer, whose seat would necessarily have been vacated by his acceptance of office. (a) Charles Henry Coote, grandson and h. of this Robert, became, in 1802, on the death of the Earl of Mountrath, the head of the family, and, as such, inherited the Baronetcy [I.] conferred in 1621 on his ancestor.

(b) The Rev. John R. Scott, in A Review of the Irish House of Commons, 1789, mentions his amiable character, "his worthy mind, his friendly temper, and his generous heart," and that his delivery has "a wonderful tendency to dispose an audience to sleep;" and concludes, "He is invariable in his attachment to the Minister, and un-deviating in the support of the schemes and measures of administration. The two sheet anchors of pension and place prevent all variation in his conduct." V.G.

(c) The 1st s., Charles Henry, b. 22 May 1781, Lieut. Col. of the Queen's County Militia, d. at Leopardstown, near Dublin, 5 Sep. 1810. The 2nd s., William Burke Conyngham Coote, b. 28 Aug. 1787, d. at sea 3 May 1799. V.G.

(d) It was used as one of the extinctions required (under the Act of Union) for the creation, in 1831, of the Viscountcy of Guillamore.

CASTLEHAVEN (IRELAND)

EARLDOM [1.]

I. 1616. I. GEORGE (TUCHET), LORD AUDLEY, s. and h. of Henry, LORD AUDLEY, by Elizabeth, da. of Sir William SNEYD, suc. his father 30 Dec. 1563, when he was aged 12, and was sum. to Parl. from 30 Sep. 1566 to 5 Apr. 1614. Fellow of Magd. Coll. Oxford about 1570. He was sometime Gov. of Utrecht in the Netherlands. He was Governor of Kells, co. Meath, and in command of eight companies against the rebel Irish in 1599. He was wounded at the battle of Kingsale, 24 Dec. 1601. He resided chiefly in Ireland,^(a) and (with other English and Scottish Peers) was sum. by writ to the Irish House of Lords, 11 Mar. 1613/4.^(b) On 6 Sep. 1616 he was cr. a Peer of that kingdom as BARON AUDLEY OF ORIER, co. Armagh, and EARL OF CASTLEHAVEN, co. Cork [1.]. He m., 1stly, before 28 Aug. 1584, Lucy, only da. and in her issue h. of Sir James MERVYN, of Fonthill Giffard, Wilts, by his 1st wife, Amy, da. of Valentine CLARK.^(c) She was living 20 Jan. 1608/9, but d. v.p., before Apr. 1610. He m., 2ndly, 29 Apr. 1611, at St. Mary-le-Strand, Midx., Elizabeth, sister of Edward, 2nd VISCOUNT CAMPDEN, da. of Sir Andrew NOEL, of Dalby, co. Leicester, by Mabel, da. of Sir James HARINGTON. He d. 20 Feb. 1616/7. Admon. Jan. 1617 at the Court of the Dean of Westm., and again in P.C.C. 11 July 1631 to his da. Eleanor, wife of Sir Archibald Douglas. His widow m., 6 Mar. 1618/9, at St. Bride's, London, Sir Piers CROSBY, of Maryborough, in Queen's County (who d. between Nov. 1646 and Nov. 1647), and was living 8 Dec. 1644.

II. 1617.

2. MERVYN (TUCHET otherwise AUDLEY), EARL OF CASTLEHAVEN, &c. [1.], also LORD AUDLEY, only s. and h. by 1st wife. He was knighted 30 Mar. 1608; was 23 years old in June 1616. He m., 1stly, before 1619, Elizabeth, da. and coh. of Benedict BARNHAM, Alderman of London, by Dorothea, da. of Ambrose SMITH, citizen and mercer of London. He m., 2ndly, 22 July 1624, at Harefield, Midx., Anne, widow of Grey (BRYDGES), BARON CHANDOS OF SUDELEY, 1st da. and coh. of Ferdinando (STANLEY), 5th EARL OF DERBY, by Alice, da. of Sir John SPENCER, of Althorpe, Northants. Having been found guilty of certain high crimes^(d) he was attainted of felony, and beheaded on Tower Hill,

(a) Between 18 and 21 Eliz. he sold Audley, Tunstall, and the rest of his Staffordshire estate. (Feet of Fines). V.G.

(b) See vol. i, p. 2, note "c" sub "Abercorn," Earldom of [S.].

(c) See pedigree of Mervyn in Misc. Gen. et Her., N.S., vol. i, p. 358.

(d) This was for an unnatural crime committed with one Laurence Fitz Patrick, his page, who confessed and was executed for the same, at Tyburn, 6 July 1631: also for the rape of his own wife, or rather for the assisting one Giles Browning in a rape said to have been so committed. Of this woman, the said Fitz Patrick said that "she was the wickedest woman in the world, and had more to answer for than any woman that lived." See State Trials, vol. iii, p. 401. The death of her unworthy husband was certainly brought about by her means, and her unquestionable adultery with one Amphill and with Henry Skipwith renders her motive suspicious.

London, 14 May 1631, when his English Peerage (being descendible to heirs gen.) became forfeited, but the Irish Earldom and Barony (being in tail) were not thereby affected.^(a) His widow, who was b. May 1580, d. at Ruislip, and was bur. 11 Oct. 1647, at Harefield, Midx. Admon. 2 Mar. 1654/5 to her s., "William Bridges, alias Chandos."

III. 1631. 3. JAMES (TUCHET), EARL OF CASTLEHAVEN, &c. [I.], s. and h. by 1st wife, b. about 1617. On 3 June 1633 he was, as "James, Earl of Castlehaven in Ireland," cr. BARON AUDLEY OF HELY, with rem. "to his heirs for ever," and with the place and precedency of George, his grandfather, formerly Baron Audley of Hely.^(b) This patent was (as was necessary so far as it was a restoration and not a new creation) confirmed by Act of Parl. (29 and 30 Car. II) 1678.^(c) He joined in the serious Rebellion of the Confederate Rom. Cath. Irish, 1641-43, and was indicted for High Treason and imprisoned in Leinster, in Sep. 1642, but contrived to escape. He continued fighting under Preston against the Marquess of Ormond until peace was made with the Confederates in July 1646. He then fought in France under Prince Rupert till Sep. 1648, when he returned to Ireland, and vigorously opposed Cromwell's troops until Apr. 1652, when he was forced to fly the country. In a month or two he was fighting under Condé in the Fronde war. Being taken prisoner by Turenne, he was exchanged, entered the Spanish service as Major Gen. in 1653, and fought at Rocroy, Cambrai, and all the great battles, till the Peace of the Pyrenees in Nov. 1659. After the Restoration he returned to England, and on the outbreak of the Dutch war in 1665, fought against them as a volunteer, by sea and land, till the Peace of Aix la Chapelle, May 1668. In 1674 he went abroad again and fought 11 Aug. at Senef. He commanded the Spanish Foot in 1676, and served before Maestricht, at Charleroi, and at the Battle of Mons 14 Aug. 1678, soon after which he again came back to England.^(d) He m., 1stly, at Kilkenny, in his father's lifetime (she being but 12 years old), Elizabeth,^(e) da. of Grey (BRYDGES),

(a) "The Irish Earldom [of Castlehaven] was according to modern opinions and the decision of Lord Northington in the Ferrers case [1760] protected by the statute De Donis which preserved all entailed honours against forfeiture for felony." See Courthope, p. lxxviii, in "Observations on Dignities," where it is stated that the s. and h. of the attainted Earl "was, notwithstanding, made Earl of Castlehaven by a new creation." This, however, is an error, probably a confusion with the English Barony of Audley of Hely, which was so cr. 1633. See also vol. i, p. 448, note "c."

(b) See Creations, 1483-1646, in App., 47th rep., D. K. P. Records, p. 118.

(d) In 1680 he pub. his Memoirs from the year 1642 to the year 1651, which give an account from the Rom. Cath. Loyalist side of the Irish wars of that time. V.G.

(e) At the trial of the Earl, her father-in-law, 1631, her adultery with Henry Skipwith, her mother's paramour, was admitted by her. She was, however, at that time, very young, probably a mere puppet in the hands of the said Earl and his abandoned wife, the profligacy of whose establishment seems to have been overwhelming. G.E.C. The following extract goes to show that her character did not

I. ROGER PALMER, 2nd s. of Sir James P., of Dorney, Bucks, Chancellor of the Order of the Garter, being only s. by his 2nd wife, Catherine, widow of Sir Robert VAUGHAN, da. of William (HERBERT), 1st EARL OF POWIS, was bap. at Dorney 4 Sep. 1634, and was adm. to the Inner Temple, 29 Oct. 1656; M.P. for Windsor 1660-61. He was cr., 11 Dec. 1661, BARON OF LIMERICK and EARL OF CASTLEMAINE^(a) co. Kerry [I.]. With other "Popish Lords"^(b) he was committed at the Old Bailey 1678, released on bail

^(a) This creation recalls the French song:

"Par l'épée ou par le fourreau
Devenir duc est toujours beau,
Qu'importe la manière
Lan Lan Laire."

However well these verses may represent the feelings of the degraded Court of Charles II, they do not show Palmer's own, for he "to his honour felt the title of Lord Castlemaine conferred upon him as the price of infamy to be an insult rather than a distinction, and as long as he could declined to bear that name. (Life of Clarendon, by Sir Henry Craik, vol. ii, p. 150). V.G.

Jan. 1678/9, re-committed Nov. 1679, and tried and acquitted June 1680, for his supposed share in the plot fabricated by Titus Oates. He was sent on an Embassy to Constantinople and subsequently by James II to Rome, where he affected great state.^(a) P.C. 25 Sep. 1687 till Feb. 1688/9. He did not attend the Parl. of James II, 7 May 1689.^(b) He was excepted from the Act of Indemnity of 1690. He m., 14 Apr. 1659, at St. Gregory's by St. Paul's, London, Barbara, da. and sole h. of William (VILLIERS), 2ND VISCOUNT GRANDISON [I.], by Mary, da. of Paul (BAYNING), 1ST VISCOUNT BAYNING OF SUDBURY, which Barbara, in or before 1661, deserted him and became Mistress to King Charles II, by whom she had several children. He d. s.p.m.,^(c) 28 July 1705, at Oswestry, Salop, and was bur. at Welshpool, co. Montgomery, aged 71, when his honours became extinct. Will, dat. 30 Nov. 1696, pr. 25 Oct. 1705, by his da. Anne, Countess of Sussex.^(d) He directs that he should be bur. by his "uncle Powis" if he die in Wales. His notorious wife was cr., 3 Aug. 1670, DUCHESS OF CLEVELAND, &c. She d. 9 Oct. 1709, at Chiswick, Midx. See fuller account of her under "CLEVELAND," Dukedom of, cr. 1670; extinct 1774.

(a) An account of this Embassy, with many fine plates, including one of the Earl "kissing the Pope's toe," was "printed for the author (folio) 1688." On 28 Oct. 1689, he was brought to the bar of the House of Commons to answer for having gone "upon an employment unwelcome to them," and, as the Speaker stated, "they have great reason to think it was to reconcile this Kingdom with the church of Rome, the highest crime that can be committed"! His Lordship, in a speech showing both dignity and ability, pleaded: "I went as the King's servant; as the King's minister upon a compliment . . . I did not meddle with religion . . . though I do profess myself a Catholic." He was however of course imprisoned in the Tower on a warrant of High Treason. (See Hist. MSS. Com., Portland MSS., vol. viii., pp. 22-27, where the proceedings are given in full). V.G.

(b) For a list of peers present in, and absent from this Parl., see Appendix D to this volume.

(c) It was doubtless on account of Castlemaine's absence from England 1662 or 1663 to 1667 that the three sons of his wife (all of them born in wedlock, and all of them called by his surname of Palmer in their infancy) were legally regarded as bastards, for no divorce ever took place. Had they been capable of succeeding, his honours would have descended with the Dukedom of Southampton (afterwards, 1709-74, merged in that of Cleveland) till 1774, and, after that date, with the Dukedom of Grafton. V.G.

I. WILLIAM HANDCOCK, s. and h. of Richard H., of Twyford, co. Westmeath, Dean of Achonry (d. 25 July 1791), by Sarah, da. and h. of Richard TOLER, of Ballintore, co. Kildare, was b. 28 Aug. 1761; was M.P. for Athlone, 1783 (retaining his seat without any break at the Union) to Aug. 1803;^(a) P.C. [I.] 10 Feb. 1801. On 21 Dec. 1812, he was cr. BARON CASTLEMAINE OF MOYDRUM, co. Westmeath [I.],^(b) with a spec. rem., failing heirs male of his body, to his br., Richard Handcock. Constable and Gov. of Athlone 1813 till his death, and a Gov. of co. Westmeath 1814-31. On 12 Jan. 1822 he was cr. VISCOUNT CASTLEMAINE [I.], without a spec. rem. He m., 20 Mar. 1787, Florinda, 1st da. of William Power Keating (TRENCH), 1st EARL OF CLANCARTY, by Ann, da. of the Rt. Hon. Charles GARDINER. He d. s.p., 7 Jan. 1839, at Moydrum Castle, co. Westmeath, while fastening his bedroom window (being blown down by a storm), aged 77, when the Viscounty became extinct.^(c) His widow, who was b. 3 Aug. 1766, d. 9 Feb. 1851, at Moydrum Castle.

II. 1839.

2. RICHARD (HANDCOCK), BARON CASTLEMAINE OF MOYDRUM [I.], br. and h. according to the spec. lim. in the patent. He was b. 14 May 1767; was M.P. (Tory) for Athlone, 1800, in the last Irish Parl. He m., 13 Nov. 1790, Anne, 3rd da. of Arthur FRENCH, of French Park, co. Roscommon, by Alice, da. of Richard MAGENNIS, of Dublin. He d. at Dublin, after a long illness, 18, and was bur. 21 Apr. 1840, at Athlone, aged nearly 73. His widow d. 4 Nov. 1852, at Athlone.

III. 1840.

3. RICHARD (HANDCOCK), BARON CASTLEMAINE OF MOYDRUM [I.], s. and h., b. 17 Nov. 1791, in Dublin. He was M.P. (Tory) for Athlone, 1826-32;^(d) REP. PEER [I.], 1841-69. He m., 17 Apr. 1822, Margaret, 2nd da. of Michael HARRIS, of Dublin, by Mary, da. of Patrick BRYAN, of Ballina Park, co. Wicklow. She d. 27 Jan. 1867, at Moydrum Castle. He d. 4 July 1869, aged 77.

^(a) He supported the Tory Government in the U.K. Parl. V.G.

^(b) The three extinctions made use of, under the Act of Union, for this creation were (1) the Viscounty of Pery (Pery), (2) the Barony of Milton (Damer), and (3) the Barony of Delaval (Delaval).

^(c) This patriot, having publicly pledged himself to God and man to resist to extremities so infamous a measure as the Union, not unnaturally required the inducement of a Peerage to make him change such strongly expressed convictions. The note on him in Sir Jonah Barrington's "Black List" is as follows: "Will Handcock (Athlone). An extraordinary instance. He made and sang songs against the Union in 1799 at a public dinner of the Opposition, and made and sang songs for it in 1800. He got a peerage." V.G.

^(d) He changed when Peel did, on the subject of the Corn Laws in 1846. V.G.

JOHN WILSON-FITZPATRICK (formerly WILSON), illegit. s. of John (FITZPATRICK), EARL OF UPPER OSSORY AND BARON GOWRAN [I.] and BARON UPPER OSSORY OF AMPHILL [G.B.], who d. s.p.m. legit., 1 Feb. 1818 (when all his honours became extinct), was b. in London 21 Sep. 1807, and ed. at Eton; sometime an officer in the army; suc. his father in his Irish estates of Grantstown Manor and Lisduff in Queen's County, as also in Grafton Underwood, Northants; Sheriff of Queen's County 1836; M.P. (Liberal) for Queen's County 1837-41, 1847-52 and 1865-69. He took the name and arms of Fitzpatrick by Roy. lic. 12 Feb. 1842. P.C. [I.] 28 Jan. 1848; Lord Lieut. of Queen's County, 1855 till his death. On 10 Dec. 1869, he was cr. BARON CASTLETOWN OF UPPER OSSORY in the Queen's County. He m., 5 May 1830, at Carnallway, in the diocese of Dublin, Augusta Mary, da. of the Rev. Archibald DOUGLAS, Rector of Castle Coote, co. Cavan, by Susan, da. of John (MURRAY), 4th EARL OF DUNMORE [S.]. He d. at 32 Hertford Str., Mayfair, Midx., 22, and was ^(a) He became a Whig before the general election of 1708, and received 3 separate peerages from that party. V.G.

^(b) This was one of 14 peerages conferred at the Coronation of George I, for a list of which see vol. ii, Appendix F.

^(c) He devised his very considerable estates, worth £8,000 p.a. (including Sandbeck in Yorkshire), to his maternal cousin, Thomas Lumley, younger s. of Richard, 1st Earl of Scarbrough, by Frances, da. and h. of Sir Henry Jones, and Frances, his wife, formerly Frances Belasyse, spinster, sister of Grace, the mother of the testator. This Thomas Lumley by act of Parl. took the name of Saunderson, and suc. in 1740, as Earl of Scarbrough.

bur. 25 Jan. 1883, at Grafton Underwood, aged 75. Will pr. 17 May 1883, over £37,000. His widow d. 3 June 1899, at Brunswick Terrace, Brighton, in her 89th year.

(^a) The Rev. A. B. Beaven writes to the Editor: "No one except Lord C. himself can, I think, say what his political principles are: I should make even that exception with reservations. In Dod while he was in the H. of C. he was styled 'Liberal Conservative,' the only M.P. of that date who was so styled. At his only election he defeated a Liberal, and he used to receive the Conservative Whips' circulars. As a peer from 1884 to 1892	Dod calls him	Liberal Conservative,

1898 to 1909	" "	Liberal U.,
1910 to 1911	" "	Liberal.

He voted against Home R. in 1894. He has given general support to the present (1913) Govt. so far and has accepted offices from it." V.G.

(^b) He is one of the numerous peers who are or have been directors of public companies, for a list of whom (in 1896) see vol. v, Appendix C.

CATHCART

BARONY [S.] I. SIR ALAN CATHCART, s. and h. of Alan C., having, in 1447, redeemed considerable property within the Earldom of Carrick that had been mortgaged by his grandfather, another Sir Alan Cathcart, was, not long afterwards, probably late in 1452, but certainly before 18 July 1454 (when he sat in Parl. as a Baron),^(a) cr. a Lord of Parl.^(b) as LORD CATHCART [S.]. He had been an adherent of the Earl of Douglas, but rapidly rose in favour under James II and James III. He was Warden of the West Marches 1481, and Master of the Artillery 1485. He m. Janet MAXWELL. He d. in 1497, before 3 Oct., and was bur. at the Blackfriars, Ayr.

[ALAN CATHCART, MASTER OF CATHCART, s. and h. ap., d. v.p.]

II. 1497. 2. JOHN (CATHCART), LORD CATHCART [S.], grandson and h., being s. and h. of Alan CATHCART, MASTER OF CATHCART, abovenamed. He m., istly, Margaret, da. of John KENNEDY, of Blairquhan. He m., 2ndly, before Aug. 1499, Margaret, da. of William DOUGLAS, of Drumlanrig. He d. Dec. 1535.

[ALAN CATHCART, MASTER OF CATHCART, s. and h. ap. by 1st wife. He m., in or before Aug. 1507, Agnes, yst. da. of Robert (LYLE), 2nd LORD LYLE [S.]. He d. v.p., 9 Sep. 1513, being slain, with two of his brothers, at the battle of Flodden.^(c) His widow m. John MAXWELL, of Stanelie.]

^(a) A deed of that date between "Alan, Lord Carcaith, &c." was produced at the Decreet of Ranking [S.] 1606. Lord Cathcart was there "ranked" as 8th of the Barons; Lord Gray (1437) and Lord Ochiltree (1459) being next immediately above him and Lord Carlyle (1474?) next immediately below him.

^(b) "It is perhaps worth remark, as old dignities with us [i.e. in Scotland] were so generally territorial, that it seems to me, that [notwithstanding the above fact] there is no escape from the conclusion that Lords of Parliament were hereditary titles unconnected with land and sometimes even not based upon a free Barony at all; Graham, Gray, Borthwick, Cathcart, Drummond and Sempill had no Barony of their names, when they first got the hereditary title. Sempill of Eliotston, for instance, was not a free Baron, but, some time after he was made a Lord, all his lands were united and erected into the free Barony of Sempill." Extract from a letter of R. R. Stodart, sometime Lyon Clerk depute, dat. 9 Mar. 1885, to the Editor. G.E.C. On this Lyon King writes, Oct. 1911, "The Sempills held lands in free Barony as early as temp. Robert I (cf. Scots Peerage, vol. vii, p. 527). The Cathcarts held the Baronies of Sundrum, Dalwellington, &c., about 1326. While the families mentioned may have had no Barony of their names at the time of their creation, they were probably Barons, and it is somewhat sweeping to say that the Barony was not based on a free Barony at all." V.G.

III. 1535. 3. ALAN (CATHCART), LORD CATHCART [S.], grandson and h., being only s. and h. of Alan, MASTER OF CATHCART, abovenamed, by Agnes his wife. He m. Helen, da. of William (SEMPILL), 2nd LORD SEMPILL [S.], by his 1st wife, Margaret, da. of Hugh (MONTGOMERIE), EARL OF EGLINTOUN [S.]. He d. 10 Sep. 1547, being slain at the battle of Pinkie. Will of same date directing his burial to be with his ancestors at the Black Friars at Ayr. His wife surv. him.

IV. 1547. 4. ALAN (CATHCART), LORD CATHCART [S.], only s. and h., b. about 1537. He was a great promoter of the Reformation, and was one who signed the bond, in 1567, on behalf of the young King, James VI, on whose side he fought at Langside in 1568. Master of the Household 1579, receiving several valuable grants from the Crown. He m., 1stly, Margaret, da. of John WALLACE, of Craigie. He m., 2ndly, Florence McDougall, widow of John KENNEDY, of Baltersane. He d. Dec. 1618.

[ALAN CATHCART, MASTER OF CATHCART, s. and h. ap., b. 1562. He m., on or before 24 June 1594 (cont. dat. 9 Feb. 1593/4), Isabel, da. of Thomas KENNEDY, of Bargeny. He d. v.p., 1603. Will pr. 23 July 1603.]

V. 1618. 5. ALAN (CATHCART), LORD CATHCART [S.], grandson and h., being s. and h. of Alan, MASTER OF CATHCART and Isabel his wife, b. circa 1600; matric. at Glasgow Univ. 3 Apr. 1615; served h. to his grandfather 8 May 1619. He m., 1stly (cont. dat. Aug. 1621), Margaret, da. of Francis (STEWART), 1st EARL OF BOTHWELL [S.], by Margaret, da. of David (DOUGLAS), EARL OF ANGUS [S.]. She d. s.p.s. He m., 2ndly (cont. dat. 29 Oct. 1626), Jean, 1st da. of Sir Alexander COLQUHOUN, of Luss, by Helen, da. of Sir George BUCHANAN. He d. 18 Aug. 1628, at Auchencruive. Will dat. 31 July 1628, pr. 14 Jan. 1628/9. His widow m. Sir Duncan CAMPBELL, of Auchinbreck, who was slain 1645, fighting against Montrose's army. She m., 3rdly, the Hon. Sir William HAMILTON,^(a) who was long Resident in Rome on behalf of the Queen Dowager, Henrietta Maria.

VI. 1628. 6. ALAN (CATHCART), LORD CATHCART [S.], b. the same year his father died, being served h. to him 25 June 1631. Ed. at Glasgow Univ. He was a consistent Presbyterian, being the only peer who voted against the suppression of Presbytery in May 1661. He m., in or before July 1643, Marion, da. of David BOSWELL, of Auchinleck, co. Ayr, by Isabel, da. of Sir John WALLACE, of Cairnhill. He d. 13 June 1709, in his 81st year.

^(a) "William Hamilton, 3rd br. to the Earl of Abercorn" [S.], is said in Milne's List to have been cr. a Baronet [S.], but no date is assigned. It was probably in 1627.

VII. 1709. 7. ALAN (CATHCART), LORD CATHCART [S.], s. and h.,
b. about 1648. He m. (cont. dat. 12 Oct. 1672), Elizabeth, 2nd da. of James (DALRYMPLE), 1st VISCOUNT STAIR [S.], by Margaret, da. of James Ross, of Balniel, co. Wigtown. She was bap.
 9 Oct. 1653. He d. in Scotland, 19 Oct. 1732, in his 85th year. Will pr. 1733.

VIII. 1732. 8. CHARLES (CATHCART), LORD CATHCART [S.], 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h.;^(a) b. 1686. He was (as Captain) in the wars in Flanders in 1702; Major in the Scots Greys 1709, and afterwards Lieut. Col. thereof; distinguished himself at Sheriffmuir, 13 Nov.
 1715, where the victory over the left wing of the Insurgents was principally owing to him. Lieut. Col. of the 9th Foot, 1717; Col. of the 31st Foot, 1728-31; of the 8th regt. of Dragoons, 1731-33; of the 7th Horse or King's Carabineers (since 1788 the 6th Dragoon Guards) 1733 till his death. Receiver Gen. [S.] 1725-29. He was Groom of the Bedchamber to George II 1727-32. REP. PEER [S.] 1734-40. Gov. of Duncannon Fort 1735 till his death; Brigadier Gen. 1735, and Major Gen. in the Army, 1739. Having been appointed COMMANDER IN CHIEF of the forces sent to attack the King of Spain in his American dominions, he set sail in Oct. 1740, but d. on the voyage. He m., 1stly, 29 Mar. 1718, at St.
 Mary Magdalen's, Old Fish Str., London, Marion, only child of Sir John SHAW,^(b) or SCHAW, Bart. [S.], of Greenock, co. Renfrew, by Margaret, da. of Sir Hew DALRYMPLE, 1st Bart. [S. 1698], of North Berwick. She, who was b. 7 Dec. 1700, d. at Edinburgh 21 Mar. 1733, in her 33rd year, having had 10 children. He m., 2ndly, 1739, Elizabeth, widow of James FLEET, of Tewin, Herts (who d. 29 Apr. 1733), and before that of Capt.
 SABINE, 2nd da. of Thomas MALYN, of Battersea, Surrey. He d. as afsd., after 13 days' illness, of a bloody flux, 20 Dec. 1740, aged 54, and was bur. on the beach of Prince Rupert's Bay, Dominica. M.I. Will pr.
 1741. His widow m., 4thly, 18 May 1745, Hugh MACGUIRE, an Irish officer in the Hungarian service, afterwards Lieut. Col. in the British service. For 20 years he is said to have kept her a prisoner in Ireland, viz.
 till his death in 1764.^(c) She d. 3 Aug. 1789, in her 98th year, at Tewin afsd., and was bur. there. M.I.^(d) Will pr. 1789.

^(a) Alan Cathcart, his elder br. (who d. before his father became a Peer), was drowned on his passage to Holland, Aug. 1699.

^(b) This Baronetcy was cr. 28 June 1687, and became extinct 5 Apr. 1752, by the death of John, the 3rd Bart. (grandson of the grantee).

^(c) A passage in a letter from E. Young (author of Night Thoughts) to the Duchess of Portland, dated 28 Oct. 1746, which begins "Lady C—— at 59 is smitten with the gay feathers of 33" bears out this story—as does another letter from the same to the same, dated 3 Feb. 1747, where Lady Cathcart and Macguire are mentioned nominatim. See Hist. MSS. Com., Lord Bath's MSS., vol. i, pp. 297 and 304. V.G.

^(d) This commemorates but two (the 1st and 3rd) out of her four husbands; dwelling chiefly on "her boundless acts of charity," of which the only tangible one is a gift of £5 a year for schooling the poor of Tewin. In Miss Edgeworth's (^d) His sumptuous style of living at Sudeley, where he kept "open house" thrice a week, earned him the nickname of The King of Cotswould, and his retinue in London was equally elaborate. He is, by Horace Walpole and others, considered as the author of Horæ Subsecivæ (1620), but this work is ascribed by Bishop Kennett and by Anthony à Wood to Gilbert, 1st son of William (Cavendish), 1st Earl of Devonshire. G.E.C. and V.G.

VI. 1621. 6. GEORGE (BRYDGES), BARON CHANDOS OF SUDELEY, s. and h., b. 9 Aug. 1620, being a year and a day old at his father's death. He was nom., by Parl., Lord Lieut. of co. Gloucester in Feb. 1641/2,^(a) but became a zealous royalist, being, later in that year, Col. of a regt. of Dragoons in the King's service. At the first battle of Newbury (20 Sep. 1643) he had 3 horses shot under him, and was mainly instrumental in breaking the enemy's cavalry. He is said to have been offered the Earldom of Newbury, accordingly, but to have declined it till more peaceful times. In 1642, and again in 1644, Sudeley Castle was taken by the Parliamentary forces and reduced to ruins, the owner being in London, where he had given himself up "to the pleasures of that place."^(b) His composition, as a delinquent, was no less than £3,973. On 13 May 1652, in a duel on Putney Heath, he mortally wounded Col. Henry Compton, and was, after a year's imprisonment, found guilty, 17 May 1653, in the "Upper Bench" of manslaughter.^(c) He m., 1stly, 14 Dec. 1637, at Totteridge, Herts, Susan, da. of Henry (MONTAGU), 1ST EARL OF MANCHESTER, by his 3rd wife, Margaret, widow of John HARE, da. of John CROUCH, of Cornbury, Herts. V.G.

(^c) Bishop Burnet's character of the 8th Lord and his son, with Dean Swift's comments thereon in italics, is that he "was warm against King William's reign, and doth not make any great figure in this [i.e. that of Queen Anne], but his son Mr. Bridges [afterwards, 1719, Duke of Chandos] does, being a member of the House of Commons, one of the Councillors to the Prince and a very worthy gentleman. But a great complier with every Court."

(^d) "I die, my dear children and grandchildren, in very poor circumstances, but you have a good brother." She had no less than 22 children, of whom 15 only were baptised, and but 8 of these (3 sons and 5 daughters) survived infancy. In her will she mentions two of her sons, viz. "the Earl of Carnarvon" and "the Rev. Dr. Brydges," giving to each son and each daughter a ring.

(^e) He was a Tory under Anne till the last year of her reign, and a Whig under the two first Georges, regulating his political convictions more judiciously than some of his other affairs. During the Walpole period he steadily supported that Minister, while his son was an adherent of the Prince of Wales and keen in opposition. V.G.

(^f) He spent part of the wealth acquired by this most lucrative office in building a palace at Canons, in Little Stanmore, Midx., at an expense of £200,000. Here Handel spent two years composing anthems for the chapel thereof, and writing his first English Oratorio "Esther." J. H. Round quotes from A journey through England

Hereford and EARL OF CARNARVON,^(a) with a spec. rem., failing the heirs male of his body, to those of his late father, being the next month made Reversionary Clerk of the Hanaper, together with his two sons, John and Henry. Gov. of the Turkey Company 1718-36. On 29 Apr. 1719 he was cr. MARQUESS OF CARNARVON and DUKE OF CHANDOS. P.C. 11 Nov. 1721; Gov. of the Charterhouse; Lord Lieut. of cos. He m., 3rdly, 18 Apr. 1736, Lydia Catherine^(c) ("worth £40,000"), widow of Sir Thomas DAVALL, of Ramsey, Essex, da. of John VAN HATTEN, by Lydia, da. of Thomas DAVALL, merchant. The "Princely Chandos" d. aged 70, at Canons, 9, and was bur. 23 Aug. 1744, at Whitchurch (otherwise Little Stanmore). M.I. at that church, (1724), "The chapel . . . hath a choir of vocal and instrumental musick, as the Royal chapel, and when his Grace goes, he is attended by his Swiss Guards ranged as the Yeomen of the Guard, few German Sovereign Princes live with that magnificence." According to Dict. Nat. Biog. the statue of George I "which helped till 1873 to make Leicester Square hideous" was among the contents of Canons. Canons is doubtless the "Timon's villa" described (in his "Epistle to Lord Burlington") by Pope (1731), who himself (1732) was caricatured by Hogarth as bespattering the Duke's coach. Owing to extravagance and speculative investments ("all he got by fraud is lost by stocks" says Dean Swift), Canons was sold for its materials, directly the Duke died, and a villa (very different from "Timon's") was built on its site, which, after passing through several owners, was sold, for £55,000, in July 1811, to Sir Thomas Plumer, Master of the Rolls, 1818-24. In 1910 it was bought by A. P. Du Cros, M.P. The fate of this over-sumptuous palace is foretold by Pope—

"Another age shall see the golden ear,
Imbrown the slope and nod on the parterre;
Deep harvests bury all his pride had plann'd,
And laughing Ceres re-assume the land."

(a) This was one of the 14 peerages conferred at the Coronation of George I, for a list of which see vol. ii, Appendix F.

He was (as Marquess of Carnarvon) Ranger of Enfield Chase, 1753; Grand Master of Freemasons 1754-57; M.P. (Whig) for Winchester, 1754-61;^(c) and for co. Radnor 1761-68; a Lord of the Bedchamber, 1760-64; Lord Lieut. of Hants, 1763-64 and again 1771-80. High Steward of Winchester; P.C. 12 May 1775; Lord Steward of the Household, 1783 till his death. ^(b) According to the decision of 21 July 1868 as to that dignity.

^(c) From the accession of George III he attached himself to the Court. In 1778 he was one of the peers who protested against the payment of the Earl of Chatham's debts by the Nation (as to which see vol. ii, p. 30, note "d"), but in 1783 he took office under Pitt and supported his Govt. till his death. The Editor is indebted to J. H. Round for the following, from Leigh Hunt's Autobiography: "The Duke was Master of the Horse, and originated the famous epithet of 'heaven-born minister,' applied to Mr. Pitt. I have heard my father describe him as a man of great sweetness of nature and good-breeding. He was the grandson of Pope's and Swift's Duke of Chandos. He died in 1789, and left a widow, who survived him for several years in a state of mental alienation. She was a woman of great animal spirits, and, happening to thrust aside the duke's chair when he was going to sit down, the consequences were such that, being extremely attached to him, she could never forgive herself, but lost her husband and senses at once." He d. at Tunbridge Wells, s.p.m., 29 Sep., and was bur. 10 Oct. 1789, aged nearly 58, at Whitchurch, when all his honours, excepting the Barony of KINLOSS [S.], which devolved on his da. and h. (as to which see "CHANDOS, and BUCKINGHAM AND CHANDOS," next below), became extinct.^(b) Will pr. 1789. His widow d. 20 Jan. 1813, at Chandos house. Will pr. 1813.

[The BARONY OF CHANDOS OF SUDELEY [cr. 1554] was claimed immediately (by petition to the King), by the Rev. Edward Tymewell Brydges, M.A., as heir male of the body of the grantee. The Attorney Gen. (Macdonald) having, 15 Apr. 1790, favourably reported thereon, it was referred to the Committee for Privileges. After about 30 hearings, extending over some dozen years (in which new evidence, mostly incapable of proof, was continually being brought forward), it was resolved, 17 June 1803, that Mr. Brydges "had not made out his claim^(c) to the said Barony." The claimant d. s.p.s., Oct. 1807, aged 58, and was suc. by his br. (who had all along been the prime mover of the claim), Samuel Egerton Brydges, better known as SIR EGERTON BRYDGES (b. 30 Nov. 1762), who then called himself, "per legem terræ BARON CHANDOS OF SUDELEY." He, however, accepted

(a) "From the vanity and extravagance of this woman, and the uncertain contingencies of her property, the Hampshire people think that the poor Duke is completely taken in." (The Royal Register, vol. iv, p. 171). V.G.

(b) James Brydges, of Pinner, Midx., heir presumptive to the Earldom of Carnarvon, being s. and h. of the Rev. the Hon. Henry Brydges, D.D., br. of James, Duke of Chandos (who had been cr. Earl of Carnarvon with an extended limitation), d. s.p., a few weeks before his cousin, the last Duke, 12 July 1789, at a great age.

(c) The invalidity of this claim has been thoroughly exposed by G. F. Beltz (Lancaster Herald) in a work called A Review of the Chandos Peerage case, pp. 233, with an appendix. The claimant's father was Edward Brydges, of Wootton Court, Kent (who m. Jemima, da. and coh. of the Rev. William Egerton, LL.D.), estate of Edward (who d. 1780) was s. of John Brydges (d. 1712) who acquired the estate of Wootton by marriage (with Jane da. and h. of Edward Gibbon), and who was the son of John Bridges (d. 1699), a grocer, at Canterbury (by Mary, da. of Thomas Young, also a grocer in that city), who was s. of Edward Bridges of Faversham, yeoman (1665), by Catherine, da. of John Sharp of Faversham, maltster. At this point comes the crux of the pedigree. The claimant contended that this Edward was bap. at Maidstone, 25 Mar. 1603, being the s. of Robert Bridges of that town (d. 1636), who was s. of Anthony Bridges, the 3rd surv. s. of John, 1st Baron Chandos of Sudeley. Beltz however shows very clearly (1) that the baptism at Maidstone was a modern [and doubtless fraudulent] insertion, (2) that Robert Bridges (son of Anthony abovenamed) d. s.p.m. (the will of his only child, Ann Jackson, alias Bridges, 1641, is given in appendix xii), and (3) that the said Edward Bridges of Faversham (instead of being bap. at Maidstone in 1603) was bap. at Harbledown (near Canterbury) in 1606, being s. of John Bridges of that place (Churchwarden in 1632), who d. 1646.

a Baronetcy, 27 May 1815, and, beyond publishing in 1831 his Lex terræ to show that the decision of the Peers did not take away his right to resort to a legal trial by jury, took no further steps to establish his claim to the Peerage. He d. 8 Sep. 1837, at Gros Jean, near Geneva,^(a) leaving several sons, none of whom left issue, so that his Baronetcy became extinct, some 20 years after his death, as well as any claim, through him, to this Barony.]

^(a) He was a writer of genealogical and other works, and his edition of Collins' Peerage of England is still the standard work for the Peerage of the time of George III.

^(c) The name is invariably so spelt in the registers of Great Milton. Of previous children there occur the baptisms, 7 July 1561, of Alexander (bur. there 12th inst.), of Jane, 16 Mar. 1562/3, and of Anthony, 12 Oct. 1564, also, subsequently, of Thomas, 1 Sep. 1567, and of Hester 12 Sep. 1568, in which last two entries the father is described as "Gent." There occur also the baptism, 25 Nov. 1577, of "Dorothy, da. of George Calfehill, Gent," and a marriage, 29 July 1577, of "Richard Joyner, Gent., and Dorothy, da. of Alexander Calfehill, Gent." These appear to be all the entries of that family therein.

^(d) This was so called from Charles (Blount), Lord Mountjoy [I.], who had erected it in 1602 to protect the bridge over the Blackwater.

Lord Deputy Carey; was Receiver of the vast estates of the rebel Earl of Tyrone, 1607-10, of which he, in 1610, obtained 1,000 acres. Gov. of co. Tyrone and co. Armagh 1608; M.P. for co. Armagh 1613-15; P.C. [I.] 17 Apr. 1613; a Commissioner for the escheated estates in Ulster, 1616; Master Gen. of the Ordnance [I.] 1617 till his death. On 22 Dec. 1620^(a) he was cr. LORD CAULFEILD, BARON OF CHARLEMONT, co. Will dat. 22 July 1627, pr. at Dublin.

II. 1627. 2. WILLIAM (CAULFEILD), LORD CAULFEILD, BARON OF CHARLEMONT [I.], nephew and h. according to the spec. rem. of the creation; bap. at St. Mary Magd., Oxford, 8 Oct. 1587. He was s. of George C., Recorder of Oxford (elder br. of the last Lord), by Martha, da. of Richard TAVERNER, of Wood Eaton, Oxon. He was knighted [I.] by Lord Deputy St. John, 8 June 1618; Sheriff of co. Tyrone 1620; Gov. of Fort Charlemont, 1621; Master Gen. of the Ordnance [I.], 1627-34, and a Commissioner for the escheated estates in Ulster. He took his seat in the House of Lords [I.] 4 Nov. 1634, their Lordships being satisfied, without the production of writ or patent, that he was "a Lord of Parl." He m. Mary, da. of Sir John KING, of Boyle Abbey, co. Roscommon, by Catherine, da. of Robert DRURY. He d. 4 Dec. 1640, aged about 53, and was bur. at Charlemont, but was removed to Armagh Cathedral. M.I. Will dat. 6 Nov. 1640. Inq. p. m. at Dungannon and Charlemont. His widow survived 23 years, for 14 of which she was kept (by the then dominant party) out of her estates. In Aug. 1661 she received £40 from the Irish Govt. "for her present maintenance." She d. 1663. Will, in which she directs her burial to be in the church of Mullaghbrack, dat. 16 July and pr. 15 Aug. 1663, at Dublin.

III. 1640. 3. TOBY (CAULFEILD), LORD CAULFEILD, BARON OF CHARLEMONT [I.], s. and h., aged 19 years and 2 months at his father's death. Admitted Linc. Inn, 29 Oct. 1637; matric. at Oxford (Exeter Coll.) 2 June 1638, aged 17. He was M.P. for co. Tyrone, 1639-40, and in 1640 was Gov. of Fort Charlemont, where, having entertained Sir Phelim O'Neill, on 22 Oct. 1641, he was made prisoner by him and murdered (though apparently without that chieftain's cognizance) at O'Neill's house, the Castle of Kinard. He d. unm. 6 Jan. 1641/2. Inq. p. m. at Armagh.

In 1775 Sir John Blaquiere writes of him: "In private life amiable and respectable. In public, violent, petulant and waspish." Edmund Burke, 7 Aug. 1785, speaks of him as "the most public spirited, and at the same time the best natured and best bred man in Ireland." In this year he appeared, with some woman, as "The staunch Patriot and the fair Hibernian," in the notorious tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. xvii, p. 625, for which see Appendix B in the last volume of this work. EARLDOM.

I. 1766.

I. WILLIAM PITT, 2nd s. of Robert P., of Boconnock, Cornwall (who d. 20 May 1727), by Harriet, sister of John, 5th VISCOUNT and 1ST EARL GRANDISON [I.], da. of Gen. the Hon. Edward VILLIERS, of Dromana, was b. in Westm., 15 Nov., and bap. 13 Dec. 1708, at St. James's, Westm.; ed. at Eton, on the Foundation; matric. at Oxford (Trin. Coll.) 14 Jan. 1726/7, as a Gent. Commoner, but left without taking a degree, owing to gout; and in 1728/9 spent some months in studying at Utrecht.^(a) Cornet in the 2nd (King's own) regt. of Horse (not, as commonly said, in the Blues) 1731/2-36,^(b) when he was deprived of his commission on account of his first speech in Parl. M.P. (Whig) for Old Sarum, 1735-47; for Seaford, 1747-54; for Aldborough, 1754-56; for Oakhampton, 1756-57 (being elected also for Buckingham 1756); and for Bath 1757-66. Groom of the Bedchamber to the Prince of Wales, 1737-45. F.R.S. 26 Jan. 1743/4; P.C. 28 May 1746; Paymaster Gen. of the Forces 1746-55. Sec. of State for the South, Dec. 1756 to Apr. 1757, and June 1757 to 1761. On 4 Aug. 1766 he was cr. VISCOUNT PITT OF BURTON PYNSENT,^(c) co. Somerset, and EARL OF CHATHAM, co. Kent.^(d) LORD PRIVY SEAL July 1766^(e) to Oct. 1768, being considered the actual Prime Minister (under the nominal lead of the Duke of Grafton) during the earlier part of that period, till his ill health, early in 1767, wholly secluded him from business. In Jan. 1770 he again took his place in Parl., but in opposition to the ministry, whereupon the Duke of Grafton resigned the lead to Lord North, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. For the second time ill health (for two years, 1775-77) again kept him in strict retirement, but on 30 May 1777, "swathed in flannels" he made a celebrated speech in the House of Lords (his motion being rejected by 76 against 26)

(a) His grandfather, Thomas Pitt, writes, 12 May 1724, "He is a hopeful lad, and doubt not he will answer his friends' expectation." V.G.

(b) This was known as "Cobham's Horse," after its then Colonel. The picturesque description of Pitt as "the terrible Cornet of the Blues" has given wide currency to the error that he was in the 1st Dragoon Guards. V.G.

(c) This estate, worth £3,000 a year, had been left him by Sir William Pynsent, Bart. (who d. s.p., 8 Jan. 1765), owing to the testator's admiration of his patriotism.

(d) See some interesting remarks, on the inadvisability and the unpopularity of his taking a Peerage, in Stanhope's History of England, vol. v, pp. 241-246, where Lord Chesterfield's remark is quoted "that all his enemies rejoice at it and all his friends are stupefied and dumbfounded."

(e) For this and other great offices of State see vol. ii, Appendix D.

urging the arrest of the war with America. There seems little doubt but that, in 1778, he would, in spite of the unwillingness of George III, have become Prime Minister to endeavour to carry out some such course, without, however, any surrender of the British Sovereignty. To oppose such a surrender (which had been suggested), he, though greatly out of health, made his last speech, 7 Apr. 1778, when he fell back in a fit,^(a) and being carried a few days later to his own residence at Hayes, Kent, he d. there, 11 May, and was bur. 9 June 1778 in Westm. Abbey, in his 70th year.^(b) He m., 15 Nov. 1754, on his 46th birthday, Hester,^(c) sister of Richard, EARL TEMPLE, only da. of Richard GRENVILLE, of Wootton, by Hester, suo jure VISCOUNTESS COBHAM. She was cr. BARONESS CHATHAM, 4 Dec. 1761, as abovementioned. He d., as afsd., 11 May 1778.^(d) Will pr. Aug. 1778. His widow d. as afsd., 2 Apr. 1803.

(a) Copley's well-known picture, generally but erroneously called "the death of Chatham," represents this striking scene in the House of Lords.

(b) A funeral at the public expense, a vote of £20,000 to discharge his debts, and a pension of £4,000 a year annexed for ever to the Earldom of Chatham, were voted by Parl. (For a list of the peers who protested against this vote see vol. ii, p. 30, note "d," sub BATHURST). "The most noble and puissant Lord, William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, &c., &c., was bur. from the Painted Chamber, at the expense of Parl., in the centre of the north cross of the Abbey." See Chester's Westm. Abbey Registers, and also Fun. Certif. at Coll. of Arms.

(c) "She seems to have possessed grace, virtue, and good sense in abundance, and the marriage proved to be one of unalloyed happiness and mutual affection." Horace Walpole calls her "A blameless woman strongly attached to her husband." "No man ever had a nobler or more devoted wife . . . At Orwell there is a picture of her by Gainsborough, painted in 1747, with a pleasant rather than a beautiful face. There is another portrait at Chevening, painted in 1750, with auburn hair, long upper lip, and a nose slightly turned up; comely and intelligent, but no more." (Lord Rosebery's Chatham, 1910, p. 353). V.G.

(d) "The head was small, and the countenance thin, the nose was aquiline and long, the eye that of a hawk." When Pitt rose to power the great Frederick realised that a new planet had "swum into his ken," and said of England, "Enfin elle est accouchée d'un homme." "I admired him," says Sir Philip Francis, "as a great, illustrious, faulty human being, whose character, like all the noblest works of human composition, should be determined by its excellencies, not its defects." Carlyle says of him, "Pitt, though nobly eloquent, is a man of action, not of speech: an authentically Royal kind of man," and coupling him with his contemporary, Frederick the Great, adds, "Two radiant kings, very shining men of action both."

He was the greatest War Minister that England has seen or is likely to see. He founded the Empire, established the colonial system and realised that Empire's dependence on sea-power. "The fleet," he finely said, "is our standing army." In these respects it is no flattery of him nor dispraise of them, to say that Disraeli, Chamberlain and Mahan are but his pupils. If he was arrogant and boastful, greedy of power, and turgid in speech, such failings are more than offset by his burning patriotism, his scorn of money, his chaste and temperate life. He was in all essentials a great man. Throughout his career he stood for England, and those who can feel pride in the deeds of their forebears and the ascendancy of our race, should venerate the name of Chatham. His Early Life and Connections, by Lord Rosebery, was pub. in 1910. V.G.

^(c) The sloth and incapacity of this nobleman, the son and brother of persons so highly gifted, were the subject of frequent ridicule. "A man reputed to possess an excellent understanding, but whose very name was almost proverbial for enervation and indolence." (Annual Reg., 1809, p. 223). The following oft quoted lines, describing the attitude of the military and naval commanders in the expedition to the Scheldt (almost exactly as given [in prose] in the official return), appeared in the Morning Chronicle of 6 Feb. 1810:—

Kept waiting for Sir Richard Strachan:—
Sir Richard, longing to be at 'em, Kept waiting too,—for whom? Lord Chatham."

The ensuing lines, which are printed in G. V. Cox's Recollections of Oxford, 1870, p. 67, also well describe the Earl's achievements:—

"When sent fresh wreaths on Flushing's shore to reap, What didst thou do, illustrious Chatham?"—"Sleep."
"To man fatigued with war repose is sweet,
But, when awake, didst thou do nothing?"—"Eat."

"Lord Chatham inherited his illustrious father's form and figure, but not his mind . . . Constitutionally and habitually taciturn, cold, reserved, lofty, repulsive, his silence served as a mantle to protect him from close inspection . . . It would have been fortunate for himself, as well as for his country if he had never been engaged in a military command. He possessed indeed neither activity, experience, ardour, nor any of the qualities that usually produce success." Wraxall, Posth. Memoirs, vol. iii, pp. 127-132, who also refers to his indolence and extravagance. G.E.C. and V.G.

CHAURCES or CHAWORTH

BARONY BY WRIT. THOMAS DE CHAURCES, s. and h. of Thomas de C.^(a)
 On 8 June 1294 he, with about 60 others, had summons to attend the King wheresoever he might be, and, again, on 26 Jan. 1296/7 was sum. to attend the King at Salisbury, which writs, however, did not constitute a sum. to Parl.^(b) He was sum. to Parl. 6 Feb. (1298/9) 27 Edw. I, by writ directed Thome de Chaworth, whereby he is held to have become LORD CHAURCES,^(c) but was not sum. to the Parl. at Lincoln, 26 Sep. 1300, though his name as "Thomas de Chaurces,^(d) Dominus de Norton"^(e) is affixed to the celebrated letter of the Barons to the Pope in 1301. He m. Joan before 1 Nov. 1301, when she was living. He d. 1315, before 20 Oct., when his lands were ordered to be taken into the King's hands.

[After his death none of his posterity were sum. to Parl. until the creation by patent in 1628. His successors were (1) his s. and h. William Chaworth (henceforward the family name), who was suc. by his s. and h. (2) Sir Thomas C.,^(f) who m. Alice, and was suc. by his s. and h. (3) Sir Thomas C., who m. Jane, da. of Geoffrey LUTTRELL, and who d. (1370-71) 44 Edw. III. Their s. and h. ap. (4) Sir Thomas C., m., 1stly, Joan, widow of Sir Richard DE LA POLE, the King's butler (both being alive 28 May

(^a) This Thomas was s. and h. of William de C. (living 1232), by Alice, 1st da. of Robert Alfreton, of Norton, co. Derby, and coh. of her br., Thomas A., of the same, was a minor and ward (1241-42) 26 Hen. III, but came of age (1246-47) 31 Hen. III.

(^b) As to these writs, see Preface.

(^c) As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title, see Appendix A in the last volume. V.G.

(^d) He is called Chaors, Chaurces, Chawrces, Chawerches, Schawrces, Chawerch, Chawurces, and this does not exhaust the list of contemporary spellings. The French 17th century form was Chourches or Chourses. The place itself, in Maine, is now written Sourches. De Cadurcis is the latinised form of the name, and Chaworth the one which has survived in England. V.G.

(^e) The personal nature of the English Baronage as opposed to the feudal tenure of the continental Nobles is shown by the fact that, in a letter intended for foreign parts, the subscribers thereto go out of their way to add to their description the fact of their tenure of some Lordship; thus though "Johannes ap Adam, Dominus de Beverstone" was not Lord Beverstone; though "Henricus de Percy, Dominus de Topclive" was not Lord Topclive, and, though in this case, the signer was not Lord Norton, a territorial description is added; yet the very method of summoning to Parl. by writ (such writs being directed to those summoned, under their personal names, not under their territorial designations, as, e.g., that to "Thomas de Chaworth Chevalier") stamps the personality of any dignity which may be held to have been thereby conferred.

(^f) His will (Latin), dat. Affirton [Alfreton], 6 Nov. 1347, directs his burial to be with his grandfather, Lord Thomas, in the Abbey of Beauchief, co. Derby, and makes his s. and h. Thomas executor, but mentions no wife. V.G.

He was great-grandson of Chambré (Brabazon), 5th Earl of Meath [I.], who m. Juliana, aged 7 years in 1662,^(b) da. and sole h. of Patrick (Chaworth), 3rd and last Viscount Chaworth of Armagh [I.] abovenamed. See MEATH, Earldom of [I.], cr. 1627, under the 10th Earl.

CHEDWORTH

BARONY.

I. JOHN HOWE, s. and h. of the Right Hon. John H., of Stowell, co. Gloucester,^(c) Paymaster Gen. (d. 1721), by Mary, da. and h. of Humphrey BASKERVILLE, of Pentrylios, co. Hereford, on the death of his cousin, Sir Richard Howe, Bart.,^(d) 3 July 1730, suc. to his estates at Compton, co. Gloucester, and Wishford in Wilts. He was M.P. (Whig) for Gloucester, Feb. to July 1727, and for Wilts 1729;^(e) Recorder of Warwick 1737-41. On 12 May 1741, he was cr. LORD CHEDWORTH,

(a) Elizabeth, his sister, hap. 19 Dec. 1632, at Southwell, m. William (Byron), 3rd Lord Byron, and was ancestor of the Poet, whose early attachment to his cousin, Mary Anne Chaworth, is commemorated in his lines "To a Lady," beginning "Oh, had my fate been join'd with thine;" and again in a "Fragment," which begins "Hills of Annesley, bleak and barren." This lady, "the solitary scion left of a time honoured race," was the sole da. and h. of George Chaworth of Annesley, the last h. male of that line. See ante, p. 154, note "c." She m., in 1805, John Musters, of Colwick Hall, Notts, and d. at Wiverton Hall (the ancestral home of the Chaworths), Feb. 1832, aged 46, being some 2 or 3 years older than her said cousin.

(b) Visit. of Notts, 1662.

(c) The Jack Howe so well known to readers of Macaulay's History of England. V.G.

(d) The h. male, who suc. to the Baronetcy, was his cousin, Scrope (Howe), 2nd Viscount Howe [I.], all of whose honours became extinct, on the death s.p. of William, the 5th Viscount, in 1814.

(e) Up to 1734 he acted with the Tories and dissentient Whigs, voting against the Excise scheme, and for the repeal of the Septennial Act, but in the next parliament supported Walpole, and received a peerage on his recommendation. Even at that time "ratting" was one of the short roads to a Peerage, though traversed less frequently than in these degenerate days. V.G.

BARON OF CHEDWORTH, co. Gloucester. He m. Dorothy, 1st da. of Henry Frederick THYNNE, of Sunbury, Midx., by Dorothy, da. and coh. of Francis PHILIPS, of the same. He d. 3 Apr. 1742, and was bur. at Withington, co. Gloucester. Will pr. May 1742. His widow, who was bap. 22 Sep. 1692, at St. Margaret's, Westm., d. in Leicester fields, Midx., 14 Feb. 1777, and was bur. at Wishford.

II. 1742. 2. JOHN THYNNE (HOWE), BARON CHEDWORTH, 2nd, but 1st surv. s. and h., b. 18 Feb. 1714. Lord Lieut. of co. Gloucester, and Constable of St. Briavel's, 1758 till his death. A Whig in politics. He m., 23 Sep. 1751, at Somerset house chapel, Midx., Martha (a fortune of £40,000), 1st da. and coh. of Sir Philip PARKER-A-MORLEY-LONG (formerly PARKER), Bart., by Martha, da. of William EAST, of the Middle Temple, London. He d. s.p., 9 May 1762, aged 48, and was bur. at Withington afsd. Will pr. Feb. 1765. His widow, who was b. 23 Mar. 1715, and bap. 11 Apr. 1716, at St. Anne's, Soho, d. 30 Nov. 1775, in Leicester fields, Midx., and was bur. at Erwarton, Suffolk. Will pr. Dec. 1775.

III. 1762. 3. HENRY FREDERICK (HOWE), BARON CHEDWORTH, br. and h., b. 17 Feb. 1715. A Whig in politics. He d. unm., at Stowell, 7, and was bur. 16 Oct. 1781, at Withington, aged 66. Will pr. 1781.

IV. 1781 4. JOHN (HOWE), BARON CHEDWORTH, nephew and h., to being 2nd, but 1st surv. s. and h. of the Rev. the Hon.
1804. Thomas HOWE, Rector of Wishford, Wilts (next br. to the last Baron), by Frances, da. of Thomas WHITE, of Tattingstone place, Suffolk. He was b. 22 Aug. 1754, at St. Edmund's, Salisbury. Ed. at Harrow, and at Queen's Coll. Oxford. He, like his three predecessors, was a Whig. He d. unm., in London, 29 Oct., and was bur. 3 Nov. 1804, at St. Matthew's, Ipswich,^(a) aged 50, when his Peerage became extinct. Will pr. 1804.

CHELMSFORD

BARONY.

I. 1858. 1. FREDERIC^(b) THESIGER, 3rd but only surv. s. of Charles T., Collector of Customs in the island of St. Vincent (who d. 18 Feb. 1831), by Mary Anne, da. of Theophilus WILLIAMS, of London, was b. at 1 Fowkes Building,

(^a) He was fond of the drama and of horse racing. His chief seats in 1789 are given as Chedworth, co. Gloucester, and Alton, Suffolk. See an account of him in Gent. Mag., 1804, vol. lxxiv, p. 1242. V.G.

(^b) He was doubtless named after his father's eldest br., Sir Frederic Thesiger, Capt. R.N., Aide-de-camp to Nelson in the attack on Copenhagen in 1801, Knight of St. George of Russia (4th Class, 27 Oct. 1803), who d. unm., 2 Sep. 1805.

Tower Str., 15 July, and bap. 4 Sep. 1794, at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, London; ed. at Dr. Burney's school at Greenwich, and subsequently at the naval academy at Gosport. In 1807 he became a midshipman and served 7 Sep. at the second bombardment of Copenhagen. The total destruction, in 1812, of his father's estate in St. Vincent by volcanic eruption, made him resolve to become a barrister, with a view to practice in the West Indies. He entered at Gray's Inn, 5 Nov. 1813, and was called to the Bar, 18 Nov. 1818, migrating to the Inner Temple, 1824. He joined the Home Circuit, and became (by purchase) one of the four Counsel of the Palace Court, instituted for trial of causes of small amount within 12 miles of Westm. K.C. 1834, being for the next 10 years Leader of his Circuit. He was M.P. (Conservative) for Woodstock, 1840-44; for Abingdon, 1844-52; and for Stamford, 1852-58. Treasurer of the Inner Temple, 1843. After 26 years' practice, he was, 15 Apr. 1844, made Solicitor Gen., being knighted 23 May 1844. F.R.S. 19 June 1845. Attorney Gen. 29 June 1845 to 3 July 1846, and again 27 Feb. to 28 Dec. 1852. In the Derby ministry of 1858-59 he was LORD CHANCELLOR, 26 Feb. 1858.^(a) P.C. 26 Feb. 1858. On 1 Mar. 1858 he was cr. BARON CHELMSFORD^(b) OF CHELMSFORD, Essex. He resigned the Chancellorship (in 16 months' time) 18 June 1859, was reappointed 6 July 1866, but again resigned 29 Feb. 1868.^(c) Hon. D.C.L., Oxford. He m., 9 Mar. 1822, at All Saints', Southampton, Anna Maria, yst. da. and coh. of William TYNLING, of Southampton, by Frances,^(d) da. of Sir Richard PIERSON, K.B. She, who was b. 24 Dec. 1799, d. 9 Apr. 1875, at 7 Eaton Sq., Midx., and was bur. in Brompton cemetery. He d. 5 Oct. 1878, after a painful operation, in his 85th year, at the same house, and was bur. with his wife.^(e) Will pr. 23 Oct. 1878, under £50,000.^(f)

^(b) He chose this designation, as it was at Chelmsford, in 1832, that the trial took place in which he acquired the greatest reputation. It was as to the title of his client (the Lord of the Manor) to some unenclosed strips of land on the highway, which, after three trials, he succeeded in establishing. There were, indeed, few celebrated trials during his long career, in which he did not hold a brief, and his eloquence and good sense rendered him a most successful advocate.

^(c) He was compelled, by Disraeli, to make way for his abler successor, Lord Cairns, without, as he bitterly said, the month's notice which would have been given to a cook. V.G.

^(d) This Frances was sister and coh. of the gallant Major Pierson who was slain 6 Jan. 1781 while successfully repelling a formidable French invasion of the Isle of Jersey.

^(e) His 3rd son, the Hon. Alfred Henry Thesiger, b. 15 July 1838, early distinguished himself in his father's profession; Q.C. 1873; one of the Lords Justices of Appeal and a P.C., 1877. He d. s.p. 20 Oct. 1880, aged 42.

^(f) A popular man but an indifferent lawyer. George Venables said of his appointment, "Sir Frederic Thesiger is raised to the Chancellorship amidst universal sympathy which we cannot help extending to the suitors." V.G.

II. 1878. 2. FREDERIC AUGUSTUS (THESIGER), BARON CHELMSFORD, s. and h., b. 21 May 1837; entered the army 1844; Capt. Gren. Guards 1850; medal and clasp for service before Sebastopol 1855; Lieut. Col. 95th Foot 1858; Brevet Col. 1863; served against the mutineers in Central India; Dep. Adjutant Gen. at Bombay 1861; Adjutant Gen. to the Abyssinian expedition 1867-68, where he distinguished himself and was favourably mentioned; C.B. 14 Aug. 1868; Aide-de-camp to the Queen 1868-77, and Adjutant Gen. to the Bengal army 1869-74; Major Gen. 1877 (Commission antedated to Nov. 1868); K.C.B. 11 Nov. 1878; Brig. Gen. in command of 1st Infantry brigade at Aldershot; Commander of the forces in the Kaffir war 1878, and in the Zulu war 1879; Lieut. Gov. of the Cape of Good Hope 1878-79; G.C.B. 19 Aug. 1879; Lieut. Gen. in the army 1882; Gen. 1888; Lieut. of the Tower of London 1884-89; Col. of the Sherwood Foresters (the old 45th and 95th Foot) 1898-1900; Col. of the 2nd Life Guards, 1900 till his death; G.C.V.O. 9 Nov. 1902. He was a Conservative. He m., 1 Jan. 1867, at Kurrachee, Scinde, Adria Fanny, 1st da. of (—) HEATH, Major Gen. in the Bombay army. He d. suddenly, of aneurism of the heart, while playing billiards at the United Service Club, Pall Mall, 9, and was bur. 13 Apr. 1905, in Brompton Cemetery, in his 68th year.^(a) Will pr. 24 May 1905, gross over £68,000, net over £66,000. His widow was living 1913.

BARONY.

I. CHARLES COMPTON CAVENDISH, 4th and yst. s. of George Augustus Henry (CAVENDISH), 1ST EARL OF BURLINGTON, by Elizabeth, da. and h. of Charles (COMPTON), 7th EARL OF NORTHAMPTON, was b. 28 Aug. 1793; he was of Latimers in Chesham, Bucks; M.P. (Whig) for Aylesbury 1814-18; for Newtown (Isle of Wight) 1821-30; for Yarmouth (Isle of Wight) 1831-32; for East Sussex 1832-41; for Youghal (Ireland) 1841-47; and for Bucks, July 1847 to Dec. 1857. Having thus been nearly 40 years in the House of Commons, he was on 15 Jan. 1858, cr. BARON CHESHAM of Chesham, co. Buckingham. He m., 18 June 1814, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Catherine Susan, 1st da. of George (GORDON), 9th MARQUESS OF HUNTLY [S.], by Catherine, da. of Sir Charles COPE, Bart. He d. 10 Nov. 1863, in ^(a) See as to this date p. 101 in a review (by J. G. Nichols) in the Her. and Gen., vol. vi, pp. 97-124, of "The Feudal Barons of Powis," by Morris Charles Jones, 1868, an exhaustive treatise, printed in vol. i of the Montgomeryshire collections issued by the Powys Land Club. J. G. Nichols holds strongly against "the crochets of the Peerage lawyers" (who consider the Barony to be that of "Cherleton") and contends for the Barony being that of "Powis." He states (p. 111) that Powys became an English Barony in 1283, when Owen ap Griffin, (the last) Prince of Powis, surrendered his Principality and received back his lands in free Barony, and adds that this Owen, as well as Griffin (his s. and h.) ought in any future edition of the peerage to be given as "English Peers;" that John de Cherleton should be "the third not the first Baron;" that Henry Grey should be "the seventh Lord Powis," &c. This, as applied to the territorial Lords of Powis, is doubtless correct, but, unless a peerage Barony by tenure be admitted (as contended for in the case of "Berkeley"), such numbering does not apply to them "as English Peers," i.e. Peers of Parliament; and, inasmuch as such Peerage (only) is the scope of this work, the Editor prefers following Nicolas and Courthope as to the treatment of this Barony, which, as a Peerage, cannot be held to originate earlier than in the writ of 1313. J. H. Round, however, points out that "Griffin filius Wenunwen" (Owen's father) was summoned to the so-called Parl. of Shrewsbury in 1283 (see vol. i, p. xviii), at which Parl. his son Owen is alleged to have resigned the Principality of Powis, and to have received it back as a Barony.

CHESTER (County of)

Observations.—"The county of CHESTER is the best known example of a Palatine Earldom in England. The Palatine Earldom of LANCASTER was not cr. till 1351, while the case of DURHAM is anomalous, though its Palatine organization remained complete till transferred to the Crown in 1836. The Earldom of SHROPSHIRE and the Earldom of KENT (under the Conqueror) have been claimed as Palatine Honours, one for Roger de Montgomery, and the other for Eudes, Bishop of Bayeux: even HEREFORD and NORTHUMBERLAND were quasi Palatinates, at that early period, and CUMBERLAND may have been a Palatine Honour (temp. Hen. I), when in the hands of Ranulf le Meschin. It will be observed that all these counties are border districts forming a defence against Wales, Scotland, or France."^(b)

According to Betham "In England there were two Counties Palatine, of which the Lords were Earls, CHESTER and LANCASTER, and one in Wales, PEMBROKE.—DURHAM, although made a County afterwards, strictly speaking, was not a County Palatine, but a Palatine Honour of which the Bishop was [not Comes, the Earl, but only Dominus] the Lord."^(c)

EARLDOM. GHERBOD, a Fleming, Avoué of the Abbey of St. Bertin, received, on the dismemberment of Mercia, I. 1070. early in 1070, a large portion of that district, together with the city of Chester, the said portion being formed into a County Palatine (under the name of Cheshire) whereby he became EARL OF CHESTER. He returned, shortly afterwards, to his native country, where he was taken prisoner at the battle of Cassel, 1071, and kept captive for a long period, never coming back to England.

II. 1071. I. HUGH D'AVRANCHES, styled by his contemporaries "VRAS," or "LE GROS" and, in after ages (from his rapacity) "LUPUS," was s. and h. of Richard (LE GOZ), VICOMTE D'AVRANCHES, &c., in Normandy (s. of Thurstan LE GOZ), by Emma, da. of Herluin DE CONTEVILLE and Herleve (or Harlotte) his wife, who

(by Robert, Duke of Normandy) was mother of William "the Conqueror." He is generally supposed to have fought at the battle of Hastings (1066), when, at the utmost, he would have been but 19 years old;^(a) anyhow, not long afterwards, in 1071, he received from the King, his maternal uncle, the whole of the county palatine of Chester (excepting the Episcopal lands) "to hold as freely by the Sword as he [the King] himself held the Kingdom of England by the Crown," becoming thereby Count Palatine^(b) thereof, as EARL OF CHESTER.^(c) He suc. his father, who was living as late as 1082, as VICOMTE D'AVRANCHES, &c., in Normandy. In the rebellion (1096) against William II, he stood loyally by his Sovereign.^(d) He m. Ermentrude, da. of Hugues, COUNT OF CLERMONT in Beauvaisis, by Margaret, da. of Hilduin, COUNT OF ROUCI and MONTDIDIER. Having founded the Abbeys of St. Sever in Normandy and St. Werburg at Chester (besides largely endowing that of Whitby, co. York), he became a monk 23, and d. 27 July 1101, at St. Werburg's afsd.

III. 1101 2. RICHARD, EARL OF CHESTER, also VICOMTE

(^b) As such he had his hereditary Barons, who (besides one Robert de Rhuddlan, General of his forces, who d. 3 July 1088, many years before him) are generally considered to have been eight, as under, viz. (1) Eustace of Mold, BARON OF HAWARDEN, co. Flint, Hereditary Steward; (2) William Fitz-Niel, BARON OF HALTON, Hereditary Constable and Marshal, whose descendants took the name of De Lacy and became Earls of Lincoln in 1232. (3) William Malbank, BARON OF NANTWICH, or WICH-MALBANK, whose issue male ended with his grandson. (4) Robert FitzHugh, BARON OF MALPAS, who d. s.p.m., but appears to have been suc. (in Earl Hugh's lifetime) by David le Clerk (or Belward), said to have been his son-in-law. (5) Hamond de Massey, BARON OF DUNHAM-MASSEY, whose representation (through Fitton, Venables and Booth) passed to the Greys, Earls of Stamford and Warrington. (6) Richard Vernon, BARON OF SHIPBROOKE. (7) William Venables, BARON OF KINDERTON, whose issue male continued till 1676. (8) Robert Stockport, BARON OF STOCKPORT, whose existence is somewhat questionable. After 1265, however, when the Earldom of Chester was, by Henry III, annexed to the Crown, the dignity of these Barons became merely titular.

(^c) Sir George R. Sitwell, Bart., holds the view that Hugh was not a palatine Earl, though "as Edwin's heir he was the military leader of the shire and President of the Folkmoot." The number of his Barons, given by Dugdale as 6 or 7, and by Stubbs as 8, is given by Sir George as 12; one of the forgotten ones being Hugh FitzOsbern, the head of whose Barony was Pulford. (See The Barons of Pulford, by Sir G. R. Sitwell).

IV. 1121. I. RANULPH LE MESCHIN,^(a) styled, also, "DE BRIQUESSART,"^(b) VICOMTE DE BAYEUX in Normandy, s. and h. of Ranulph, VICOMTE DE BAYEUX, by Margaret, sister of Hugh (D'AVRANCHES), EARL OF CHESTER abovenamed, being thus 1st cousin and h. to the last Earl (whom he suc. as VICOMTE D'AVRANCHES, &c., in Normandy), obtained, after the Earl's death in 1120, the grant of the county palatine of Chester, becoming thereby EARL OF CHESTER. He appears thereupon to have surrendered the Lordship of the great district of Cumberland, which he had acquired,^(c) shortly before, from Henry I. In 1124 he was Commander of the Royal forces in Normandy. He m. Lucy,^(d) widow of Roger FITZ-GEROLD (by whom she was mother of William de Roumare, afterwards Earl of Lincoln). He d. about 1129, and was bur. at St. Werburg's, Chester.^(e) The Countess Lucy confirmed, as his widow, the grant of the Manor of Spalding to the monks of that place.^(f)

V. 1129. 2. RANULPH, styled "DE GERON,"^(g) EARL OF CHESTER, also VICOMTE D'AVRANCHES, &c., in Normandy, s. and h. He was b. before 1100, in the Castle of Gernon in Normandy. To the detriment of his elder br. of the half blood, William (de Roumare), Earl of Lincoln, he appears to have long held a large portion of the profits of the EARLDOM OF LINCOLN. He distinguished himself as a soldier both on the side of the Empress Maud and of that of King Stephen, with the greatest impartiality. He was one of the 5 Earls^(h) who witnessed the

The King granted him the Castle and city of Lincoln, probably after the pacification of 1151.^(a) He m., about 1141, Maud, da. of Robert, EARL OF GLOUCESTER, by Mabel, da. and h. of Robert FITZ-HAMOND, lord of Tewkesbury. From 1189 till his divorce from her in 1199 he, in right of his wife Constance, widow of Geoffrey, Earl of Richmond, styled himself EARL OF RICHMOND and also DUKE OF BRITTANY. In 1194 he was Commander of the Forces for Richard I, at whose second Coronation, 17 Apr. 1194, he bore the "Curtana," one of the three swords of State. From 1209 to 1214 he engaged in warfare with the Welsh. He was faithful to King John against the rebellious Barons, being one of the few witnesses, ex parte Regis, to the Charter of 15 June 1215, in which year he was Gov. of Newcastle-under-Lyme; Gov. of the Peak Castle and Forest, and Custos of the fief of the great Earldom of Leicester; Sheriff of the counties of Lancaster, Stafford and Salop; Steward of the Honour of Lancaster, &c. He was one of the executors of King John, who d. 19 Oct. 1216; and one of the most zealous supporters of the young King, Henry III, when, being in Apr. 1217, Joint Commander of the Royal army, he contributed mainly to the defeat of the rebels under the Count of Perche. On 23 May 1217 he was cr. EARL OF LINCOLN, an Earldom to which probably he considered he had some claim. Having taken the cross as early as 4 Mar. 1215, he left for the Holy Land, May 1218, and distinguished himself at the siege of Damietta, returning in Aug. 1220, when he began the building of Beeston Castle, co. Chester, Chartley Castle and the Abbey of Dieulacres,^(a) both co. Stafford. His rival, Hubert de Burgh, being then Regent of England, the Earl appears to have taken the part of the disaffected, and was required to surrender his Castles, &c., which after some resistance, he did in 1223. In Apr. 1229 he opposed in Parl. the grant of a tenth to the Pope, and absolutely forbade its collection in his own domain. From Oct. 1230 to July 1231 he was Chief Commander of the Royal troops in Brittany, &c., and in June 1231 was a Joint Commissioner to treat with France. He resigned the Earldom of Lincoln, between Apr. 1231 and his death, to his sister Hawise, to whose son-in-law (John de Lacy) it was, 22 Nov. 1232, confirmed. He m., 1stly, 3 Feb. 1187/8, Constance, widow of the King's nephew, Geoffrey, EARL OF RICHMOND, da. and h. of Conan, EARL OF RICHMOND and DUKE OF BRITTANY, by Margaret of SCOTLAND, da. of Henry, s. of DAVID I. From her he was divorced in 1199.^(b) He m., 2ndly, before 7 Oct. 1200, Clemence, widow of Alan DE DINAN, da. of William DE FOUGERES,^(c) by Agatha, sister of Richard, and da. of William DU HOMMET, Constables of Normandy. He d. s.p., at Wallingford, 28 Oct., and was bur. 3 Nov. 1232, with great pomp, at St. Werburg's, Chester, his heart being interred at Dieulacres Abbey.^(d) His great estates passed to his four sisters

(a) "Dieu l'accroise," is said to have been the exclamation of his wife Clemence when he narrated his dream enjoining him to found an Abbey near Leek.

(b) She m., 3rdly, Guy de Thouars, 2nd s. of Guillaume, Vicomte de Thouars, and d. Aug. or Sep. 1201, leaving issue by him, who d. 1213.

and coheirs or their descendants,^(a) while the Earldom lapsed to the Crown. His widow, who had dower in 1233, survived him 20 years, and d. 1252.

VIII. 1232 JOHN (LE SCOT), EARL OF HUNTINGDON AND CAM-to BRIDGE (nephew of William the Lion, King of Scotland), 1237. being 3rd and yst., but only surv. s. and h. of David, EARL OF HUNTINGDON, &c., by Maud, 1st sister and
coh. of Ranulph (DE BLUNDEVILLE), EARL OF CHESTER abovenamed, was b.
about 1207; suc. his father as Earl of Huntingdon, &c., 12 June 1219, having livery of his lands 25 Apr. 1227; was knighted by Alexander III 30 May 1227; and, after the death of the Earl of Chester, his uncle, though apparently in the lifetime of his mother (who d. Epiphany 1233), having inherited the whole County Palatine of Chester, was cr. at Northampton, 21 Nov. 1232, EARL OF CHESTER. At the Coronation of Queen Eleanor, 20 Jan. 1235/6, he bore the "Curtana," one of the three swords of State, as Earl of Chester, and claimed to bear the second sword as Earl of Huntingdon.^(b) He took the Cross about 8 June 1236. He m., 1222, Helen, da. of LLEWELLYN AP IORWERTH, PRINCE OF NORTH WALES, and by her is suspected to have been poisoned. He d. s.p., at Darnal, very shortly before 6 June^(c) 1237, and was bur. at St. Werburg's, Chester, leaving the two daughters of his eldest sister and his three surv.
sisters^(d) as his coheirs,^(e) but in 1246 (31 Hen. III) the Earldom of Chester

(a) These were (1) Maud, Countess of Huntingdon, b. 1171, d. Epiphany 1233
(a few months after her br. the Earl), leaving a s. and h. John (le Scot), Earl of Huntingdon, who in Nov. 1232 was cr. Earl of Chester. (2) Hugh (d'Aubigny), Earl of Sussex, surv. s. and h. of Mabel (wife of William, Earl of Sussex), the 2nd of the four sisters. This Hugh suc. to Coventry (as his chief seat), to Leeds, co. York, &c. He d. s.p. 7 May 1243, leaving his four sisters his coheirs. (3) Alice, wife of William (de Ferrers), Earl of Derby, who had the manor of Chartley, co. Stafford, all the lands between the rivers Ribble and Mersey, &c. (4) Hawise, suo jure, Countess of Lincoln, who in 1221 had m. Robert de Quincy, by whom she had Margaret, her da. and h., wife of John de Lacy, cr. Earl of Lincoln 1232. Hawise inherited the Castle and Manor of Bolingbroke and other large estates in co. Lincoln.

Aumale), and Devorgild (wife of John de Balliol, and mother of John de Balliol, King of Scotland, 1292-96), who were respectively 1st and 2nd daughters and coheirs of Alan, Lord of Galloway, by his 2nd wife, the Earl's eldest sister Margaret; and his three surviving sisters, viz. (1) Isabel (living 1242), m. Robert de Bruce, whose great-grandson, Robert de Bruce, was King of Scotland, 1306; (2) Maud, d. unm. (3) Ada senior coh., claimed, in right of his wife, the entire county of Chester, and to be

IX. 1254 EDWARD, styled "LONGSHANKS,"^(b) s. and h. ap. of to HENRY III, by Eleanor, da. and coh. of Raymond (BEREN-1264 GER), COUNT OF PROVENCE, was b. at Westminster, and 17 June 1239, and was bap. 4 days later by Eudes, the 1265 Pope's legate.^(c) On 14 Feb. 1253/4 he was cr. EARL to OF CHESTER, and "received seisin of the Earldom 1272. of Chester by [the hands of] the Lord Bartholomew de Peche"^(d) on 26 Mar. 1254. When, however, he and the King, his father, were taken prisoners at the battle of Lewes, 14 May 1264, by the rebellious Barons under Simon (de Montfort), Earl of Leicester, the King "had no other means to make his peace, but by delivering the said Earldom of Chester into Earl Simon's hands, by letters patent, dat.
24 Dec. (1264) 49 Hen. III, at Woodstock," but, some 8 months afterwards, on the death, 4 Aug. 1265, and attainder of the said Earl Simon, "came the Earldom of Chester back again to young Edward." He took the Cross, 24 June 1268, becoming a Crusader May 1271. He m. (while Earl of Chester), at Burgos, in Spain, 1254, Eleanor, da. of Fernando III, KING OF CASTILE, by his 2nd wife, Jeanne, da. and h. of Simon, COUNT OF PONTHEU. She, who was his 1st wife, was living when her husband, on 20 Nov. 1272, succeeded to the throne as EDWARD I (post conquestum), when all his honours merged in the Crown.

X. 1264 SIMON (DE MONTFORT), EARL OF LEICESTER, having to taken Edward, Earl of Chester (and the King, his father) 1265. prisoner, as above stated, extorted, under colour of an exchange for the Earldom of Leicester, a grant of the Earldom of Chester, and obtained two patents from the King, 24 Dec.
1264 and 20 Mar. 1265, in confirmation thereof, becoming thereby

Earl thereof, but the verdict went against him, though his coheirs admitted his right to be earl, while claiming equal rights with him in the lands. (See J. H. Round's Peerage and Pedigree, vol. i, pp. 128-132). V.G.

Confessor St. Edward, whose corps lieth magnificently deposited in the Abbey of St. Peter, in the city of Westminster [the birth place of this Prince], whom King Henry III ever honoured as his titular Saint." (Sandford, p. 127).

He was slain at the battle of Evesham, 4 Aug. 1265, his honours being forfeited, and the Earldom of Chester reverting to its former owner, as above-mentioned. See fuller particulars under "LEICESTER," Earldom of, 1230-65.

XI. 1284. ALPHONSO,^(a) 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of EDWARD I, by his 1st wife, Eleanor, da. of Fernando III, KING OF CASTILE, b. at Bordeaux, 24 Nov. 1273, is said to have been designated EARL OF CHESTER, in 1284. He d. an infant, 19 Aug. 1284, and was bur. in Westm. Abbey, aged 10, when his Peerage dignity, if any, became extinct.

XII. 1301 EDWARD,^(a) styled "OF CARNARVON," 1st surv. s. and to h. ap. of EDWARD I, by his 1st wife, Eleanor, above-named, b. 25 Apr. 1284, at Carnarvon, had a grant of the Principality of Wales and County of Chester by charter, 7 Feb. 1301, and is styled,^(b) in a charter of 10 May following, PRINCE OF WALES^(c) and EARL OF CHESTER, by which titles he was sum. to Parl. from 2 June 1302 to 3 Nov. 1306. He was also COUNT OF PONTHEIU AND MONTREUIL, and in May 1306 was cr. DUKE OF AQUITAINE in France. On 8 July 1307 he ascended the throne as EDWARD II (post conquestum), when all his honours merged in the Crown.

XIII. 1312? EDWARD,^(a) styled "OF WINDSOR," 1st s. and h. ap. of to EDWARD II, by Isabel, da. of Philippe IV, KING OF FRANCE, 1327. b. 13 Nov. 1312, at Windsor Castle, is stated to have been cr. EARL OF CHESTER, 24 Nov. 1312,^(d) and

^(a) As to his supposed name of "Plantagenet," see vol. i, p. 183, note "c."

^(b) "We have no account of any ceremony attendant upon the creation of Edward of Carnarvon to be Prince of Wales, and Earl of Chester, but it is probable that the grant of the Principality was immediately preceded by investiture with circlet, ring, and rod for the Principality of Wales, and by the girding on of the sword for the Earldom of Chester, as we find to have been done in the case of the Black Prince; this would agree with the statement made by Matthew of Paris, that in or about the year 1300-1 the King gave to his son Edward the Principality of Wales, and also bestowed upon him the Earldom of Chester." (See Courthope, sub "WALES," p. 8).

^(c) THE PRINCIPALITY OF WALES was, by a statute, passed at Rhuddlan, in 1284 (12 Edw. I), united to England, the Earldom of Chester remaining entirely distinct therefrom. In 1398 (21 Ric. II) that Earldom was (as hereafter mentioned) erected into a Principality, and, though this last named act was revoked by Henry IV, the said Earldom of Chester has ever since been granted in conjunction with the Principality of Wales.

^(d) "No record of such creation appears either upon the Patent or Charter Rolls of that year; the King, his father, however, by two several charters of that date, gave to him, by the description of 'our son Edward' (only), the counties of Chester etc. . .

was, certainly, sum. to Parl. by such title, 5 Aug. 1320. On 2 Sep. 1325, he was cr. COUNT OF PONTHEIU AND MONTREUIL, and eight days afterwards, DUKE OF AQUITAINE, in France.^(a) He also received the Lordship of the Isle of Wight.^(b) On 25 Jan. 1326/7 he was proclaimed King as EDWARD III (post conquestum), when all his honours merged in the Crown.^(c)

XIV. 1333 EDWARD,^(d) styled "OF WOODSTOCK," and popularly to known, though not apparently till the 16th century, as 1376. The Black Prince, 1st s. and h. ap. of EDWARD III, b. 15 June 1330, at Woodstock, was by charter 18 May 1333, cr. EARL OF CHESTER, being invested with the county of Chester and the Castles of Chester, Rhuddlan and Flint "habend. et tenend. eidem filio nro. et heredibus suis Regibus Anglie." On 2 Dec. 1333 he had a grant of Carisbrooke Castle and other manors in the Isle of Wight. On 17 Mar. 1337 he was cr., also with a spec. rem., DUKE OF CORNWALL;^(e) on 12 May 1343, PRINCE OF WALES, and on 19 July 1362, PRINCE OF AQUITAINE. He d. v.p., 8 June 1376, when (his s. and h. not being s. and h. of the King of England) the Earldom of Chester (as also his other peerage dignities) lapsed to the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, cr. 1337.

His creation, by the girding on of the sword, probably preceded very shortly the grant of these counties, but no mention of it is made." (Courthope, sub "CHESTER"). He is thrice called Earl of Chester in the Feudal Aids for 1316.

(a) "Habend. et tenend. sibi et heredibus suis masculis Regibus Anglie seu Regni Angliæ heredibus." The first enrolments of these dignities appear to have been cancelled, the word 'masculis' being omitted, but the subsequent enrolments are of the same date." (Courthope, sub "CHESTER").

(b) See vol. vii, Appendix B.

(c) "It is worthy of observation that Edward III never bore the title of Prince of Wales; the earliest writ of Summons to Parliament in which his name occurs is that of 5 Aug. 1320, then being about eight years of age, wherein he is styled 'Edwardo Comiti Cestrensi filio nostro charissimo,' and by the same designation he was sum. in the 15th, 16th, 17th, and 18th of Edw. II. Some writers of authority assert that he was cr. Prince of Wales and Duke of Acquitaine in a Parl. held at York, 15 Edw. II, but not only is no notice of such an occurrence to be found in the Rolls of Parliament, but the assertion is shown to be entirely without foundation, he having been, by the description of Edward, Earl of Chester, cr. Earl of Ponthieu and Monstroile 2 Sep. and Duke of Acquitaine 10 Sep. 1325. [In the case of] his father [on the other hand, he] in consequence of his creation to that Principality, was regularly sum. as 'Edwardo, Principi Walliæ & Comiti Cestriæ, filio suo charissimo,' from 2 June 1302 (when he became eighteen years of age), until [1307, when, as Edward II] he ascended the throne." (Nicolas, sub "WALES," p. 5).

XV. 1376 RICHARD,^(a) styled "OF BORDEAUX," 2nd but 1st surv.
to s. and h. of Edward, PRINCE OF WALES, DUKE OF CORN-1377. WALL and EARL OF CHESTER abovenamed, by Joan, suo jure COUNTESS OF KENT, was b. 6 Jan. 1367, at Bordeaux in Aquitaine, but did not (owing to the spec. clauses creating those digni-ties)^(b) inherit any of his father's said honours. Being grandson of the reigning King (Edward III) and h. ap. to the Crown, he was, by charter, dat. at Havering, 20 Nov. 1376, cr. PRINCE OF WALES, DUKE OF CORNWALL, and EARL OF CHESTER. On 22 June 1377, he ascended the throne as RICHARD II, when all his honours merged in the Crown.

[“By an Act 21 Ric. II, cap. 9 [1398], the Earldom of Chester was erected into a Principality,^(c) and it was ordained ‘que nulle done ne grante en ascun temps advenir ne serra faite del dite Principaltee ne de les Chastelx sieres et villes susdites a nulloy fors soulement aleisne fitz du Roy qui serra Prince illoques sy plerra au Roy affaire,’ and although this Act was ‘wholly reversed, revoked, voided, undone, repealed, and annulled for ever’ by Act, 1 Hen. IV, cap. 3, the Earldom of Chester has ever since been granted in conjunction with the Principality of Wales.” See Courthope, sub “CHESTER.”]

XVI. 1399 HENRY,^(a) styled "OF MONMOUTH," s. and h. ap. of to HENRY IV, by his 1st wife, Mary, da. and coh. of Hum-1413. phrey (DE BOHUN), EARL OF HEREFORD, was b. 9 Aug.
1387, at Monmouth, and was, on 15 Oct. 1399, cr. in Parl. PRINCE OF WALES, DUKE OF CORNWALL^(d) and EARL OF CHESTER, being, by charter of the same date, invested with the said Principality and Dukedom, together with the Counties of Chester and Flint, “sibi et heredibus suis Regibus Anglie.” On 10 Nov. 1399 he was declared DUKE OF LANCASTER in Parl., as also DUKE OF AQUITAINE in France, and it was directed that he should bear the titles of “Prince of Wales, Duke of Aquitaine, of Lancaster and of Cornwall,

^(b) In the case of the Earldom of Chester the remainder of the dignity was granted in 1333 to the heirs of Prince Edward, they being Kings of England, while in that of the Dukedom of Cornwall it was to the eldest son of the said Prince and of his heirs, they (i.e. the said Prince Edward, or his heirs) being “Kings of England.” Richard of Bordeaux, in 1376, was neither himself King (when he would have inherited the Earldom of Chester) nor the son of a King (when he would have inherited the Dukedom of Cornwall) so that a new creation of both was necessary.

and Earl of Chester." On 21 Mar. 1412/3 he ascended the throne as HENRY V, when all his honours merged in the Crown.

XVII. 1454 EDWARD, DUKE OF CORNWALL, only s. and h. ap. of to HENRY VI,^(a) b. at Westminster, 13 Oct. 1453, was, 1471. by charter, dat. at Westm. 15 Mar. 1454, and confirmed the same day in Parl., cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, "sibi et heredibus suis Regibus Anglie." He
d. s.p., 4 May 1471, when his Peerage dignities lapsed to the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1453.

RICHARD (PLANTAGENET), DUKE OF YORK (whose son, in Mar. 1460/1, ascended the throne as EDWARD IV), having obtained possession of the person of King Henry VI, was, on 25 Oct. 1460, declared by consent of Parl., HEIR APPARENT TO THE CROWN, and, on 8 Nov. following, PROTECTOR OF THE REALM, and was granted in Dec. of that year, for the King's life,^(b) the Principality of Wales, the Counties of Chester and Flint, and the Duchy of Cornwall. It has been supposed that he thus became PRINCE OF WALES, DUKE OF CORNWALL, and EARL OF CHESTER, but there was no creation of such titles, the lands being granted to him as an appanage, worth 10,000 marks p.a., to support his position as heir to the Crown. He d. 30 Dec. 1460. For fuller particulars see "YORK," Dukedom of, cr. 1385, under the 3rd Duke.

XVIII. 1471 EDWARD (PLANTAGENET), DUKE OF CORNWALL,^(c) s. to and h. ap. of EDWARD IV, b. 2 Nov. 1470, was, by 1483. charter, 25 June 1471, cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, being invested, by charter 17 July following, with the Principality of Wales and the Counties of Chester and Flint, at which latter date he was also cr. DUKE OF CORNWALL in Parl. On 9 Apr. 1483 he ascended the throne as EDWARD V (post conquestum), when all his honours merged in the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1470 and 1471.

XIX. 1483 EDWARD (PLANTAGENET), DUKE OF CORNWALL and to EARL OF SALISBURY, s. and h. ap. of King RICHARD III, 1484. was b. 1473, and was cr. by charter 24 Aug., and inv.
8 Sep. 1483 (under the name of "Edward, eldest son of

(^c) He was, apparently, such at his birth, both under the original creation of that Dukedom in 1337 and also by act 9 Henry V. See some explanation as to his subsequent creation by that title, under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1470.

XX. 1489 ARTHUR (TUDOR), DUKE OF CORNWALL, s. and h. ap. of to HENRY VII, was b. 20 Sep. 1486, and was, by charter 1502. 29 Nov. 1489 (delivered into Chancery 1 Dec. following), under the name of "Arthur, eldest son of the King," cr.

PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER,^(a) "sibi et heredibus suis Regibus Anglie," and was invested with the Principality of Wales and the counties of Chester and Flint by signed Bill 27 Feb. following. He d. s.p. and v.p., 2 Apr. 1502, when his Peerage dignities lapsed to the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1486.

XXI. 1504 HENRY (TUDOR), DUKE OF CORNWALL and DUKE OF to YORK, 2nd but only surv. s. and h. ap. of King 1509. HENRY VII, was b. 28 June 1491, and was on 18 Feb.
1503/4, under the name of "Henry, only son and heir of the King," cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, with rem. to his heirs, Kings of England.^(b) On 22 Apr. 1509 he ascended the throne as HENRY VIII, when all his honours merged in the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1502.

EDWARD (TUDOR), DUKE OF CORNWALL, s. and h. ap. of HENRY VIII, was about to be cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER^(c) at the time of his father's death, at which date, 28 Jan. 1546/7, he, at the age of 10 years, ascended the throne as EDWARD VI, when all his honours merged in the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1537.

(a) "The signet bill, of 27 Feb. following, for his investiture with the Castles, Manors, &c., recites his creation to have taken place 29 Nov. preceding with consent and advice of the Peers of Parl." (Courthope, sub "WALES," p. 10, note "j").

(b) A reference to this creation on Parl. Roll [No. 130] 19 Hen. VII, No. 10, states that the ceremony was to take place on 23 Feb. 1503/4. See Creations, 1483-1646, in App., 47th Rep. D.K. Pub. Records.

(c) Not one of the three sons of Henry VIII was cr. Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester. A note to Blackstone's Commentaries (vol. i, p. 224, edit. 1844) states that "Mary and Elizabeth were created Princesses of Wales, by their father, Henry VIII, each being at the time (the latter after the illegitimation of Mary) heiress presumptive to the Crown." There appears to be no foundation for this statement.

XXII. 1610 HENRY FREDERICK (STUART), "DUKE OF CORNWALL and to [also] DUKE OF ROTHESAY in Scotland, eldest son of the 1612. King," i.e. of JAMES I, was b. 19 Feb. 1593/4, and was, on 4 June 1610, cr. in Parl. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, which dignities by patent of even date were confirmed "sibi et heredibus suis Regibus Angliæ." He d. unm. and v.p., 6 Nov. 1612, when his Peerage dignities lapsed to the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1603.

XXIII. 1616 CHARLES (STUART), "Prince of Great Britain [sic], to DUKE OF CORNWALL AND YORK and [also] DUKE OF 1625. ALBANY in Scotland, son of the King." i.e. 3rd but 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of JAMES I, was b. 19 Nov. 1600, and was, on 4 Nov. 1616, cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, with rem. to his heirs, Kings of England. On 27 Mar. 1625 he ascended the throne as CHARLES I, when all his honours merged in the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1612.

XXIV. 1641? CHARLES (STUART), DUKE OF CORNWALL, also DUKE OF to ROTHESAY, &c. [S.], 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of 1649. CHARLES I, was b. 29 May 1630, and was declared,^(a) but never formally cr., PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER. Probably before Nov. 1641, but certainly before 4 Apr. 1646, he was acknowledged as Prince of Wales, and (by consequence?) Earl of Chester. By his father's judicial murder he became King of England and Scotland, de jure, 30 Jan. 1648/9, and de facto, 29 May 1660, as CHARLES II, when all his honours merged in the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1630.

^(a) "Sandford says that he was declared Prince of Wales about the period of his installation into the order of the Garter, which was in 1638; upon his Garter plate, which is decorated with the Prince of Wales's feathers, he is styled 'Prince of Great Britain and Duke of Cornwall and Rothsay' only. In numerous warrants, providing for the expenses of his household, between 1634 and 1644, he is styled 'Prince Charles' only; and one of them, in Nov. 1641, is addressed to the Receiver of the King's Revenue as Prince of Wales. In the Prince's subsequent communications with the Parl., in 1645-6, he is styled Prince of Wales. In a frontispiece annexed to a collection of ordinances and declarations in Parl., published in 1646 by order of Parl., he is represented as sitting in Parl., on the right of the King his Father." (Court-hope, p. 12, note "p").

JAMES FRANCIS EDWARD (STUART), DUKE OF CORNWALL, also DUKE OF ROTHESAY, &c. [S.], 6th but 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of JAMES II, was b. 10 June 1688, and was, in the Gazette of 4 July, and again at his baptism, 15 Oct. 1688, styled PRINCE OF WALES, and (by consequence?) EARL OF CHESTER. On 11 Dec. following his father was declared to have "abdicated" the throne, and in Mar. 1702 the infant Prince himself was attainted, whereby all his honours became forfeited. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1688.

XXV. 1714 H.R.H. GEORGE AUGUSTUS, Prince of Great Britain, to Electoral Prince of Brunswick and Lüneburg,^(a) DUKE OF 1727. CORNWALL, DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE, &c., also DUKE OF ROTHESAY, &c. [S.], s. and h. ap. of GEORGE I, was b.
30 Oct. 1683, and was, on 27 Sep. 1714 (about 2 months after his father's accession to the Crown) cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER,^(b) with rem. to his heirs, Kings of Great Britain. On 11 June 1727 he ascended the throne as GEORGE II, when all his honours merged in the Crown.
See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1714.

(^a) The style of Ernst August (father of George I), after 19 Dec. 1692, was "Duke of Brunswick and Lüneburg, Elector and Arch Standard-Bearer of the Holy Roman Empire." Titles such as "Elector of Hanover," or "Elector of Brunswick and Lüneburg," are merely popular designations following the usual custom. Thus, among the other Electors of the Empire, the Duke of Saxony was known as Elector of Saxony; the Margrave of Brandenburg, as Elector of Brandenburg: so with the other lay electors. "Electoral Prince of Brunswick and Lüneburg," or "Electoral Prince of Hanover," is therefore merely the short for "that Duke of Brunswick and Lüneburg who is s. and h. ap. of the Duke of Brunswick and Lüneburg (now reigning at Hanover), an Elector of the Holy Roman Empire." It may be added that, in like manner, such designations as Duke of Brunswick-Celle, of Brunswick-Wolfenbüttel, &c., or, still more curtly, Duke of Celle, of Wolfenbüttel, &c., were only used to distinguish the various members of a family, each of which was, in formal style, "Duke (or Duchess) of Brunswick and Lüneburg." So again, Duke of Saxe-Altenburg, of Saxe-Saalfeld, of Saxe-Coburg-and-Gotha, were only designations distinguishing the various members of a family, each of which was, in formal style, "Duke (or Duchess) of Saxony, Juliers, Cleve, and Berg." In the latter case, the English custom of translating Sachsen into English when it occurs by itself, and into French when in a compound word, is curious. (ex inform. G. W. Watson).

(^b) "The letters patent of creation declare him to be likewise invested with the said Principality and Counties, and to be confirmed in the same by these ensigns of honour—the girding on of the Sword, the delivery of the Cap, and placing it on his head, with a Ring on his finger and gold Staff in his hand, according to custom." (Courthope, p. 12, note "s").

XXVI. 1729 H.R.H. FREDERICK LEWIS, Prince of Great Britain, to Electoral Prince of Brunswick and Lüneburg, DUKE OF 1751. CORNWALL, DUKE OF EDENBURGH, &c., also DUKE OF ROTHESAY, &c. [S.], s. and h. ap. of King GEORGE II, was
b. 20 Jan. 1707, and was, on 8 Jan. 1728/9 (above a year and a half after his father's accession to the Crown), cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER with rem. to his heirs, Kings of Great Britain. He d. v.p., 20 Mar. 1750/1, when the last named dignities (together with the Dukedoms of Cornwall and of Rothesay, &c.) lapsed to the Crown, the Dukedom of Edenburgh, &c., descending to his s. and h. as below mentioned.

XXVII. 1751 H.R.H. GEORGE WILLIAM FREDERICK, Prince of
to Great Britain, Electoral Prince of Brunswick and Lüne-1760. burg, s. and h. of Frederick Lewis, PRINCE OF WALES,
&c., abovenamed, by Augusta, yst. da. of Frederick II,
DUKE OF SAXE GOTHA, was b. 24 May 1738, at Norfolk House, St. James's Sq., and bap. the same day. Nom. K.G. 22, inv. 23 June 1749, and inst. (by proxy) 12 July 1750. On 20 Mar. 1750/1 he suc. his father as DUKE OF EDENBURGH, MARQUESS OF ELY, VISCOUNT LAUNCESTON and BARON SNAWDON, and the next month, 20 Apr. 1751, was cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER with rem. to his heirs, Kings of Great Britain.^(a) By the death of his grandfather, George II, he, on 25 Oct. 1760, ascended the throne as GEORGE III, when all his honours merged in the Crown.

XXVIII. 1762 H.R.H. GEORGE AUGUSTUS FREDERICK, Prince of
1820. BURG, DUKE OF CORNWALL, also DUKE OF ROTHESAY, &c.
[S.], s. and h. ap. of GEORGE III, was b. 12 Aug. 1762, and, when seven days old, was, on 19 Aug. 1762 (previous to his baptism), cr.
PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, with rem. to his heirs, Kings of Great Britain. On 29 Jan. 1820 he ascended the throne as
particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1762.

^(a) As to any marriage between this Prince and Hannah Lightfoot, the fair Quakeress, that lady's marriage, 11 Dec. 1753, with Isaac Axford, who survived her (but with whom, apparently, she never cohabited), is of itself a sufficient disproof. The case, however, as to a liaison between them is quite otherwise, and no one can read the able articles of "Horace Bleackley" in N. & Q., 10th Ser., vol. viii, pp. 321, 404, &c., without agreeing with that writer, that, in spite of the scepticism of that acute critic W. J. Thoms, "it is difficult to resist the conclusion that Hannah Lightfoot, the niece of Henry Wheeler, Linendraper, of Market Street, St. James's, the bride of Isaac Axford, and the renegade Quakeress, was the same Lady for whom George, Prince of Wales [1751-60] was believed by many of his contemporaries to have had a serious admiration." In the trial of "Ryves v. the Attorney General" a [fudged] certificate of his marriage, 17 Apr. 1759, with Hannah Lightfoot, was quoted. See Annual Reg., 1866, p. 227.

XXIX. 1841. H.R.H. ALBERT EDWARD, Prince of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, DUKE OF CORNWALL, also DUKE OF ROTHESAY [S.], &c., s. and h. ap. of Queen VICTORIA, by H.R.H. ALBERT, PRINCE CONSORT, Prince of Saxe Coburg and Gotha. He was b. 9 Nov. 1841, and, within a month thereof, on 8 Dec. 1841, was (previous to his baptism) cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER,^(*) with rem. to his heirs, Kings of the United Kingdom. He was subsequently, 17 Jan. 1850, cr. EARL OF DUBLIN, with a similar rem. On 22 Jan. 1901 he ascended the throne as Edward VII, when all his honours merged in the Crown. See fuller particulars under "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1841.

(*) Since the reign of Henry III (excepting for the short period, 1264-65, when the rebel Baron, Simon de Montfort held it) the EARLDOM OF CHESTER, which, in 1254, was granted to Edward (afterwards Edward I), s. and h. ap. of that King, has never been conferred on any save the heir apparent of the Crown.

THE PRINCIPALITY OF WALES, first united to England in 1284 by Edward I, was conferred, together with the Earldom of Chester, in 1301, on Edward his s. and h. ap. It was for the 2nd time conferred, in 1343, on Edward, Duke of Cornwall (so cr. 1337), s. and h. ap. of Edward III, but, in this case, some ten years after the said Prince had been (in 1333) cr. Earl of Chester. It was for the 3rd time conferred, in 1376, on Richard, grandson and h. ap. of Edward III, the grant being, as in the first instance, together with the Earldom of Chester, and, in this instance, with the Dukedom of Cornwall also. For the 4th time, it was conferred, in 1399, on Henry, s. and h. ap. of Henry IV, such grant being, as in the previous case, together with the Earldom of Chester and the Dukedom of Cornwall. Ever since that time the Principality of Wales has been conferred, together with the Earldom of Chester, but independently of the Dukedom of Cornwall (though in most cases all three dignities have been held together), on the heir apparent* to the Crown.

There are, however, six cases in which the Duke of Cornwall, the heir apparent to the Crown, has not obtained the dignity of Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, viz. (1) Henry, afterwards Henry VI, who became King at the age of 9 months. (2 and 3) Two sons of Henry VIII, who died as infants, 1510 and 1514 respectively. (4) Edward, afterwards Edward VI, who became King when 9 years of age. (5) Charles, 1st s. of Charles I, who died an infant 1628. (6) James Francis, son of James II, born (but 6 months before his father's "abdication"), in 1688. Each one of these, having been the son of a King, will be noticed among the Dukes of Cornwall.

On the other hand, there has been one instance (since the creation of the Dukedom in 1337), where the heir apparent, though created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, has not been Duke of Cornwall. It is that (1751 to 1760) of George, afterwards George III, who, not being filius Regis, did not acquire that Dukedom by birthright.

No less than six Princes of Wales (Earls of Chester) have died in their father's lifetime, viz. (1) Edward, s. of Edward III, d. 1376. (2) Edward, s. of Henry VI, d. 1471. (3) Edward, s. of Richard III, d. 1484. (4) Arthur, s. of Henry VII, d. 1502. (5) Henry, s. of James I, d. 1612. (6) Frederick, s. of George II, d. 1751.

* Richard, Duke of York (father of Edward IV), who in 1460 had been declared heir apparent to the Crown, was never "Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall and Earl of Chester," though he was granted that Principality, Duchy, and County.

CHESTERFIELD

EARLDOM.

I. PHILIP STANHOPE, s. and h. of Sir John S. (d. 1611), of Shelford, Notts, and Elvaston, co. Derby, being only s. by his 1st wife, Cordell, 3rd da. and coh. of Richard ALINGTON, of Lincoln's Inn, was b. 1584; knighted at Whitehall, 16 Dec. 1605. He was, on 7 Nov. 1616, cr. BARON STANHOPE OF SHELFORD, co. Nottingham. On 4 Aug. 1628, he was cr. EARL OF CHESTERFIELD, co. Derby. When the civil war broke out he was made, by the King, Col. of a regt. of Dragoons, 1642, distinguishing himself at the siege of Lichfield, where, in 1643, he was made prisoner.^(a) He m., 1stly, in 1605, Catherine, da. of Francis HASTINGS, styled LORD HASTINGS (being s. and h. ap. of George, 4th EARL OF HUNTINGDON), by Sarah, da. of Sir James HARINGTON. (^a) This patent is recited in a royal sign manual 1 June 1660, whereby the daughters of the said Countess are given the same precedence as if their father had survived his father, Katherine's creation, as therein stated, giving her "in part the pre-eminence and precedency she lost by the death of her said husband," i.e. the rank of an Earldom of 1660 in lieu of one of 1628. See book marked I. 25 (p. 76) at the College of Arms. No similar case is known to have occurred previously, though later the cases of Sarah, Countess of Radnor (1686), and Catherine, Viscountess Grandison of Limerick (1700), widow of the h. ap. of the 4th Viscount Grandison, are somewhat similar. See also Baroness Bolsover, cr. 1880.

(^b) For a list of "The Nobility in Arms with the Prince of Orange in 1688," see vol. ii, Appendix H. When the Princess Anne (who had been escorted by Compton, Bishop of London, the Earls of Northampton, and Chesterfield, Lord Cullen and other noblemen with a troop of horse from Leicester to Oxford) announced that her purpose was to have an association to kill all the Papists in England lest the Prince of Orange should be killed by them, the Earl of Chesterfield, Lord Ferrers, and Lord Cullen were the first who had the courage to refuse signing the paper drawn up by Bishop Compton to form this infamous conspiracy (which, if carried out, would have aimed at the life of the Princess's unfortunate father), and their example being followed by above 100 gentlemen, to the great vexation of the Princess, the plot had to be abandoned. See Memoirs of Philip, Earl of Chesterfield, pp. 48-50. Bishop Burnet's character of him, when above 60 (say in 1695), with Dean Swift's commentary thereon in italics is as follows: "He is very subtle and cunning, never entered into the measures of King William, nor ever will, in any probability, make any great appearance in any other reign. If it be old Chesterfield, I have heard that he was the greatest knave in England." G.E.C. "He had a very agreeable face, a fine head of hair, an indifferent shape, and a worse air; he was not, however, deficient in wit; a long residence in Italy had made him ceremonious in his commerce with men, and jealous in his connection with women; he had been much hated by the King, because he had been much beloved by Lady Castlemaine." (Memoirs of Count Gramont, cap. viii). After the rise of the modern party divisions he generally voted with the Tories. V.G.

(^a) A few months after the marriage, Pepys, under date 20 Jan. 1661/2, says, "I was told the occasion of my Lord Chesterfield's going and taking his lady (my Lord Ormond's daughter) from Court. It seems he hath been long jealous of the Duke of York, but . . . the lady by all opinions is a most good virtuous woman." His father-in-law, the Duke of Ormonde, writes 17 Jan. 1662/3, "Lord Chesterfield's extravagant proceedings must deprive him of the esteem and opinion of all sober men. I do not know how to govern myself to redeem my daughter from the afflicting life that seems to be prepared for her and my Lord C. (for whose person and disease I have kindness and compassion) from that scandalous state he has brought himself to." Of the lady herself there is an account in the Memoirs of Count Gramont, cap. vii; "This was one of the most agreeable women in the world: she had a most exquisite shape, though she was not very tall; her complexion was extremely fair with all the expressive charms of a brunette; her manners were engaging; her wit lively and amusing; but her heart ever open to tender sentiments, was neither scrupulous in point of constancy, nor nice in point of sincerity." Her husband, who was exceedingly jealous, is said to have had her poisoned in the wine administered for the sacrament. V.G.

The colour of the rebel rose?" V.G.

Of these, which were written to his illegit. son (who d. before him in 1768), Dr. Johnson remarks that they "inculcated the morals of a Strumpet and the manners of a Dancing-master," and of the Earl himself he adds that he was "a Wit among Lords and a Lord among Wits." His dismissal from Court (1733) is said to have been owing to his indiscreetly "having offended the Queen by paying court to Lady Suffolk," the King's mistress. dubbed him "a little gossiping tea table scoundrel," and indeed his wit, his vanity, and his vices are better known to posterity than his scholarly tastes, his literary capacity, and his prescient statesmanship. He said of himself that he wanted the two great springs of human action—ambition and avarice. Perhaps his greatest work was the reformation of the Calendar in 1751, but by his firmness, vigilance, kindness, and toleration, he has left his mark as probably the best Lord Lieut. that Ireland has ever seen. Cowper, in the Progress of Error has a fling at him.

"Petronius! all the Muses weep for thee,
But every tear shall scald thy memory.
Thou polished and high finished foe to truth,
Grey-beard corrupter of our listening youth."

"He left a will that did him no credit, imposing impracticable restraints on his heir, and sporting ludicrously on the Church by giving penalties for which his heir was made liable to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, to whose want of lenity he said he could trust." (H. Walpole, Mar. 1773). His Life, by W. H. Craig, was pub. in 1907. "Equal to most of his competitors in elegance and perspicacity, and beyond all in choice of imagery, taste, urbanity, and graceful irony, and in nice touches of raillery and humour; his wit however poignant was always under the control of decency and good sense." When his unfortunate tutor, Dr. Dodd, was condemned to death for forgery on him, he did not (according to Horace Walpole), "discover that tender sensibility natural to and so becoming in a young mind." (^d) In his youth he was one of the most brilliant of the men of fashion, having succeeded to a large rental and large accumulations in his minority. "It makes me sad to see Bretby and the mode of life there: idleness, folly, waste, and a constant progress to ruin; a princely fortune dilapidated by sheer indolence, because the obstinate spoiled owner will neither look into his affairs nor let anybody else look into them. He lies in bed half the day, and rises to run after pleasure in whatever shape he can pursue it; abhors business, and has no sense of duty." (Greville Memoirs, 16 Sep. 1846). "A man of fair parts and good instincts, but his education had been neglected, and he had been allowed at a very early age to contract habits of dissipation and extravagance, which ultimately led to the loss of nearly half his large fortune, which, however, he endeavoured in his latter years to retrieve by judicious economy. Though rather a spoilt child, he was much liked by those he associated with." (Henry Greville's Diary, 4 June 1866). V.G.

BARONY BY WRIT.

I. 1487 to 1499. 1. SIR JOHN CHEYNE, CHEYNEY, or CHENEY, yr. s.^(d) of John C., of Shurland in the Isle of Sheppey, Kent (d. before Nov. 1487), by Eleanor (d. before Nov. 1487), da. and coh. of Sir John SHOTTISBROOKE. He was knighted 7 Aug. 1485; distinguished himself at the battle of Bosworth, 22 Aug. 1485, under Henry of Richmond (afterwards Henry VII), and again 16 June 1487, against the adherents of Lambert Simnel at Stoke. P.C. Nom. K.G. at some date before 22 Apr. 1486.^(a) Constable of Barnard's Castle 15 Mar. 1487/8. He was sum. to Parl. from 22 Sep. (1487) 3 Hen. VII^(b) to 14 Oct. (1495) 11 Hen. VII, by writs directed Johanni Cheyney, whereby he is held to have become LORD CHEYNE. He m., in or after 1479, Margaret, widow of William, LORD STOURTON, da. and coh. of Sir John CHIDIOCKE, by Katherine, da. of Sir Ralph LUMLEY. He d. s.p., 30 May 1499, and was bur. in Salisbury Cathedral, when his honours became extinct.

^(a) He was one of the eight Barons cr. in July 1887 on the occasion of the "Jubilee" of the 50 years then completed of the Queen's reign. These in their order of creation were: (1) BOWES (Earl of Strathmore [S.]); (2) MONCKTON (Viscount Galway [I.]); (3) SAINT LEVAN (St. Aubyn); (4) MAGHERAMORNE (McGarel-Hogg); (5) ARMSTRONG (Armstrong); (6) BASING (Sclater-Booth); (7) DE RAMSEY (Fellowes); and (8) CHEYLESMORE (Eaton). Baron Londesborough was also, at the same time, cr. VISCOUNT RAINCLIFFE and EARL OF LONDESBOROUGH. These 8 Barons were cr. from 1 to 9 July; and in the same month, 13 days later, another barony, ADDINGTON (Hubbard), was cr.

^(b) His elder br., Henry Enderby Eaton, b. 11 May 1841, m., 30 Apr. 1872, Inna, 1st da. of Edward (Fellowes), 1st Baron de Ramsey, but d. s.p. and v.p., 7 Apr. 1879. His widow m., 19 Sep. 1882, Henry Laurence Whateley, and was iving 1912.

^(c) He was one of the numerous peers who have been directors of public companies, for a list of whom (in 1896) see vol. v, Appendix C.

CHEYNE, CHEYNEY, or CHENEY (of Toddington)

BARONY BY WRIT.

I. SIR HENRY CHENEY, CHEYNE, or CHEYNEY, of Toddington, Beds, 2nd s. of Sir Thomas Cheney^(c) (d. 15 Dec. 1558), of Shurland in the Isle of Sheppey, K.G., Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, being 1st s. to by his 2nd wife, Anne, da. and coh. of Sir John BROUGHTON, of Toddington afsd., was knighted "by the Queen's own hand," 1563. Sheriff of Beds 1565-66; M.P. for Kent 1562-67, and for Beds Apr. to May 1572. He was sum. to Parl. from 8 May (1572) 14 Eliz. to 15 Sep. (1586) 28 Eliz.,^(d) by writs directed Henrico Cheney, and sometimes Henrico Cheyney de Toddington Ch'r, whereby he is held to have become LORD CHENEY (of Toddington). He, in Oct. 1586, was one of the Peers on the trial of Mary,

^(a) For an account of the robes given to him and others in 1489 by the King, see vol. ii, p. 545, note "b."

^(b) The writs for this Parl., which met 9 Nov., issued on 1 Sep., but the warrant for the writs to Sir John Cheyney and to Sir Thomas Burgh (see vol. ii, p. 422, note "b") did not issue till 22 Sep. 1487. Although these two writs were apparently enrolled on the Close Rolls 3 weeks before the warrant for them issued, it is clear that they were in fact added to the original list of writs after the receipt of the warrant at the Chancery, i.e., about 29 Sep. Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte, who has specially investigated these cases, writes:—"When the King ordered that certain new persons should be summoned shortly after the issue of the main set of writs, the clerks in the Chancery did not always take the trouble of making a separate record with the real date, but often contented themselves with adding the new names at the end of the list of persons originally summoned." V.G.

^(c) This Sir Thomas was nephew and h. of John, Lord Cheney (1487-99), being s. and h. of William C., Constable of Queenborough Castle, next br. to the said John. John Cheney, 1st s., by his 1st wife, of this Sir Thomas Cheney, d. s.p., being slain at Murtherd.

^(d) In Dugdale's Summons it is stated, in two fabricated lists of the men sum. to the Parls. which first met on 15 Feb. (1587) 29 Eliz., and 4 Feb. (1589) 31 Eliz., that writs were addressed "Thomæ Cheney de Todington, Chl'r." There are so many errors and fictions in that work that its authority is now totally discredited. See Introduction to vol. ii, ante. V.G.

Queen of Scots.^(a) He m., before (probably long before) 1581, Joan, 7th da. of Thomas (WENTWORTH), 1st LORD WENTWORTH, by Margaret, da. of Sir Adrian FORTESCUE. He d. s.p.m.,^(b) and was bur. 3 Sep. 1587, at Toddington, when his honours became extinct. Inq. p. m., Deptford Strand, 19 June 1589. His widow, to whom he had devised his estates, d. 16, and was bur. 17 Apr. 1614, in the Cheney Chapel at Toddington.^(c) i.e. "DARCY OF CHICHE, co. Essex," Barony (Savage), granted in reversion, 8 Oct. 1613; took effect, 1639, extinct 1728; See "RIVERS," Earldom of, cr. 1626, under the 2nd Earl.

CHICHESTER (City of)

[“The Title of Earl of Chichester (as well as that of Arundel) is frequently found given in early Charters to the Earls of Sussex, not as a title of dignity, but from their having been possessed of the castle and city of Chichester, the former of which was, however, demolished at a very early period.” (Courthope). Roger de Montgomery (the Comes Rogerus of the Domesday Survey), generally known as Earl of Shrewsbury, who was also Earl of Arundel (or Sussex), is occasionally styled Earl of Chichester; William d’Aubigny, Earl of Arundel (or Sussex) is before 1150, likewise so styled,^(d) the chief residence or stronghold of the Earl giving, in these early times, the title to the Earldom.]

EARLDOM. I. FRANCIS LEIGH, s. and h. of Sir Francis L., K.B., by Mary, da. of Thomas (EGERTON), VISCOUNT BRACKLEY, I. 1644. better known as Lord Chancellor Ellesmere, suc. his father in the estate of Newnham Regis, &c., co. Warwick. He was knighted at Newmarket, Jan. 1612/3. M.P. for Warwick, 1625-26. After his 2nd marriage his advance was rapid. He was cr. a BARONET,

(a) See note sub Henry, EARL OF DERBY [1572].

(b) His only child, Frances, m. Nicholas Crispe.

(c) She left the estate of Toddington to her great-nephew, Thomas, 4th Lord Wentworth, who, in 1625, was cr. Earl of Cleveland. His granddaughter and heir, Henrietta, suo jure Baroness Wentworth, the mistress of the ill-fated Duke of Monmouth, resided habitually at Toddington, where she was buried in 1686.

(d) See vol. i, p. 234, and p. 235, note “a.”

II. 1653 2. THOMAS (WRIOTHESLEY), EARL OF SOUTHAMPTON to and EARL OF CHICHESTER, son-in-law, and heir to the 1667. Earldom of Chichester in 1653, under the spec. rem. in its creation, having previously inherited, from his father, the Earldom of Southampton, 10 Nov. 1625. He m., 2ndly, in or shortly after 1641, Elizabeth, 1st da. and coh. of Francis (LEIGH), EARL OF CHICHESTER, by Audrey, his wife, abovenamed. He d. s.p.m.s., 16 May 1667, when all his honours became extinct. See fuller account under "SOUTHAMPTON," Earldom of, cr. 1537; extinct 1667.

(^a) This Sir John Anderson, of St. Ives, co. Hunts, d. unm. (before the grantee) 1630.

(^b) For a list of the 16 "popular" noblemen who formed this Commission, see note sub Robert, EARL OF ESSEX [1604].

(^c) For somewhat similar remainders see vol. ii, p. 515, note "b."

(^d) A tabular account of the descendants of his two daughters, the Countess of Southampton, and the Viscountess Grandison [I.], and some further particulars about him are given in R. E. Chester Waters' valuable work, The Chesters of Chicheley, p. 144, &c. Lord Clarendon describes him as "a man of a rough and tempestuous nature, . . . without judgment or temper . . . however he had some kind of power with forward and discontented men." (Hist. of the Rebellion, vol. vi, p. 391).

III. 1675.

I. CHARLES FITZROY, styled EARL OF SOUTHAMPTON (being s. and h. ap. of Barbara, suo jure DUCHESS OF CLEVELAND, COUNTESS OF SOUTHAMPTON, &c.), was, on 10 Sep. 1675, cr. BARON OF NEWBURY, co. Berks, EARL OF CHICHESTER^(a) and DUKE OF SOUTHAMPTON. By the death of his mother, 9 Oct. 1709, he became DUKE OF CLEVELAND, &c. He d. 9 Sep. 1730, aged 58.

IV. 1730

V. 1801.

I. THOMAS PELHAM, s. and h. of Thomas P., of Stanmer, Sussex, sometime a merchant at Constantinople, by Annetta, da. of Thomas BRIDGES, also of Constantinople, which last named Thomas P. was 3rd s. (but the only s. that had issue) of Henry Pelham, Clerk of the Pells, yr. br. of Thomas, 1st BARON PELHAM OF LAUGHTON, who was father of Thomas (PELHAM), 1st DUKE OF NEWCASTLE, the well-known statesman. He was b. 28 Feb. 1727/8; M.P. (Whig) for Rye, 1749-54;^(b) for Sussex, 1754-68; Commissioner of Trade, 1754-61; a Lord of the Admiralty, 1761-62; Comptroller of the Household, 1765-74; P.C. 6 Sep. 1765. On 17 Nov. 1768, by the death, s.p., of his cousin, Thomas, Duke of Newcastle, abovenamed, he became the head of his family, and suc., as such, to a BARONETCY (cr. 22 May 1611), and as BARON PELHAM OF STANMER, co. Sussex, the said Duke having been so cr. 4 May 1762, with a spec. rem. (failing his issue male) to him. Surveyor Gen. of Customs of London, 1773-1805; Chief Justice in Eyre, North of Trent, 1774-75; Keeper of the Great Wardrobe, 1775-82.^(c) On 23 June 1801, he was cr. EARL OF CHICHESTER. He m., 15 June 1754, at Mortlake, Surrey, Anne, da. and h. of Frederick Meinhart FRANKLAND, by Elizabeth (widow of Adam CARDONNEL), his 1st wife, which Frederick was 3rd s. of Sir Thomas Frankland, 2nd Bart. He d. 8 Jan. 1805, at Stanmer, and was bur. at Laughton, Sussex, in his 77th year. Will pr. Feb. 1805.^(d) His widow d. suddenly, 5 Mar. 1813, at Malling, Sussex, in her 79th year. Will pr. June 1813.

(a) The fact of an Earldom of Chichester having been previously held with an Earldom of Southampton, seems to have suggested their being again united.

(b) As a peer he supported Lord North's administration and the Coalition Govt. of 1783, and acted with the Whigs from that time till 1794, after which date he supported Pitt, on whose recommendation he obtained his Earldom. V.G.

(c) He was the last holder of this office, which was abolished by Act of Parl. in 1782. V.G.

(d) His character as given by Horace Walpole in 1751, is, "Seems very good humoured, but he is nothing but complexion." G.E.C. In 1789 his chief seats are given as Stanmer, Halland, Bishopstone, and Ifield, in Sussex. V.G.

VI. 1805. 2. THOMAS (PELHAM), EARL OF CHICHESTER, &c., 1st s. and h., b. in Spring Gardens 28 Apr., and bap. 26 May 1756, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields. Ed. at Westm. school and at Clare Hall, Cambridge, M.A., 1775; M.P.^(a) for Sussex, in several Parls., 1780 to 1801; and for Carrick-on-Shannon [I.], 1783-90; for Clogher [I.], 1795-97; and for Armagh [I.], 1797-99, being elected also for Naas [I.] 1797. Surveyor Gen. of the Ordnance, 1782-83; Chief Sec. to the Lord Lieut. of Ireland 1783-84, and again, 1795-98; P.C. [I.] 13 Sep. 1783; P.C. [G.B.] 11 Mar. 1795. Sec. of State for Ireland, 1796-97. F.R.S. 24 Apr. 1800. In June 1801, on his father's elevation to an Earldom, he was sum. to the House of Lords, in his father's Barony, as LORD PELHAM OF STANMER.^(b) Commissioner of the Board of Control for India, 1801. Sec. of State for the Home Department, 1801-03;^(c) Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, 1803-04; Capt. of the Yeomen of the Guard for a few weeks, in June 1804; Joint Postmaster Gen., 1807-23.^(d) At the Coronation, in July 1821, he was assistant Carver. Postmaster Gen., 1823-26. Pres. of the Royal Institution 1825 till his death. He m., 16 July 1801, at Lambeth Palace, Mary Henrietta Juliana, 1st da. of Francis Godolphin (OSBORNE), 5th DUKE OF LEEDS, by his 1st wife, Amelia, suo jure BARONESS CONYERS. He d. 4 July 1826, aged 70, in Stratton Str.^(e) Will pr. Oct. 1826. His widow, who was b. in Grosvenor Sq., Midx., 7 Sep. 1776, d. 21 Oct. 1862, in Grosvenor Place, Midx., aged 86.

VII. 1826. 3. HENRY THOMAS (PELHAM), EARL OF CHICHESTER, &c., 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h., b. 25 Aug. 1804, in Stratton Str., Piccadilly, Midx. Ed. at Westm. school, and at Trin. Coll. Cambridge. An officer in the Royal Horse Guards, 1824-44; Major in the Army, 1841. Ecclesiastical Commissioner, 1841 till his death; Pres. of the Roy. Agric. Soc. 1849; Chief Commissioner for Ecclesiastical estates, 1850-78; Lord Lieut. of Sussex, 1860-86. A Liberal. He m., ^(a) He was a Whig until 1794, when he (and his father) joined Pitt; after which he was a Tory for the rest of his life. V.G.

^(b) For a list of eldest sons of peers sum. to Parl. v.p. in one of their father's peerages, see vol. i, Appendix G.

^(d) On the death of his colleague, the Marquess of Salisbury, in 1823, the custom of having two Joint Postmasters Gen. (which had obtained, with few and brief intermissions, since 1691) ceased, and has not since been revived. V.G.

^(e) "As Commander of the Sussex Militia, Lieut. Col. Pelham, by the urbanity of his manners, and his strict attention to the duties and discipline of the Regiment, attracted and retained the regard of the leading families of the County." (Ann. Reg. for 1826). A highly favourable notice of him as "a man of rank, abilities, dignified mind and generous sentiments" and "of unsuspected integrity" is given in A Review of the Irish House of Commons by the Rev. John R. Scott, a Whig writer; and it is there added that "he had the honour of being supported, when Secretary, by that truly respectable body of men the Independent country gentlemen of Ireland, who so seldom think themselves justified in co-operating with administration."

18 Aug. 1828, at St. Mary's, Bryanston Sq., Marylebone, Mary, 5th da. of Robert (BRUDENELL), 6th EARL OF CARDIGAN, by Penelope Anne, da. of George John COOKE. CHICHESTER OF BELFAST AND CHICHESTER OF CARRICKFERGUS

BARONY [I.] I. ARTHUR CHICHESTER, 2nd s. of John C., of Raleigh in Pilton, co. Devon, by Gertrude, da. of Sir William COURTENAY, of Powderham, in that co., was b. May 1563, at Raleigh; matric. at Oxford (Exeter Coll.), 15 Mar. 1583, being then aged 19; was Captain of H.M.S. "The Larke" against the Armada, in 1588; had a company in the expedition to Cadiz in 1596, where he was knighted, and having previously, when young, served in Ireland, was in 1599 sent in command of troops to Carrickfergus, where he was of great assistance against the rebels, being appointed Governor thereof the same year; P.C. [I.] 19 Apr. 1603. LORD DEPUTY [I.] 1 Feb. 1604/5 to 29 Nov. 1615.^(c) On 23 Feb. 1612/3

^(b) He abstained from voting on the Home Rule Bill of 1893. V.G.

^(c) On his relinquishing this office, he received a Royal declaration stating "you may rest assured that you do leave that place with our very good grace and acceptance of your services." He appears to have been a successful Governor for above 11 years, though not sufficiently zealous in enforcing the penal laws against the Roman Catholics, to please the Court.

he was cr. BARON CHICHESTER OF BELFAST,^(a) co. Antrim [I.]. Lord High Treasurer [I.], 13 July 1616 till his death. From 2 May till Oct. 1622 he was on an Embassy to the Palatinate; P.C. [E.] 31 Dec. 1622. He m., 8 Apr. 1605, Lettice, widow of Walter VAUGHAN, of Golden Grove, co. Carmarthen, and before that of John LAGHARNE, of St. Bride's, co. Pembroke, da. of Sir John PERROT, Lord Deputy of Ireland 1584-88, by Jane (widow of Lewis POLLARD), da. of Hugh PRUST, of Devon. She d. 27 Nov. 1620, and was bur. 10 Jan. 1620/1, at Carrickfergus. Fun. Entry. He d. in London, s.p.m.s.,^(b) 19 Feb. 1624/5, aged 61, and was bur. 25 Oct. 1625, in St. Nicholas church at Carrickfergus, when his Peerage became extinct. M.I.^(c) Will dat. 29 Oct. 1621 (desiring to be bur. by his late wife at "Knockfergus"), pr. 21 May 1625. Fun. Entry.

II. 1625.

VISCOUNTCY [I.]

I. 1625.

I. SIR EDWARD CHICHESTER, next br. and h., b. about 1568. He suc. to the family estates, and, to perpetuate his brother's memory,^(d) was, on 1 Apr. 1625, cr. BARON CHICHESTER OF BELFAST AND VISCOUNT CHICHESTER OF CARRICKFERGUS, both in co. Antrim [I.], "the late King [James I] having assented." He had previously, 18 July 1616, been knighted at Theobalds. Gov. of Carrickfergus, Admiral of Loughneagh, Gov. of Culmore, and P.C. [I.] 1625. Joint Commissioner of the Treasury [I.], 1632. Took his seat in the House of Lords [I.] 14 July 1634. Was in command of a regt., 1641, on behalf of the King. He m., 1stly, 4 July 1605, Anne, da. and h. of John COPLESTONE, of Eggesford, co. Devon, by Dorothy, da. of Sir George BISTON, of Biston, co. Chester. She, who was aged 18 in Nov. 1606, d. 8 Mar. 1616, and was bur. at Eggesford. He m., 2ndly, Mary, widow of Othwell HILL, da. of (—) DENHAM, of Wortham, Devon, but by her had no issue. She d. 2 Feb. 1638/9, at Belfast, and was bur. at Carrickfergus. Fun.

^(a) He was the first Baron created, and the third person advanced to the Irish Peerage by James I. The preamble of his creation is given in Lodge, vol. i, p. 323. Sir Rory O'Donnell had, previously, been cr. (in 1603) Earl of Tyrconnel, and Sir Theobald Butler (also in 1603), Viscount Butler of Tulleophelim.

^(b) His only s., Arthur, b. 22 Sep., bap. 2 and d. v.p. 30 Oct. 1606, was bur. at Christ Church, Dublin. Fun. Entry.

^(c) This is of considerable length, and is printed in Lodge, vol. i, p. 326. The verses, at the end, begin as under:

"Within this bedd of death a Viceroy lies,
Whose fame shall ever live; virtue ne'er dies;
For he did virtue and religion nourish,
And made this province, rude, with peace to flourish."

Ent. He d. 8 July 1648, and was bur., with his 1st wife, at Eggesford. M.I.^(a) Admon. 27 Sep. 1648.

(1780), he is described as "a man who has lost the sense of moral rectitude, and has no bounds for his sensual indulgences but those which are prescribed by the terrors of the law, or the more yielding pandects of modern honour," and on p. 47 as "pursuing such conduct as, to become a bye-word for insane vices, to be the burthen of every dirty song, the theme of every scandalous chronicle." A pretended epitaph in The Abbey of Kilkhampton, by Sir Herbert Croft, 1780, p. 21, states that he "indulged the Sallies of ungoverned Licentiousness, without the Interruption of Reflection or Regret." A very unfavourable picture of him is given also in a gossipy book called The Whig Club, 1794. His success in seducing various women is detailed, and he is stated to have made considerable profits from a faro bank, and at one time to have kept a public gaming-table in Paris. He was "an agreeable and fascinating man . . . extremely fond of luxury and display." The faro bank referred to was set up at Brooks's. It is said to have ruined half the town, but to have yielded him enormous gains. He was a Whig till about 1811, when he went over to the Tories, apparently following the lead of the Prince of Wales. CLANBRASSILL

EARLDOM [I.] I. JAMES (HAMILTON), VISCOUNT CLANEBOYE [I.], s. and h. of James, 1st VISCOUNT CLANEBOYE [I.], by his 3rd wife, Jane, da. of Sir John PHILIPPS, Bart., of Picton, was I. 1647. M.P. for co. Down 1634-35; suc. his father in 1644, and with him, suffered much in the Royal cause, raising a regt. of Foot and a troop of Horse, &c. He was cr., 7 June 1647 (the privy seal being dated at Oxford as long back as 4 Mar. 1644), EARL OF CLANBRASSILL,^(a) co. Armagh [I.]. In 1649 he submitted to the Commonwealth. On 1 Mar. 1654 he was a "Compounder" to the Government for £9,435. He m. (lic. from Bp. of London, 23 Sep. 1641,^(b) to marry at Rickmansworth, Herts, he being then aged 23, and a bachelor) Anne, 1st da. of Henry (CAREY), 2nd EARL OF MONMOUTH, by Martha, da. of Lionel (CRANFIELD), EARL OF MIDDLESEX. He d. 20 June, and was bur. 29 July 1659 (with great state), at Bangor, co. Down. Will dat. 8 June 1659, pr. 15 June 1661. His widow m., in 1668, as his 1st wife, Sir Robert MAXWELL, 2nd Bart. [S. 1663], of Waringstown, co. Down, who d. s.p. 1693. She d. 15 Jan. 1688/9.

[JAMES HAMILTON, styled VISCOUNT CLANEBOYE, 1st s. and h. ap., b. 7 Sep. 1642, d. unm., 8 May 1658, v.p., and was bur. at Rickmansworth, Herts, aged 15. M.I.]

II. 1659 2. HENRY (HAMILTON), EARL OF CLANBRASSILL [1647] to and VISCOUNT CLANEBOYE [1622] in Ireland, 2nd but 1st 1675. surv. s. and h., 12 years old at his father's death;^(c) matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 7 Oct. 1663 (sic) at the age of 16,

(^a) See the preamble to this patent in Lodge, vol. iii, p. 4, note.

(^b) In Lodge, vol. iii, p. 5, it is said that the marriage articles were 12 and 13 Nov. 1635, and that the marriage took place that month.

(^c) He was in receipt of a small pension from Govt. in 1661, no doubt on account of his father's losses under the Commonwealth. V.G.

having been cr. M.A. 28 Sep. 1663 (sic).^(a) P.C. [I.] Feb. 1670/1. He m., May 1667, Alice, da. of Henry (MOORE), 1ST EARL OF DROGHEDA [I.], by Alice, da. of William (SPENCER), 2ND BARON SPENCER OF WORMLEIGHTON. He d. s.p., 12, and was bur. 15 Jan. 1675, at Christ Church, Dublin, when all his honours became extinct. Will dat. 27 Mar. 1674, devising all his real estate to his wife, pr. 1674/5.^(b) His widow m., Sep. 1677 (as his 2nd wife), John (HAMILTON), 2ND LORD BARGENY [S.], who d. 15 May 1693. She d. s.p., 25 Dec. 1677, at Roscommon House, Dublin.

III. 1756. I. JAMES HAMILTON, s. and h. of James H., of Tollymore, co. Down, by Anne, sister of Charles, EARL OF PETERBOROUGH AND MONMOUTH, da. of John (MORDAUNT), 1ST VISCOUNT MORDAUNT OF AVALON, suc. his father at an early age; M.P. for Dundalk [I.], 1715-19. He was, 13 May 1719, cr. BARON CLANEBOYE, co. Down, and VISCOUNT OF THE CITY OF LIMERICK [I.], taking his seat as such 1 July following. One of the Common Council for the province of Georgia, 1733; M.P.^(c) for Wendover 1735-41, for Tavistock 1741/2-47, and for Morpeth 1747-54. Chairman, Mar. 1741/2, of the Committee to enquire into the conduct of (the late Prime Minister) the Earl of Orford. He obtained in 1742 the reversion of the office of King's Remembrancer [I.], on the death of Lord Palmerston (who d. 10 June 1757), for his son. P.C. [I.] 14 Apr. 1746; Gov. of co. Louth, 1756 till his death. On 24 Nov. 1756 he was cr. EARL OF CLANBRASSILL, co. Armagh [I.], taking his seat as such, 11 Oct. 1757. He m., 15 Oct. 1728, at the Hague, Henrietta, da. of William (BENTINCK), 1ST EARL OF PORTLAND, by his 2nd wife, Jane, da. of Sir John TEMPLE, of Palmerston, co. Dublin. He d. 17 Mar. 1758, at St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. Will pr. 1758. His widow d. 10 June 1792, at Templeogue. Will pr. 1792.

^(a) For a list of peers on whom this degree was conferred on this day, see note sub James, EARL OF SUFFOLK [1640].

^(b) She is stated to have prevailed on her husband to make this will in spite of his pointing out to her that it would be useless, as the estates were, failing his male issue, entailed by the first lord on collaterals. She is then supposed to have poisoned her husband, and destroyed her father-in-law's will. There then ensued, for 20 years, a contest, both by armed bands and in the law courts, between the defrauded heirs and Lady Clanbrassill, or her representatives, which was only terminated by the accidental discovery in the Charter room at Killyleagh Castle, of a duly executed and valid copy of the first Earl's will. See, for a fuller account, A Sketch of My Mother, by the Marquess of Dufferin, from which these facts are drawn. V.G.

^(c) He was one of the leaders of the Whigs opposed to Walpole. His hostile motion for an enquiry into the last 20 years of Walpole's administration, with a view to his impeachment, was defeated in the House of Commons, Mar. 1742, by 2 votes, but he succeeded in carrying by 7 votes a second motion to enquire into the last 10 years. V.G.

IV. 1758 2. JAMES (HAMILTON), EARL OF CLANBRASSILL [1756], to VISCOUNT LIMERICK and BARON CLANEBOYE [1719] in 1798. Ireland, only s. and h., b. 23 Aug. 1730. Chief

Under “Carragh,” it is also stated that the river Carragh “gives to the country drained by it the name of Glencare, a corruption of Glen Carragh.”

^(b) See Creations, 1483-1646, in App., 47th Rep. D.K. Pub. Records. Camden, in his life of Elizabeth, says that she “invested him with the Earldom of Glencairn [and] his son Teig with the Barony of Valentia,” but this is contradicted by the patent. A face suitable to this description gave the finishing stroke to this disagreeable figure . . . Her two darling foibles were dress and dancing." She appears to have been a rich and silly woman who was made a butt of at Court. Her husband is mentioned in the same chapter as "a man of honour, rather serious, very severe, and a mortal enemy to ridicule." V.G.

CLANCONNELL or CLANCONNELL^(a)

EARLDOM [I.] TURLOUGH LYNACH O'NEIL, s. of Neil Conallagh O'N., by Rose, da. of Manus O'DONNELL, of Tyrconnel, I. 1578. became “the O'Neill” on the death of Shane O'Neil, 2 June 1567. On 6 July 1567,^(b) Queen Elizabeth directed him to be made a Baron, but no patent passed the seals at this time. In Jan. 1576 it was resolved to cr. him an Earl for life, and his son, a Baron.^(c) Nothing further was done till May 1578, when Letters Patent, so called, were drawn up which purported to cr. him “BARON OF CLOUGHER IN IRELAND” with a seat in the Parl. of Ireland, and rem. to the heirs male of his body. At the same date, or a few days later, other Letters Patent (so called) were prepared, which, as “Terence Lenaugh Baron of Clougher in Ireland,” purported to cr. him EARL OF CLANCONNELL in Ireland, and gave him a seat in Parl. [I.], “cappam honoris,” and a gold circle on his head, and the same rem. as to the Barony. The patent for this Earldom passed the seals 18 May 1578. Three days later a commission to the Lord Deputy, the Lord Justice, and the Lord Chancellor of Ireland is dated, which recites that the Queen had thought good to advance “Tylaugh Lenaugh” to the dignity of a Baron and also that of an Earl in Ireland, and had caused Letters Patent to that effect to be made and sealed with the Great Seal of England, but without the dates of creation. The Commissioners were ordered to invest him and to insert in the Letters Patent the names of the witnesses who should be present, and the dates of creation, taking care to date the creation of the Barony one day before the creation of the Earldom. It is quite clear that the Letters Patent (so called), which however are really charters, were duly sealed and handed to the Lord Chancellor [I.], who was then in England,^(a) and the State Papers contain a reference to the new Earl's robes and coronet.^(b) It is however equally clear that no Patents either for the Barony or Earldom were ever delivered to him. In these documents there are blanks left not only for the dates and names of witnesses, but also for the date of an agreement between the O'Neill and the Deputy; presumably the Commissioners held that the creations were contingent on the execution of the agreement, and, no agreement having been made, withheld the patents. On 4 July 1579 he petitioned to be President of Ulster, Earl of Armagh, and Baron of the Benburbe, and in July 1582 (unless the document be wrongly calendared under this date) to be Baron of Clogher and Earl of Clanconnell (the titles already granted). In the Spring of 1587 there was an idea of creating him, in accordance with his wish, Earl of Omagh (i.e. Armagh) for life, and of giving a Barony to such person as he should nominate to be his heir.^(c) One suggestion was that his son, Sir Arthur O'Neil, should be Baron of Strabane.^(d) In a petition ascribed to July 1587, he recites that it had heretofore pleased the Queen to grant him by Letters Patent the title of Earl of Clanconnell and Baron of Clogher,^(e) and desires to be cr. Earl of Omagh ["Omev"]. He was knighted as a commoner in Nov. or Dec. 1588, and is described by the Lord Deputy, on 18 June 1591, as "the dutiful old knight." CLANMALIER^(a) (or GLENMALERY)

VISCOUNTY [I.] I. TERENCE O'DEMPSEY, of Clanmalier, Queen's County, s. and h. of Dermot, the 3rd s. of Hugh O'Dempsey, of Loghire, in that co., suc. to the family estates. Sheriff of Queen's Co. 1593, and remained loyal during the serious rebellion of the Earl of Tyrone, 1598-1601. He was knighted at Kiltenan, in Munster, 22 May 1599, and was, on 22 Dec. 1631, cr. BARON OF PHILLIPSTOWN, King's Co., and VISCOUNT CLANMALIER,^(a) King's and Queen's Co. [I.]. He m., 1stly, Mary, da. of Sir Maurice FITZGERALD, of Laccagh, co. Kildare, by Margaret, da. of Edmund BUTLER, ARCHBISHOP OF CASHEL. She d. 4 Jan. 1614. He m., 2ndly, Genet, widow of Sir William WARREN, and before that of John BATHE, of Drumcondragh (Chanc. of the Exchequer [I.] 1577-1586), da. of Patrick FINGLASS, of Westpalstown, co. Dublin. She d. 4 June 1617. Fun. entry. Will pr. 1617. He m., 3rdly, Margaret, widow of John ITCHINGHAM, of Dunbrody, co. Wexford, da. of (—) WHITLY. CLANRICARDE^(a)

EARLDOM [I.] 1. ULICK BOURKE OF DE BURGH, of Clanricarde,^(a) co. Galway, s. and h. of Richard BOURKE "MacWilliam," Chief of Clanrickard (d. Apr. 1530), by Margaret, da. of Piers (BUTLER), EARL OF ORMOND AND OSSORY,^(b) suc. to the vast territory of Clanricarde, and to the headship of his Clan, as the "MacWilliam,"^(c) in 1541, on the deposition of his father's cousin, Sir Ulick Bourke. He was called by the Irish "Negan,"^(d) i.e. "the Beheader"; was Gov. of Connaught, and having surrendered in person his large estates into the hands of the King, received a re-grant thereof, with the Monastery, De Via Nova, in the diocese of Clonfert. He was cr., 1 July 1543, EARL OF CLANRICARDE,^(e) AND BARON OF DUNKELLIN [I.], under ^(a) Clanricarde (the county of the Bourkes), consists of the six Baronies of Loughrea, Dunkellin, Kiltartan (otherwise Killtaraght), Clare, Athenry, and Leitrim, co. Galway, in Connaught. For the ranking of Irish peers at various dates, see vol. i, Appendix A.

^(b) See various pedigrees compiled not later than 1575, now in Trin. Coll., Dublin. Some accounts make her da. of (—) O'Maden, but the marriage with the da. of O'Maden, by which the chiefs of Clanricarde are said to have acquired Portumna, took place in the 14th century (ex inform. G. D. Burtchaell), and the Earl was certainly allied, through his mother, to the Butlers, who supported him against his rival Ulick. V.G.

^(c) He was great-grandson of Ulick Bourke, feudal Lord of Clanricarde (1467-87), the collateral heir male of the great Earls of Ulster [I.], extinct, in the direct male line, 1333. Since that extinction "the two next male branches of the family,* took possession of the lands and, supported by the national feeling in favour of the succession of heirs male, retained the greater part of them in defiance of all the efforts of the Crown. Lionel, Duke of Clarence, who had married the heir general, was sent over as Lord Lieut. of Ireland [1361-67], for the avowed purpose of enforcing his claims; but found the feeling of the country too strong to give him any chance of success. The Crown at length had the good sense to give up the contest, and to ennoble these two branches, by conferring upon them the peerages of Clanrickard and Mayo." See Remarks upon the ancient Baronage of Ireland, 1829, p. 77, written, doubtless, by W. Lynch, author of the Feudal Baronies of Ireland. For the origin of the race of De Burgh, see an article in Her. & Gen., vol. iv, p. 337.

* According to Lodge, vol. iii, p. 414, these were (1) "Mac-William Eighth, that is the upper, nearer, or southern Mac-William," ancestor of the Earls of Clanricarde; and (2) "Mac-William Oughter, the lower, further, or northern MacWilliam," ancestor of the Earls of Mayo and of the extinct Viscounts Bourke of Mayo.

^(d) "Negan, that is a capitibus, having made a mount of the heads of men slain in battle, which he covered with earth." (Lodge, vol. i, p. 128).

^(e) On 1 May 1541 the King agreed to make him an Earl provided he came to have the dignity conferred in person, otherwise he was to have the honour of a Viscount or a Baron. (ex inform. G. D. Burtchaell). The Chiefs of the great Irish houses were raised to the highest Peerage rank in Ireland (for such at that time was, for any subject, an Earldom) by Henry VIII and some of his successors per saltum, on their abandoning their almost regal power over their clan. Such was the Earldom of Tyrone and Barony of Dungannon, conferred in 1542, respectively, on Con O'Neill and his son and heir ap.; the Earldom of Clanricarde, conferred 1 July 1543, on Ulick the designation of "Willicus Boruck, alias Makwilliam."^(a) He m., 1stly, Grace, or Grany, widow of (—) MACCOGLAN, da. of Maolrona O'CARROLL, "Prince of Ely," from whom he was separated.^(b) He m., 2ndly, Honora, sister of Sir Ulick BOURKE afsd., da. of Rickard Oge MACWILLIAM, of Clanrickard (who d. 1519), from whom also he was separated.^(b) He m., 3rdly (his 1st wife still living), Maria LYNCH.^(c) He d. (shortly after his elevation to the Earldom), 19 Oct. 1544. His widow m. Piers MARTIN, of Galway. Her s. by the Earl, John Bourke, claimed the Earldom in 1568.

II. 1544. 2. RICHARD (BOURKE, otherwise DE BURGH), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], s. and h., being only s. of the 1st marriage. He was under age 16 Sep. 1548. His legitimacy was disputed, on the ground that his mother was the wife of one (—) O'MELAGHLIN, at the time of his birth, by John, his br. by his father's 3rd wife, but was finally established.^(d) He was called by the Irish "Sassanagh," i.e. the Englishman, having in 1548, 1552, and 1553 assisted the English against the Irish rebels, and having been established by them as Chief, and not elected by the clan. On 22 June 1559, he received a confirmation of his Earldom and Barony from the Queen, and sat, as an Earl, in her 1st Parl. [I.]. He m., 1stly, in 1548, Margaret, da. of Murrrough (O'BRIEN), 1st EARL OF THOMOND [I.], by Eleanor, da. of Thomas FITZGERALD, the Knight of Glyn. He complained that she worked witchcraft against him. He also had an impediment found by an ecclesiastical Court, and divorced her.^(e) He m., 2ndly, 24 Nov. 1553, Margaret, da. of Donough (O'BRIEN), 2nd EARL OF THOMOND, by Helen, da. of Piers (BUTLER), EARL OF ORMOND AND OSSORY. She d. in 1568.^(f) He m., 3rdly, in 1568, Gille or Cecilia, widow de Burgh otherwise MacWilliam; the Earldom of Thomond (Barony of Inchiquin), and Barony of Ibrackan, conferred respectively, also 1 July 1543, on Murrrough O'Brien, and on his nephew Donough O'Brien; the Earldom of Clancare, in 1565, on the Maccarty More; and the Earldom of Tyrconnel, in 1603, on Rory O'Donnell. The Anglo-Irish, also, were by Henry VIII liberally ennobled; the family of Butler receiving the Baronies of Dunboyne and Cahir; the family of Plunket, those of Dunsany and Louth; the family of Fitzpatrick, that of Upper Ossory, the family of Bermingham that of Carbery, &c.

III. 1582. 3. ULICK (BOURKE, otherwise DE BURGH), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], s. and h., being only s. by 1st wife, sat in the Parl. [I.] of 1585, and had grant of divers lands in Connaught and in England. He steadily supported the English during Tyrone's rebellion, 1598-1601. App. Commander of the Forces in Connaught, 9 Jan. 1599/1600. He m., 25 Nov. 1564, at Athenry, co. Galway,^(b) Honora, da. of John BURKE, of Clogheroka, and Tullyra, co. Galway. He d. 20 May 1601.^(c) His widow was living in 1615, and then aged 80.

IV. 1601. 4. RICHARD (BOURKE, otherwise DE BURGH), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h.^(d) He matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 18 Dec. 1584, being then aged 12. M.A. 10 July 1598, as Baro de Dunkellyn. He greatly distinguished himself against the rebels under the Earl of Tyrone, particularly at the battle of Kingsale, where he was knighted on the field, 24 Dec. 1601, whence he was surnamed of Kingsale; was Col. of a regt. of Foot [I.]; Gov.

^(a) He also had the following concubines, with all of whom he may have gone through a form of marriage. They were all living about 1580. (1) Honora, da. of Mac I Brien Ara. (2) Sawny Oge (Burke), a gentlewoman of Clanrickard. (3) Julian Brown, a merchant's wife of Galway, whom he married and put away.

The account of the Earl's matrimonial adventures, which recall those of the poultry yard, is that given by himself (State Papers [I.], p. 213), and in "A note of the Earl of Clanrickard's wives and concubines now living" (Ibid.). These documents are undated, but the Earl's statement was written when his 2nd wife was alive, by whom "he had gotten thre sons, and by God's grace do entend to get an^or." The "Note" was written probably about 1580. Both are calendared with other papers relating to the Earl under the year 1559. Although these are of such great genealogical importance, and gave rise to political complications, the Editor of the Calendar did not think it worth while to print any of the particulars. G. D. Burtchaell, Athlone Pursuivant, writes in 1907, "The Irish chieftains seem to have repudiated and married wives just as they pleased. Illegitimacy was no bar to election to the chieftainship, and no doubt that is the reason that the Irish genealogies omit the names of wives. The first three Earls of Clanrickarde seem to have lived after the manner of their forefathers. They surrendered the lands of their clan, which were not their property, and having accepted a grant of them from the Crown, with rem. to the heirs male of their body lawfully begotten, these lands and titles had to descend according to English law." V.G.

^(b) He is wrongly said in Lodge, vol. i, p. 130, to have m. "25 Nov. 1564 [his parents having been stated to have m. 24 Nov. 1553], Margaret, da. of Richard Fitz-Allan, Earl of Arundel." No Earl of Arundel, named Richard, existed after 1397, and no such match is recorded in any of the pedigrees of FitzAlan.

^(c) By Martha Frannas he had a son (presumably illegit.), John Bourke, cr. in 1629 Viscount Bourke of Clanmories. V.G.

^(d) His elder br., Richard, d. an infant. V.G.

Army [I.] 1646-49 ; Lord Deputy Gen. [I.] 1650-52.^(a) In 1651 he was opposing Cromwell in Ireland at the head of a considerable force, and maintained an heroic resistance to him. In Oct. 1652, he left Ireland for Kent, his estate of £29,000 a year being sequestrated, and himself, by Cromwell's Act of 12 Aug. 1652, excepted from pardon. EARLDOM [I.] 6. RICHARD (BOURKE), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, VISCOUNT BOURKE OF CLANMORIES, AND BARON DUNKELLIN VI. 1657. [I.], cousin and h. male, being s. and h. of Sir William BOURKE, otherwise DE BURGH, by Joan, da. of Dermot O'SHAUGNESSY, of Gort, which William was 3rd s. of Ulick, the 3rd Earl. He took his seat in the House of Lords [I.] 1661. In that year he was in receipt of a Govt. pension of £1,500 till he should be restored to his estate. He m. Elizabeth,^(d) da. of Walter (BUTLER), EARL OF OSSORY AND ORMOND [I.], by Helen, da. of Edmund (BUTLER), VISCOUNT MOUNTGARRET [I.]. He d. s.p.m., Aug. 1666. Will dat. 17 Oct. 1664. VII. 1666. 7. WILLIAM (BOURKE), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], br. and h. male, was, in 1640, a Colonel in the Royal Service ; Lieut. of co. Galway, 1680 ; Chief Gov. thereof, 1687 ; P.C. ^(a) His difficulties in his Irish Government are well described by Clarendon (Hist. of the Rebellion, vol. viii), who pays a tribute to his generous nature. V.G.

^(b) There appears to be some uncertainty as to the date of his death, which by some is put as late as 29 Apr. 1658, while in the histories of Carte and Clarendon it is given as 1652 and Oct. 1653. A note in Lodge, vol. i, p. 136, says that "it appears that he died as in the text from several Chancery proceedings and especially from bills filed by his da. and her husband the Lord Muskerry, for the recovery of the estate." G.E.C. Lecky (vol. ii, p. 163) calls him "a man of the most stainless and sensitive honour . . . at once a sincere Roman Catholic and a devoted servant of the English Government." V.G.

^(c) The Viscountcy of Galway, &c., ought, according to the spec. rem. in its creation, to have devolved therewith, but practically became dormant. See as to his da. and h. sub "Clancarty," ante, p. 215, text and note "g."

^(d) In a petition dat. 1661, "the now Countess of Clanricarde" is stated to have been wife of John Fitzgerald, of Dromana, co. Waterford, decd. (State Papers [I.], 1660-62, pp. 240, 241). V.G.

was b. about 1617, was bur. as "the wife of Col. Burke," 25 Sep. 1655, at Bredon, co. Leicester. He m., 2ndly, Helen, widow of Sir John FITZGERALD, of Dromana, co. Waterford (who d. 1662), da. of Donough (MACCARTY), 1ST EARL OF CLANCARTY [I.], by Eleanor, sister of James (BUTLER), 1ST DUKE OF ORMONDE. He d. Oct. 1687. Will pr. 1687. VIII. 1687. 8. RICHARD (BOURKE), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], s. and h. by 1st wife.^(b) He conformed to the established Church in or before 1681. P.C. [I.] to James II, after his flight from England, 1689. He was in command of a regt. of Infantry in the Irish Army of James II in 1689. He was not present in the Parl. [I.] 7 May 1689;^(c) being Governor of Galway, he surrendered that town to Ginkel two weeks after the battle of Aughrim.^(d) He was outlawed 11 May 1691. He m., 1stly, privately, 22 Jan. 1669/70, "the Court Beauty," Elizabeth, yst. da. of (—) BAGNALL, Page of the Backstairs to James I. She was living 26 Apr. 1683.^(e) He is said to have m., 2ndly, Anne, widow of Robert

(^a) In a petition dat. 1 Feb. 1699/1700, of Katherine, Viscountess Grandison, she states that her estate is charged with the dower of "Helen, Dowager Countess of Clanricarde, relict and 2nd wife of petitioner's father, and now wife of Thomas Bourke Esq." (Hist. MSS. Com., House of Lords MSS., vol. iv, N.S., p. 78). V.G.

(^b) Charles II writes to his father, 23 June 1680, "Having out of our special grace and favour to your son, the Lord Viscount [sic] Dunkellin thought fit to put him into several commissions of trust and honour in that our Kingdom, and to order our Chancellor there to issue out our gracious writ of summons to him whereby he may take his place as Baron in our House of Peers in the next Parliament to be holden in Ireland." The King then goes on to urge the Earl to make an allowance to his son for his support, and that of his wife and children. Charles also writes to him on the same date, congratulating him on "being thoroughly instructed in the Protestant religion as it stands established" and on "having forsaken that of Rome which hath always given jealousies to the Crown," and concluding the homily as follows:—"We have therefore ordered our Chancellor of that our kingdom [Ireland] to issue out our gracious writ of summons when a Parliament is called in that our Kingdom, whereby you may sit as a Baron in our house of Peers in the right of one of the ancient Baronies belonging to your family." (Hist. MSS. Com., Ormonde Papers, N.S., vol. v, pp. 340, 341). V.G.

(^c) For a list of peers present in, and absent from, that Parl., see Appendix D to this volume.

(^d) He "inherited neither the courage nor the loyalty of his ancestor, the great Earl of St. Albans; he compounded his honour for personal security, and quitting the service of James, remained at Galway, though by the capitulation, he was at liberty to march to Limerick." See O'Connor's Military Memoirs, as quoted in Dalton's King James's Irish Army List, p. 516.

(^e) The Duchess of Ormonde writes that his "marriage has extremely troubled all his friends," further, of "the ruin that this unhappy young man has brought on himself and his family." V.G.

(RICH), EARL OF WARWICK, and before that of Richard ROGERS, of Bryanston, Dorset, da. of Sir Thomas CHEKE, of Pirgo, in Essex, by his 2nd wife, Essex, da. of Robert (RICH), 1ST EARL OF WARWICK.^(a) He was living Nov. 1702, but d. s.p.m.s.^(b)

IX. 1704? 9. JOHN (BOURKE), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], br. and h. male of the whole blood. He was b. 1642, and was Col. of a regt. of Infantry in the Army of James II. He was cr. by that King, 2 Apr. 1689 (some four months after his exclusion from the throne of England), by writ of summons,^(c) BARON BOURKE OF BOPHIN, co. Galway [I.].^(d) He fought on behalf of James II as a Col. of Foot, and being taken prisoner at the battle of Aughrim, 12 July 1691,^(e) was attainted. A bill for his restoration in 1698, was rejected.^(f) Having conformed to the Established Church in 1699, he was by Act (1 Anne) 1702, acquitted of all treasons and attainders, and restored in blood and estate.^(g) Soon after this he suc. his br. in the family honours. He m.,

^(a) He is said by Lodge to have m., 2ndly, as her 3rd husband, Anne, as in the text, but she must have been considerably his senior, and have been a widow for about 25 years when he m. her, and there is no evidence to support the statement. O'Ferrall, usually a good authority, says that he m. Bridget, da. of Theobald, 8th Viscount Dillon, by Mary, da. of Sir Henry Talbot, of Templeogue, co. Dublin, but he gives him no other wife, though it is certain that he m., 1stly, Miss Bagnall. V.G.

^(b) His s. was living 20 Feb. 1679/80, and then "of an age capable of being instructed, as well in the principles of religion as in other good learning." V.G.

^(c) It is remarkable "that the only writs of Parliamentary summons creating hereditary peerages by express words are four, viz., one in England, whereby in 1449 Henry VI cr. Henry Bromflete Lord de Vesci; and three others in Ireland, whereby James II in 1689 (after his deposition from the Kingdom of England) cr. Sir Alexander Fytton Baron Fytton of Gosworth, co. Limerick, Thomas Nugent Baron Nugent of Riverston, co. Westmeath, and John Bourke Baron Bourke of Bophin, co. Galway." (Lynch, pp. 359-360). Except for these three last cases the creation of peerages by writ of summons is unknown in Ireland. See vol. i, Appendix A. V.G.

^(d) He was one of the seven Irish Peers cr. by that monarch after such exclusion, but at a time when he was in possession of all his Royal rights, as King of Ireland; all seven of such creations being duly inscribed on the Patent Rolls [I.], from which they have never been erased. See vol. i, Appendix F.

^(e) See a list of such Peers as were so taken, ante, vol. ii, p. 102, note "a."

^(f) The reason for this rejection was that the Irish House of Commons got wind of the fact that he had had to agree to pay a bribe of £7,500 to the King's minion, the young Earl of Albemarle, who had already been loaded with enormous grants of land (see vol. i, p. 92, note "a"), and they naturally resented the "clandestine bargain." (Hist. MSS. Com., House of Lords MSS., vol. iv, N.S., p. 45). V.G.

^(g) According to his petition to the Commons, 7 May 1702, "on the surrender of Galway he was assured by the Earl of Athlone that he would be allowed to enjoy his estate and benefit by the articles of capitulation. He therefore submitted to his Majesty's Government and obtained his enlargement, and on the aforesaid expectations returned home and took the oath of allegiance." Nevertheless he had been deprived in Oct. 1684, Mary, da. of James TALBOT, of Templeogue, co. Dublin, and Mount Talbot, co. Roscommon, by Bridget, da. of Francis (BERMINGHAM), LORD ATHENRY [I.]. She d. 27 June 1711, and was bur. at Meelick Abbey, co. Galway. He d. 17 Oct. 1722, aged 82. Admon. 16 Nov. 1734 to the Hon. Thomas Bourke, the son.

X. 1722. IO. MICHAEL (BOURKE), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], s. and h. He was ed. at Eton; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 25 Nov. 1702, being then aged 16. He conformed to the established Church. On 3 Aug. 1711 he was sum. to the House of Lords [I.], v.p., in his father's Barony^(a) as BARON DUNKELLIN [I.], and took his seat 4 Oct. following. Gov. of Galway, 1712. Took his seat as an Earl [I.] 19 Oct. 1725; P.C. [I.] 15 July 1726. He m., 19 Sep. 1714, Anne,^(b) widow of Hugh PARKER, of Honington, co. Warwick, 2nd of the 2 daughters and coheirs of John SMITH,^(c) of Beaufort buildings, London, Commissioner of Excise. The Earl d. in Dublin, 29 Nov., and was bur. 1 Dec. 1726, at Christ Church there. Will pr. 1728. His widow d. in Pall Mall, Midx., 1, and was bur. 7 Jan. 1732/3, in Westm. of his estate "about 4 years ago" whereby "his wife and their nine infant children were exposed to the utmost and lowest want." He also mentions that he had "sent his two eldest sons to be educated in the Protestant Religion at Eton College." The above facts are confirmed by a report of the Irish Commissioners. V.G.

^(a) He was one of the few persons (nine in all) who were so summoned. See, ante, vol. i, p. 2, note "c."

^(b) "Lord Dunkellin is going to be married to one Mrs. Parker, a widow, she has been so but a year and a half, she has seven children and used to be a coquette with great spirit; but now I will tell you the good part, she has £800 a year, and a house and £25,000 in money, her father is very rich . . . he is called Portland Smith." ^(c) See note to his burial, 20 July 1718, and to that of his da. abovenamed, in Col. Chester's Westm. Abbey Registers. By some strange blunder his da. is generally called da. of John Smith, of Tedworth, Wilts, Speaker of the House of Commons.

^(d) His elder br. d. 28 Dec. 1719, in his 4th year, and was bur. 24 Jan. 1719/20, with his maternal grandfather, in Westm. Abbey, as "the Hon. John Burke, Esq."

Both of these, however, d. s.p.m., the former on 4 Dec. 1762, and the latter in July 1763. His name appears in the Lords' entries and on Ulster's Rolls as "Smith Burke" until 1771, and thenceforward as "John Smith de Burgh."

10 May 1753. P.C. [I.] for 8 days, being sworn 8, and removed 16 July 1761. He m., 1 July 1740, Hester Amelia, yst. da. of Sir Henry VINCENT, 6th Bart., of Stoke Dabernon, by Elizabeth, da. of Bezaliel SHERMAN, of London. He d. at Portumna Castle, co. Galway, 21 Apr. 1782, and was bur., with his ancestors, at Athenry, aged 61.^(a) Admon. 2 Aug. 1794. His widow d. 29 Dec. 1803, at Corhampton, Hants.^(b) Will pr. Jan. 1804.

1800 (the last date of creation^(a) of Irish Peers before the Union), he (having then no son), was cr. EARL OF CLANRICARDE, co. Galway [I.], with rem. of that dignity failing his issue male, to his 1st and every other da. in priority of birth, and to the heir male of the body of such da.^(b) P.C. [I.] 24 Feb. 1801. Gov. of Hull 1801-08. REP. PEER [I.] 1801-08, being one of the original 28 so elected at the time of the Union. He m., 17 Mar. 1799, at her father's house, Elizabeth, 3rd da. of Sir Thomas BURKE, 1st Bart., of Marble Hill, co. Galway, by Christian, da. of James BROWNE, of Limerick. He d. 27 July 1808, in Dublin, aged 63. Will pr. Nov. 1808. His widow d. 26 Mar. 1854, aged 90, at her residence in Dublin. Admon. May 1854.

XIV. 1808. 14, 2, and 1. ULICK JOHN (DE BURGH), EARL OF CLANRICARDE, &c. [I.], only s. and h., b. MARQUESSATE [I.] 20 Dec. 1802, at Belmont, Hants. On 26 Nov. 1825 he was cr. MARQUESS OF CLANRICARDE [I.], and, on 13 Dec. 1826, was cr. BARON SOMERHILL, of Somerhill, Kent [U.K.].^(c) Under Sec. of State for Foreign Affairs, 1826-27; Capt. of the Yeomen of the Guard, 1830-34; P.C. 1 Dec. 1830; K.P. 19 Oct. 1831;^(d) Lord Lieut. of co. Galway, 1831 till his death; AMBASSADOR to St. Petersburg, 1838-41; Postmaster Gen. 1846-52; LORD PRIVY SEAL, Feb. 1858 for about 3 weeks.^(e) He was also Vice Adm. of Connaught.

(^b) Of his two daughters, Hester, the elder, m. the Marquess of Sligo [I.], and Emily, the younger, m. the Earl of Howth [I.], her issue failing, and that Earldom becoming extinct on the death of her son, the 4th Earl, 9 Mar. 1909. The Earldom of Clanricarde (1800), if inherited by the heir male of the elder da., will then become merged in the Marquessate of Sligo.

(^c) The estate of Somerhill, in Kent, had passed out of the De Burgh family some 200 years ago. The grantee was indeed descended from the 7th Earl, who was cousin of the 5th Earl, who was Baron Somerhill [E.], but in spite of this (his ancestor's) cousinship, the selection of the title seems inappropriate. As to the choice of such titles, see note sub John, EARL of ENNISKILLEN [1803].

(^e) His appointment to this office largely contributed to the fall of the Govt. in the same year, as Lord Palmerston "had defied public opinion by taking him into the Government, after some unpleasant disclosures in the Irish Courts," in connection with the will of a Mrs. Handcock by whom Clanricarde was father of an illegitimate son. For this and other great offices of State see vol. ii, Appendix D. Edmund Yates (Recollections and Experiences) refers to him in 1847 as "A tall, thin, aristocratic man, bald and bland, wearing—novelties in my unaccustomed eyes—tight pantaloons, striped silk socks, and pumps." In an account of the House of Lords in 1857, in Gent. Mag., he is described as a very bad speaker, with "a perfectly bald and caput mortuum like head." He was at first a Canningite Tory, and owed his Marquessate to Canning's influence. Like nearly all that statesman's followers he became a Whig between 1828 and 1830. V.G.

Harriet, Countess Granville writes, 1 Oct. 1834, "Lady Clanricarde is not so much admired. Her nose is a little red, and she is grand and dry in her manner to them. The cleverness they do not get at, as none of it is spent in small talk." "Lady Clanricarde a de l'esprit, de la mesure, du bon goût, de la dignité, mais, à ce qu'il me semble, assez de sécheresse de cœur, et un peu de raideur d'esprit; ses manières, son caractère, je crois, ont une valeur réelle, sans abandon ni séduction; mais, à tout prendre, c'est assurément une personne distinguée, et de la meilleure et plus exquise compagnie." VISCOUNTCY [I.] I. JOHN MEADE, only s. and h. of Sir Richard MEADE, 3rd Bart. [I.], of Ballintobber, co. Cork, by Catherine, da. of Henry PRITTE, of Kilboy, co. Tipperary, was b. 21 Apr. 1744, suc. his father in the Baronetcy 26 May following; ed. at the Univ. of Dublin, B.A., 1762; was M.P. for Banagher, 1764-66. On 17 Nov. 1766, he was cr. BARON GILLFORD of the Manor of Gillford, co. Down, and VISCOUNT CLANWILLIAM, of co. Tipperary [I.], taking his seat as such 22 Oct. 1767. On 20 July 1776^(b) he was cr. EARL OF CLANWILLIAM [I.], taking his seat as such, 10 Nov. 1779. He m., 29 Aug. 1765, Theodosia, da. and h. of Robert HAWKINS-MAGILL, of Gill Hall, co. Down, by his 2nd wife, Anne, da. of John (BLIGH), 1st EARL OF DARNLEY [I.]. He d. 19 Oct. 1800, at St. Stephen's Green, and was bur. in Dublin, aged 56.^(c) His widow, who was b. 5 Sep. 1743, d. 2 Mar. 1817, at Brighton, in her 74th year.

^(a) He signs himself "Clanrikarde," which spelling of the name he claims to have been adopted by most of his predecessors, though in official and public documents the title appears to have been spelt as in the text. In 1886 he became a Liberal Unionist. His dealings with his tenantry have been singled out for special attack and obloquy by the leaders of the Irish Nationalists. V.G.

^(b) For the profuse creations in the Irish Peerage at this date, see Appendix H to this volume.

^(c) "Though no speaker is a voter for administration. He is for the Union. This nobleman has dissipated a noble fortune. His attachment to the LADIES and to the TURF and certain ANECDOTES respecting him are too generally known to justify the relation of them here." (Sketches of Irish political character, 1799). His Irish estates are said to have been worth £14,000 p.a. in 1799. For a list of the largest resident Irish landlords at that date, see vol. iv, Appendix C. V.G.

3 and 1. RICHARD CHARLES FRANCIS CHRISTIAN (MEADE), EARL OF CLANWILLIAM, &c. [I.], only s. and h. by 1st wife, b. at Dublin 15, and bap. 25 Aug. 1795, at St. Anne's there; ed. at Eton, 1811; entered the Diplomatic Service and was attached to the suite of Lord Castlereagh at the Congress of Vienna, in 1814, being Private Sec. to him at the Foreign Office 1817-19; Under Sec. of State for Foreign Affairs, 1822-23; Envoy to the Court of Berlin, 1823-27; G.C.H., 1826. On 28 Jan. 1828, being a Tory,^(a) he was cr. BARON CLANWILLIAM of co. Tipperary [U.K.]; D.C.L. Oxford, 11 June 1834; Capt. of Deal Castle, 1848-79. He m., 5 July 1830, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Elizabeth, 4th da. of George Augustus (HERBERT), 11th EARL OF PEMBROKE, by his 2nd wife, Catherine, da. of Simon, COUNT WORONZOW, in Russia. She, who was b. 31 Mar. 1809, d. 20 Sep. 1858, at Taynult, co. Argyll, and was bur. at Wilton, Wilts.^(b) Admon. 13 Nov. 1858, under £14,000 [E.]. He d. 7 Oct. 1879, at 32 Belgrave Sq., Midx., aged 84.^(c)

^(a) He followed Wellington when he changed his policy in favour of Cath. emancipation. V.G.

^(b) Henry Greville writes that he "never met with a more frank, open-hearted woman, one more full of sympathy" and taking "interest in many things which women in general do not care for." (ex inform. Bright Brown). V.G.

^(c) In Rush's Diary of the Court of London from 1819 to 1825, there are many notices of his early career. G.E.C. He took an active part in forming the Goderich administration. Harriet, Countess Granville, describes him in 1820 as "in love with nobody, and feeling therefore like a servant out of place or a tradesman out of employment;" and in 1829 says, "If I was asked what he was and not knowing names and relations, I should say an only son, idolized and spoiled by his doating parents and devoted sisters." Lord Ronald Gower, in his Reminiscences says he was "as handsome at 70 as when Lawrence painted him forty years before, and full of the charm of high spirits that not even old age could quench." BARONY [U.K.]

II.

4 and 2. RICHARD JAMES (MEADE), EARL OF CLANWILLIAM [I. 1776], VISCOUNT CLANWILLIAM AND BARON GILLFORD [I. 1786], also BARON CLANWILLIAM [U.K. 1828], and a Baronet [I. 1703], 1st s. and h., b. 3 Oct. 1832; entered the Royal Navy, 1845; Lieut. 1852, serving in the War with Russia on the Baltic, 1854-55; Commander, 1858; Capt., 1859; naval A.D.C. to the Queen, 1872-76;

a Lord of the Admiralty, 1874-80; Rear Adm. 1876, being severely wounded in the assault on Canton in 1877, during the Chinese war; Vice Adm. 1881, being Com. in Chief on the North American and West Indian Station, 1885-86; Adm. 1886; Com.-in-Chief at Portsmouth 1891-94; Adm. of the Fleet 1895. C.B. 2 June 1877; K.C.M.G. 3 Mar. 1882; K.C.B. 21 June 1887; G.C.B. 25 May 1895. A Conservative in politics. He m., 17 June 1867, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Elizabeth Henrietta, 1st da. of Sir Arthur Edward KENNEDY, K.C.M.G., Gov. of Queensland, by Georgina Mildred, da. of Joseph MACARTNEY, of Hollywood House, co. Down. He d. at Badgemore, Henley on Thames, of pneumonia, 4, and was bur. 8 Aug. 1907, at Wilton, aged nearly 75.^(a) M.l. St. Peter's, Eaton Sq. He was suc. by his 2nd s., who is outside the scope of this work. His widow was living 1912.

[RICHARD CHARLES MEADE, styled LORD GILLFORD, 1st s. and h. ap., b. 10 June 1868; entered the Royal Navy, 1881. He m., 5 Sep. 1895, at the chapel of Douglas Castle, co. Lanark, Mary Elizabeth Margaret, 1st da. of Charles Alexander (DOUGLAS-HOME), 12th EARL OF HOME [S.], by Maria, da. of Charles Conrad GREY, Capt. R.N. She was b. 12 Nov. 1871. He d. v.p. and s.p.m.,^(b) of consumption, at Whelprigg, Kirkby Lonsdale, 14, and was bur. 19 Oct. 1905, at Torpenhow, Aspatria, Cumberland, aged 37.]

Family Estates.—These, in 1883, consisted of 3,584 acres in co. Down, worth £4,305 a year. Principal Residence.—Gill Hall, near Dromore, co. Down.

^(a) "He affected the tight, very short jacket, which—forty years ago—was thought the sign of the true British sailor; and a certain roughness of manner, which was at times rather puzzling to his subordinates. Throughout his life, he was before everything a sailor . . . and probably valued his rank as an admiral much more than his titles as Irish earl or English baron." (Times, 5 Aug. 1907). V.G.

^(b) His next br., Arthur Vesey Meade (the present [1912] Earl), then assumed the fancy title of "Lord Dromore," which did not belong to his father nor to any one else. See vol. iv, Appendix E for some remarks on courtesy titles. V.G.

CLARE (honour of)

Observations.—In the times of the Heptarchy the border fortress of Clare (Suffolk), on the confines of the Kingdoms of East Anglia and Essex, was of the greatest importance, and continued to be so for many centuries afterwards, when it was granted by the Conqueror to Richard FitzGilbert. FitzGilbert's successors, the earlier Lords of Clare were, "it is implied in the Lords' Reports (vol. iii, p. 124) and elsewhere, styled Earls of Clare before they were Earls of Hertford, but investigation disproves this,"^(a) though doubtless, these Lords, after they obtained that Earldom, were, according to the usage of the period, frequently styled "Earls of Clare," just as the Earls of Derby were styled "Earls Ferrers," &c. On account of the great importance of these feudal Barons, the earlier Lords of Clare, so frequently considered to have been actual Peers, a short account of them is subjoined, as under.

HOLDERS OF
OF CLARE.

I. temp.

WILLIAM I.

I. RICHARD FITZGILBERT, styled (from his sessions) "DE BIENFAITE," "DE CLARE," and "DE TONBRIDGE," was s. of Gilbert, COUNT OF BRIONNE in Normandy, which Gilbert was s. and h. of Godfrey, COUNT OF BRIONNE, illegit. s. of Richard, DUKE OF NORMANDY. He was b. before 1035, was Lord of Bienfaite and Orbec in Normandy, accompanied his kinsman, William the Conqueror, into England, and was rewarded by him with no less than 176 Lordships, of which 95 were in Suffolk, attached to the Honour of Clare, which honour, with the Castle of Clare, as also the Castle of Tonbridge in Kent, he obtained, becoming thus Lord of Clare and of Tonbridge. During the King's absence he was Joint Chief Justiciar, and, as such, suppressed the revolt of 1075. He m. Rohese,^(b) da. of Walter GIFFARD, the elder, through which match his descendants became co-heirs to the lands of that family. He was living 1081, but appears to have d. about 1090, being bur. at St. Neots, co. Huntingdon. His widow was living, as such, 1113.

II. 1090?

2. GILBERT FITZRICHARD, styled also DE CLARE and DE TONBRIDGE, Lord of Clare, &c., s. of the above,

^(a) See an able article by J. Horace Round on the family of Clare, in Dict. Nat. Biog., where are several notices of the earlier members thereof; also his paper on "The Family of Clare" in Arch. Journal, Sep. 1899, and his useful chart pedigree of the descendants of Count Gilbert of Brionne in Feudal England, p. 472. That writer is of opinion that the castle mounds of Tonbridge and Clare may both be the work of Richard FitzGilbert. V.G.

suc. to the English possessions^(a) of his father. He was b. before 1066, and was founder of the Priory at Clare, 1090. By Henry I he was granted, 1107-1111, the Lordship of Cardigan.^(b) He m. Adeliz, da. of Hugh, COUNT OF CLERMONT in Beauvaisis, by Marguerite, da. of Hilduin, COUNT OF MONTDIDIER AND ROUCY.^(c) He d. 1114 or 1117. His widow m., 2ndly, (? Bouchard) DE MONTMORENCY.

III. 1117? 3. RICHARD FITZGILBERT, styled also DE CLARE, Lord of Clare, &c., s. and h.^(d) He is often supposed to have been cr. EARL OF HERTFORD by King Stephen, if not by Henry I. There appears, however, to be no ground for this belief. In 1130, he is styled on the Pipe Roll (not "Earl," either as Earl of Hertford, or Earl Richard, but simply) Ric.' fil.' Gisl', as is he also^(e) when his death is recorded. He m. Adeliz,^(f) sister of Ranulph "des Gernons,"^(g) EARL OF CHESTER. He was founder of the priory of Tonbridge. He d., being surprised and slain by the Welsh, near Abergavenny, 15 Apr. 1136, and was bur. at Gloucester. His widow was rescued from the Welsh by Miles of Gloucester.

(a) His br. Roger FitzRichard (living 1130) inherited the lands in Normandy. This Roger, who possibly was the eldest son, d. s.p.

(b) See J. H. Round's Studies in Peerage and Family History, p. 214. V.G.

(c) "Père Anselme," but see note by J. R. Planché in Journal of the Brit. Arch. Assoc., vol. xxvi, p. 150.

(d) His yr. br., Gilbert de Clare, was cr. by King Stephen (1138?) Earl of Pembroke, and was father of Richard, Earl of Pembroke, who d. s.p.m., 5 Apr. 1176.

(e) The fact that this Richard was not created an Earl is also confirmed by a MS. cartulary, where a tenant appears as holding "de Gilleberto, filio Ricardi, et de Ricardo, filio ejus, et postea, de Comite Gilleberto, filio Ricardi." Courthope has added to the account, given in Nicolas, of this Richard, that he "possessed the third penny of that county [Hertford] before or early in the reign of King Stephen." This would settle the matter, if true, but the facts appear as under: "Madox, it seems, states that Geoffrey FitzPiers, Earl of Essex (1199-1213), had a grant of the Shrievalty of Essex and Herts, with a saving of the Earl of Clare's third penny. Their Lordships make a note of this in their Report (vol. iii, p. 69), and subsequently discover that 'as Geoffrey de Mandeville received the Shrievalty from the Empress, and as he was son of Geoffrey FitzPiers, who may have been son of Peter, the Domesday Sheriff, the third penny of the Earl of Clare must be anterior to the grant by the Empress; his family must therefore have had the third penny either before, or early in, the reign of Stephen' (vol. iii, p. 125). This argument however, is based upon their Lordships having confused the Earl Geoffrey (of Essex) of 1213, with the Earl Geoffrey of 1141." (ex inform. J. Horace Round).

(f) As to this Adeliz, and as to the conjecture in Coll. Top. et Gen. (vol. i, p. 388) concerning her, see Planché's article as in note "c" above.

(g) She so describes herself in the Cartulary of Gloucester Abbey.

- IV. 1136. 4. GILBERT DE CLARE, Lord of Clare, &c., s. and h., b. before 1115, was at some date before 1142 (not improbably in 1138, when his uncle and namesake is supposed to have been cr. Earl of Pembroke),^(a) cr. EARL OF HERTFORD.^(b) He d. unm. 1152, and was bur. at Clare Priory.
- V. 1152. 5. ROGER DE CLARE, Lord of Clare, &c., br. and h. Before 1156 he was recognised as EARL OF HERTFORD. He d. 1173.
- VI. 1173. 6. RICHARD (DE CLARE), EARL OF HERTFORD, also Lord of Clare, &c., s. and h. He m. Amice, da., and in her issue h., of William (FITZROBERT), EARL OF GLOUCESTER. He d. Nov. 1217.
- VII. 1217. 7. GILBERT (DE CLARE), EARL OF HERTFORD, also Lord of Clare, &c., s. and h., who, about 1218, was in right of his maternal descent recognised as EARL OF GLOUCESTER. He d. 25 Oct. 1230, and was bur. at Tewkesbury.
- VIII. 1230. 8. RICHARD (DE CLARE), EARL OF GLOUCESTER AND HERTFORD, also Lord of Clare, &c., s. and h., b. 4 Aug. 1222, d. 15 July 1262, and was bur. at Tewkesbury.
- IX. 1262. 9. GILBERT (DE CLARE), EARL OF GLOUCESTER AND HERTFORD, also Lord of Clare, &c., s. and h., b. 2 Sep. 1243. He m., as his 2nd wife, 30 Apr. 1290, Joan (of Acre), 3rd da. of EDWARD I. He d. 7 Dec. 1295, and was bur. at Tewkesbury. His widow was bur. 1307, in the Friary Church at Clare.
- X. 1295. 10. GILBERT (DE CLARE), Lord of Clare, &c., s. and h. by 2nd wife, b. 1291, who, in 1307, on the death of his mother (whose 2nd husband had been sum. as Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, 1299 to 1306), became EARL OF GLOUCESTER AND HERTFORD. He d. s.p.s., being slain at Bannockburn, 24 June 1314.^(c)

XI. 1314. II. ELIZABETH DE BURGH, suo jure, Lady of Clare, &c., 3rd sister and coh., inherited the Lordship of Clare, &c., as her portion of the vast estates of her brother. She was b. about 1292, and stated to be aged 20 in her brother's Inq. p. m., Sep. (1314) 8 Edw. II. At an early age she m. John DE BURGH, s. and h. ap. of Richard, EARL OF ULSTER [I.], which John d. v.p. 18 June 1313. She m., 2ndly, as 2nd wife, 3 Feb. 1315/6, at Bristol, Theobald DE VERDON [LORD VERDON]. He d. s.p.m., at Alton Castle, 27 July, and was bur. 13 Oct. 1316, at Croxden Abbey. She m., 3rdly, Roger D'AMORIE [LORD D'AMORIE], who was Lord of Armoy in co. Antrim [I.]. He was attainted in 1321/2, and d. the same year, being bur. at Ware Priory, Herts. His Irish estates were restored to his widow. She was the Foundress of "Clare Hall," Cambridge, to which, in 1359, she gave a code of statutes. She d. 4 Nov. 1360. Will, in which she directs her burial to be at the Sisters Minorities, Aldgate, London, dat. at Clare, 25 Sep. 1355, pr. 3 Dec. 1360.^(a)

XII. 1360. 12. ELIZABETH, suo jure COUNTESS OF ULSTER [I.], Lady of Clare, &c., granddaughter and h., being only da. and h. of William (DE BURGH), EARL OF ULSTER [I.], s. and h. ap. of the abovenamed Elizabeth, Lady of Clare (by her 1st husband), which William (though heir to his father and grandfather abovenamed) d. v.m., 6 June 1333. She, who was b. 6 July 1332, m., 9 Sep. 1342, when aged 10, LIONEL,^(b) 3rd s. of EDWARD III, who in her right became EARL OF ULSTER [I.], and who, after her succession to the honour of Clare, was, 13 Nov. 1362, cr. DUKE OF CLARENCE. She d. 1363. He d. s.p.m., 17 Oct. 1368. Both were bur. at Clare Priory. See fuller particulars (below) under "CLARENCE," Dukedom of, cr. 1362; extinct 1368.

XIII. 1368. 13. PHILIPPE, suo jure COUNTESS OF ULSTER [I.], Lady of Clare, only da. and h., who on the death of her father, Lionel, Duke of Clarence (the life tenant) inherited those dignities. She was b. 16 Aug. 1355, and m., in 1368, Edmund (DE MORTIMER), EARL OF MARCH, who d. 27 Dec. 1381. She d. 5 Jan. 1381/2. Both were bur. at Cork. M.I.

CLARE [England]

BARONY BY WRIT.

I. 1309

1. RICHARD DE CLARE, br. and h. of Gilbert de C.,^(b) was s. of Thomas de C., Lord of Thomond in Connaught,^(c) by Julian,^(d) da. of Sir Maurice FITZMAURICE, Lord Justice of Ireland. He had livery of his brother Gilbert's lands 30 Jan. 1307/8. He was sum. to Parl. 26 Oct. (1309) 3 Edw. II, but never afterwards,

^(a) The Castle of Clare was granted by Edward IV to Sir John Cheke; was resumed by Queen Mary, but subsequently was again alienated, and before 1655, was in the possession of the family of Barnardiston.

^(b) This Gilbert was b. at Limerick and bap. there, 3 Feb. 1280/1. He had livery of his father's lands 14 Apr. 1300 and pr. his age 22 Sep. 1302. In the Inq. his mother is called Julian, as she is also on 24 Sep. 1300, when she was dead. He m. Isabel. He d. s.p. in 1307, before 16 Nov., when his writ of diem cl. ext. is dated. His widow was living 20 Apr. 1322. V.G.

He was one of the Gentlemen Pensioners; M.P. for Notts, 1604-11 and 1614; Comptroller of the Household to the Prince of Wales, 1610-12. On 9 July 1616, he was cr.^(e) BARON HOUGHTON [HAUGHTON], OF HOUGHTON, co. Nottingham, and on 2 Nov. 1624, EARL OF CLARE,^(f) co. Suffolk. He m., 23 May 1591, at Shelford, Notts, Anne, da. of

(a) As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title see Appendix A in the last vol.

(b) On 8 Aug. 1318 the lands in Ireland late of Richard de Clare were committed to Maurice de Rocheford. (Fine Roll). V.G.

(c) His coheirs were the sisters of the Baron, viz. (1) Margaret, then wife of Bartholomew de Badlesmere, and (2) Maud, then wife of Robert de Welle [2nd Lord Welle], but who had previously m. Robert de Clifford [1st Lord Clifford (1299-1314)].

(d) This Denzill was s. and h. ap. of Sir William Holles, of Haughton afsd., who was 2nd s. of Sir William H., Lord Mayor of London 1539-40. V.G.

(e) Both peerages were obtained by the influence of the Duke of Buckingham, the then Court favourite, to whom he paid £10,000 for the Barony, and £5,000 in addition for the Earldom, the last being probably above the average price as having been hitherto a Royal dignity; see infra, note "f." The preambles to both these patents are in Collins' Noble Families, 1752, pp. 87-89. G.E.C. "Sir John Roper [Lord Teynham] and Sir John Holles lorded at £10,000 apiece, July 1616." (Journal of Sir Roger Wilbraham). V.G.

(f) Only six years before the title of Clare had been refused to the Lord Rich (who thereupon selected that of Warwick), "because the title of Clare, which is the same as that of Clarence, was a higher honour than could well suit with a family in a manner upstart." See Camden's Annals of James I. In Collins' Noble Families, p. 89, the following remarks on this creation are made by Gervase Holles, the antiquary. "It was not a little wondered at that he could obtain this title of Earl of Clare, for the Lord Rich (when he was cr. Earl) did very much desire this title, and the King's Council, after several debates about it, concluded that since the time that the first Earls of

His will, dat. 31 May 1599, having been made nearly 39 years previously, admon. was granted, pendente lite, 6 Feb. 1637/8 to the widow. II. 1637. 2. JOHN (HOLLES), EARL OF CLARE, Esq., s. and h., b. at Haughton afsd., 13 June 1595; M.P. (in 3 Parls.) for East Retford (having also been elected for St. Michael's), Feb. 1623/4 to June 1626; styled LORD HOUGHTON after 2 Nov. 1624; knighted at Greenwich, 2 June 1625; Lord Lieut. of Notts (on the nom. of Parl.), 1642, but took some part in trying to reconcile Parl. with the King, and in 1643 went over to his side.^(b) App. Warden of Sherwood Forest Mar. 1645/6. He m., 4 Sep. 1626, at St. Bartholomew-the-Great, London (as "Lord John Houghton"), Elizabeth, 1st da. and coh. of Horatio (VERE), BARON VERE OF TILBURY, by Mary, da. of Sir (John or) William TRACY. He d. at Haughton afsd., 2, and was bur. 23 Jan. 1665/6, at St. Mary's, Nottingham, aged 70. Will dat. 12 Aug. 1659, pr. 30 May 1666. His widow, who was b. in the Netherlands, 1623, d. Dec. 1683, and was bur. 11 Jan. 1683/4, at St. Mary's afsd.

Clare determined [1313], the honours of Clare had ever been conferred on a Prince of the Blood Royal, CLARE and CLARENCE being one and the same title,* and therefore not to be allowed to a meaner subject. But the power that procured the dignity prevailed for the title, which [power] was the Duke of Buckingham." Again, the newly created Earl writes thus to the Bishop of Lincoln: "My patent is now past for the Earldom of Clare, the title wherein my Lord of Warwick was so emboged, but what is it that a powerful favourite cannot do?" It appears, also, that the grantee had no connection whatever with the estate of Clare or with any of the former owners of the title, so that its adoption was a mere piece of swagger to give lustre to a hitherto not very illustrious race. G.E.C.

* Nevertheless no instance has ever been found of a Duke of Clarence being called Clare or of a Lord Clare being called Clarence. V.G.

^(a) He appears never to have enjoyed the favour of Charles I. "Some have been of opinion that had he lived to these unhappy times he would have sided with those that persecuted the King, but I am most confident of the contrary." See Gervase Holles in Collins' Noble Families, p. 93, who gives a full account of his appearance and his endowments, adding that Sir John Brooke (afterwards Lord Cobham) said of him: "I have travailed the best partes of Christendome, and have conversed with the most noble persons in those places where I came, yet, in all my life, I never met with so exactly accomplished a gentleman as my Lord of Clare." Denzill Holles, his 2nd s., was, in 1661, cr. Baron Holles of Ifield.

^(b) According to Lord Clarendon "he was a man of honour and of courage, and would have been an excellent person if his heart had not been too much set upon keeping and improving his estate." He favoured the Restoration, but appears never to have taken any very active part in politics.

III. 1666. 3. GILBERT (HOLLES), EARL OF CLARE, ᵉc., 2nd^(a) but only surv. s. and h., b. 24 Apr., and bap. 18 May 1633, at Hackney, Midx.; travelled abroad 1645-60. M.P. for Notts (as Lord Houghton), 1660. He m., 9 July 1655, at St. Giles's-in-the-Fields, Grace, 4th da. of the Hon. William PIERREPONT (2nd s. of Robert, 1st EARL OF KINGSTON-UPON-HULL), by Elizabeth, da. of Sir Thomas HARRIS, of Tong Castle, Salop. He d. at Warwick House, Holborn, Midx., 16 Jan. 1688/9, and was bur. at St. James's Chapel, Haughton, Notts, aged 55.^(b) Will dat. June 1686 to 28 May 1687, pr. 1 Aug. 1691. His widow d. late in July 1702.

IV. 1689. 4. JOHN (HOLLES), EARL OF CLARE [1624] and MARQUESSATE. BARON HOUGHTON [1616], 1st s. and h., b. 9, and bap. 16 Jan. 1661/2, at Edwinstow, Notts; M.P. (Whig) for Notts, 1688/9; Gent. of the Bedchamber, 1689-91; Lord Lieut. of Midx., 1689-92; and again 1711. At the Coronation, 11 Apr. 1689, he carried the Queen's sceptre, with the cross. Having by the death of his wife's father, s.p.m.s. (26 July 1691), come into the greater part of the Cavendish estates (subject to a mortgage of £80,000, which he paid), he applied to the King for a Dukedom,^(c) and to be made a Knight of the Garter, but, being refused, gave up his appointments. In Jan. 1693/4, however, he inherited the estates of his kinsman, Denzill (Holles), Baron Holles of Ifield, and, his fortune being now one of the largest in the Kingdom, he was, on 14 May 1694, cr. MARQUESS OF CLARE AND DUKE OF NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE.^(d) He

^(b) He was a Whig, but like his father, took little part in politics, save in opposing all measures for the relief of the Rom. Catholics during the reigns of Charles II and James II. He protested against the reversal of the attainder of Viscount Stafford, who had been judicially murdered on a charge of being concerned in the pretended Popish plot. V.G.

^(c) He wrote to William III, 18 Apr. 1691, asking, on behalf of his father-in-law, the Duke of Newcastle, for a Dukedom for himself, and asserting that the King had promised him one. The King being annoyed at this, he wrote to apologise for having made the request, 31 Oct. 1691. (Hist. MSS. Com., 13th Rep., part ii, pp. 165, 166). V.G.

^(d) "1694, April 26. A warrant lyes ready to passe for creating the Lord Shrewsbury, a Duke; the Lord Carmarthen, Duke of Pontefract; Lord Bedford, Duke of Bedford; Lord Devonshire, Duke of Newcastle; Lord Clare, Duke of Clarence," ᵉc. (Luttrell's Diary). This wholesale creation of Dukes took place accordingly, the titles selected being [1] Shrewsbury, by the Earl of Shrewsbury; [2] Leeds (not Pontefract), by the Marquess of Carmarthen; [3] Bedford, by the Earl of Bedford; [4] Devonshire (not Newcastle, the title of a Dukedom but 3 years previously extinct in the Cavendish family, the new grantee being heir male of the last Duke), by the Earl of Devonshire; and [5] Newcastle (not Clarence), by the Earl of Clare, whose wife was da. and coh. of the last Duke of Newcastle. It is worthy of note that, in the short space of six years, William III created no less than nine Dukes, viz.:

entertained the King at Welbeck, Notts,^(a) for 5 days in Oct. 1695, at a cost of £5,042. Lord Lieut. of Notts 1694, of the East Riding, co. York, Aug. 1699, and of the North Riding, 1705 till his death; Commissioner of Greenwich Hospital 1695-1711. Nom. K.G. 30 May, and inst. 7 July 1698; Keeper of Sherwood Forest, 1699-1711; High Steward of Dorchester Jan. 1700/1; P.C. 29 Mar. 1705; LORD PRIVY SEAL, 29 Mar. 1705 till his death.^(b) Ch. Justice in Eyre, North of Trent, Sep. 1710 to July 1711. He m., 1 Mar. 1689/90, his 1st cousin, Margaret, 3rd da. and coh. of Henry (CAVENDISH), 2nd DUKE OF NEWCASTLE, by Frances, da. of the Hon. William PIERREPONT abovenamed. He d. s.p.m. legit. (two days after a fall from his horse when stag-hunting), aged 49, at Welbeck, 15 July, and was bur. 9 Aug. 1711, in Westm. Abbey, under a sumptuous monument, when all his honours became extinct.^(c) Will dat. 29 Aug. 1707 (directing his burial to be near his great-grandfather, the Lord Vere of Tilbury), pr. 6 July 1715.^(d) His estates were valued at about £40,000 a year.^(e) His widow, who was b. 22 Oct. 1661, d. in London,

[1] Cumberland (Prince George of Denmark); [2] Bolton (Powlett, Marquess of Winchester); [3] Schomberg (Schomberg); [4] Gloucester (Prince William); [5] Shrewsbury (Talbot); [6] Leeds (Osborne); [7] Bedford (Russell); [8] Devonshire (Cavendish); and [9] Newcastle (Holles).

^(a) He appears to have chiefly resided there, leaving his paternal mansion at Haughton to become ruinous. His nephew, and successor as to the Holles estates (Thomas, Duke of Newcastle), enlarged Clumber (which, previously, was "but a Lodge") and made it the family house. See an account of "Haughton" in The Topographer, 1789, vol. i, pp. 142-154.

^(b) He was succeeded by Bishop Robinson of Bristol, a late instance of an ecclesiastic appointed to such an office. For this and other great offices of State, see vol. ii, Appendix D. V.G.

^(c) In 1706 he wrote to Harley, thanking him warmly for arranging that the Electoral Prince should be Duke of Cambridge, not of Clarence, which would trench on his earldom of Clare. He says his family had always insisted on this, and had prevented Monk being made Duke of Clarence, though they might have had a Marquessate for consenting. (Hist. MSS. Com., 13th Rep., part ii, p. 198). V.G.

^(d) To him, as "Lord Houghton," Dryden dedicated his Spanish Fryar or the Double Discovery. According to Luttrell's Diary, 18 Mar. 1686/7, he fought a duel with "the Lord Wharton's eldest son." He d. "leaving behind him the character of a stingy, close man, and of a great Whig." (Hearne). In "Macky's and Burnet's characters," with Dean Swift's remarks thereon in italics, it is said of him that "he is a black, ruddy complexioned man, near 60 years old. He hath the best estate in England, and employs most of his time in improving it; is very covetous, yet makes a great figure in Yorkshire, is firm for the constitution of his country, and hath only one daughter, who will be the richest heiress in Europe, now Countess of Oxford, cheated by her Father." See, as to this, the note following. G.E.C. and V.G.

^(e) The estates of the Cavendish family, with lands of about £5,000 a year in Staffordshire, Yorkshire, and Northumberland, he devised to his only da., Henrietta, who, as heir-at-law, had lands worth £100,000, purchased since his will, besides £20,000, her portion under his marriage settlement. She m. Edward (Harley), 2nd Earl in her 65th year, 24 Dec. 1716, and was bur. with her ancestors 5 Jan. 1716/7, at Bolsover, co. Derby. Will dat. 16 Oct. 1715, pr. 6 June 1717.^(*)

THOMAS (PELHAM-HOLLES), BARON PELHAM OF LAUGHTON, s. and h. of Thomas, 1st BARON PELHAM OF LAUGHTON [so cr. 1706], by his 2nd wife, Grace, sister of John (HOLLES), DUKE OF NEWCASTLE, MARQUESS OF CLARE, EARL OF CLARE, and BARON HOUGHTON abovenamed, b. 1 July 1693, suc. to his father's peerage in 1712, about which time, having inherited the estates of the family of Holles on the death (1711) of his uncle, the Duke of Newcastle abovenamed, he assumed the additional name of Holles. On 19 Oct. 1714, he was cr. VISCOUNT HAUGHTON, co. Nottingham, and EARL OF CLARE,^(b) with rem., failing his issue male, to his br. Henry Pelham in tail male; on 11 Aug. 1715 he was cr. MARQUESS OF CLARE and DUKE OF NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE, with a like spec. rem. On 17 Nov. 1756 he was cr. DUKE OF NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYNE, with rem., failing his issue male, to Henry (Clinton), Earl of Lincoln, husband of Catherine, 1st da. and coh. of his said br., Henry Pelham. Finally, on 4 May 1762, he was cr. BARON PELHAM OF STANMER, Sussex, with rem., failing his issue male, to his kinsman Thomas Pelham. He d. s.p., 17 Nov. 1768, when all his honours, save these two last creations became extinct, the Dukedom of Newcastle (1756) devolving on the family of Clinton (Earls of Lincoln), and the Barony of Pelham (1762) on the family of Pelham. CLARE [Ireland]

VISCOUNTCY [I.]

I. 1662.

1. DANIEL O'BRIEN, of Moyarta and Carrigaholt, co. Clare, 3rd and yst. s. of Connor (O'BRIEN), 2nd EARL OF THOMOND [I.], by his 2nd wife, Ownye, da. of Turlogh MAC-I-BRIEN-ARA, was Capt. of a regt. in the time of Queen Elizabeth, was knighted at Leixlip, 1 July 1604; M.P. for co. Clare 1613-14/5, and 1634-35. He took part in the confederation of Kilkenny. He did great service to the King during the of Oxford, whose da. and h. m. William (Bentinck), 2nd Duke of Portland, conveying Welbeck Abbey and the other estates to the family of Bentinck. The estates of the Holles family were devised by the Duke, in 1707, to his nephew, Thomas Pelham, cr. Earl of Clare, &c., and finally Duke of Newcastle.

(*) Leaving "the bulk of her estate, about £8,000 p.a., to her niece, the Lady Frances Spencer, daughter to the Earl of Sunderland, but in spite of her will the estates passed to her daughter." V.G.

rebellion of 1641. At the age of 80 or upwards, he was cr.,^(a) 11 July 1662, BARON MOYARTA AND VISCOUNT CLARE [or O'BRIEN OF CLARE], co. Clare [I.]. His estates, to the extent of 84,339 acres, chiefly in co. Clare (which had been confiscated), were restored to him without reprisals. He m., shortly after 1600, Catherine, widow of Maurice (ROCHE), VISCOUNT ROCHE OF FERMOY [I.], da. of Gerald FitzJames (FITZGERALD), EARL OF DESMOND [I.], by his 2nd wife, Eleanor, da. of Edmund (BUTLER), BARON DUNBOYNE [I.]. She was living 1615. He was living June 1663, and d. about 1666.

II. 1666? 2. CONNOR (O'BRIEN), VISCOUNT CLARE, &c. [I.], 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h., b. about 1605. He m. Honora, da. of Daniel O'BRIEN, of Duagh, by Ellen, da. of Edmund FITZGERALD, the Knight of Glyn. He d. about 1670. His widow was living 1701.

III. 1670? 3. DANIEL (O'BRIEN), VISCOUNT CLARE, &c. [I.], to s. and h., was in attendance on Charles II during his 1691. exile, and through his influence the peerage for his grandfather was obtained. In Jan. 1675/6 he was at the Hague in the service of the Prince of Orange. He was, like his grandfather, devoted to the Royal cause, and sat in the Parl. [I.] 7 May 1689.^(b) He raised, for James II, in Ireland, in 1689, two regts. of Infantry, and one of Dragoons, which was considered "the flower of James's army," but was, on 26 July 1689, "cut almost to pieces" near Lisnaskea;^(c) P.C. [I.] 1689; Gov. of co. Clare. He fought at the battle of the Boyne, 1 July 1690. He m. Philadelphia, sister of Thomas, 1st EARL OF SUSSEX, da. of Francis (LENNARD), LORD DACRE, by Elizabeth, da. of Paul (BAYNING), 1st VISCOUNT BAYNING OF SUDBURY. He was outlawed 11 May 1691, whereby his estates^(d) and the title became forfeited. He appears to have d. that same year. His widow, who was hap. 29 Jan. 1643/4, at Hurstmonceaux, Sussex, was living 1699.^(e)

^(a) The preamble to the patent is in Lodge, vol. ii, p. 32, note. "This promotion was caused by the interest felt by the King in the younger Daniel the grandson [and successor] of the new Peer, who had not staid at home, but ventured life and fortune in foreign service for the sake of his exiled Sovereign." (O'Donoghue's The O'Briens, 1860, p. 320).

For a list of, and some remarks on, these shameful grants, see vol. i, p. 92, note "a."

^(e) In this year she figures as "Philadelphia, Viscountess Dowager of Clare" in a list furnished to the Lords of persons outlawed for treason in Ireland [i.e. adherence to James II].

IV. 1691. 4. DANIEL O'BRIEN, who but for the attainder, was VISCOUNT CLARE, &c. [I.], and who was so styled, s. and h., was a page to the French King in 1680/1. He was v.p. in command of a regt., which, on 7 Apr. 1690, he conveyed to France, where James II formed it into a portion of "the old (Mountcashel's) brigade." At the head of this he was mortally wounded at the victory of Marsaglia (gained by the French under Catinat over the Imperialists under Prince Eugene), 4 Oct. 1693, and d. unm. shortly afterwards at Pignerol.

V. 1693. 5. CHARLES O'BRIEN, who, but for the attainder, was VISCOUNT CLARE, &c. [I.], and who was so styled, br. and h. He and his wife^(a) accompanied the Queen Consort, Dec. 1688, in her flight from London to France. He was outlawed before 1699. He was in command of a French Brigade regt., styled the Queen's dismounted Dragoons, at the head of which he greatly distinguished himself at the battle of Marsaglia (1693), in Spain (1695), in Italy (1696), at both the battles of Blenheim (1703 and 1704), and finally (1706) at Ramillies, where he was mortally wounded. He m., 9 Jan. 1696/7, at St. Germain-en-Laye,^(b) CHARLOTTE, 1st da. of the Hon. Henry BULKELEY, Master of the Household to Charles II and James II (4th s. of Thomas, 1st VISCOUNT BULKELEY OF CASHEL [I.]), by Sophia, da. and coh. of the Hon. Walter STUART, 3rd s. of Walter (STUART), 1st LORD BLANTYRE [S.]. He d. 23 May 1706 of his wounds, at Brussels, and was bur. in the Irish Monastery there. His widow m., 19 July 1712, at St. Germain-en-Laye, as his 2nd wife, Daniel MAHONEY, an Irishman, who distinguished himself at the siege of Cremona in the service of Philip V, and became Lieut. Gen., a Count, and Viceroy of Sicily. He d. 29 Oct. 1753.^(c) The date of her death does not appear to be certainly known.^(d)

VI. 1706. 6. CHARLES O'BRIEN, who, but for the attainder, was VISCOUNT CLARE, &c. [I.], and (after 20 Apr. 1741)

(^a) It is presumed that they are the "Lord and Lady O'Brien Clare" referred to by Miss Strickland in her life of Mary of Modena, p. 270.

Earldom of [I.], cr. (with a spec. rem.) 1776; the Viscounty of Clare (contrariwise) becoming extinct (on the death of the grantee) in 1788.

EARLDOM [I.] 1. JOHN FITZGIBBON, 2nd, but 1st surv. s. of John FITZG., of Mount Shannon, co. Limerick,^(a) by Eleanor, da. of John GROVE, of Ballyhimoock, co. Cork, was b. 1748, entered Dublin Univ. (as a Fellow Commoner) 1763, obtaining nearly all the honours open to him; B.A. 1767, LL.D. honoris causâ 1779; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.), 7 June 1769, being then aged 21; was incorporated B.A. 2 Mar. 1770, M.A. 9 May 1770; called at King's Inns 1772; M.P.^(b) for Dublin Univ. 1778-83, and for Kilmallock 1783-89. P.C. [I.] 20 Dec. 1783, [U.K.] 1 Oct. 1790. Having greatly distinguished himself at the Bar, he was in Nov. 1783, made Attorney Gen. [I.], and in June 1789 promoted to be LORD CHANCELLOR [I.], an office he held till his death. On 6 July 1789, he was cr. BARON FITZGIBBON OF LOWER CONNELLO, co. Limerick [I.], on 6 Dec. 1793, cr. VISCOUNT FITZGIBBON OF LIMERICK, co. Limerick [I.], on 12 June 1795, EARL OF CLARE [I.], and, finally, 24 Sep. 1799,^(c) BARON FITZGIBBON OF SIDBURY, co. Devon [G.B.]. Vice Chancellor of Dublin Univ., 22 June 1791 till his death. He m. (spec. lic. in Dublin), 1 July 1786, at St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, Anne, 1st da. of Richard Chapel WHALEY, of Whaley Abbey, co. Wicklow, by Anne, da. of the Rev. Bernard WARD. He d. in Ely Place, Dublin, 28, and was bur. 31 Jan. 1802, at St. Peter's there, aged 53.^(d) Will pr. 1802. His widow d. 13 Jan. 1844, in Belgrave Sq., Midx. Will pr. Feb. 1844.

^(a) He was a barrister of some repute in Dublin, and M.P. in the Irish Parliament for Newcastle 1761-68, and for Jamestown 1768-76.

^(b) Sir John Blaquiere writes of him then, "A lawyer of great eminence—generally in opposition, and yet will ask great favours at a most critical time." V.G.

^(c) His peerage [G.B.] was given him for his services in forwarding the Union, but Lord Cornwallis privately recommended that he should not be kept waiting till "the day of general remuneration" should arrive. For a list of creations in the Irish Peerage at the time of the Union, see Appendix D to this volume. V.G.

^(d) His sombre and splendid oration in favour of the Union delivered in the Irish House of Lords in Feb. 1800 can still be read with interest, and a great deal of it is as true now as when the words were uttered. He expresses his desire to advance Ireland from her degraded post of a mercenary province to the proud station of an integral and governing member of the greatest empire in the world. He naturally incurred the bitter hatred of its opposers. Such a one was Sir Jonah Barrington, whose character of him, in his Rise and Fall of the Irish Nation, is a piece of eloquent vituperation. He considers, indeed, that the Union "effected his total overthrow," inasmuch as "his importance had expired with the Irish Parl."—"during the twenty momentous and eventful years, the life of Lord Clare is, in fact, the history of Ireland—as in romance, some puissant and doughty chieftain appears prominent in every feat of chivalry—the champion in every strife—the hero of every encounter—and, after a life of toil and battle, falls, surrounded by a host of foes, a victim to his own ambition and temerity."

II. 1802. 2. JOHN (FITZGIBBON), EARL OF CLARE, &c. [I.], also BARON FITZGIBBON OF SIDBURY [G.B.], 1st s. and Sir Egerton Brydges (in his Biographical Peerage, 1808), on the other hand thus writes of him. "He was a man of a vigorous and bold mind; of superior talents and undaunted loyalty, who stemmed the torrent of rebellion in Ireland, unawed by threats and unbroken by the dreadful difficulties of the crisis." "His voice tho' clear and distinct is neither commanding nor melodious for it has a shrillness of tone . . . Altho' possessed of great private fortune not less than £7,000 a year, and acquiring by his profession nearly as much more, he is yet the uniform supporter of every measure of every administration. He has undoubtedly understanding enough to see what is right, and we should hope integrity enough to pursue it. The fact is inexplicable." (A Review of the Irish H. of Commons, 1789, by the Rev. John Scott). He is stated to have been "of humble origin, his father's father having been a very small farmer who worked his land himself." He was "the most vehement opposer of the Catholic pretensions to share in the privileges of the Constitution . . . Like Thurlow he was in early life a man of dissipation . . . like Thurlow he is pompous and dictatorial in his manner . . . like Thurlow he professes no great veneration for the people or their rights." (Sketches of Irish political character, 1799). In the Life of Curran, by his son, he is described as "of slender figure, not very robust health, and rather delicate features; he had the haughty air, the imperious glance, and the despotic will of a Roman Emperor." "He was arrogant and domineering; he delighted in insulting language and in despotic measures, and he had a supreme contempt for the majority of his fellow countrymen, but he was wholly free from the taint of personal cruelty, and he was too brave and too strong to be blinded or swayed by the passions of the hour." (History of England in the 18th cent., by Lecky, vol. viii, p. 185). "In private life I can affirm that he was a generous and indulgent landlord, a kind master and an attached friend." (Essays by an Octogenarian, 1851, vol. ii, pp. 114, 115). V.G.

CLARENCE

DUKEDOM. LIONEL,^(b) styled "of Antwerp," 3rd, but 2nd surv. s. of Edward III, by Philippe, da. of William, COUNT OF HOLLAND AND HAINAULT, was b. 29 Nov. 1338, at Antwerp, and having (in his 4th year) m., 9 Sep. 1342, at the Tower of London, Elizabeth, only da. and h. of William (DE BURGH), 3rd EARL OF ULSTER [I.], by Maud, da. of Henry,^(c) EARL OF LANCASTER, consummated the said marriage, when aged 14, in 1352. By this match, he became, in her right, EARL OF ULSTER [I.], being recognised as such previous to 26 Jan. 1347, and acquired not only the right to the vast estates in Ireland^(c) of the de Burgh family, but the possession of a large part (including the honour of Clare) of the estates of the great family of De Clare (Earls of Gloucester and Hertford) in right of his said wife's paternal grandmother, Elizabeth,

(a) This was one of the extinctions used (under the Act of Union) for the creation in 1868 of the Barony of Rathdonnel. V.G.

(b) As to his supposed name of "Plantagenet," see vol. i, p. 183, note "c."

(c) He was unable to get actual possession of all these owing to the prevalence of the right of the heir male in the kingdom of Ireland. See, ante, p. 228, note "c," sub "CLANRICARDE."

"Lady of Clare," wife of John de Burgh, 3rd and yst. sister and coh. of Gilbert (de Clare), Earl of Gloucester, &c., abovenamed. He was, accordingly, on 13 Nov. 1362, cr. in full Parl.^(a) DUKE OF CLARENCE ("de Clarentia"). He had, when a mere child, been made Guardian of England, 1 July 1345 and 25 June 1346, and had (as Earl of Ulster), probably shortly before Apr. 1361, been nom. K.G.;^(b) Chief Gov. of Ireland, 1 July 1361-64, again 1364-65, and again for some part of 1367. His wife, who was six years his senior, was b. 6 July 1332, and d. 1363, at Dublin, being bur. at Clare Priory. He m., 2ndly (cont. Westm., 15 May 1367), with great state, 28 May 1368, at Milan, Violanta, da. of Galeazzo VISCONTI, SIGNORE DI MILANO, by Bianca Maria, da. of Aimo, COUNT OF SAVOY. Soon after this he d. s.p.m., 17 Oct. 1368, aged nearly 30, at Alba (Longuevil), in Piedmont, and was bur. at Pavia, but subsequently removed to England, and bur. at Clare Priory afsd. Will dat. 3 Oct. 1368, at Alba, pr. 8 June 1369, at Lambeth.^(c) By his death the Dukedom of Clarence became extinct, the Irish Earldom of Ulster, as also the Honour of Clare, devolving on his da. and sole h.^(d) His widow m., 2 Aug. 1377, at Pavia, OTTONE PALEOLOGO, MARQUIS OF MONFERRATO, who was murdered at Langhirano, near Parma, Dec. 1378. She m., 3rdly, her 1st cousin, Lodovico VISCONTI, SIGNORE DI LODI, who was b. Sep. 1358, and d. 18 Apr. 1381. She d. 1382.

See "Sandford," p. 222. As to the fanciful derivation of the word Clarence from a Greek title "Clarenza," conjectured to have been borne by the Hainault family, there is certainly no evidence (even granting that it ever existed) for its transfer to the family of Edward III. See an article on "Clare," by J. W. Donaldson, in vol. i of the transactions of *The Bury and West Suffolk Arch. ^(b) It is difficult to conjecture why this title was selected, as the honour of Clare was in the hands of the York line of the Royal family. By the Inq. p. m. of this Duke, it appears that no part of the Clare estates was held by him.

^(c) In the learned work of the late L. W. Vernon-Harcourt, His Grace the Steward and the trial of Peers, it is argued (pp. 190, 378-9, 402-7) that, though Thomas was Lord High Steward, he did not preside at this trial in that capacity. The author admits, however, that this trial was "the true source of the Court of the Lord High Steward" (p. 379). He holds it doubtful whether Thomas was appointed for life or in fee. ^(b) Clarendon, latinized as Clarentiæ dominium, anciently a Royal forest of about 4,300 acres (some three miles from Salisbury), in the palace whereof Henry II, in 1164, held the council which passed the laws, called therefrom "the Constitutions of Clarendon." It was granted, by Charles II, to George (Monck), Duke of Albemarle, from whose successor it was inherited by the family of Granville (Earls of Bath), and, finally, in 1713, was purchased by the Bathurst family, who still possess it.

^(c) He was yr. s. of Lawrence H., 3rd s. of Robert H. His br., Sir Nicholas Hyde, was Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 1627-31. They were of a respectable but undistinguished county family who had held the estates of Norbury and Hyde in Cheshire from very early times. V.G.

^(d) Doyle (Official Baronage, vol. i, p. 402) states, without reference to any authority, that he was made Under Treasurer of the Exchequer 19 July 1642 and Chancellor of the Exchequer in Feb. 1643; but these offices, since the reign of Henry VII, have always been held by the same person. Doyle's dates, though given with apparent exactitude, cannot be depended upon when, as here, he cites no authority. Clarendon himself records that he first held office when he accepted the Chancellorship of the Exchequer in succession to Colepepper at the end of Feb. 1642/3; moreover Colepepper is described as "Chancellor and Under Treasurer of the Prince of Wales, 1644-49. By Charles II, when in exile, he was sent as Joint Ambassador (with Lord Cottington) to Spain, 1649-51; Sec. of State, 1653-57; LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR (so declared at Bruges), Jan. 1657/8 to Aug. 1667;^(a) First Commissioner of the Treasury, June to Sep. 1660. He refused to accept what he regarded as the unconstitutional post of Prime Minister, but was so in fact for some time after the Restoration. Chanc. of Oxford Univ. 22 Oct. 1660-67, when he resigned. High Steward of Cambridge (borough) 1660-70. ^(a) For the great Officers of State see vol. ii, Appendix D.

^(b) The marriage, in 1660, of his da. Anne, with James, Duke of York (afterwards James II), the h. presumptive to the Crown, was, at about this time, made public, and probably contributed to his unpopularity.

^(c) The estate of Cornbury had been presented to him by the King. He spent great sums on enlarging the mansion, which was sold in 1751 to the Duke of Marlborough, and is now (1912) in the possession of Vernon James Watney (see CHURCHILL OF WHICHWOOD). The Earl was mortgagee of the Royal domain of Clarendon (from Charles I), from which he took his Earldom, and, not unreasonably, expected the grant of the equity of redemption thereof, which, however, he never obtained. See previous page, note "c."

^(d) An account of this and other creations, made a few days before the Coronation, is in Evelyn's Diary, as under: 1661, April 22. "Was the splendid cavalcade of His Majesty from the Tower of London to Whitehall, when I saw him, in the Banqueting House create six Earls and as many Barons, viz.:—[1] Edward [Hyde] Lord Hyde, Lord Chancellor [cr.] EARL OF CLARENDON, supported by the Earls of Northumberland and Sussex; the Earl of Bedford carried the cap and coronet; the Earl of Warwick the sword, [and] the Earl of Newport, the mantle. Next was [2] Capel, cr. EARL OF ESSEX; [3] Brudenell, cr. EARL OF CARDIGAN; [4], Annesley Viscount] Valenia [I.], cr. EARL OF ANGLESEA; [5] Greenville, cr. EARL OF BATH; and [6] Howard, cr. EARL OF CARLISLE. The Barons were [1] Denzille HOLLES; [2] CORNWALLIS; [3] BOOTH [cr. Baron DELAMERE]; [4] TOWNSHEND; [5] COOPER [cr. Baron ASHLEY]; and [6] CREW, who were led up by several Peers, with Garter and officers of arms before them; when, after obedience on their several approaches to the throne, their patents were presented by Garter King-at-Arms, which, being received by the Lord Chamberlain and delivered to His Majesty, and by him to the Secretary of State, were read, and then again delivered to his Majesty, and by him to the several Lords created; they were then robed, their coronets and collars put on by his Majesty, and they were placed in rank on both sides the state and throne; but the Barons put off their caps and circles and held them in their hands, the Earls keeping on their coronets, as cousins to the King." In this same year there was also a number of the eldest sons of Earls sum. in their father's Baronies, while in the previous year (that of the Restoration, 1660) Lord Jermyn had been cr. EARL OF ST. ALBANS; the loyal Marquess of Ormonde [I.], being cr. EARL OF BRECKNOCK; Monck, DUKE OF ALBEMARLE; Montagu, EARL OF SANDWICH, and Hyde, BARON HYDE OF HINDON.

^(a) The site of "Clarendon House" on the north side of Piccadilly, exactly facing St. James's Str. and Palace, was granted to him by the King, 13 June 1664. Pepys says, 20 Feb. 1664/5, that the "common people have already called [it] Dunkirke House from their opinion of his having a good bribe for the selling of that town," and again, 14 June 1667, that there was "a gibbet either set up before or painted upon his gate, and these three words writ:—

'Three sights to be seen,
Dunkirke, Tangier, and a barren Queene.'

Soon after his death, his sons, 10 July 1675, sold the house "that (says Evelyn, 18 Sep. 1683) cost £50,000, for £25,000," to the second Duke of Albemarle, who again sold it to Sir Thomas Bond and others, with about 24 acres of land attached, for £35,000. It was then pulled down, Bond Str., Albemarle Str., &c., being laid out on its site.

^(b) The freedom with which he administered advice to the King, the hatred of the King's then favourite (the Duchess of Cleveland), of the Duke of Buckingham, Lord Arlington, and of all the Roman Catholic and Presbyterian Party, were the leading causes of his fall.

^(c) He "will ever be regarded with admiration and reverence for his devoted adherence to Charles I during his misfortunes, and to Charles II for nearly 20 years after—the almost universal verdict, after two centuries of investigation—[which is] an unreserved acknowledgment of his loyalty, his wisdom, and his integrity." See Foss's Judges of England. Horace Walpole most happily says of him, "in his double capacity of Statesman and Historian, he acted for liberty, but wrote for prerogative." G.E.C. "It speaks volumes for his honesty that after holding all but the highest offices of State, he died poor." (Note to Th. Hearne, by C. E. Doble). His Life by Sir Henry Craik, a fair and able work from the Tory standpoint, was pub. in 1911. He was honest, staunch, austere, dignified, wise, and moderate, a competent public servant and a loyal subject; he was infelix opportunitate vitæ, and the excesses of Puritanism and of

He was in high favour with his br.-in-law, James II, to whom he was LORD PRIVY SEAL, Feb. 1684/5 to Mar. 1686/7, and LORD LIEUT. OF IRELAND, Sep. 1685 to Feb. 1686/7. High Steward of Salisbury, 1685; High Steward of the Univ. of Oxford, 1686 till his death; and Councillor to the Queen Consort, 1687. the Restoration were equally distasteful to him, consequently the greater part of his honourable life was spent in exile. To this fact we owe his History of the Rebellion, which is his greatest claim to fame. In spite of its merits and its interesting studies of character, this great work cannot be said to form very attractive reading; the style is tiresome, and it has been truly said that "the diction is verbose and yet lacks variety." The following tale appears to be pure myth, at any rate the Editor can find no confirmation of it, and it is primâ facie incredible that the daughter of a man of position and importance should have been a barmaid and the widow of a publican—all before she was 17! "A pot-girl of Westminster married the master of the pot-house. After his death she consulted a lawyer named Hyde. Mr. Hyde married her. Mr. Hyde afterwards became Lord Chancellor with the title of Lord Clarendon, and his wife, the former pot-girl, bore him a daughter. This daughter married the Duke of York, and became the mother of Mary and Anne Stewart, both afterward Queens of England. It is evident that if Queens of England may have a barmaid for grandmother lesser mortals need not fret on the subject of ancestry." (England and the English, by Price Collier, 1910, p. 54). V.G.

(^a) For a list of those "in arms for the Prince of Orange" (among whom he was), see vol. ii, Appendix H. No doubt he acted treasonably in going to the Prince of Orange's camp, which he did after his son had done so, and having been at first much upset at his son's defection. But many who did the like did not mean to depose James, but only to put pressure on him to act reasonably. As a matter of fact Clarendon himself refused to take the oaths to William as King, and is thereby distinguished from the common timeserver and traitor. "He was so true to the oath of allegiance that he had taken to King James . . . that he did not close in the least with the Revolution, but stood firm to the last, though he almost wanted bread to eat." (Thomas Hearne, 3 Nov. 1709). V.G.

^(a) "The retrospect of so long a public and official life as that of Clarendon is full of instruction and interest. His principal qualification for the posts he filled was, perhaps, his unwearied industry. Probably there was never a harder worker. He wrote with extraordinary facility as well as felicity. He was an admirable talker and a most patient listener. He was a Master of the Art of Conversation, &c." See Annual Register for 1870, where there is a long and appreciative account of his political career. Gladstone writes of him as "a statesman of many gifts, a most lovable and genial man." He and his wife are the "Lord and Lady Everingham" in Disraeli's Coningsby (1844). J. L. Motley describes him in 1858 as "a tall, thin, handsome, aristocratic-looking person." G.E.C. and V.G.

siege of Carlaverock. He was sum. to Parl. from 2 Nov. (1295) 23 Edw. I to 26 Oct. (1309) 3 Edw. II, by writs directed Roberto filio Rogeri, whereby he is held to have become LORD FITZROGER.^(a) He was one of the barons who, in Feb. 1300/1, took part in the celebrated letter to Pope Boniface VIII, being therein described as Robertus filius Rogeri dominus de Claveryng. He m. Margery DE LA ZOUCHE. He d. 1310. Writ for Inq. p. m. 29 Apr. 1310.

II. 1299 2. JOHN FITZROBERT, of Costessey, Norfolk, afterwards to DE CLAVERING (which name he assumed), s. and h., aged 1332. 44 at the time of his father's death, distinguished himself in the French and Scottish wars. He was sum. to Parl.
v.p., from 16 July (1299) 27 Edw. I to 20 Nov. (1331) 5 Edw. III, by writs directed Johanni de Clavinger, whereby he is held to have become LORD CLAVERING.^(a) Subject to his own life (and in the case of the Lordship of Clavinger, to that of his br. Edmund Clavinger) he alienated nearly all the estates of the family. He m., in 1278 (he aged 12, she under

(d) It is conjectured by Banks (Bar. Angl. Conc., vol. i, p. 155) that "it may be considered that Warkworth being the Barony, from the tenure whereof the writs of summons to Robert FitzRoger were first directed to him, they were writs of service, and not of created nobility descendible in blood, undivested [query? "when divested"] of the land territory; in which respect, Warkworth ceasing to be possessed by his heirs, the Barony became extinguished; a point which may apply to many other ancient Baronies, whereof the tenants in capite who were first sum. had not the like summons continued to their descendants." Warkworth was held in capite by Clavinger's ancestor in 1166 (Liber Niger), while Clavinger was only held of the King ut de honore, and was derived (with Aynhoe, an under-tenancy) from his ancestress, Alice of Essex. He was on intimate terms with the Prince of Wales, and Charles James Fox, a first-rate game shot and keen sportsman, winning the Derby with "Aimwell" in 1785, and being looked on as the Father of the Turf. "Nature had formed his person in an elegant mould, uniting delicacy of configuration with the utmost bodily activity, the soundest constitution, and uninterrupted health. . . . His manners were easy, quiet, calm, yet lively and ingratiating, and he was endowed with great suavity and equality of temper . . . The Countess of Clermont was formed, like her lord, for the atmosphere of a Court. Endowed with no superior talents, though possessing a cultivated mind; her manners subdued, yet exempt from severity; with an agreeable person, but destitute of beauty; uniting consummate knowledge of the world to constitutional serenity of temper." Sec. in Ireland, 1865-66 and 1868-71; President of the Board of Trade, 1871-74; Lord Lieut. of Essex, 1873-92. On 28 Feb. 1874 he was cr. BARON CARLINGFORD of Carlingford, co. Family Estates.—Those of himself, suo jure, and of his br. (the late Lord) appear in 1883, to have been 21,823 acres in co. Louth; 758 in co. Armagh, and 686 in co. Carlow. Total 23,265 acres, worth £18,086 a year. Those, jure uxoris (i.e. the Waldegrave estates), consisted of 5,321 acres in Somerset;

(b) This was a Consolation Peerage for his defeat as Liberal candidate for co. Louth. For a list of these peerages see vol. v, Appendix B. V.G.

(c) For this and other great offices of State see vol. ii, Appendix D.

(d) Her first husband was John James Henry Waldegrave, of Navestock, Essex (the eldest, though illegit. s. of the 6th Earl Waldegrave), who d. s.p., Apr. 1840, aged 38. She m., 2ndly (a few months afterwards), 28 Sep. 1840, George Edward (Waldegrave), 7th Earl Waldegrave, br. (by the same parents) of her last husband, but b. in wedlock. He d. s.p., 28 Sep. 1846, aged 40. By these matches she acquired the whole of the estates of the Waldegrave family in Essex, Somerset, and elsewhere. She m., 3rdly (in about a year's time), 30 Sep. 1847, as his 2nd wife, George Granville Vernon-Harcourt, of Nuneham Park, Oxon, by whom, also, she had no issue. He d. s.p.m., 19 Dec. 1861, aged 77, and about 13 months later, she m. her 4th and last husband as above. To him she left, for his life, such of the Waldegrave estates as she then possessed, with rem. to Earl Waldegrave in tail male.

(e) She was for many years, as "Frances, Countess Waldegrave" one of the leading members of London Society, her reunions at Strawberry Hill (Twickenham), &c., being in many respects unique. It is believed that she was the first Dowager Peeress in modern times who [1846] adopted the method of using her christian name with the title (i.e. "Frances, Countess Waldegrave") instead of the prefix of Dowager. In 1856, "Maria, Marchioness of Ailesbury" was so styled; in 1859, "Julia, Countess of Jersey;" in 1860, "Minna, Duchess of Norfolk;" &c.

(f) On succeeding to his brother's older Barony of Clermont [I.], he did not adopt that title, but continued to be known by the one [U.K.] in which he sat in the House of Lords. On the other hand, when Lord Stanley of Alderley [U.K. 1839] suc. in 1909 to the Barony of Sheffield [I. 1783], he used the latter title. V.G.

Grand total (England and Ireland), 36,552 acres, worth £39,279 a year. Principal Residences.—Chewton Priory, near Bath, Somerset; also Clermont Park, near Dunkirk, co. Louth, and Ravensdale Park, near Newry, in Ireland.

CLEVELAND

EARLDOM. THOMAS (WENTWORTH), LORD WENTWORTH [1529], was, under the designation of "Thomas Wentworth, Knt., Baron Wentworth of Nettlested," cr. 5 Feb. 1625/6, EARL OF CLEVELAND, co. York.^(a) He d. s.p.m.s., 25 Mar. 1667, when the Earldom of Cleveland became extinct. See fuller account under "WENTWORTH," Barony by writ, cr. 1529, under the 4th Baron.

DUKEDOM. I. BARBARA VILLIERS, da. and h. of William (VILLIERS), 2nd VISCOUNT GRANDISON [I.] (slain at the siege of Bristol in 1643), by Mary, da. of Paul (BAYNING), 1st VISCOUNT BAYNING, was b. about 1641, and when about 18, m., 14 Apr. 1659, at St. Gregory's, London, ROGER PALMER, afterwards, 11 Dec. 1661, cr. BARON LIMERICK and EARL OF CASTLEMAINE [I.]. He, however (from whom she was never legally divorced, and who d. 28 July 1705, but 4 years before her), does not appear to have been the father of any of her children unless, perhaps, of the eldest da. At the Hague, in 1659, she first met with Charles II, whom she accompanied to England the next year (the King spending the first night of his return in her society), and over whom she exercised a pernicious and almost uncontrolled influence for 10 years.^(b) Lady of the Bedchamber to the Queen Consort Aug. 1662.^(c) In 1668, however, her residence at the Palace came to an

^(a) Eight noblemen (2 Viscounts and 6 Barons) were on this day cr. Earls, being ranked, by Royal declaration, as under, viz.: [1] Manchester (Montagu); [2] Berkshire (Howard); [3] Cleveland (Wentworth); [4] Mulgrave (Sheffield); [5] Danby (Danvers); [6] Totness (Carew); [7] Monmouth (Cary); and [8] Marlborough (Ley).

^(b) "The solemn Clarendon, the dignified Ormond, and the virtuous Southampton were alike objects of her ridicule and malevolence." As to the former, indeed, his undeserved dismissal was mainly effected by her. Thomas (Wriothesley), Earl of Southampton and Chichester, had, when in office (1660-67), refused to admit her name on the Treasury books. Shortly after his death, however (1667), she had the gratification of obtaining for herself and her eldest son both the Earldoms which he had enjoyed.

^(c) She was accordingly "removed as to her bed, from her own home to a chamber in Whitehall next to the King's own, which" [says Pepys] "I am sorry to hear." To that King's lasting disgrace he forced his wife (but three months after her marriage) to receive this woman, his acknowledged (and of a large and miscellaneous assortment of his subjects the unacknowledged) Mistress. earliest lovers was Lord Chesterfield, who is generally considered to have been the father of her first child (Anne, Countess of Sussex), whose paternity was (2) claimed by (the husband of the child's mother) the legal father, and (3) was acknowledged by the King in a Royal warrant of 1673. The insatiable Countess carried on intrigues (at the same time as with the King) with Hart and Goodman, the actors, with Jacob Hall, the rope dancer, with "the invincible" Henry Jermyn, with Churchill (afterwards the great Duke), with Wycherley, the dramatist, &c. In 1670, in France, the Chevalier de Chatillon, and Ralph Montagu (afterwards Duke of Montagu), the English Ambassador, were among those whom she thus favoured. "If she were as beautiful as Helen, she had as many lovers as Messalina," says Jesse, in his Court of the Stuarts (vol. iv). In the magnificent picture of her by Lely, as Minerva, "the face is perfectly beautiful," but her beauty "was of that splendid and commanding character that dazzles, rather than interests." See Jameson's Court Beauties of Charles II. She is described (when young) by Resesby as "the finest woman of her age."

(^a) A docquet of the signed bill for the creation of this dignity [as well as one for the creations of the Dukedoms of Southampton and Grafton (both in 1675) to two of her sons] is in the Signet Books, but no enrolment of any of these patents appears to have been made. For a list of Royal Bastards, see vol. vi, Appendix F.

(^b) In the signed bill for this patent, the title of "Earl of Southampton" is given to him during her lifetime, and the precedency of the children of a Duke to all her issue. These two results would have been the natural consequence of such her creation if her children had been legitimate.

(^c) Henry, the second son (who was thus passed over) was cr. Earl of Euston, &c., in 1672, and Duke of Grafton in 1675, having, in the former year, m. the heiress (expectant) of the estate of Euston, who became suo jure, on her father's death, Countess of Arlington.

(^d) "They have signed and sealed £10,000 a year more to the Duchess of Cleveland, who has likewise near £10,000 a year more out of the new farm of the County excise of beer and ale; £5,000 a year out of the Post Office, and, they say, the reversion of all the King's leases, the reversion of all places in the Custom House, the Green Wax, and, indeed, what not! All promotions, spiritual and temporal, pass under her cognizance." (Andrew Marvel, Works, vol. ii, p. 75). The King gave her all his rich presents at Christmas one year; on another he paid her debts of £30,000, &c. Berkshire House (formerly the property of the Howards, Earls of Berkshire) was purchased for her by the King in 1668; its name, which was altered to Cleveland House, still survives in Cleveland Court and Cleveland Row; but the site of it is mostly occupied by Bridgewater House, built 1847-50. Her immense fortune was principally squandered at the gaming table, where she is said (by Pepys, in 1668) to have played £1,000 and £1,500 at a cast, to have won £15,000 in one night, and to have lost £25,000 in another.

He was b. in King Str., and bap. 18 June 1662,^(c) at St. Margaret's, Westm., and (in right of his legal father, the Earl of Castlemaine [I.]) was known in his infancy as Charles PALMER, styled LORD LIMERICK, but as Charles FITZROY, styled EARL OF SOUTHAMPTON, after his mother's elevation to a Dukedom (in 1670), and was, as Earl of Southampton, nom. K.G. 25 Jan. and inst. 1 Apr. 1673. On 10 Sep. 1675, he was cr. BARON OF NEWBURY, co. Berks, EARL OF CHICHESTER and DUKE OF SOUTHAMPTON.^(d) He matric. Dec. 1675^(e) at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) under Dr.

^(a) The particulars are extremely curious. See State Trials, vol. xiv, p. 1327. Though convicted of bigamy, he obtained a pardon from Queen Anne, and after a short imprisonment in the Fleet, he went to Scotland with the said Mary, and lived with her there till his death in 1712. For Feilding's other marriages see ante p. 28, note "a," and p. 215, text.

^(d) It appears that Sir William Dugdale ("Garter" 1667-86) represented to the King that the sons of the Duchess of Cleveland were styled Charles Palmer, first son, and George Palmer, second son, in the preamble of their mother's creation [1670], whereas in the creation of the former as Duke of Southampton (in 1675), and of the latter as Earl of Northumberland (in 1674) both are styled "FitzRoy" and the latter is called the "third son"; that these two and Henry (FitzRoy) Duke of Grafton are said to be the King's natural sons by the said Barbara, Duchess of Cleveland; he therefore suggests that all the King's natural sons be called "FitzRoy" and that mention be made "on what particular woman His Majesty begot the Duke of Monmouth, the Duke of Richmond, and the Earl of Plymouth." See Hamper's Life of Dugdale. The King directed (through the Lord Privy Seal, the Earl of Anglesey) that no mention should be made of the mothers of the last three, but that they should all be called "FitzRoy"; a privilege of which, apparently, none of these latter availed themselves.

I. WILLIAM HARRY^(a) (VANE), EARL OF DARLINGTON, only s. and h. of Henry, 2nd EARL OF DARLINGTON, by Margaret, sister of James, EARL OF LONSDALE, da. of Robert LOWTHER [which Henry was s. and h. of Henry, 1st EARL OF DARLINGTON, by Grace, sister of the whole blood of William, and 1st da. of Charles (FITZROY), DUKES OF CLEVELAND abovenamed], was b. 27 July, and bap. 18 Aug. 1766, at St. James's, Westm.; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.), 25 Apr. 1783; was M.P. (Whig) for Totnes, 1788-90; for Winchelsea, 1790-92; being then styled Viscount Barnard. On 8 Sep. 1792, he suc. his father as EARL OF DARLINGTON. Lord Lieut. of co. Durham, 1793 till his death;^(b) Col. in the Army (during service), 1794. On 5 Oct. 1827, he was cr. MARQUESS OF CLEVELAND,^(c) and, on 29 Jan. 1833, cr. BARON RABY OF RABY CASTLE, co. He m., 1stly, 17 Sep. 1787, at Hackwood, Hants, his maternal cousin, Katherine, 2nd da. and coh. of Harry (POWLETT), 6th and last DUKE OF BOLTON, by his 2nd wife, Katherine, sister of James, EARL OF LONSDALE, and da. of Robert LOWTHER

^(b) He was, though the owner of 6 borough seats (viz. 2 for Ilchester, 2 for Camelford, and 2 for Winchelsea), a zealous supporter of Reform. It is said of him that "he bought his boroughs to be made a Marquess, and gave them up to be made a Duke." He obtained the former title under the Ministry of Viscount Goderich, and the latter under that of Earl Grey. He was a keen sportsman and a Master of Fox Hounds. G.E.C. and V.G.

^(c) It is a cause of wonder that the head of the historic house of Vane of Raby, himself the holder of a peerage of some antiquity (1699), should have so prided himself on a bastard descent from an infamous adulteress, that when he obtained a step in the Peerage, he changed his title to that of "Cleveland," a peerage conferred on his notorious ancestress as the actual wages of her prostitution, and one which had stunk in the nostrils of the nation during the 40 years she enjoyed it; one, too, which had not been redeemed from the slur thus attached to it by any merit of her successors, of whom the one was a fool and the other a nonentity. The selection is more remarkable as the Earls of Darlington do not appear to have inherited any of their vast estates from this woman.

^(d) As to the Barony of Raby, when the celebrated Sir Thomas Wentworth (then Viscount Wentworth) was cr. Earl of Strafford (1640), he was at the same time cr. "BARON OF RABY, a house belonging to Sir Henry Vane, and an honour he made account should belong to himself, which was an act of the most unnecessary provocation that I have known, and, I believe, was the chief occasion of the loss of the Earl's head." See Clarendon, vol. i, p. 150. The limitation of this Barony was (unlike that of the Earldom) with a spec. rem., under which it lasted till 1799, when, on the death of Frederick Thomas (Wentworth), 3rd Earl of Strafford and 5th Baron of Raby, it became extinct. It was, some thirty years afterwards, not unnaturally, revived in favour of the family of Vane, the actual owners of Raby.

arms and alliances of the Vane family (the early ones mythical) were set up in the windows of the great hall at Battle. (ex inform. J. H. Round). "In her youth had been a most beautiful woman. She possessed much of the ability of her brother; she had read widely, talked very well, and was a good artist. Her second husband, the late Duke of Cleveland, was a fine specimen of an English aristocrat, and as he got older I think his picturesqueness increased. In the evening, when he wore his Ribbon of the Garter, standing up with his tall erect figure, piercing eyes, and snow-white hair, he was always a very striking personage." (Memories of Fifty Years, by Lady St. Helier, 1909, p. 94). Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff in his Notes from a Diary mentions "the excellent reply attributed to her when some foreigner, who had been long absent from England, said 'And what has become of that beautiful Lady Dalmeny whom I used to admire so much,' 'Ah monsieur, elle n'est plus.'" CLIFFORD

BARONY BY WRIT. I. ROBERT DE CLIFFORD,^(b) s. and h. of Roger de C. (who d. v.p., 6 Nov. 1282),^(c) by Isabel, da. and coh. of Robert DE VIPONT, Hereditary Sheriff of Westmorland I. 1299. (by Isabel, 2nd sister and in her issue coh. of Richard Fitz-John [Lord FitzJohn]), was b. about Easter 1274, being aged 9 years at Easter 11 Edw. I; suc. his grandfather in 1286, before 3 Apr.;^(d) and, in 1291, inherited a moiety of the estates of the great family of Vipont, on the death of his mother (i.e. Brougham Castle, Westmorland, the Hereditary Shrievalty^(e) of that county, &c.). He had seisin of his inheritance 3 May 1295, and was, on the death of his great-uncle, Richard FitzJohn abovenamed, 1297, found one of his coheirs. He served in the wars with Scotland; was Justice in Eyre North of Trent, 1297-1307/8; Gov. of Nottingham Castle, July 1298. He was sum. to Parl. from 29 Dec. (1299) 28 Edw. I to 26 Nov. (1313) 7 Edw. II, by writs directed Roberto de Clifford, whereby he is held to have become LORD CLIFFORD.^(f)

^(a) The above account is not now (1912) even approximately correct. The Northants and the Irish estates passed to Lilah Georgiana Augusta Constance, only da. of the 3rd Viscount (which Lilah had married, in 1884, Luke (White), Baron Annaly), and the Cornish property given under Robartesshould now take its place. V.G.

^(b) The name of this illustrious family is taken from the small village of Clifford, their ancient possession, near Hay, co. Hereford. The ruins of Clifford Castle still (1912) exist.

^(c) He was drowned when crossing a bridge of boats near the Menai Straits. He was son of another Roger, a feudal Baron of co. Hereford, and Justice of the Forest South of Trent Aug. 1265. This last named Roger's wife is described on the Fine Rolls as "Comitissa de Lerett," and as "Countess of Lauretania" by Dugdale, who quotes Glover's Collections to the effect that he had married her at "St. George in France in 1 Edw. I." V.G.

^(e) In the list of Sheriffs, Michaelmas 1298, the names appear of "Robert de Clifford and Idonea de Leyburn." V.G.

^(f) As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title, see Appendix A in the last volume. V.G.

He was Capt. Gen. of the Marches of Scotland, 1299; was one of the Barons whose seal was affixed to the celebrated letter to the Pope, in 1301, being therein described as "Castellanus de Appelby." By Edward I he was granted the manor of Skelton, Cumberland, Skipton Castle, co. York, &c.; while by Edward II he was made, for a few months in 1307, MARSHAL OF ENGLAND;^(a) Justice South of Trent 1307-07/8; Warden of the Scottish marches 1308. He m. Maud, 2nd and yst. da. of Thomas DE CLARE (2nd s. of Richard, EARL OF GLOUCESTER and HERTFORD), by Julian, da. of Sir Maurice FITZMAURICE, Lord Justice of Ireland. He d. 24 June 1314, aged 39, being slain at the battle of Bannockburn,^(b) and was (probably) bur. with his mother at Shap Abbey, Westmorland.^(c) Writ for Inq. p. m. 28 July (1314) 8 Edw. II. Will pr. 18 Sep. 1314. His widow m., without lic., before 16 Dec. 1315, Robert DE WELLE [LORD WELLE], who d. s.p., Aug. 1320; she was found to be in 1320-21, 14 Edw. II, h. to her nephew Thomas, only s. and h. of Richard DE CLARE [LORD CLARE].^(d) She d. between 4 Mar. 1326/7 and 24 May 1327, when the writ for her Inq. p. m. is dated.

II. 1314. 2. ROGER (DE CLIFFORD), LORD CLIFFORD, Sheriff of Westmorland, s. and h., b. 21 Jan. (or 2 Feb.) 1299/1300. He was sum. to Parl. from 6 Nov. 1319 to 15 May 1321. He joined in the rebellion of Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, with whom he was defeated at Boroughbridge and taken prisoner, 16 Mar. 1321/2, being shortly afterwards, 23 Mar., executed at York. He is described in the contemporary Boroughbridge Roll as a Banneret.^(e) He d. s.p., aged 22. Writ for his Inq. p. m. 12 Feb. 1326/7.

III. 1322. 3. ROBERT (DE CLIFFORD), LORD CLIFFORD, Sheriff of Westmorland, br. and h., b. 5 Nov. 1305. He had seisin of his mother's and brother's lands 20 Aug. 1327. He was sum. to Parl. from 10 Dec. 1327 to 20 Apr. 1344. By the death of his great-aunt, Idoine de Vipont, he inherited other considerable estates of that family. He served in the Scottish wars, and repaired the Castle at Skipton, which had suffered much therein. He m., in Berkeley Castle, June 1328, Isabel, da. of Maurice (DE BERKELEY), LORD BERKELEY, by his 1st wife, Eve, da. of Eudes LA ZOUCHE. With her he had £1,000 and 50 marks, for her portion. He d. 20 May 1344, aged 38. His widow m., shortly before 9 June 1345, when they had pardon for m. without lic., Sir Thomas MUSGRAVE, and d. 25 July 1362.

IV. 1342. 4. ROBERT (DE CLIFFORD), LORD CLIFFORD, Sheriff of Westmorland, s. and h., aged 13½ or 16 (probably the latter) at his father's death. He m., between 1 and 20 Apr. 1343,^(a) Eufeme, da. of Ralph (NEVILL), 2ND LORD NEVILL, by Alice, sister of Hugh (D'AUDLEY), EARL OF GLOUCESTER, da. of Hugh (AUDLEY), senior, LORD AUDLEY. He d. under age in France, s.p., in 1345, before 7 Nov. His widow m., early in 1347,^(b) Reynold LUCY, s. of Thomas [Lord] LUCY. She m., 3rdly, Sir Walter HESELARTON, and d. late in Oct. or early Nov. 1393.

V. 1345. 5. ROGER (DE CLIFFORD), LORD CLIFFORD, Sheriff of Westmorland, br. and h., b. 10 July 1333, made proof of his age, 10 Aug. (1354) 28 Edw. III, having had livery of his lands 3 months before, 14 May 1354. He was sum. to Parl. from 15 Dec. 1357 to 28 July 1388.^(c) He was one of the most distinguished of his race, serving in the wars with Scotland and France. Sheriff of Westmorland in 1360. He had livery of the Castle of Skipton in Craven 30 Aug. 1362, after his mother's death. In 1377 he was Sheriff of Cumberland, and Gov. of Carlisle Castle, was a Knight Banneret, and was sometime Warden of the East and West Marches. On 12 Oct. 1386 he gave evidence in the famous Scrope and Grosvenor controversy. He m. Maud, da. of Thomas (DE BEAUCHAMP), EARL OF WARWICK, by Catherine, da. of Roger (DE MORTIMER), 1ST EARL OF MARCH. He d. 13 July 1389, aged 56.^(d) His widow d. Jan. or Feb. 1402/3.

VI. 1389. 6. THOMAS (DE CLIFFORD), LORD CLIFFORD, Sheriff of Westmorland, s. and h., aged 26 at his father's death. He was v.p., a Knight of the King's Chamber, and, 1384, Gov. of Carlisle Castle for life. He was sum. to Parl. from 6 Dec. 1389 to 7 Sep. 1391. He m. Elizabeth, da. of Thomas (DE ROS), LORD ROS, by Beatrice, da. of Ralph (DE STAFFORD), 1ST EARL OF STAFFORD. He d. 18 Aug. 1391 (and not, as according to some accounts, 4 Oct. 1393), being said to have been slain, near Spruce [?], in Germany. His widow d. Mar. 1424.^(e) followed by Holinshed and later historians, and immortalised by Shakespeare, it was this "Bloody Clifford" who slew, in cold blood after the battle, the young Earl of Rutland (s. of the Duke of York), and even (according to Shakespeare) the Duke of York himself, whom however, more trustworthy authority represents as slain in the battle, though his head (according to Holinshed) was cut off after death by Lord

10. HENRY CLIFFORD, called "The Shepherd Lord," Sheriff of Westmorland, s. and h., b. about 1454. His existence was (for security against the disfavour with which his family was regarded by the reigning house), concealed by his mother, he being brought up, it is said, as a Shepherd. He had a gen. pardon 16 Mar. 1471/2. On the accession of Henry VII, he was knighted, his attainder reversed, 9 Nov. 1485, whereby he became LORD CLIFFORD, and his estates restored. He was sum. to Parl. from 15 Sep. (1485) 1 Hen. VII to 23 Nov. (1514) 6 Hen. VIII, by writs directed Henrico Clifford de Clifford ch'r.^(c) K.B. at the Coronation of Henry VIII 23 June 1509. He fought at Flodden, 9 Sep. 1513, capturing 3 pieces of ordnance which he mounted at his castle of Skipton. In 1522, he contributed no less than 1000 marks for the French expedition. He m., 1stly, before 1493, Anne,^(d) da. of Sir John St. JOHN, of Bletso, Beds, by Alice, da. of Sir Thomas BRADSHAIGH, of Haigh, co. Lancaster. (a) The Lordship of Westmorland was granted to Richard, Duke of Gloucester; the Barony of Skipton to Sir William Stanley.

(b) The peerage of DE VESSY had, however, become extinct, having been expressly limited to the heirs male of the body of the grantee, by the writ, 24 Jan. 1448/9, under which it originated; a singular (and indeed, in England, unique) instance of such limitation in a Barony cr. by writ. G.E.C. Nevertheless this John Lord Clifford and Henry his son, are each called in the Patent Roll, 3 Hen. VIII, part 1, m. 12, "Lord Clifford Westmorland and Vescy," though they were only hereditary sheriffs of Westmorland and neither was Baron of Vessy. V.G.

(c) He figures in a bogus list concocted by Dugdale (Summonses, pp. 491-2), as having been sum. to a Parl. beginning 12 Nov. 7 Hen. VIII (really the date to which the Parl. which first met 5 Feb. 1514/5 had been prorogued). As to this list see note sub Robert, LORD WILLOUGHBY (of Broke) [1502]. V.G.

(e) He seldom "came to Court, or London," residing chiefly at Bardon tower, near Bolton, and devoting his energies to astronomy and astrology. Wordsworth's Song at the feast of Brougham Castle as also his White Doe of Rylstone gives an account of this Lord's romantic career.

^(a) In Letters and Papers Hen. VIII, vol. iv, part i, p. 92, is a letter from Richard Bank to Lord Darcy, dat. 5 Apr. and catalogued [? wrongly] 1524, in which the writer states that he has been "requested by the young Lord Clifford to be at his father's burial." V.G.

^(b) It is not to be argued from his being thus designated that he had peerage dignities of these names. See preceding p., note "b."

^(c) According to the decision of 12 Dec. 1691, whereby the Barony was allowed to Thomas, Earl of Thanet, her grandson and heir.

Her godfather was Philip (Wharton), Lord Wharton, who had married her maternal aunt, Lady Frances Clifford. See "A true Memoriall of the Life of Lady Ann Clifford" in the York vol. of the Proceedings Archaeol. Inst., 1846.

her cousin Henry Clifford had been sum. to the House of Lords as Lord Clifford) she claimed the Barony of Clifford, and her petition was referred to the House of Lords.^(a) The vast family estates, however, and the hereditary Shrievalty of Westmorland, were, from 1605, held by her uncle, Francis, 4th Earl of Cumberland (the h. male of the family), and did not come into her possession till the death, s.p.m.s., on 11 Dec. 1643, of his only s. and h., Henry, the 5th and last Earl, who in 1628 had been sum. v.p. as Lord Clifford, as above-mentioned. She d. at Brougham Castle, Westmorland, 22 Mar., and was bur. 14 Apr. 1675/6, in the church of St. Lawrence, Appleby, in her 87th year.^(b) M.I. On her death, s.p.m.s., the right to the Barony fell into abeyance between her 1st da. Margaret, Countess of Thanet, and her granddaughter, Lady Alethea Compton,^(c) only surv. child of her 2nd and yst. da., Isabella, Countess of Northampton, deceased.^(d)

(a) On 3 Nov. 1606, her mother, Margaret, Countess of Cumberland, claimed the Barony of Clifford on her daughter's behalf, her petition being referred by the King to the Earl Marshal's Commissioners. The claim was renewed in 1628, when it was referred to the Lords. It is interesting to note, as J. H. Round remarks (Peerage and Pedigree, vol. i, p. 94), that "between these two dates the system of dealing with such claims had changed." The same writer points out that the proceedings "afford perhaps the earliest instance of the doctrine of 'attraction' in peerage law," being 10 years earlier than the Ros case (1616), which has hitherto been supposed to be the first in which this question arose. With regard to this doctrine of "attraction" and some account of peerage titles assumed by peers, see vol. v, Appendix F. V.G.

(b) From 1605 to 1643 she (or her mother, the Dowager Countess, on her behalf) was engaged in constant law suits with the heir male. She resided at fixed times at each of her six castles, Skipton, Appleby, Brougham, Brough, Pendragon, and Bardon tower, all of which (besides several churches connected with her estates) she repaired. "With a Shandean exactness," says Hartley Coleridge in his Biographia Borealis, "she begins her memoirs of herself nine months before her nativity for the sake of quoting the 139th Psalm." In the "True Memoriall" she states that "The colour of her eyes was black like her father's, with a peak of hair on her forehead, and a dimple in her chin, like her father—full cheeks and round-fac'd like her mother, and an excellent shape of body resembling her father. . . The hair of her head was brown and very thick, and so long that it reached to the calf of her legs when she stood upright. And when she caused these memorialls of herself to be written she had passed the year 63 of her age; she said the perfections of her mind were much above those of her body; she had a strong and copious memory, a sound judgment, and a discerning spirit, and so much of a strong imagination in her as that at many times even her dreams and apprehensions beforehand prov'd true." Dr. Donne said of her that "she knew well how to discourse of all things from predestination to sea-silk." Her tutor was the poet Samuel Daniel.

(c) Alethea, da. of James (Compton), 3rd Earl of Northampton, and the only child that survived infancy of his 1st wife, Isabella abovenamed, was b. 14 Mar. 1661 (exactly 7 months before her mother's death); she m. Edward Hungerford, of Farleigh, Somerset (s. and h. ap. of Sir Edward Hungerford, K.B.), and d. s.p., 14 Oct. 1678. Admon. 22 Apr. and 19 Dec. 1681.

CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH^(a)

BARONY.

1. 1672. I. THOMAS CLIFFORD, s. of Col. Hugh C., of Ugbrooke, in Chudleigh, Devon, by Mary, da. of Sir George CHUDLEIGH, Bart., of Ashton, in that co., was b. 1, and bap. 12 Aug. 1630, at Ugbrooke; matric. at Oxford (Exeter Coll.), 21 May 1647, B.A. 1650; Barrister of the Middle Temple; M.P. for Totnes 1660-72; distinguished himself in several naval actions, and was knighted; Comptroller of the Household, Nov. 1666-68; P.C. 5 Dec. 1666; one of the Commissioners of the Treasury, 1667-72; Treasurer of the Household, 1668-72. When the Dutch war was ended in 1669, he, as a zealous promoter of the French interest, intrigued against the treaty, becoming one of the 5 Counsellors who formed the "Cabal."^(b) The treaty of Dover, in June 1670, was mainly his work.^(c) He is said to have advised the King to supply himself with money by stopping for a year all payments out of the Exchequer. In reward, doubtless, for this suggestion he was, on 22 Apr. 1672, cr. BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, Devon. LORD HIGH TREASURER from 28 Nov. 1672 to June 1673,^(d) when (having already declared himself a Roman Catholic) the test act having passed (against which he had made a most violent and injudicious speech), he felt bound to resign.^(e) He m. Elizabeth, da. of William MARTIN, of Lindridge, Devon, and, in 1643, coh. of her br., William M., of the same. He d. a few months after his retirement, apparently by his own hand, 17, and was bur. 19 Oct. 1673, in Ugbrooke Chapel, aged 43.^(f) Will

(a) "At Ugbrooke House is a splendid pedigree of the Clifford family, certified 12 May 1673, by Sir Edward Walker, Garter, Edward Bysshe, Clarencieux, and William Dugdale, Norroy, Kings of Arms." See MS. note in Pulman's Collections ("J.P." 218, p. 519) at the Coll. of Arms.

(b) See vol. i, p. 217, note "c." Hume says of him (vol. vi, p. 9, edit. 1848) that "his daring impetuous spirit gave him weight in the King's Councils," but of the five members of the Cabal, he probably was the least important.

(c) He lent himself to a discreditable shuffle, whereby he hid from his colleagues the object (i.e. the declaration of the Roman Catholic faith) for which certain sums were to be paid by the French King to Charles II.

(d) For a list of the 7 peers who alone, since 1660, have held this great office, see vol. ii, Appendix D.

(e) He was able, however, to "pitch" on Viscount Osborne [S.], afterwards Duke of Leeds, for a successor, who doubtless paid liberally for being thus "pitched" into so high an office. See Burnet, as quoted in Collins, vol. vi, pp. 127-8.

(f) "Appears a very fine gentleman and much set by at Court for his activity in going to sea, and stoutness everywhere and stirring up and down." (Pepys,

II. 1673. HUGH (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, 5th but 1st surv. s. and h.,^(a) bap. 21 Dec. 1663, at Ugbrooke; ed. at Winchester 1678-79. He m., in or before 1685, Anne, da. and coh. of Sir Thomas PRESTON, Bart., of Furness, co. Lancaster, by Mary, da. of Caryll (MOLYNEUX), 3rd VISCOUNT MOLYNEUX [I.]. He d. 12 Oct. 1730, at Cannington, Somerset, and was bur. there, aged 66. Will dat. 18 Oct. 1726, pr. 24 May 1731, and enrolled on the Close Roll. His widow d. 5, and was bur. 10 July 1734, at Ugbrooke, aged 67. Will dat. 13 Sep. 1733, pr. 10 Sep. 1734, and enrolled as above.

III. 1730. 3. HUGH (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, 7th but 1st surv. s. and h. male,^(b) b. 14 Apr. 1700. He m., against his parents' wish (settl. dat. 14 Oct. 1725), Elizabeth, da. and coh. of Edward BLOUNT, of Blagdon, Devon, by Arabella, da. of Sir John GUISE, Bart. He d. 26 Mar. 1732, at Ugbrooke, and was bur. there, aged 31. Will dat. 12 July 1731, pr. 26 Feb. 1732/3. His widow d. Nov. 1778, at Paris.

IV. 1732. 4. HUGH (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, 1st s. and h., b. 29 Sep. 1726. He m., 17 Dec. 1749, in London, Anne, sister and coh. of George (LEE), 3rd EARL OF LICHFIELD, 5th da. of George Henry, the 2nd Earl, by Frances, da. of Sir John HALES, Bart. He d. 1 Sep. 1783, at Ugbrooke, and was bur. there, aged nearly 57. M.I. Will dat. 18 June, pr. 31 Oct. 1783.^(c) His widow d. 9 Dec. 1802, at Altona, aged 71.^(d) Will pr. Apr. 1803.

V. 1783. 5. HUGH EDWARD HENRY (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, 1st s. and h., b. and bap. 2 July 1756. He m., 2 May 1780, at Bath, Apollonia, yst. da. and coh.

"A valiant uncorrupt gentleman, ambitious not covetous; generous, passionate, a most constant sincere friend." Idem, 18 Aug. 1673; where also the current story is given that "he strangled himself with his cravat upon the bed-tester." V.G.

(^a) His next elder br., George, who is erroneously stated by Collins, and also in Dict. Nat. Biog., to have been the 2nd Lord, d. v.b. and s.p., before 12 May 1673, when the pedigree was entered at the College of Arms. There were three sons b. before this George, the two elder being named Thomas, and the yst. Robert, of these the last, b. 3 and bap. 18 Oct. 1652, matric. at Oxford (Queen's Coll.) 10 Nov. 1668, aged 15; d. unm. at Florence, 29 Mar., and was bur. 28 July 1671, at Ugbrooke.

(^b) His elder br., Thomas Clifford, b. 1687, m. Charlotte, suo jure, Countess of Newburgh [S.], and d. v.p. and s.p.m. 1718, leaving a da. his (but not her mother's) heir, the ancestress of those Earls of Newburgh [S.] who have existed since 1814.

He d. s.p., 15 Jan. 1793, at Munich,^(a) and was bur. at the chapel of the Jesuits' College there, aged 36. M.I. Will, as "Hugh, Lord Clifford," signed "Clifford," made at Rome 13 June 1792, pr. (from a copy) 16 July 1802. His widow d. 31 Dec. 1815, aged 60, and was bur. at Hazlewood, near Leeds. Admon. Jan. 1816.

VI. 1793. 6. CHARLES (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, next br. and h., b. 28 Nov. 1759, in Jermyn Str., Midx. Ed. at the colleges of Douay, St. Omer, Bruges, and Liège. F.S.A. 27 Feb. 1794. He m. (settl. 28 Nov.), 29 Nov. 1786,^(b) at her father's house, St. Geo., Han. Sq., Eleanor Mary, 2nd da. and coh. of Henry (ARUNDELL), 8th BARON ARUNDELL OF WARDOUR, by Maria Christina, only da. and h. of Benedict CONQUEST, of Irnham Hall, co. Lincoln.^(c) He d. 29 Apr. 1831, aged 71, at Ugbrooke Park. Will pr. Sep. 1831. His widow, who was b. 20 Mar. 1766, at Wardour Castle, Wilts, d. 24 Nov. 1835, at Spetisbury Convent, Dorset, aged 69, and was bur. at Ugbrooke. Will pr. May 1836.

VII. 1831. 7. HUGH CHARLES (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, 1st s. and h., b. 29 May 1790, at New Park, Somerset; ed. at the Roman Catholic College of Stonyhurst, co. Lancaster. Took his seat in the House of Lords, 1831.^(d) He m., 1 Sep. 1818, at Paris, and again Jan. 1819, at Ugbrooke, his 2nd cousin, Mary Lucy, only da. and h. of Thomas WELD,^(e) of Lulworth Castle, Dorset, by Lucy, da. of the Hon. Thomas CLIFFORD, yr. s. of Hugh, BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH abovenamed. She, who was b. 31 Jan. 1799, at Upway, Dorset, d. 15 May 1831, in her 32nd year, near Rome. He d. of a wound in the ankle, at Rome, where he had long been resident, 28 Feb.,

(a) "His long residence abroad, and the adherence of the family to the Catholic persuasion, whereby they are kept from Parl., have prevented their being much known, but [adds naively the Annual Register for 1793] their estates are ample."

(b) "A very pleasing young man of a most unexceptionable character. . . Miss Arundell is tall and pretty, but has that same gawky stoop that she had when she was a girl." (Lady Jerningham, 23 Mar. 1786). V.G.

(c) In consequence of this match with the coh. of a man who was a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, the Lords Clifford have claimed, since 24 Nov. 1835, to enjoy that honour, but there can be little doubt that though the afsd. coh. was herself entitled to, she was incapable of transmitting, it. See note sub John, DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH [1702]. V.G.

(d) He was the first of his line who, since the disabling act of 1678, had done so. He was a Liberal and voted for the Repeal of the Corn Laws. V.G.

(e) He was s. and h. of Thomas Weld, the founder of the Jesuits' College at Stonyhurst, co. Lancaster. He suc. his father in 1810, and having lost his wife in 1815, became a Priest, a Bishop, and finally, 1830, a Cardinal in the Rom. Catholic Church, being the first Englishman who attained that honour since Cardinal Howard in the time of Clement X (1675). He d. s.p.m., 10 Apr. 1837, aged 64.

and was bur. there 2 Mar. 1858, aged 67. Will pr. 17 July 1858, under £50,000; re-sworn July 1859, under £60,000.

VIII. 1858. 8. CHARLES HUGH (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, 1st s. and h., b. 27 July 1819, in London. A Liberal in politics. He m., 30 Sep. 1845, at Thorndon Hall, Essex, Agnes Catherine Louisa, yst. da. of William Henry Francis (PETRE), 11th BARON PETRE OF WRITTLE, by his 2nd wife, Emma Agnes, da. of Henry HOWARD, of Corby Castle, Cumberland. He d., after a long illness, 5 Aug. 1880, at Ugbrooke Park, aged 61. Will pr. 14 Sep. 1880, under £180,000. His widow, who was b. 29 Jan. 1826, in Grosvenor Sq., d. 25 May 1891, after a brief illness, at 69 Onslow Gardens, and was bur. at Ugbrooke, aged 65.

IX. 1880. 9. LEWIS HENRY HUGH (CLIFFORD), BARON CLIFFORD OF CHUDLEIGH, 1st s. and h., b. 24 Aug. 1851, at Villa del Cinque, Albano, near Rome; ed. at Stonyhurst College abovenamed, and at London Univ., B.A. 1872; Barrister (Inner Temple), 1882. Volunteer A.D.C. to the King 1901. A Liberal till 1886, and thereafter a Liberal Unionist. He m., 23 Jan. 1890, at the Oratory, Brompton, Mabel Anne, yst. da. of John TOWNELEY, of Towneley, co. Lancaster, by Lucy Ellen, da. of Sir Henry Joseph TICHBORNE, 8th Bart.

Family Estates.—These, in 1883, consisted of 4,416 acres in Devon, 1,562 in co. Warwick, 896 in Somerset, 858 in Bucks, and 128 in Cornwall. Total 7,860 acres, worth £9,109 a year. Principal Residence.—Ugbrooke Park, near Chudleigh, Devon.

CLIFTON

BARONY BY WRIT. I. JOHN DE CLIFTON, of Buckenham Castle, Norfolk, s. and h. of Constantine C., by Catherine, da. of Sir William DE LA POLE, which Constantine was s. and h. ap. of Adam de Clifton,^(*) of Buckenham Castle afsd., and other large estates (inherited through the families of Cailly and Tateshale), having previously suc. his said grandfather, was found h. to Margaret de Cailly in (1368) 42 Edw. (*) This Adam was s. and h. of another Adam de C. (who d. 1366/7), s. and h. of Roger de Clifton (writ for whose Inq. p. m. is dat. 24 June 4 Edw. III), by Margery, sister and h. of Thomas [Lord] de Cailly, which Margery and Thomas were children of Adam de Cailly, by Emma, his 2nd wife, da. (whose issue became h.) of Robert de Tateshale, of Buckenham abovenamed. There is a well worked pedigree of the owners of Buckenham Castle in Barrett's History of Attleborough. J. H. Round has dealt in his work The King's Serjeants (pp. 149 sqq.), with the claim to the office of Chief Butler as appurtenant to Buckenham, which was the caput of the Norfolk fief of the d'Aubigny Earls of Arundel, of whom the Tateshales were the eldest coheirs. G.E.C. and V.G.

Parl. from 1 Dec. (1376) 50 Edw. III to 28 July (1388) 12 Ric. II, by writs directed Johanni de Clyfton, whereby he is held to have become LORD CLIFTON.^(a) He m. Elizabeth, da. (^a) J. H. Round, who discusses the case of this barony at considerable length in his Peerage and Pedigree, there (vol. i, p. 219) traces to its source the error of Collins, Cruise, and Courthope, that "there was but one writ" to this Gervase. In Creations 1483-1646, in App., 47th Rep. D.K. Pub. Records, the date of Gervase Clifton's first writ of sum. is given as 31 Jan. 1603/4. The compiler of the list was misled by the Parl. Pawn of this date, at the end of which Clifton's name was added, presumably on the day on which his name first appears in the daily list in Lords' Journals, i.e. 9 Feb. 1609/10, for Thomas Clinton and Say and Theophilus Howard de Walden, who immediately precede Clifton on the Pawn, have the date 8 Feb. 1609/10 added after their names. V.G.

(^b) He was grandson of Thomas, Lord Darcy, beheaded 1538. V.G.

(^c) The fact that she was the da. of his 2nd wife has been discredited because the date of Michael Pulteney's death has hitherto been given as 1577 instead of 1567, as on his tomb. Sir Henry Darcy's 1st wife, Katherine, da. of Sir Robert Tyrwhitt, of Leighton Bromswold, d. v.p. and s.p., 1567. The Leighton Bromswold estate seems to have been given to Sir Henry D. by Sir Robert T., whose will, pr. 23 June 1572, appoints his son-in-law his executor, but does not mention the property. V.G.

(^d) "Of him," writes Dugdale, somewhat scornfully, "I have not seen anything farther memorable [i.e. nothing beyond the mere writ of summons] than his commitment to the Tower, 30 Dec. 1617, by reason that he expressed that he was sorry he had not stabbed Sir Francis Bacon, then Lord Keeper, for decreeing a case in Chancery against him; and that, in Oct. 1618, he murdered himself." Pym writes, in his MS. Journal (Hist. MSS. Com., 10th Report, App., vol. vi, p. 84), apparently under date "1614," that "the Lord Clyfton, having married his da. to the Viscount D'Aubigny, since Earl of March, who was at lawe with him for his landes and being put into [the] Fleete, did, or would have, cut his own throate." He had a son who d. soon after Feb. 1601. See Manningham's Diary of that date, where is an account of his gallantly saving the boy from a bear which had broken loose at a baiting at Nottingham. It was not he but his cousin Sir Gervase C., Bart., who figures as "Gervase the Gentle" in the well-known rhyme on the Notts gentry. G.E.C. and V.G.

CLINTON (*)

- BARONY BY WRIT. 1. JOHN DE CLINTON,^(b) of Amington and Maxstoke, co. Warwick, 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h. of Thomas de C.,^(c) of Amington (d. v.p., before 1264), by Maud, da. of Sir Ralph BRACEBRIDGE, of Kinsbury, co. Warwick, was b. probably in 1258. He served, or was called upon to serve,

(*) The Editor is indebted to the writer of the articles in The Ancestor referred to below, p. 316, note "a," for numerous corrections in the earlier portion of this article, and particularly for a new account of the marriages of the 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th lords, and for various additions to the pedigree as shown in the chart on p. 320. V.G.

(b) The name is said to be from the manor of Glington, afterwards Clinton, Northants, near Market Deeping, but the Clintons were Oxfordshire people as early as 1230. In N. & Q., 7th Series, vol. viii, p. 486, it is stated that the 1st Earl of Lincoln "obtained a grant of this very district of Glington," no doubt because of the similarity of name. Lower, in his Family Names, states it to be "from Glimpton, anciently written Clinton, co. Oxford." The founder of the family, Geoffrey de Clinton, Treasurer and Chamberlain to King Henry I, is said, by Ordericus (who, as a contemporary, probably can be trusted), to have been of mean parentage, though, according to some accounts, he was of the noblest Norman extraction.

(c) This Thomas was 1st s. of another Thomas de C., the writ for whose Inq. p. m.

in the Scottish and French wars. He was sum. to Parl. 6 Feb. (1298/9) 27 Edw. I,^(a) by writ directed Johanni de Clinton, whereby he is held to have become LORD CLINTON.^(b) He was never again so sum. He was 2 years later (12 Mar. 1300/1), sum. with more than a thousand others cum equis et armis, being then denominated as of Maxstoke. He appears to have been Knight of the Shire for co. Warwick 1300-01.^(c) Constable of Wallingford Castle, 1308. He m., probably about 1290, Ida, sister and coh. of Edmund d'ODINGSSELLS, 1st da. of William d'ODINGSSELLS, of Maxstoke afsd., by Ela, da. of Walter FITZROBERT, of Woodham Walter, with whom he acquired the Lordship and Castle of Maxstoke and other considerable possessions. He d. late in 1310. His widow accompanied the Queen Consort to France in (1312-13) 6 Edw. II. She, who was b. about 1270, was living 1 Mar. 1321/2.

II. 1310 2. JOHN (DE CLINTON), LORD CLINTON, s. and h., b.
 or probably in, or shortly before 1300. He fought, 16 Mar.
 1332. 1321/2, ex parte Regis, at Boroughbridge.^(d) Knighted before 1324. From 27 Jan. (1331/2) 6 Edw. III^(e) to 1 Apr. (1335) 9 Edw. III, he was sum. to Parl.,^(e) the words "Mortuus est" being added to the last writ. He m., before 24 Feb. 1328/9, Margery, da.

is dat. 12 Jan. 1277/8, and who m. Mazera, da. and h. of James de Bisey, of Baddesley. A yr. s. of this last named Thomas was John de C., called the elder, of Coleshill, co. Warwick, who d. 1315/6. His s. and h. ap., John, m. Alice, da. of Robert de Grendon, and left a s. and h., b. 1304, who d. s.p.m. in 27 Edw. III. For some discussion on mediæval English names, see Appendix C to this volume. G.E.C. and V.G.

(^a) According to the ranking of the Barony in the House of Lords ("Garter's Roll," 1887), whereby "Clinton" is placed next under "Dacre" (cr. 1321), and next above Zouche (1348?) and Botreaux (1368), the origin of the Barony of Clinton can only be considered as originating with the writ of 6 Edw. III (1332) and not with that of 1299. G.E.C. In the present Editor's opinion there was no more intention to cr. an hereditary Barony by one summons than by the other. V.G.

(^c) It is certainly surprising to find the man sum. in 1298/9, who then became according to modern doctrine a peer of the realm, elected to the House of Commons a year or two later. Nevertheless it is difficult to suggest who else but this "nobleman" can have been the M.P. who in the return is described as of Maxstoke, and in the writ of expenses as junior. It certainly cannot have been his uncle John nor his cousin John (see note "c" on preceding page), who were not of Maxstoke nor his son John, who was under age in 9 Edw. II. V.G.

(^d) For an account of this battle see volume ii, Appendix C.

(^e) The fact that his yr. br., William, should have been sum. some 16 months before him (see post, p. 324) and that both William and John should have been sum. at the same time in 1331/2, thus according to modern doctrine creating two peers without any distinction in title, offers a striking commentary on the still generally received notion that such writs were intended to confer any title at all. V.G.

of Sir William CORBET, of Chaddesley Corbet, co. Worcester. He d. about 1335.^(a) His widow was living May 1343.

III. 1335? 3. JOHN (DE CLINTON), LORD CLINTON, s. and h. On the death, 25 Aug. 1354, of his paternal uncle, William (de Clinton), Earl of Huntingdon, he was found his h., and then aged 28, being b. not later than Mar. 1325/6.^(b) Having previously been knighted, he served in 1355 in the French wars, and was at the battle of Poitiers 1356. He was sum. to Parl. from 15 Dec. (1357) 30 Edw. III to 5 Nov. (1397) 21 Ric. II. On 30 May 1377 he was ordered to go to his manor of Folkestone to resist an apprehended invasion by the French.^(c) In 1380 he was again in the wars with France. Keeper of the lands of the attainted Earl of Warwick 1390, and Constable of Warwick Castle 1390 to Sep. 1397. He m., 1stly, probably in 1350, Idoine,^(d) da. (whose issue, in 1399, became coh.) of Geoffrey (DE SAY), LORD SAY, by Maud, da. of Guy (DE BEAUCHAMP), EARL OF WARWICK. He is presumed^(e) to have m., 2ndly, (—). She d. before 26 June 1384.^(f) He m., probably 3rdly, Joan, widow of Sir Philip LIMBURY, who d. 6 July 1367.^(g) She d. 21 Feb. 1387/8.^(h) He m., probably 4thly, before 24 Oct. 1388, when he had pardon for m. without lic., Elizabeth, widow of Robert (GREY), LORD GREY (of Rotherfield), and before that of Sir John (s. of Fulk) DE BERMINGHAM (whom she m. before 3 July 1356, when aged 9),⁽ⁱ⁾ posthumous da. and eventually sole h. of William DE LA PLAUNCHE, of Haversham, Bucks, by Elizabeth, coheir of her br. Serving in the war with France in 1441, he was taken prisoner and detained more than 6 years, when he was ransomed for 6,000 marks. He was sum. to Parl. 4 Sep. (1450) 29 Hen. VI to 30 July (1460) 38 Hen. (*) With regard to this description of him in the writ, the Barony of Say, as a creation by the writ of 1313, was junior to that of the Barony of Clinton (1299), but the Lords Clinton seem to have been known from 1399 onwards (see sub 6th and 9th Lords) as Lords Clinton and Say. The Barony of Say was then (1536) in abeyance, having been so since 1399, unless indeed, as some would hold, it was terminated by this summons. J. H. BARONY BY WRIT. 15. MARGARET, suo jure BARONESS CLINTON, who, on the death of her cousin, Margaret Fortescue, spinster, abovenamed, 14 Mar. 1760, became entitled to that dignity as sole h. to her great-grandfather, the 12th Lord, she being only da. and h. of Samuel ROLLE, of Heanton Satchville, in Petroxstow, Devon (by Margaret, da. of Roger TUCKFIELD, of Raddon Court, in Thorverton, Devon), which Samuel (who d. 1719) was s. and h. of Robert Rolle, of the same, by Arabella, 1st da. of Theophilus (CLINTON), 5th EARL OF LINCOLN and 17th LORD CLINTON abovenamed. She, who was b. 17, and bap. 27 Jan. 1709, at Petroxstow, m. there, 1stly, 26 Mar. 1724, Robert (WALPOLE), 2nd EARL OF ORFORD [1746], who d. 31 Mar. 1751, aged 50. Within two months of his death, she m., 2ndly, 25 May 1751 (mar. reg. at Keith's Chapel, Mayfair, Midx.), the Hon. Sewallis SHIRLEY, 4th s. of Robert, 1st EARL FERRERS. (b) This lady was generally, though erroneously, considered to have become suo jure Baroness Clinton on the death of her brother in 1751, and is so styled in Edmondson's Baronagium. She was, however, only a coheir to such Barony at that date, the determination thereof in 1721, in her brother's favour, extending only to the heirs of his body, on failure of which it fell (as before) into abeyance. She, however, d. unm., at Ebrington, co. Gloucester, 14 Mar. 1760, and at her death the abeyance of the Barony terminated, the issue of Lady Margaret Boscawen, born Clinton, being thereby extinct. She d. s.p., 29 Aug. 1875, in her 80th year, at 28 St. James's Place, Midx. Will pr. 17 Sep. 1875, under £180,000.

(a) See vol. iv, Appendix H, for similar allowances of Peerages where the abeyance has terminated.

(b) His name does not appear in any division list, nor is it appended to any Protest in the House of Lords. As to his politics the Editor can only say that he was not one of the small band of Fox's followers in the Upper House. The mansion of Heanton Satchville, formerly belonging to the Rolles, was burnt in 1795, the family with difficulty escaping. V.G.

(c) He voted for Cath. emancipation, and for the Reform Bill. V.G.

CLINTON

BARONY BY WRIT. WILLIAM DE CLINTON, yr. s. of John [LORD] CLINTON, by Ida, da. of William d'ODINGSSELLS, was sum. to Parl. from 6 Sep. (1330) 4 Edw. III to 14 Jan. (1336/7) 10 Edw. BARONY [I.] I. ROBERT CLIVE, s. and h. of Richard C., of Styche, Salop (who d. May 1771), by Rebecca, da. and coh. of Nathaniel GASKELL, of Manchester, was b. at Styche 29 Sep., and bap. 2 Oct. 1725, at Moreton-Say. He was ed. at 4 different schools, viz.: (1) Lostock, in Cheshire; (2) Market

^(a) As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title, see Appendix A in the last volume. As to this particular case see also p. 313, note "c."

^(b) There is no doubt of this fact, inasmuch as his elder brother's son, Sir John [Lord] Clinton, was found his heir. According to some accounts he had a da. Elizabeth, who m. Sir John Fitzwilliam, of Sprotborough, and was ancestress of the succeeding race there, as also of the present Earl Fitzwilliam. The only probable surmise as to this daughter, who inherited none of his lands, is, that, if she ever existed, she was illegitimate.

^(c) It is remarkable that in his will, dat. 23 Aug. 1354, he is called "William, Lord Clinton" [only], and his widow, in her will, dat. 30 Oct. 1367, is called "Julian de Clinton." Both are given in the Test. Vet.

Drayton, when aged 11; (3) Merchant Taylors, London, when aged 12; and (4) at Hemel Hempstead, Herts. When aged 19, in 1744, he arrived at Madras, having been, in 1743, appointed a Writer in the service of the East India Company. In 1747, however, he obtained an Ensign's commission, and fought at the siege of Pondicherry, and, as Lieut., commanded the forlorn hope that stormed Dévikota. In 1751 he took the city of Arcot, but returned to England for 3 years in 1753, and was M.P. (Whig) for St. Michaels, 1754-55. In 1756, as Lieut. Col., he was made Lieut. Gov. of Fort St. David, of which he took charge 19 June 1756, and finally, 23 June 1757, gained a glorious victory at Plassey, where, being Commander of the British forces in India, he, with 3,200 men, routed 50,000 foot and 18,000 horse, and put to death Surajah Dowlah; thus avenging the outrage perpetrated by him known as "the black hole of Calcutta." In Surajah's room Mir Jaffier was made Nabob of Calcutta, Clive himself being made Governor of the Company's possessions, 1758, when he defeated a Dutch force, near Chinsura, and compelled them to sue for peace. He resigned in 1760, when he visited England. Here he was received enthusiastically, was elected M.P. for Shrewsbury 1761 (a seat he retained till his death), and cr. D.C.L. of Oxford 2 Sep. 1760. On 15 Mar. 1762, he was cr. BARON CLIVE OF PLASSEY,^(a) co. Clare [I.]; nom. and inv. K.B. 24 Apr. 1764, but not installed till 15 June 1772. He resigned 20 Jan. 1767, and returned finally to England, where "his stern repression of abuses and inflexible enforcement of orders"^(b) had made him many enemies, both in the civil service and in the army. A parliamentary enquiry ensued, lasting two sessions and ending in May 1773, wherein, though Clive was censured for the large sums he had obtained from Mir Jaffier, his "great and meritorious services" were acknowledged.^(c) The anxiety and worry of these pro-

(b) See "CLIVE" by Sir A. J. Arbuthnot, in Dict. Nat. Biog., where the writer points out the extraordinary fact of how few years it took to lay the foundations of the British Indian Empire. Six years from 1747 to Feb. 1753 (during which period Clive twice reverted to civil employment), about four years from Nov. 1755 to Feb. 1760, and finally but 22 months to 1767, so that "Clive's real work in India occupied a little less than twelve years."

(c) His chief opponents in Parl. were Burgoyne and Thurlow, his chief supporters Wedderburn (whom he brought into Parl. for his pocket-borough of Bishop's Castle), Conway, and Lord George Germaine. Of his speech in his own defence, Horace Walpole, who regarded him as guilty, wrote that he "shone eminently as a real great man." By the elder Pitt he was spoken of as "that Heaven-born General." Macaulay says of his appearance, "Though his person was ungraceful, and though his harsh features were redeemed from vulgar ugliness only BARONY [I.] 1. NICHOLAS LAWLESS, 1st s. of Robert L., of the city of Dublin (who d. 16 Mar. 1779),^(a) by Mary, da. of Dominick HADSOR, of Dublin, merchant, was b. 3 Dec. 1733; “bred a Catholic,”^(a) and was “engaged in commerce.”^(a) He conformed to the established church and returned to Ireland from Galleville, in Normandy, being of Abington, co. Limerick. He was cr. a BARONET [I.] 6 Aug. 1776. M.P. for Lifford, 1776-89.

^(a) “A resident of Dublin [who] acquired a considerable fortune in the woollen manufacture.” See Owen and Debrett’s Peerage, 1790, vol. iii, p. 430, and Sir Egerton Brydges’ Biographical Peerage, 1817, vol. iv, p. 365. The ennobling of one engaged in trade, somewhat scandalised Dublin Society. His Lordship is said to have found the following verse (attributed to Miss de Burgh) in his box at a theatre where “Don Quixote” (and the scene in which Sancho Panza is “tossed”) was to be represented:—

“Cloncurry, Cloncurry, don’t be in a hurry,
To see them toss up the poor squire;
Tho’ high he must go, yet we very well know,
Your blankets have tossed you much higher.”

On 29 Sep. 1789^(a) he was cr. BARON CLONCURRENCY OF CLONCURRENCY, co. Kildare [I.], taking his seat 21 Jan. 1790. He m., 13 Oct. 1761, at St. Peter's, Dublin, Margaret, da. and h. of Valentine BROWNE, of Dublin, brewer. She, who was b. 24 Aug. 1748, d. 10 Feb. 1795, in Upper Merrion Str., Dublin, and was bur. at Crumlin, co. Dublin. He d. 28 Aug. 1799, at Maretimo, Blackrock, near Dublin, and was bur. at Crumlin afsd. Will pr. 1799.

II. 1799. 2 and I. VALENTINE BROWNE (LAWLESS), BARON CLONCURRENCY [I.], 2nd but only surv. s. and h., b. 19 Aug. 1773, in Merrion Sq., and bap. at St. Peter's, Dublin; ed. at Trin. Coll. Dublin, B.A., 1792; was a member of "the Society of United Irishmen" (founded in 1791), opposing the projected Union and all other Government measures; was imprisoned for six weeks in 1798, and again in 1799 for 2 years, on suspicion of treason. He took part in 1821 in defeating a loyal address to George IV proposed to have been sent by the county of Dublin. He was, however, in the next reign, made P.C. [I.] 23 May 1831, and, being a Liberal, was cr., 14 Sep. 1831, BARON CLONCURRENCY OF CLONCURRENCY, co. Kildare [U.K.]. He m., 1stly, 16 Apr. 1803, at Rome, Elizabeth Georgiana, yst. da. of Lieut. Gen. Charles MORGAN, Com. in Chief in the East Indies. This marriage was dissolved by Act of Parl., 26 June 1811,^(b) and, four days afterwards, he m., 2ndly, 30 June 1811, at Carnallwey, co. Kildare, Emily, widow of Joseph LEESON, 3rd da. of Archibald DOUGLAS, of Darnock, by Mary, da. of Sir Paul CROSBIE, 4th Bart. [S.], of Crosbie Park, co. Wicklow. She d. 15 June 1841, at the London Hotel, Albemarle Str. He d. 28 Oct. 1853, aged 80, at Maretimo, afsd.,^(c) and was bur. at Lyons Castle.

^(a) For a list of promotions and creations in the Irish peerage at this time see Appendix H to this volume. His peerage was generally regarded as having been paid for in hard cash, and indeed, in 1799 he wrote to the Duke of Portland, "If I have obtained any honours, they have cost me their full value." Nevertheless he continued actively though vainly, to beg for further advancement in the Peerage. "His person has more of the stiffness of a French dancing-master than of the easy disengaged air of a well bred gentleman; and his voice is peculiarly unpleasing, it having a sharp querulous tone grating to the ear, equally destitute of strength or sweetness, melody or compass . . . The great object on which his heart is fixed, next to the accumulation of money, is the attainment of a peerage, and to procure that splendid distinction, he has for some years dedicated himself most assiduously to the service of every administration." (A Review of the Irish House of Commons, 1789, by the Rev. John Scott). His Irish estates are said in 1799 to have been worth £12,000 p.a. For a list of the largest resident Irish landlords at that date, see vol. iv, Appendix C. V.G.

BARONY [I.] I. THE RT. HON. RALPH HOWARD, was, 21 July 1776, cr. BARON CLONMORE, of Clonmore Castle, co. Carlow [I.], taking his seat 14 Oct. 1777. On 21 June 1785, he was cr. VISCOUNT WICKLOW, of co. Wicklow [I.]. See "WICKLOW," Viscounty [I.], cr. 1785.

CLONTARFF

VISCOUNTCY [I.] JOHN RAWSON, 1st s. of Richard R., Alderman, and (1476-77) Sheriff of London, and Master of the Mercers' Company, by Isabella, da. and h. or coh. of (—) CRAFORD,^(a) was admitted free of the Mercers' Company, 1492, but joined the Order of the Knights of St. John before Sep. 1497, being then mentioned as "a Knight of Rhodes." In 1511 he was made Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, at Kilmainham, co. Dublin,^(b) and P.C. [I.], and in 1517 was Lord Treasurer [I.]. In 1522 he was one of the Knights who bravely, but without success, resisted the capture of the island of Rhodes by the Sultan. In 1527 he was Turcopolier of the order, but shortly afterwards returned to his post in Ireland, resigning the Treasurership in 1532. He surrendered into the hands of the King the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem at Kilmainham, 22 Nov. 1541, receiving a grant of 500 marks annually therefrom, and in accordance with Royal letters, dat. at Windsor, 5 Nov. 1540, was cr. 20 June 1541, VISCOUNT CLONTARFF,^(c) co. Dublin [I.], for life, with an annuity of £10 annexed. He was old and impotent in 1538, and his signature to letters of the Privy Council [I.] does not appear after 1543. He probably d. in 1547, but is usually said to have d. at a great age, in 1560. At his death his life Peerage became extinct.

^(b) This Priory was suppressed in 1541 by Act of Parl. [I.] 33 Hen. VIII, sess. 2, cap. v. About the end of 1557 Queen Mary, although the Act was unrepealed, gave back Kilmainham to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, and appointed a Prior, Oswald Massingberd, who fled to the Continent on the accession of Elizabeth. V.G.

^(c) This appears to have been at the recommendation of the Lord Deputy St. Leger, who writes 12 Sep. 1540 that "the Lord Kilmainham, Lord of St. John's here," is reported to have, "for the long time of his abode here, been the person which, next to your Majesty's Deputy, hath always kept the best house and English sort, and, at all times when strangers hath repaired thither, feasted and entertained them to your Highnesse's honour." He therefore suggests that his Lordship should be raised to the honour of Viscount Clontarff "which is a place where he intendeth to make his abode; and to be a Lord of your Parliament and of your Council." CLUN AND OSWESTRY

[The Lordship of Clun in Shropshire belonged, temp. Stephen, to Ingram de Say, whose da. and h., Isabel, brought it to her husband, William FitzAlan, feudal Lord of Oswaldestre (i.e. Oswestry) in that co., who d. about 1210. This John FitzAlan d. 1240, and was suc. by his s. and h., John FitzAlan, feudal Lord of Clun and Oswestry, to whom (jure matris) the Castle and Honour of Arundel were awarded, 27 Nov. 1243, whereby, according to the admission of 1433,^(a) he became EARL OF ARUNDEL. With this Earldom these Lordships continued united, passing with it to the Howard family (see tabular pedigree, vol. i, p. 253), till, on the attainder of Philip (Howard), Earl of Arundel, in 1589, they were granted to (his uncle) Henry Howard, afterwards Earl of Northampton, who transferred them to his (the grantee's) nephew, Thomas Howard, Earl of Suffolk. They were, however, apparently, not in the possession of Thomas Howard, the restored Earl of Arundel, next below mentioned, in 1627, the date on which the titles of his ancestors were confirmed to him.]

THOMAS (HOWARD), EARL OF ARUNDEL AND EARL OF SURREY (s. and h. of Philip, Earl of Arundel, attainted in 1589 as abovementioned), obtained 3 Car. I (1627) an Act of Parl. "For the annexing of the

From this period therefore the Baronies of Clun and Oswestry (which hitherto had been mere feudal Lordships) may possibly be considered as Peerage dignities,^(b) and as being, together with FitzAlan and Mautravers, annexed to the Earldom of Arundel. CLYDE OF CLYDESDALE

BARONY.

I. 1858 COLIN M'LIVER, afterwards known as CAMPBELL, s. of to John M'LIVER, of the city of Glasgow, cabinetmaker, by 1863. Agnes, sister of Colin CAMPBELL (an ensign killed in the American War), and of Col. John Campbell, who appears to have adopted him, was b. 20 Oct. 1792, at Glasgow.^(c)
He was ed. at the High school, Glasgow, and at the Military Academy, Gosport. On 26 May 1808 he was gazetted, under the name of Campbell, as ensign in the 9th Foot, and served in the Peninsula; served at Vimiera in 1808, and at Corunna and at Walcheren in 1809; returned to Spain in 1810; fought at Barrosa, Tarifa, and Vittoria, being twice severely wounded (25 July 1813) while leading a forlorn hope at the siege of San Sebastian, and again at the battle of Bidassoa four months later, after which he returned to England. Col. 1842; A.D.C. to the Queen 1842-54; as Lieut. Col. of the 98th Foot, he served in China at the capture, on 21 July, of Chin-Kiang-Fu; C.B. 24 Dec. 1842; in 1848 he served in India, being in command of the 3rd Division of the Army of the Punjab, in the second Sikh war, being at Ramnuggur, and in 1849, at Chillianwallah (where, though again wounded, his leadership decided the

^(b) On these dignities J. Horace Round remarks: "It is difficult to decide the precise status of the title or titles 'CLUN AND OSWALDESTRE,' after the passing (in 1627) of this anomalous Act. What the measure really did was to stereotype one of the many erroneous assumptions of titles in the 17th century; but, how far an Act, passed on the erroneous supposition (based, possibly, on a preamble which, in those days, would not require to be proved), that Clun and Oswaldestre were Peerage dignities, could convert them into such dignities is, to say the least, doubtful. No such mode of creation is, surely, known to the Constitution."

In the Crimean war he commanded the Highland brigade; was personally thanked by Lord Raglan for his conduct at the battle of the Alma, 20 Sep. 1854, and was entrusted with the defence of Balaklava, when he successfully resisted a Russian assault in force, 25 Oct. 1854. Major Gen. 1854; Col. of the 67th Foot 1854-58; of the 93rd Foot 1858-60; and of the Coldstream Guards 1860 till his death; Lieut. Gen. 1856; Gen. 1858. He was thanked by Parl., and cr. G.C.B. 5 July 1855; Inspector Gen. of Infantry 1856-57; cr. D.C.L., Oxford, 24 June 1857; made free of the city of London Dec. 1860. From June 1857 till 1860 he was Commander in Chief in India, where he succeeded in quelling the Sepoy mutiny, storming the Dilkoosha Palace and the Secunder Bagh at Lucknow in Nov. 1857, which city he finally captured in Mar. 1858, completing the re-conquest of the Doab, Rohilcund, and Oude. On 16 Aug. 1858 he was cr. BARON CLYDE OF CLYDESDALE, in Scotland, and received (again) the thanks of Parl. in 1859; K.S.I. 25 June 1861; and FIELD MARSHAL in Nov. 1862, on the majority of the Prince of Wales. He was also a Grand officer of the French Legion of Honour; a Knight Grand Cross of the Sardinian Order of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus, and 1st class of the Turkish Order of the Medjidie. He d. unm., aged 70, at the Government House, Chatham, 14, and was bur. 22 Aug. 1863, in Westm. (^a) The great Marquess of Dalhousie seems to have somewhat underrated his capacity. He writes on 7 Apr. 1855, "He was always a very gallant fellow, most attentive to his men, active, hale, and well-spirited. I daresay he will now make a good divisional officer; but I have known and heard much of him, and I do not believe him capable of high command." "He had an old fashioned fatherly courtesy, which, joined to his great reputation, made him very fascinating. . . . He was a very remarkable looking man, lionlike in appearance. His grizzled hair stood up stiff and curly: hard work, climate and anxiety had ploughed deep furrows in his face, and in every line one read power and determination." (Many Memories of many People, by M. C. M. Simpson, 1898, p. 103). "In person," says The Times, "Lord Clyde was well-knit, symmetrical and graceful. . . . To the last his teeth remained full and firm in the great square jaws, and his eye pierced the distance with all the force of his youthful vision. His crisp grey locks still stood close and thick, curling over the head above the wrinkled brow, and there were few of the external signs of the decay of nature. . . . women admired and men were delighted with the courteous, polished, gallant old soldier. . . . He rose by the mere force of sterling ability, complete knowledge of his profession, sound sense, high honour, and an honest, industrious, and laborious performance of duty." V.G.

COBHAM

BARONY BY WRIT. I. SIR RALPH DE COBHAM, s. of John de C. (whose relationship to the other members of that large family is unknown), was sum. to Parl. from 30 Dec. (1324)

I. 1324.

18 Edw. II to 20 Feb. (1324/5) 18 Edw. II, by writs directed Radulfo de Cobham, whereby he is held to have become LORD COBHAM.^(a) He was a prominent soldier, and held a command under the Earl of Richmond at the battle of Byland Abbey in Yorkshire, 14 Oct. 1322, where the English were defeated by the Scots under Robert Bruce. COBHAM (of Kent)^(c)

BARONY BY WRIT. I. HENRY DE COBHAM, s. and h. of John de C., of Cobham and Cowling, Kent (d. 1300, before 30 Mar.),

I. 1313.

Constable of Rochester and one of the Barons of the Exchequer, by his 1st wife, Joan, da. and coh. of Sir Robert DE SEPTVANS, had livery of his father's lands 10 May 1300, being then aged 40, in which year (as again 1311-15) he was in the expedition to Scotland; Constable of Rochester, for life, 1303/4; as "Henry de Cobham junior" he was Constable of Dover Castle, and Warden of the Cinque Ports, 1315-16.^(d) He was sum. to Parl. from 8 Jan. (1312/3), 6 Edw. II to 22 Jan. (1335/6) 9 Edw. III, by writs directed Henrico de Cobham, whereby he is held to have become LORD COBHAM.^(e) He sided with Edward II against the rebellious Barons, and presided at Canterbury at the arraignment of Lord Badlesmere as a traitor in 1322. Governor of Tonbridge Castle, 1324. He m., before July 1285, when she was living, Maud, widow with distinction in S. Africa and elsewhere, and has been Governor of Chelsea Hospital since 1912; Arthur Temple L. was Bishop of Southampton till his death, 19 Feb. 1903; Edward has been Head Master of Eton since 1905; and Alfred was Sec. for the Colonies 1903-05. V.G.

^(a) Both he and his youngest br. Alfred have been first class tennis players. V.G.

^(c) See articles by J. G. Waller on "the Lords of Cobham" in the Archæologia Cantiana, vol. xi, pp. 49-112, and vol. xii, pp. 113-166.

^(d) A Henry de Cobham was Warden from Oct. 1306 to 1307, but this was probably his uncle Henry of Rundale, see post, p. 351, note "b"; but the identification of the holder of the office either in 1306 or 1315 is not certain. V.G.

^(e) As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title, see Appendix A in the last volume. V.G.

of Matthew DE COLUMBERS, da. of Eudes DE MOREVILLE. He d. 25 Aug. 1339, aged 79, at Hache, and was bur. in the Beauchamp chapel at Stoke-under-Hamden, Somerset.

II. 1339. 2. JOHN (DE COBHAM), LORD COBHAM, s. and h., knighted before 1326/7; M.P. for Kent, 1326/7, 1330, 1332, 1335, 1335/6, and 1336/7; Constable of Rochester, jointly with his father, for their lives, 1334; Admiral of the Fleet from the Thames westward 1335. He was sum. to a Council, 12 Sep. and 12 Nov. (1342) 16 Edw. III, and to Parl. from 24 Nov. (1350) 24 Edw. III to 15 Mar. (1355) 29 Edw. III, by writs directed Johanni de Cobham. In 1354 he received, doubtless for his military prowess, the dignity of Banneret, with an annuity of 100 marks to support the same. He m., 1stly, in 1314, Joan, da. of Sir John BEAUCHAMP [1ST LORD BEAUCHAMP of Somerset], of Hache, Somerset, by Joan his wife. She was living 1343.^(a) He m., 2ndly, Agnes, da. of Richard STONE, of Dartford. He d. 25 Feb. 1354/5, and was bur. in Cobham Church. M.I.

III. 1355. 3. JOHN (DE COBHAM), LORD COBHAM, s. and h. by 1st wife, was sum. to Parl. 20 Sep. (1355) 29 Edw. III, by writ directed Johanni de Cobham, and from 24 Feb. (1368) 42 Edw. III to 18 July (1397) 21 Ric. II, with the addition of the description de Kent, and from 19 Aug. (1399) 23 Ric. II to 9 Feb. (1406) 7 Hen. IV, by writs directed Johanni de Cobham chivaler.^(b) He served in various French expeditions, 1359 to 1376, being made a Banneret in 1370, while, as a Statesman, he was twice appointed to mediate with the French and once with the Flemings. In 1386 he was one of the 14 Commissioners who formed a Council of Regency,^(c) and was one of the Lords appointed to examine into the state of the King's Court; and in 1388 one of the Lords Appellant who impeached de la Pole, de Veer, and others, the King's favourites. He sat as a member of the Court of Chivalry, both in 1389 and 1392. He was impeached in Jan. 1397/8, at Shrewsbury, for his part in the Commission of 1388, and condemned to be hanged, but pardoned on condition of banishment to Jersey, whence he returned within two years at the accession of Henry IV. He m., when a minor, and apparently very young, in 1332-33, Margaret, 1st da. of Hugh (COURTENAY), EARL OF DEVON, by Margaret, da. of Humphrey (DE BOHUN), EARL OF HEREFORD, and granddaughter of EDWARD I. She d. 2 Aug. 1385, and was bur. at Cobham. Brass and M.I. He d. s.p.m., at an advanced age (74 years after his marriage),

^(a) She was not improbably bur. in Rochester Cathedral. See Arch. Cant., vol. xi, p. 56.

^(c) This Council, appointed by the "Wonderful Parliament," included the Dukes of York and Gloucester, the Earl of Arundel, Richard, Lord Scrope, and John, Lord Devereux. V.G.

10 Jan. 1407/8.^(a) His brass, probably set up in his lifetime, is in Cobham Church, but he was bur. at the Grey Friars, London.^(b)

IV. 1408. 4. JOAN, suo jure BARONESS COBHAM, granddaughter and h., being da. and h. of Sir John DE LA POLE, of Crishall, Essex (s. of Sir William de la Pole, of Castle Ashby), by Joan, only child of John, LORD COBHAM abovenamed, which last named Joan (who m. in 1362, cont. dat. 21 Oct.) d. v.p., about 1388. At an early age she m., 1stly, before Nov. 1380,^(c) Sir Robert HEMENHALE, of Norfolk, who d. 1391, and was bur. in Westm. Abbey. She m., 2ndly, Sir Reynold BRAYBROKE, who d. s.p.m.s., at Middleburg on the Scheldt, 20 Sep. 1405, and was bur. in Cobham Church. Brass and M.I. She m., 3rdly, within a year of his death, as 2nd wife, Sir Nicholas HAWBERK, who d. (leaving by her a son, John, who d. an infant) 9 Oct. 1407, and was bur. in Cobham Church. Brass and M.I. Within 3 months of his death she suc. her grandfather. She m., 4thly, as 3rd wife, before 18 July 1408, Sir John OLDCASTELL, who (probably in consequence of this marriage,^(d) but without any designation which would prove such to have been the case) was sum. to Parl. from 26 Oct. (1409) 11 Hen. IV to 22 Mar. (1413/4) 2 Hen. V,^(e) by writs directed Johanni Oldcastell Chlr, whereby he is held to have become LORD OLDCASTELL. See fuller account under that title. He was hanged in St. Giles's Fields,^(f) 25 Dec. 1417, as a heretic and a traitor. She m., 5thly, Sir John HARPEDEN, who survived her for 24 years, and d. 1458, being bur. in Westm. Abbey. Brass and M.I. there. She d. s.p.m.s., 13 Jan. 1433/4, and was bur. in Cobham Church. Brass and M.I.^(g)

(^a) A tabular pedigree shewing the relationship of the eight persons (some of them his 4th cousins) of the name of Cobham, on whom he entailed his estate, failing the heirs of his body, is printed in Arch. Cant., vol. xi, p. 81.

(^b) "In tumba elevata jacet D'nus Joh'es Cobham Baro de com. Kancie." See Coll. Top. et Gen., vol. v, p. 387. He is described by Walsingham as "vir grandaeus simplex et rectus." He is famous as a Founder, a Warrior, and a Statesman. In 1362 he founded a perpetual chantry or College at Cobham; later on, he repaired and sumptuously decorated the church of Cobham, and put a new roof on that of Cowling, and finally, 1380-85, he built the well fortified Castle of Cowling.

(^c) By him she had a s., William, who d. s.p., after 1391.

(^d) It should be noted that he was the only one of her 5 husbands so summoned. V.G.

(^e) In the proceedings against him in Parl. in 1417, he is styled "Dominum Joh'em Oldcastell, Militem, Dominum de Cobham," and in the paper, read 23 Sep. 1413, declaring his faith, he styles himself "John Oldcastle, Knight, and Lord Cobham."

(^f) According to Foxe's Martyrs, he was "roasted" in January. V.G.

(^g) In this brass her 2nd husband only (by whom only, apparently, she had surviving issue) is commemorated. On the brass are no less than 6 sons and 4 daughters, besides 6 coats of arms, the last being those of her son-in-law, viz. Brooke impaling Cobham. These are fully described by J. G. Waller in the Arch. Cant. All the brasses at Cobham are well represented in Belcher's Kentish Brasses, as also (in smaller size) in the Arch. Cant., vols. xi and xii.

V. 1434. 5. JOAN, apparently, suo jure BARONESS COBHAM, only surv.^(a) da. and h. (by the 2nd husband, Sir Reynold BRAYBROKE), was, at her mother's death, wife of Sir Thomas BROOKE, of Brooke, Somerset, and of Holdich in Thorncombe, Devon, her marr. settl. having been dat. 20 Feb. 1409/10. He was 26 years old, Jan. 1417/8, when he suc. his father, another Sir Thomas Brooke; was M.P. for Somerset, 1417, 1421, 1422, and 1427. He was knighted between 1416 and 1421, and appears, jure uxoris, to have been considered LORD COBHAM. Will, in which he styles himself "Thomas Brook, Knight, and Lord of Cobham," dat. 12 Feb. 1438.^(b) He d. 1439, and was bur. at Thorncombe, Devon. M.I. His wife survived him.

VI. 1443? 6. EDWARD BROOKE, LORD COBHAM, s. and h.; M.P. for Somerset 1442; he was sum. to Parl. from 13 Jan. (1444/5) 23 Hen. VI to 28 Feb. (1462/3) 2 Edw. IV, by writs^(c) directed Edwardo Broke de Cobham Chivaler. He was a staunch Yorkist; fought at St. Albans, 23 May 1455, and took part in the solemn procession to St. Paul's, London, and was at the battle of Northampton, 10 July 1460. He m. Elizabeth, da. of James (TUCHET), LORD AUDLEY, by his 2nd wife, Eleanor,^(d) illegit. da. of Thomas (HOLAND), EARL OF KENT. He d. 1464, before 8 Nov., when his widow Joan [sic] had pardon for having m. without lic. Christopher WORSLEY, "the King's servant."^(e)

VII. 1464. 7. JOHN (BROOKE), LORD COBHAM, s. and h. He was a minor 10 Dec. 1467, when his custody and marriage were granted to Edward Neville, the King's uncle. He was sum. to Parl.^(e) from 19 Aug. (1472) 12 Edw. IV to 28 Nov. (1511) 3 Hen. VIII. He attended the Coronation of Richard III, 6 July 1483,^(f) from whom he received several grants.^(g) He was employed by Henry VII (1491-92) in an expedition into Flanders, and on 24 June 1497 (with Lord Abergavenny) defeated the Cornish insurrection at Blackheath, where his cousin, Lord Audley (afterwards executed), was taken prisoner. He m., 1stly, Eleanor,

(a) "Henry Oldcastle, son and heir of John, Lord Cobham," is mentioned in Patent Roll, 7 Hen. VI, but this appears to have been one of Sir John's four children by a previous wife. By Joan, Lady Cobham, he had, apparently, but one child, Joan, a da., who d. young.

(b) It is printed in Furnivall's Fifty Earliest English Wills, 1387-1439.

(c) There is proof in the Rolls of Parl. of his sitting.

(d) See as to her parentage, The Genealogist, N.S., vol. xxviii, part 1, p. 62.

(e) Patent Roll, 8 Nov. 1464. V.G.

(f) For a list of the 35 peers there present, see note sub Humphrey, LORD DACRE (of Gillesland) [1473].

(g) He is wrongly stated (Materials illustrative of the reign of Hen. VII, vol. ii, p. 282) to have been Steward of the King's Household and Receiver General of the Duchy of Cornwall 15 Mar. 1487/8. The man who held this post was Robert, 1st Lord Willoughby (of Broke). V.G.

da. of (—) AUSTELL, of Suffolk. She d. s.p. He m., 2ndly, Margaret, da. of Edward (NEVILL), LORD ABERGAVENNY, by his 2nd wife, Katherine, da. of Sir Robert HOWARD. She d. 30 Sep. 1506, and was bur. at Cobham. Brass and M.I. He d. 9 Mar. 1511/2.

VIII. 1512. 8. THOMAS (BROOKE), LORD COBHAM, s. and h. by 2nd wife, had livery of his father's lands 29 May 1512. He was sum. to Parl. from 23 Nov. (1514) 6 Hen. VIII^(a) to 15 Apr. (1523) 14 Hen. VIII. He took part in the wars with France; was at the siege of Tournay, and at the "battle of Spurs," 18 Aug. 1513; was made Knight Banneret by the King in 1514; was at the "Field of the Cloth of Gold" in 1520;^(b) one of the 12 Barons for the trial of the Duke of Buckingham 1521, and in 1525 was one of the Commissioners for the co. of Kent to levy the arbitrary assessment imposed by the Royal prerogative. He m., 1stly, Dorothy, da. of Sir Henry HEYDON, of Baconsthorpe, by Anne, da. of Sir Geoffrey BOLEYN, by whom he had 13 children. He m., 2ndly, Dorothy SOUTHWELL, widow, who d. s.p. He m., 3rdly, Elizabeth HART, by whom he had no issue. He d. 19 July 1529, and was bur. at Cobham. Brass and M.I.^(c) Will, not signed, but to which he set his "seale of armes," dat. 7 July 1529, registered (no probate) 1530. His widow was living 31 Mar. 1552.

IX. 1529. 9. GEORGE (BROOKE), LORD COBHAM, 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h., by 1st wife, was b. about 1497. He attended with his father at the marriage in France, 1514, of the Princess Mary with Louis XII. In July 1523 he was knighted in the French war, after the taking of Morlaix, by the Earl of Surrey. He was sum. to Parl. from 2 Nov. (1529) 21 Hen. VIII to 20 Jan. (1557/8) 4 and 5 Ph. et Mar., by writs directed Georgio Brooke de Cobham. He had lic. of entry

(^a) In a list fabricated by Dugdale, which appears in his Summonses, pp. 491-2, his father's name "John" is given instead of his own "Thomas." As to this misleading concoction of Dugdale's, one among many, see note sub II Lord Willoughby of Broke. V.G.

(^b) For a list of those present on this occasion see vol. vi, Appendix B.

(^c) Wherein he is described as "cousin and heir of Sir Richard Beauchamp, Knt," so that, apparently, he must have inherited some considerable property in right of such cousinship. This Richard (Beauchamp), Lord St. Amand, was s. and h. of Sir William Beauchamp (d. 1457), by Elizabeth, the only child that had issue of Gerard Braybroke, who was only s. and h. ap. of Sir Gerard Braybroke, by Eleanor de St. Amand (the only child that had issue of Lord St. Amand), the issue of which last-named couple came to an end on the death, s.p. legit., of the abovenamed "Sir Richard Beauchamp, Knt." (Lord St. Amand), their great-grandson, in 1508. Through this Richard's mother (Elizabeth Braybroke), the Lords Cobham thus became "his heir," being descendants of Sir Reynold Braybroke, and Joan, suo jure Baroness Cobham (No. IV), as set forth in the text, the said Reynold being next br. to the said Sir Gerard Braybroke, who m. the heiress of St. Amand as aforesaid. See pedigree of Braybroke in Howard's Misc. Gen. et Her., N.S., vol. ii, p. 72.

on his father's lands 30 June 1530, without proof of age. In 1536 he was one of the 27 Peers for the trial of Queen Anne Boleyn. In 1546 was Lieut. Gen., under the Earl of Hertford, against the Scots: and shortly afterwards was Deputy of Calais; nom. K.G. 24 Apr., and inst. 13 Dec. 1549; P.C. 23 May 1550. Like other courtiers, he had large grants of ecclesiastical lands, including those of the College of Cobham. He was one of the 4 lay Peers for the trial of the Protector Somerset: and was, in 1551, Lieut. Gen. of the forces sent into the north. He was one of the 26 Peers who signed the letters patent, 16 June 1553, settling the Crown on Lady Jane Grey,^(a) but acquiesced in Queen Mary's proclamation. He was held to be implicated in Wyatt's rebellion (in which his yr. son Thomas had joined), and was arrested, but was (with his 1st son William) one of the seven whose pardon was extorted from the Queen by the Council. He received Cardinal Pole at Cowling Castle (in his progress), 23 Nov. 1555, and in 1556 was on the commission to enquire about heretics. He m., before 1526, Anne, 1st da. of Edmund (BRAYE), LORD BRAYE, by Jane, da. and h. of Sir Richard HALIGHWELL, which Anne was one of the six sisters and coheirs of John, LORD BRAYE, who d. s.p., 19 Nov. 1557. By her he had 10 sons and 4 daughters. He, who was of Cowling, Kent, d. 29 Sep. 1558, aged 61. Inq. p. m. 20 Jan. 1558/9. M.I. (on a magnificent tomb) at Cobham, commemorating his "defence of the Gospel," erected in 1561. Will dat. 13 Jan. 1557/8, signed "George Cobham," pr. 6 Dec. 1560. His widow d. a few weeks after him, 1 Nov. 1558, and was bur. at Cobham. Will dat. 7 Oct. 1558.^(b)

X. 1558.

10. WILLIAM (BROOKE), LORD COBHAM, 1st s. and h., b. 1 Nov. 1527. At the age of 13 he was affianced in marriage, and was sent to travel. M.P. for Hythe 1547-52; for Rochester 1555. In 1559, he was found one of the coheirs of Jane, Baroness Braye. He was sum. to Parl. from 5 Nov. (1558) 5 and 6 Ph. et Mar. to 19 Feb. (1592/3) 35 Eliz.; was Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, Constable of Dover, and Lord Lieut. of Kent, 1558-96. In Nov. 1558, he was sent to Brussels to announce to Philip of Spain the death of Queen Mary, his Consort. He received Queen Elizabeth at Cobham Hall, in her progress, July 1559, and again in Sep. 1573. In 1578, and again in 1588, was on an embassy to the Spanish Governor of the Netherlands; P.C. on or before 12 Feb. 1585/6; nom. K.G. 23 Apr. 1584, inst. 14 Apr. 1585. Custos of Eltham Palace and Park, 1592. Lord Chamberlain, Aug. 1596 till his death. He m., 1stly, Dorothy, da. of George (NEVILL), LORD ABERGAVENNY, by his 3rd wife, Mary, da. of Edward (STAFFORD), DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM. She d. s.p.m., at Cobham, 22 Sep., and was bur. there 3 Oct. 1559. He m., 2ndly, 25 Feb. 1559/60, at Westm. Palace (the bride being one of the ladies of the Bed-chamber), Frances, da. of Sir John NEWTON (otherwise CRADOCK), of co. Gloucester, by Margaret, da. of Sir Anthony POYNTZ. She d. 17 Oct. 1592, at Cobham, and was bur. there.^(a) Fun. certif. in the Coll. of Arms. The death (24 Jan. 1596/7) of his da. Elizabeth, wife of the celebrated Robert Cecil, affected him much, and he himself d. 6 Mar. 1596/7, and was bur. in Cobham Church.^(b) Will dat. 24 Feb. and sealed 1 Mar. 1596/7, pr. 23 May 1597.

XI. 1597 II. HENRY (BROOKE), LORD COBHAM, 2nd but 1st to surv. s. and h. by 2nd wife,^(c) was b. 22 Nov. 1564, at 1603. Cobham Hall. M.P. for Kent 1588-89; for Hedon 1593. He was sum. to Parl. from 24 Oct. (1597) 39 Eliz.
to 27 Oct. (1602) 44 Eliz. Warden of the Cinque Ports, 1597 to July 1603.
Nom. K.G. 23 Apr., and inst. 6 June 1599. He sumptuously entertained the Queen at his house at Blackfriars, 16 June 1600.^(d) He was arrested in July 1603, together with his br., George Brooke, Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Griffin Markham, and Lord Grey of Wilton, as being involved in a plot against the King, called "the treason of the Maine."^(e) His dastardly behaviour at his trial is well known. He was condemned to death, and attainted, when his honours became forfeited.^(f) His execution, however, was never carried out, and he was, on 15 Dec. 1603, re-committed to the Tower of London, where he remained for the rest of his life, except that he was allowed to visit Bath for his health in 1618. He m. (cont.
27 May 1601), Frances, widow of Henry (FITZGERALD), EARL OF KILDARE [I.], 2nd da. of Charles (HOWARD), 1st EARL OF NOTTINGHAM, by his 1st wife, Katherine, da. of Henry (CARY), BARON HUNSDON. She took no notice whatever of her husband after his trial, but lived in solitary state at Cobham Hall,^(g) which, with other his lands, had, on 13 May 1604,

(b) He added greatly to Cobham Hall, refounded the College at Cobham for the good of the poor, and was also a great patron of literature.

(c) His elder br., Maximilian, was b. at the Blackfriars, London, 4, and bap. 6 Dec. 1560, at Westm. Palace, the Queen (who was present), William (Parr), Marquess of Northampton, and the "Younge Erle of Arundell" being the sponsors. He, who had good abilities, d. unm. and v.p., at Naples, 5 Dec. 1583, aged 23, and was bur. there.

(d) "But one degree from a fool." (Weldon's James I). "A worthless mortal known to have neither honour, virtue, principle or veracity." (Carte, as quoted in Brydges' Peers, temp. James I).

(e) The main plot (so called to be distinguished from the bye plot) was alleged to be to kill "the King and his cubs" and to place Arabella Stuart on the throne.

(f) On 16 Feb. 1603/4 his achievement as K.G. was taken down and kicked out of St. George's Chapel, Windsor. See a list of Knights of the Garter who have been degraded, in vol. ii, Appendix B.

(g) The reversion of this noble mansion was granted by James I to his cousin, Ludovic (Stuart), Duke of Richmond, in whose family it remained till the death of been granted to her for life by the King. He d. s.p., 24 Jan. 1618/9, in the Tower, or hard by in the Minories.^(a) His widow, who was b. before 1572, was bur. in Westm. Abbey, 11 July 1628. Will dat. 21 June, pr. 8 July 1628. The peerage had been forfeited, as afsd., in 1603.

WILLIAM BROOKE, who but for the attainder would have been LORD COBHAM, and who, occasionally, has been so designated, nephew and h., being s. and h. of George BROOKE (attainted and executed for high treason, at Winchester, and bur. in the Cathedral there, 5 Dec. 1603), by Elizabeth, da. of Thomas (BURGH or BOROUGH), LORD BURGH (of Gainsborough), which George Brooke was br. to the last Lord Cobham. He was b. 1598, and by Act of Parl. (1610) 7 Jac. I, was restored in blood and to some small portion of the estate at Cowling and elsewhere, but a clause was added that he should not claim any of the property of his father or of his uncle Henry, Lord Cobham, and that he was "not to enjoy the title of Lord Cobham without the King's special grace," which was never vouchsafed to him. He was K.B., 1 Feb. 1625/6, at the Coronation of Charles I, and was M.P. for Rochester, 1628-29. He m., 1stly, Pembroke, da. of Henry (LENNARD), LORD DACRE, by Chrysogona, da. of Sir Richard BAKER, of Sissinghurst, Kent. He m., 2ndly, before 1642, Penelope, da. of Sir Moyses HILL, of Hillsborough, co. Down, Provost Marshal of Ulster, by his 1st wife, Alice, sister of Sorley Boye MACDONNELL. He d. s.p.m., from wounds received when fighting against the King, at the first battle of Newbury, 20 Sep. 1643, when the right to the Barony, subject to the attainder, fell into abeyance^(b) between his 4 daughters and coheirs.^(c) His widow, to whom Katharine (Stuart), suo jure Baroness Clifton of Leighton Bromswold, when it passed (with that title, which see) to her descendants, who still possess it, together with the Earldom of Darnley [I.].

(b) The resuscitation of the title in 1645 in the person of the heir male must be considered a new dignity, in spite of the precedence clause therein contained.

(c) These were (1) Pembroke (by the 1st wife), who m. Matthew Tomlinson (who d. 5 Nov. 1681) and d. 10 June 1683, and was bur. at East Malling, Kent, her issue becoming extinct in 1703. (2) Hill (by the 2nd wife), who m., 6 Apr. 1657 (as his 2nd wife), Sir William Boothby, Bart., and d. 14 May 1704, aged 68 (bur. at Ashbourne, co. Derby), leaving issue. (3) Margaret, m. 25 May 1665 (as his 2nd wife), Sir John Denham, K.B., the Poet. She d. s.p. 6, and was bur. 9 Jan. 1666/7, at St. Margaret's, Westm. (4) Frances, who m., 1stly, before May 1665, Sir Thomas Whitmore, K.B., who d. 1682, and 2ndly, Matthew Harvey, of Twickenham, Midx., who d. 1693. She d. 1690, and her issue was extinct in 1694. Of these sisters, the 3 younger, daughters of the 2nd wife, were by royal warrant, 19 May 1665, raised to the precedence which they would have enjoyed had their father suc. to the Barony of Cobham. This favour was probably obtained by Sir John Denham, who, within a few days, m. one of these coheirs. It was not extended to the eldest sister, and to whose children by him the Parl., in 1647, voted £4,000, m. the Hon. Edward RUSSELL (s. of Francis, 4th EARL OF BEDFORD), who d. 21 Sep., and was bur. 19 Oct. 1665, at Chenies, Bucks. She was bur. there 12 July 1694.

COBHAM (of Rundale)

BARONY BY WRIT. 1. STEPHEN DE COBHAM, of Rundale and Alington, Kent, 2nd, but 1st surv.^(a) s. and h. of Sir Henry de C.,^(b) of Rundale, Kent (d. about 1316), Warden of the Cinque Ports, by Joan (b. in or before 1269, d. 1314/5), one of the 2 daughters and coheirs of Stephen whose husband, Col. Matthew Tomlinson, was one of Cromwell's "House of Lords," and indeed one of the Regicides. See vol. iv, Appendix G, no. 56. The representation therefore of the Barony of Cobham, after 1703, devolved on the issue of Dame Hill Boothby, the 2nd da., alone. Her representatives, "in 1837 were Robert Thorp, M.D., Disney Alexander, M.D., Mrs. Lucy Cockerell, and Miss Harriet Lund." (Courthope). G.E.C.

The Barony was claimed in 1912 (with the baronies of Strathbogie and Burgh) by Col. Alexander Henry Leith, of Freefield and Glenkindie, senior coheir of the said Robert (Disney) Thorpe, by Dr. Reginald Gervase Alexander, of Bradford and Halifax, as heir of Disney Alexander, and by Cuthbert Matthias Kenworthy, of London, as representative of the Lund coheirship. The Committee for Privileges of the House of Lords reported

1. That the Barony of Cobham is an ancient Barony in fee.
2. That Henry de Cobham who was summoned to Parliament by a writ dated the 8th January 6 Edward II (1313) was entitled to a Barony by Writ descendible to the heirs general of his body.
3. That Henry Brooke 10th Lord Cobham and his brother and heir George Brooke were attainted of high treason in or about the year 1603.
4. That but for the said attainders Sir William Brooke Knight the son and heir of the said George Brooke would have been the sole heir to the Barony of Cobham.
5. That if the said Barony of Cobham had descended to the said Sir William Brooke it would upon his death in or before the year 1643 have fallen into abeyance among his four daughters and coheirs [as given above].
6. That the issue of all the said daughters except Hill has long since failed.
7. That the co-heirs of the said Henry de Cobham first Lord Cobham aforesaid and the said Hill are the following persons—
 - (i) The Petitioner Alexander Henry Leith who but for the said attainders would be a co-heir of the said Barony of Cobham;
 - (ii) John Francis Byde Russel who has presented no petition and makes no claim;
 - (iii) The Petitioner Reginald Gervase Alexander;
 - (iv) The Petitioner Cuthbert Matthias Kenworthy;
8. That the said Barony of Cobham would if the effect of the said attainders be removed be in abeyance and at His Majesty's disposal. V.G.
 - (a) His elder br., John C., d. v.p. and s.p. about 1314. V.G.
 - (b) This Henry was yr. br. of John de Cobham, of Cobham and Cowling, Kent, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, who was father of Henry [Lord] Cobham, sum. to Parl. in 1313.

PENCHESTER, was knighted (with Prince Edward) in 1306. M.P. for Kent, 1324. Having, on the death of his mother in 1324, shortly before 17 Nov., inherited her lands, he was sum. to Parl. from 3 Dec. (1326) 20 Edw. II to (posthumously) 20 Jan. (1333/4) 7 Edw. III, by writs directed Stephano de Cobham, whereby he is held to have become LORD COBHAM.^(a) He m., 1stly, before 1309, Isabel, who probably d. s.p. He m., 2ndly, Avice. He d. late in 1332. Writ for Inq. p. m. 20 Jan. (1332/3) 6 Edw. III. His widow d. in 1340.

II. 1332. 2. JOHN DE COBHAM, s. and h. by 2nd wife, b. 1319, was in the French expedition 1342. He was knighted presumably between 1342 and 1346. Neither he nor any of his descendants were sum. to Parl. He d. 14 Sep. 1362, seized of the Castle of Alington and the manors of Rundale and Hever, Kent.

III. 1362. 3. SIR THOMAS COBHAM, s. and h., aged 19 at his father's death, was b. 1343. M.P. for Kent 1376, 1382, 1384, and 1390. He m., 1stly, Maud, da. and probably h. of Thomas MORICE, a wealthy pleader in the King's Bench. She d. between 1380 and 1389. M.I. at Cobham. He m., 2ndly, Beatrice, who was living as his widow in 1395. He d. 1393-94, and was bur. at Birling.

IV. 1394. 4. SIR REYNOLD COBHAM, s. and h. by 1st wife. He m. Elizabeth, da. of Sir Arnold SAVAGE, of Bobbing, Speaker of the House of Commons, by Joan, da. of William ECHYNGHAM. He d. 31 Oct. 1405. Will dat. 11 Oct. 1405, pr. 7 Jan. 1405/6.^(b) His widow d. 1451.

V. 1405. 5. SIR THOMAS COBHAM, 3rd but 1st surv. s. and h., b. 1397, and of Rundale at that date. He d. s.p.m., before 1429, leaving an only da., Elizabeth,^(c) among whose descendants, if such there be, any Barony which may be supposed to have been created by the writ of 1326, is in abeyance.

^(a) As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title, see Appendix A in the last volume. V.G.

BARONY BY WRIT.

I. 1347. I. REYNOLD DE COBHAM, of Sterborough,^(a) in Lingfield, Surrey, s. and h. of Sir Reynold^(b) de C., of Orkesden and Eynesford, Kent, by Joan, da. and h. (or coh.) of William D'EVERE, was b. about 1295; was distinguished (1327-60) in nearly all the battles in France and Flanders; Knight Banneret 1339. He formed one of an important embassy to the Pope in Aug. 1343.^(c) Adm. of the Fleet for the West, 1344, and again 1348; was (with the Earl of Warwick and Sir John Chandos) one of the three to whom the charge of Prince Edward was committed at Crecy in 1346. He received an annuity of £500 in 1347. Nom. K.G. circa 1353; was Marshal of the Prince's army at Poitiers in 1356, where he conducted the French King, John, to the English quarters. He was also employed in Embassies to Brabant, &c. He was sum. to a Council, 25 Feb. (1341/2) 16 Edw. III, and to Parl. from 13 Nov. (1347) 21 Edw. III to 20 Nov. (1360) 34 Edw. III, by writs directed Reginaldo de Cobham, whereby he is held to have become LORD COBHAM.^(d) He m. Joan, da. of Thomas (DE BERKELEY), LORD BERKELEY, by his 1st wife, Margaret, da. of Roger (DE MORTIMER), EARL OF MARCH. She had a portion of £2,900, and the manor of Langley Burrell, Wilts. He d. "of the second pestilence," 5 Oct. 1361, and was bur. in Lingfield Church.^(e) M.I. Will pr. at Southwark 7 Oct. 1361. His widow, who had dower assigned 10 Feb. 1361/2, d. 2 Oct. 1369. Will, in which she directs to be bur. at Southwark^(f) if she dies there, dat. 13 Aug. 1369, pr. 23 May 1370 at Orford, in Kent.

II. 1361. 2. REYNOLD (DE COBHAM), LORD COBHAM, only s. and h., b. 1348, being aged 13 at his father's death, had seizin of his father's lands and of his mother's dower lands 5 Feb. 1369/70, having pr. his age and done homage. He, like his father, distinguished himself in the wars of Gascony and France. He was sum. to Parl. from 8 Jan. (1370/1) 44 Edw. III to 6 Oct. (1372) 46 Edw. III. He m., 1stly, Elizabeth, widow of John, LORD FERRERS (who d. 2 Apr. 1367), and before that of Fulk (LE STRANGE), LORD STRANGE (of Blackmere), da. of Ralph (DE STAFFORD), 1st EARL OF STAFFORD, by Margaret, da. and h. of Hugh (D'AUDLEY), EARL OF

(a) See an article by John Wickham Flower on this family, with tabular pedigree by Charles Spencer Perceval, in the Surrey Archaeological Collections, vol. ii, pp. 115-194.

(b) This Reynold was br. (of the half-blood) of Sir Henry de C., of Rundale, and of John de Cobham, Baron of the Exchequer, being eldest son of the second marriage (with Joan, da. of Hugh de Neville) of John de Cobham, of Cobham and Cowling.

(c) For a list of these see note sub BRADESTON. V.G.

(d) As to how far these early writs of summons did in fact create any peerage title, see Appendix A in the last volume. V.G.

(e) As to deaths from the plague see vol. viii, Appendix D.

(f) The brass in Lingfield Church, sometimes attributed to her, is supposed to belong to Isabel Cobham (wife of Reynold de Cobham of Gatewyck), who died 2 Apr. 1460.

GLoucester. She d. 7 Aug. 1376. He m., 2ndly, in 1380 (pardon for m. without lic. 10 Aug.), Eleanor, widow of John (D'ARUNDEL), LORD ARUNDEL (1377 to 1379), and, according to modern doctrine, suo jure, BARONESS MAUTRAVERS, being da. of Sir John MAUTRAVERS. This marriage being within the third degree,^(a) absolution for it was given by a bull from the Pope, 11 Nov. 1384, and the issue legitimated. He d. 6 July 1403 (a few days before the battle of Shrewsbury), and was bur. at Lingfield. M.I. Will, in which he styles himself Raynald de Cobbeham, Sr. de Stresburgh, dat. 8 Sep. 1400, pr. at Canterbury 13 July 1403. His widow, who was b. 1345, d. 10 Jan. 1404/5. Will, in which, curiously enough, she styles herself (only) Alianor Arondell^(b) en pur ma viduité, dat. 26 Sep. (1404) 5 Hen. IV, at Lytchett Matravers, and pr. at Maidstone 16 Jan. 1404/5, directing her burial to be at Lewes Priory, where mon tres honorable seigneur John Arundell lies.

[After (1372) 46 Edw. III no writ of summons was issued to any members of the family. Presuming the writ of 1347 to have established an hereditary dignity, those that would have been entitled thereto are as under.]

III. 1403. 3. SIR REYNOLD DE COBHAM, of Sterborough Castle, apparently, according to modern doctrine, LORD COBHAM, but who was never so styled, 2nd^(c) but 1st surv. s. and h. by 2nd wife. He was b. 1381, and was knighted 19 May 1426. He appears to have taken no part in the French wars, but to him, on 12 May 1436, was committed the custody of the Duke of Orleans (afterwards Louis XII), who had been taken prisoner at Agincourt more than 20 years before. In 1431 he and his 2nd wife founded the College of Lingfield. He m., 1stly, Eleanor, da. of Sir Thomas COLEPEPER, of Rayal. She d. 1422, and was bur. at Lingfield. Brass and M.I. He m., 2ndly, in or shortly before 1427, Anne, widow of Sir William CLIFFORD, da. and coh. of Thomas (BARDOLF), LORD BARDOLF, by Anice or Amice, da. of Ralph (CROMWELL), LORD CROMWELL. He d. 1446, and was bur. at Lingfield. M.I. Will dat. 12 Aug. 1446.^(d) His widow, who was b. 24 June 1389, d. s.p., 6 Nov. 1453. M.I. at Lingfield.

^(b) Of her identity there can be no doubt; (inter alia) her will mentions "my da. de Roos" and "my da. Margaret [wife of Reynold] Curteys," the 1st named being the da. of Lord Arundel and the 2nd of Lord Cobham. See the spec. lics. for marriage 9 Apr. 1394 and 17 Apr. 1403. See ante, vol. i, p. 260, note "b," and Patent Roll, 4 Dec. 1403.

^(c) His elder br. John d. s.p.m. before 30 Jan. 1415/6. See Patent Roll of that date. V.G.

^(d) Eleanor, one of his daughters by his 1st wife, m., in 1428, Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester (the Lord Protector), and after being accused of treason and convicted of "sorcery," did penance, 9 Nov. 1441, and d. a prisoner in 1454, at Peel Castle.

IV. 1446. 4. MARGARET, COUNTESS OF WESTMORLAND, and apparently, according to modern doctrine, BARONESS COBHAM, granddaughter and h., being da. and h. of Sir Reynold de COBHAM, by Thomasine, da. of Sir Thomas CHIDEOCKE, or (possibly) by Anne, da. of (—) BEAUMONT, which Reynold, who was s. and h. ap. (by his 1st wife) of Sir Reynold de C., of Sterborough abovenamed, d. v.p. (1441-42) 20 Hen. VI. She m., as his 2nd wife, between Oct. 1437 and Feb. 1441/2, Ralph (NEVILL), 2nd EARL OF WESTMORLAND, when the family estates were settled (by her grandfather) on her and her issue, with rem. to her uncle, Sir Thomas de Cobham. The Earl d. 3 Nov. 1484, aged about 80. She d. s.p.s.^(a) before 1461,^(b) probably about 1460, and was bur. at Doncaster, in the Church of the Friars Minor.

V. 1460? 5. SIR REYNOLD DE COBHAM, of Sterborough Castle, apparently, according to modern doctrine, LORD COBHAM, but never so styled, uncle and h., being 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h. of Sir Reynold de C., by his 1st wife, Eleanor, da. of Sir Thomas COLEPEPER abovenamed. He suc. to the family estates on the death, s.p., of his niece abovenamed. He m. Anne, widow of Aubrey de VEER (beheaded with his father, the Earl of Oxford, 26 Feb. 1461/2), da. of Humphrey (STAFFORD), DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM, by Anne, da. of Ralph (NEVILL), 1st EARL OF WESTMORLAND. He d. s.p.m. legit.,^(b) 1471, and was bur. at Lingfield. Will dat. 2 Apr., pr. 10 July 1471.^(c) His widow d. Apr. 1472, and was bur. at Lingfield. Will dat. 12 Apr., pr. 2 May 1472.

VI. 1471. 6. ANNE COBHAM, apparently, according to modern doctrine, BARONESS COBHAM, only da. and h. She m., when very young, between 18 June and 1 Dec. 1475, Edward (BLOUNT), 2nd BARON MOUNTJOY, who d. s.p., aged 8, and was bur. 1 Dec. 1475, at the Grey Friars, London.^(d) She m., 2ndly, in 1477, Edward (BURGH or BOROUGH), LORD BURGH, and d. 26 June 1526. He became "distracted of memorie," and d. 20 Aug. 1528. See "BURGH," Barony by writ, cr. 1487, with which dignity any supposed right to this Barony of Cobham became, on the death of this lady, united.

(a) Her only da., Margaret, d. young. V.G.

(b) Inq. p. m. of Sir Thomas de Cobham, 2 Edw. IV.

(c) In it he mentions "my bastard son, called Reynold Cobham," to whom he leaves his manor at Pentlow, &c.

Board till Oct. 1643, and a Commissioner of the Treasury again June 1660 for a few weeks till his death. His advice (not always very judicious) was greatly esteemed by the King, who, on 25 Aug. 1642, sent him from Nottingham to treat with the Parl., which refused to hear him as a member thereof. Master of the Rolls 28 Jan. 1642/3 to Nov. 1643; reappointed 1 June 1660.^(a) His influence with the King in military affairs roused much jealousy. On 21 Oct. 1644, he was cr. BARON COLEPEPER OF THORESWAY, Lincoln. In Mar. 1645 he was one of the Council of the Prince of Wales, whom, in 1646, he accompanied to Paris. By Charles II he was sent to Russia, and obtained therefrom in 1650, a loan of £50,000 in corn and furs. Shortly after this date he purchased the estate of Leeds Castle, in Kent. He remained with the King when in exile, and returned at his restoration. for absence. He m., before 1636, Lucy, 2nd da. of Henry (MONTAGU), 1st EARL OF MANCHESTER, by his 1st wife, Catherine, da. of Sir William SPENCER, of Yarnton, Oxon. He d. suddenly, at Totteridge, Herts, 2, and was bur. there 9 Oct. 1667, aged 61. Will dat. 18 Jan. 1653, pr. 11 Nov. 1667. His widow was bur. 9 Feb. 1681/2, at Tottenham, Midx. M.I. Will dat. 19 Apr. 1680 to 4 Nov. 1681, pr. 20 Feb. 1681/2, by her son, the Hon. Hugh Hare.

II. 1667. 2. HENRY (HARE), BARON COLERAINE [I.], s. and h., bap. 21 Apr. 1636, at Totteridge, Herts. M.P. for Old Sarum 1679-81. He did not attend the Parl. [I.] of James II, 7 May 1689,^(a) nor the two Parls. [I.] of the following reign, 1692-93 and 1695-99. He m., 1stly, in or before 1667, Theodocia,^(b) da. of Sir Richard Lucy, 1st Bart., of Broxbourne, Herts, by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, da. and coh. of Sir Henry Cock, of the same. He m., 2ndly (lic. Vic. Gen., 17 July 1682), Sarah, widow of John (SEYMOUR), DUKE OF SOMERSET (d. 29 Apr. 1675), and before that of George GRIMSTON (d. 5 June 1655), 2nd and yst. da. and coh. of Sir Edward ALSTON, M.D., Pres. of the College of Physicians, by Susan, da. of Christopher HUDSON, of Norwich. She, who had separated from him, d. s.p., and was bur. 2 Nov. 1692, in Westm. Abbey. He m., 3rdly, 4 Aug. 1696, at Charter House Chapel, Midx., Dame^(c) Elizabeth READ, of Basinghall Str., London, and Edmonton, Midx., widow, aged about 50, probably da. of Thomas WERG. III. 1708 3. HENRY (HARE), BARON COLERAINE [I.], grandson to and h., being s. and h. of the Hon. Hugh HARE,^(e) of 1749. East Betchworth, Surrey, by Lydia, da. of Matthew CARLTON, of Edmonton, a merchant of London, which Hugh, who was bap. 2 July 1668, at Totteridge, Herts, was s. and h. ap. of the last Lord (by his 1st wife), and d. v.p., being bur. 1 Mar. 1706/7, at Tottenham. He was b. 10 May 1693, at East Betchworth, afsd.; matric. at Oxford (Corpus) 2 Feb. 1711/2, being stated to be then 17. F.S.A. 8 Dec.
1725; Grand Master of Freemasons 1727-28; F.R.S. 15 Jan. 1729/30;

(a) For a list of peers present in, and absent from, this Parl., see Appendix D to this volume. V.G.

(b) Dict. Nat. Biog. gives her name as Constantia. V.G.

(c) Sic, yet Read was not a Knight or Baronet. In Dict. Nat. Biog. she is called, and very possibly correctly, "Elizabeth Portman, widow of Robert Reade, of Cheshunt, Herts." V.G.

(d) He was a well-known antiquary, and was author of a history of Tottenham, Midx.

(e) He was the author of a history of Fieschi's conspiracy against the Republic of Genoa. He was M.P. for Bletchingley 1698-1700. V.G.

M.P. for Boston 1730-34.^(a) He m. (lic. Bp. of London, 8 Jan. 1717/8, being then 24, Bach.), Anne (dowry £100,000), da. and coh.^(b) of John HANGER, of Trinity Minories, merchant, of London,^(c) by Mary COLES, his wife. He d. s.p.s. legit.,^(d) 10, and was bur. 24 Aug. 1749, at Tottenham, aged 56, when his Peerage became extinct.^(e) His widow, who was b. 1699, in Trinity Minories, d. 10 Jan. 1754, at her town house in Pall Mall, of gout in the stomach, and was bur. in the Hanger vault in St. Nicholas Chapel in Bray Church. Will pr. Jan. 1754.^(f)

IV. 1762. 1. GABRIEL HANGER,^(g) 3rd but 1st surv. s. and h. of Sir George H., of Driffield Hall, co. Gloucester, Turkey merchant, of London, by Anne, da. and coh. of Sir John BEALE, Bart., of Farningham, Kent, was b. 9, and bap. 17 Jan. 1697, at Driffield; ent. the Bengal establishment of the East India Co. as a Writer 1714; Factor 1718, Junior Merchant 1722, Senior Merchant 1724, but resigned on the death of his elder brothers, and returned to England 1725. He was M.P. (Whig) in two Parls. for Maidstone 1753-61, and for Bridgwater 1763-68. On the death of his cousin, Anne, Baroness Coleraine abovenamed, in 1754,

(^a) He does not appear to have ever voted or sat in the House of Lords [I.], but in the English House of Commons he voted with the Tories and anti-Walpolean Whigs for the repeal of the Septennial Act. V.G.

(^b) On 20 May 1739, by the death of Mary Hanger, "her fortune of £13,000" went "to her two sisters, Lady Coleraine and Elizabeth Hanger."

(^c) He was Governor of the Bank of England 1719-21.

(^d) He left his estates at Tottenham to Henrietta, his illegit. da. by Rosa Duplessis, but, as she was an alien born in Italy, they escheated to the Crown. V.G.

(^e) He was a great collector of prints and drawings (during three tours he made in Italy) which he gave partly to Corpus Coll., Oxford, and partly to the Soc. of Antiquaries, of which he was a fellow, and which possesses a portrait of him when young. "The Hon. Henry Hare, Esq., h. ap. to the Barony of Coleraine," died Oct. 1733. (Hist. Reg.)

(^f) She separated from her husband within 3 years of her marriage, and did not return to him. At his death she inherited most of his property, which she left, together with Cannon End Place, her seat in Berks, to her cousin, Gabriel Hanger, the 1st Lord of the next creation. She presented the parish of Bray with a fire engine, which is still in use. Her portrait by Dahl is (1913) penes the Vansittarts of Foot's Cray Place, Kent. V.G.

(^g) Information as to the (Hanger) Barons Coleraine has been kindly furnished by N. Vansittart, and by C. J. Bruce Angier. None of these Lords appear to have ever sat or voted in the House of Lords [I.]. The first Lord was presumably in Ireland when he signed the record of his arms, marriage, and issue in the Lords' Entries in the Office of Arms, 30 Mar. 1767, but Parl. was not then sitting. Their arms were, Ermine a griffin segreant per pale Or and Azure. Crest, a demi griffin segreant holding an escarbuncle Or. Supporters, Two griffins Azure beaked Argent, armed and langued Gules. Motto, Artes honorabili. (ex inform. G. D. Burtchaell). These arms and crest are the same as those of the family of Aungier, of which name Hanger is generally held to be a corruption, John Aungier, br. of the 1st Lord Aungier of Longford, being said to have been ancestor of the Hangers. V.G.

he inherited Cannon Place, in Bray, Berks. He bought Kempsford Hall, co. Gloucester, in 1761. On 26 Feb. 1762 (Privy Seal dat. 24 Nov. 1761) he was cr. BARON COLERAINE,^(a) OF COLERAINE, co. Londonderry [I.]. He m., 18 Jan. 1736, at Gloucester,^(b) Elizabeth, da. and h. of Richard BOND, of Cobrey Court, co. Hereford, by Blanche, da. and h. of Richard VAUGHAN, of Whitchurch, in that co. He d. 24 Jan. 1773, at his seat at Bray, and was bur. at Driffield, aged 76. His widow, who was b. 1715, d. 19 Dec. 1780, at Windsor Castle, and was bur. at Driffield. M.I. Will dat. 27 May 1779, pr. 8 Feb. 1781.

V. 1773. 2. JOHN (HANGER), BARON COLERAINE [I.], 2nd^(d)
but 1st surv. s. and h., b. 3, and bap. 12 Apr. 1743, at Driffield. Ed. at Reading school; matric. at Oxford (Queen's Coll.), 30 May 1761, aged 18. He d. unm., 4 Dec. 1794, in Paris, during the Revolution, and was bur. in England, aged 51.^(e)

VI. 1794. 3. WILLIAM (HANGER), BARON COLERAINE [I.], next
br. and h., b. 6, and bap. 19 Aug. 1744, at Driffield;
ed. at Reading school; matric. at Oxford (Queen's Coll.), 30 May 1761, aged 17. Ent. the Army as Cornet in the Royal Horse Guards (Blues) 20 Sep. 1763; Lieut. Oct. 1765; Capt. Nov. 1772; served under the Marquess of Granby, and retired July 1776. He was M.P. (Tory) for East Retford, 1775-78; for Aldborough, 1778-80, and for St. Michael,

(^a) The Dowager Baroness Coleraine [I.], who d. 1754, was first cousin to his father. G.E.C. A letter from him, addressed to the Duke of Newcastle, applying for the Irish Barony of Coleraine, dated 12 Dec. 1760, is preserved in the Brit. Museum. He mentions that his cousin, the Lady of the last Lord Coleraine, had left him "the greatest part of their estate," and that he had "a fortune equal to that of almost any title of nobility whatever," that he had been "near ten years in Parliament" and was "zealously attached to his Majesty and his most illustrious family." V.G.

(^b) Driffield Register. V.G.

(^c) He rebuilt Driffield Church, and erected a fine marble monument to himself and his wife, on which, after his death, his family affixed an inscription to the effect that the Day of Judgment would disclose what sort of man he was. V.G.

(^d) The 1st s., Gabriel, b. 13, and bap. 23 May 1738, at Driffield, d. unm. and v.p., and was bur. 3 Aug. 1747, at Driffield. V.G.

(^e) He sold his mother's estate of Cobrey in 1775. He was a dissolute fellow, residing chiefly in Paris. Kitty Fisher, who afterwards m. the Duke of Grafton, was under his protection, as also was the then notorious Mrs. Baddesley, who had previously been the mistress of his own br. and successor, William. A descendant writes, "John was an awful blackguard. Once he knocked out one of her [Mrs. Baddesley's] teeth, and covered her with bruises." Mrs. Steele's Memoirs of Mrs. Baddesley are full of this nobleman. Walpole calls him and his brothers "unnatural wretches." V.G.

1780-84.^(a) He d. unm., aged 70, at 81 Gloucester Place, Midx., 11, and was bur. 19 Dec. 1814, at Kempsford, co. Gloucester. M.I.^(b) Will pr. 17 Dec. 1814 by William Vansittart, clerk, the nephew and residuary legatee.

VII. 1814 4. GEORGE (HANGER), BARON COLERAINE [I.], br. and to h., b. 13, and bap. 23 Oct. 1751, at Driffield. Ed. at 1824. Reading school, at Eton, and at Göttingen; Ensign 1st Foot Guards Jan. 1771; Lieut. and Capt. Feb. 1776; retired Mar. 1776.^(c) He served as a Capt. in the Hessian Jäger corps in America, and was wounded at Charlottetown, North Carolina, Sep. 1780; Major in Tarleton's Light Dragoons 1782-83. A prisoner in the King's Bench for debt, June 1798 to Apr. 1799. He m., before Jan. 1823, at Wapping, his cook or housekeeper, Mary Anne Katherine,^(d) da. of (—). He d.
s.p., 31 Mar. 1824, of a convulsive fit,^(e) near Regent's Park, Midx., aged 72,

^(a) He was one of those, for the most part Whigs, who, having supported the Coalition of North and Fox, were turned out of their seats at the Gen. Election of 1784, when Pitt swept the board, and were known as "Fox's Martyrs." For a list of them see vol. iv, Appendix A. V.G.

^(b) He paid 35 guineas in 1771 for his portrait by Sir Joshua Reynolds, which has since been sold for a large sum. It is now (1913) penes Col. Shuttleworth of Old Warden Park. He paid the same sum to the same artist for the portrait of his mistress, Mrs. Baddesley (see note "e" on preceding p.); they appear in 1772 as "Capt. H . . . and Mrs. B . . . y" in the notorious tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. iv, p. 233, for a list of which see Appendix B in the last volume of this work. In Raikes's Diary he is described as "a beau of the first water, always beautifully powdered, in a light green coat, with a rose in his buttonhole." In the Retrospections of Humphrey Wickham, of Strood, vol. iii, p. 90, as also in The History of Strood, by Henry Smetham (1899), will be found the story of an ostler who d. 20 Sep. 1830, at Strood, and who claimed to be Charles Parrott Hanger, Lord Coleraine, nephew of Col. Hanger [i.e. the last Lord Coleraine]. Presumably the claimant was an illegit. son of the 6th or 7th Lord. V.G.

^(c) He was better known as Col. Hanger or "Blue Hanger," for he resolutely refused to assume the peerage title, and was always rather peevish when he was addressed by it. In 1800 he traded as a coal merchant. He lived for some time in Paris to avoid his creditors. V.G.

^(d) She was an illiterate person, and writes in one of her letters of the Colonel being "hill." Her maiden name may have been Greenwood, and the John Greenwood Hanger to whom she left her money was very possibly her illegit. s. by the Colonel. V.G.

^(e) The Times says he d. on Thursday, 1 Apr. "He was formerly admitted among the convivial companions of his present Majesty [George IV], but as the Prince advanced in life the eccentric manners of the Colonel became somewhat too free and coarse for the Royal taste . . . He was well acquainted with military duty . . . He is generally acknowledged to have been a very handsome man in early life, but his person was disguised by the singularity of his dress. Tho' disposed to participate in all the dissipations of higher life, he yet contrived to devote much of his time to reading, and published several whimsical pamphlets as well as his Life Adventures and Opinions." (Gent. Mag. 1824). There is constant reference to him in contemporary memoirs, and he was caricatured by Gillray, Dighton, Rowlandson, and and was bur. at Driffield afsd., M.I., when his Peerage became extinct.^(a) Will dat. 10 Jan. 1823, pr. 3 Aug. 1824, by his widow and universal legatee. She d. 27 Dec. 1846, in Ridgemount Place, Hampstead Rd., Midx., aged 70. Will, leaving all her property (save £20) to "John Greenwood Hanger, Esq.," and Mary, his wife, dat. 24 Dec. 1846, pr. 3 Feb. 1847.

COLERIDGE OF OTTERY ST. MARY

BARONY.

I. 1874. I. JOHN DUKE COLERIDGE, 1st s. of the Rt. Hon. Sir John Taylor COLERIDGE,^(b) of Heath's Court, in Ottery St. Mary, Devon, many years (1835-58) one of the Justices of the Court of the King's Bench, by Mary, da. of the Rev. Gilbert BUCHANAN, D.D., Vicar of Woodmansterne, Surrey. He was b. 3 Dec. 1820, at 7 Hadlow Str., London; ed. at Eton, 1831-39; and at Balliol Coll. Oxford, of which he was a scholar; matric., 29 Nov. 1838, B.A., 1842; Pres. of the Oxford Union Soc. 1843;^(c) Fellow of Exeter Coll. Oxford, 1843-46; M.A., 1846; Barrister (Mid. Temple), 1846; Recorder of Portsmouth, 1855-65; Q.C. and Bencher of the Middle Temple, 1861; M.P. (Liberal) for Exeter, 1865-73; Solicitor Gen., 1868-71; knighted, 12 Dec. 1868; Attorney Gen., 1871-73; Lord Ch. Justice of the Common Pleas, 1873, and P.C. 12 Dec. 1873; Serjeant at law Jan. 1874. On 10 Jan. 1874, he was cr. BARON COLERIDGE OF OTTERY ST. MARY, Devon. F.R.S. 3 May, and D.C.L., Oxford, 13 June 1877. On the death of Chief Justice Cockburn, he was, 29 Nov. 1880, appointed LORD CHIEF JUSTICE OF ENGLAND,^(d) in which office the powers and privileges of Cruickshank. The best modern account of him is in Lewis Melville's Beaux of the Regency, and an interesting paper about him called Memoirs of an eccentric nobleman, by C. J. Bruce Angier, was published some years ago. V.G.

(^a) According to his M.I. he was "a practical Christian, as far as his frail nature did allow him so to be." He was a violent Whig, but never sat in either House of Parl. On his death the peerage was offered by George IV to Arthur Vansittart, of Shottesbroke Hall, Berks, who declined it. V.G. It was used as one of the extinctions required (under the Act of Union) for the creation, in 1826, of the Barony of FitzGerald and Vesey.

(^b) This exemplary judge, who d. 11 Feb. 1876, aged 85, was nephew of Samuel Taylor Coleridge (b. 1772; d. 1834), the famous poet. He was br.-in-law (wife's brother) to a judge of like eminence and virtue, viz. the Rt. Hon. Sir John Patteson, one of the Justices of the Court of King's Bench (1830-52), who d. 28 June 1861, aged 71.

(^c) For a list of peers who have been presidents of the Union Soc. of Oxford or of Cambridge, see vol. iv, Appendix F. V.G.

(^d) In Block's Table of the Judges, temp. Victoria, the office of "Lord Chief Justice of England" is (wrongly) attributed to Denman, Campbell, and Cockburn, who held the office of Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench during that reign. These three were appointed (1832, 1850, and 1859 respectively) under the same style, viz. as "Chief Justice to hold Pleas before us," a style which, properly enough, may be considered as equivalent to "Chief Justice of the (King's, or) Queen's Bench," but not to that of "Justiciarius Angliæ." A change of style, but not, however, of rank the offices of Lord Ch. Justice of the Common Pleas and of Lord Ch. Baron of the Exchequer,^(a) both of which had previously been abolished, were shortly afterwards vested. He m., 1stly, 11 Aug. 1846, at Freshwater, Isle of Wight, Jane Fortescue,^(b) 3rd da. of the Rev. George Turner SEYMOUR, of Farringford Hill, in that parish, by Marianne, only da. of John BILLINGSLEY, of Ashwick Grove, Somerset. She d. 6 Feb. 1878, of inflammation of the larynx, aged 53, at 1 Sussex Sq., Hyde Park, Midx., and was bur. at Ottery. M.I.^(c) He m., 2ndly, 13 Aug. 1885, (spec. lic.) at 42 Victoria Rd., Kensington, Midx., Amy Augusta Jackson,^(d) took place, when, on 29 Nov. 1880 (44 Vict., pt. i, no. 27), the patent to Lord Coleridge granted him "the office of Lord Chief Justice of England," an office which apparently is the same (in style, though hardly in rank or substance) as that of the ancient "Justiciarius Angliæ," held (last) by the famous Hugh le Despenser, slain 1265.*

Act 44 and 45 Vict., sec. 68 (passed 27 Aug. 1880), gave to the Lord Chief Justice of England all the powers formerly held by the L.C.J. of the Common Pleas and the L. C. Baron of the Exchequer. The abolition of the Court of the Common Pleas and of the Exchequer was recommended by a meeting of Judges 30 Nov., and carried out 16 Dec. 1880, by an Order of Council. The oath taken was the same as that of the previous Lord Chief Justices of the King's Bench, save that the words "in my office as Lord Chief Justice of England" were substituted (on what authority is unknown) for those of "in my office as Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench."

* Had the "Justiciarius Angliæ" been then in existence, there is little doubt but that Henry VIII would have assigned him a place somewhat equivalent to that of the Lord Chancellor (whose rank was placed above that of all Dukes) and the other great officers to whom so high a precedence was accorded under the statute, 31 Hen. VIII. It certainly seems an anomaly that the precedence of "the Chief Justice of England" should be (no higher than was that of the Ch. Justice of the Queen's Bench, i.e.) below, not only all Peers, but even all sons of Peers (save only the younger sons of Viscounts and Barons), below, also, all Privy Councillors, and only next above the Master of the Rolls and the puisne Judges. G.E.C. On which J. H. Round makes the following criticism. "The high precedence of the Chancellor is due to the fact that he was always a cleric, and, as such, in the 12th century, witnessed charters before all earls and barons. Nor can I attach the importance that you do to the mere 'change of style' in 1880. The medieval Justiciarius Angliæ was rather a Viceroy than a Justice. As a Justice he would have ranked low in the 12th century." V.G.

(a) This office had been vacant since the death of Ch. Baron Kelly, 17 Sep. 1880.

(b) "Whose genius as an artist will be perpetuated by a likeness of Newman, incomparably superior, not only to that by Millais, but to any other." (Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff's Notes from a Diary, 1898). There is a good portrait of her in oils painted by herself when aged 17, penes Lord Coleridge 1913. V.G.

(c) The monument takes the form of a most beautiful recumbent figure. V.G.

(d) She had supposed herself to have been previously married (at Retford, 30 June 1878) under Scottish law, to her cousin, but after living with him some years, and becoming desirous of a separation, she discovered that she had not fulfilled the legal requirements of residence, and though he offered again to go through the proper form of marriage, she declined. "A pretty, graceful woman, who was an affectionate and devoted wife, and who made the last years of his life extraordinarily happy." (Lady St. Helier, Memories of Fifty Years). V.G.

1st da. of Henry Baring LAWFORD, of the Bengal Civil Service. He d. at 1 Sussex Sq., of jaundice, 14, and was bur. 22 June 1894, at Ottery afsd., aged 74.^(a) Will pr. at £15,000. His widow, who was b. 1853, was living 1913.

II. 1894.

2. BERNARD JOHN SEYMOUR (COLERIDGE), BARON COLERIDGE OF OTTERY ST. MARY [1874], 1st s. and h., b. 19 Aug. 1851, at Heath's Court afsd.; ed. at Eton, and at Trin. Coll. Oxford, B.A. 1875; Barrister (Middle Temple) 1877; was M.P. (advanced Liberal) for the Attercliffe div. of Sheffield, 1885-94; Q.C., 1892. On his accession to the peerage he contended (unsuccessfully) that his seat in the lower House was not vacated thereby till after the writ of summons to the upper House had issued. App. in Oct. 1907, a Judge of the King's Bench.^(b) He m., 3 Aug. 1876, at Cuddesden, Oxon, his first cousin,

(^a) His Oxford career was, save for the taking of the ordinary degrees, a total blank, contrasting singularly with that of his father (who was 1st class in classics besides obtaining the prize in 1810 for Latin verse, and in 1813 both for Latin essay and English essay), and yet more strikingly with that of the 1st Lord Selborne at the same University. His father accurately enumerates his qualifications for the Bench: "Quickness and clearness, a powerful memory, remarkable powers of arrangement and delivery, much dignity of person and manner, quickness of perception, and a full grasp of facts and arguments." A highly cultured man, of fine presence and dignified demeanour, an excellent raconteur and after-dinner speaker. His "silver-tongued" oratory was much admired, but he made no great reputation in the House of Commons, nor on the Bench: posterity will probably with difficulty understand his importance in his own day. He had an unpleasant habit of sneering at those whom he considered his intellectual inferiors. He was a strong Liberal, and life long friend of W. E. Gladstone. By far the most famous case in which he was engaged as an advocate was that in which he successfully opposed the claim of the soi disant "Sir Roger" to the Tichborne estates in 1872, when he made the longest speech ever delivered in a Court of Justice. On this trial a Judge grimly remarked, that it disclosed the fact that there were two impostors! While Chief Justice he was defendant in an action for libel brought by his son-in-law, C. W. Adams, thus furnishing a unique spectacle by appearing in that position in his own Court before one of his own Puisnes. He gained the day, and the fairest comment on the affair is, that if the family dirty linen was washed in public, there was not very much of it, and it was not very dirty. His life, in 2 vols., by Ernest Hartley Coleridge, was published in 1905. See also note sub Robert, MARQUESS OF SALISBURY [1868]. V.G.

(^b) A slight, fair, lean-faced man, who lacks the surface graces of his father; when in the House of Commons his utterances were not always calculated to endear him to his political opponents, but he is a faithful friend, and his enemies are not to be found among his neighbours, or those who know him well. He makes a painstaking and successful Judge, being patient with, and courteous to, those who practise before him. His Lordship has set several precedents, being the first peer to become a Judge, and the first Judge whose father and father's father have also sat on the Bench. He would have been also the first peer to practise at the Bar, had not Henry (Pierrepont), 2nd Earl of Kingston-upon-Hull (see note to that title) forestalled him. He is one of the numerous peers who are or have been directors of public companies, for a list of whom (in 1896) see vol. v, Appendix C. V.G.

But the Stawells inherited little more than the single manor of Shaw, Berks. For by divers fines, dated in the quinzaine of Easter 11 Edw. III, Philip de Columbiars entailed the manors of Nether Stowey, Puriton, Downend, Honibere, Stockland-Lovell, Woolavington, &c., Somerset, and Postling, Kent, on himself and Alianore in tail male: rem. to James Daudeleye for life, rem. to Roger s. of James and the heirs of his body, rem. to Nicholas br. of Roger and his heirs (Feet of Fines, case 199, file 22, nos. 33, 47; case 287, file 39, no. 201). As late as 1437, Sir Thomas Stawell, great-grandson of Joan abovenamed, was unsuccessfully suing the heirs of the Audleys for the afsd. manors in Somerset. (De Banco, Hilary, 9 Hen. returning to Scotland, where, in 1571, he successfully defended Stirling Castle for James VI against the Regent Lennox, but being involved in the "Raid of Ruthven" (1582), fled again to France. On 13 Sep. 1583, he received a pardon for his share in the plot. In 1589 he fought at Ivry on behalf of his old master, Henri IV of France. On 20 June 1589, the lands of the dissolved Abbey of Culross (in the peninsula between the friths of Tay and Forth) were created into a temporal Lordship in his favour, with the title of free Baron of Culross. He was sent on several missions to the French King, for whom for 2 years (1592-94) he held the Governorship of St. Valery, receiving also "the dignity of a Knight of Honour in France"^(a) in 1603 from him. In 1594 he was on an Embassy from Scotland to Queen Elizabeth. "After the death of Alexander [Colville], Commendator of Culross, another charter, 10 Mar. 1604,^(b) again erecting the property of the Abbey into a hereditary Lordship, was granted to Sir James Colville, with rem. to heirs male, and with the title of Lord Culross. In the first part of the document he is styled Sir James Colville, but after the clause regarding the title, James, Lord Culross. This charter, though not in the great seal register, is recorded in an original Protocol Book in the Gen. Register House. A third charter, 20 Jan. 1609, proceeding on the resignation of John Colville, now Commendator of Culross, was granted, conveying once more the possessions of the Abbey and the title of Lord Colville of Culross, to his issue male, whom failing, to his heirs male whatsoever. At the general ranking on 5 Mar. 1606, the title of Lord Colville of Culross appears, and the precedence given is that of the charter of 1604."^(a) On 24 Apr. 1604, he was made in Parl. LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.],^(c) and the charter of 20 Jan. 1609, dat. at Royston, cr. him LORD CULROSS [S.], with rem. to his heirs male whatsoever, bearing the name and arms of Colville.^(d) On 13 Mar. 1614

^(b) There is no reason to doubt the creation of 1604, and "COLVILLE OF CULROSS" certainly existed as a peerage of that date in the Decreet of Ranking in 1606, being there placed before "SCONE," a Barony cr. in 1605. The charter of 1604 being, however, lost, the only Barony that could be claimed by the heir male whomsoever (when such claim was made in 1723), was the subsequent Barony of 1609. See Carmichael's Tracts, 28.

^(c) Calderwood, vol. vi, p. 262.

^(d) It is observed in Riddell (p. 354, &c.) that "there is not a vestige of such a dignity [as Colvill of Culross] in the whole compass" of the charter of 1609, but "on the contrary, that of Culross is solely carried;" yet, in spite thereof, the title adjudged to the claimant of 1723 was that of Colvill of Culross. This decision is apparently tantamount to recognising the existence of two distinct peerages in the grantee (one of 1604, and the other of 1609), of which the claimant of 1723 was allowed the latter, though with the designation of the former. The peerage of Colvill of Culross, with its proper precedence of 1604, was allowed to the lineal descendant of the grantee as late as 1633 (see Riddell, p. 358), and a peerage of that designation was ordered by the House of Lords, 27 May 1723, to be inserted in the Union Roll [S.], not, however, as a creation of 1604, when Colvill was created, but as one of 20 Jan. 1609, being the date of the Barony of Culross. Riddell has the merit of calling attention, not only

He m., 2ndly, before May 1599, Helen, widow of Robert MOUBRAY, of Barnbogle, formerly Helen SHAW, spinster. She surv. him. He d. Sep. 1629, from a fall from the terrace at Tillicoultry.

II. 1629. 2. JAMES (COLVILLE), LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.], grandson and h., being only s. and h. of Robert C., MASTER OF COLVILLE, and Christian abovenamed, was b. 1604. He had a charter of the lands of Tillicoultry, 5 Aug. 1630, and sat in Parl. [S.] in June 1633. In 1634 he sold Tillicoultry (and doubtless the Abbey lands of Culross therewith, being in the next parish), as also, about the same time, the lands and Castle of Easter Wemyss, leaving Scotland for Ireland, where he was app. Quartermaster Gen. of all the Forces then under Monck, 11 Aug. 1647. Here he distinguished himself during Cromwell's expedition in 1649, and had a grant of the lands of Bally McLaughlin, co. Kilkenny. He m., 1stly, about 13 June 1622, Magdalen, da. of Sir Peter YOUNG, of Seton, who d. s.p., in Edinburgh, and was bur. there 28 Oct. 1638. He m., 2ndly (Elizabeth?), who was, apparently, the mother of his children.^(c) He m., lastly, shortly before his death, Margaret CLYNTON. He d. 1654, aged about 50, and is said to have been bur. in the vaults of Trinity Church, Dublin.^(d) Admon. 4 June 1656 to "the Hon. Lady to the laxity of treatment of this case (the first Scottish case that ever came before the House of Lords by a reference from the Crown), but also to the fact (which in his time was becoming almost forgotten) that the Court of Session was not deprived of its jurisdiction in Peerage claims by the Union Act. He (pp. 354-359) is very severe on the incompetence shewn by the tribunal which, in 1723, judged "this strange and rather untractable case," and his remarks are certainly more than justified when it is considered that of the statements made by the petitioner, two are palpably false, i.e. (1) the date of the death of the second Lord, and (2) that (the most important statement to the petitioner's case), the said 2nd Lord died without male issue, while (3) the deduction of his own pedigree, from a brother of the first Lord, is unsupported by any evidence, and is open to grave doubts. III. 1654. 3. WILLIAM (COLVILLE), LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.], s. and h., who, in 1655, received the lands of Bally McLaughlin "as son and heir^(b) of James, Lord Colville, then decd., in satisfaction of arrears due to the said James for service in the field in 1649."^(a) He probably was a student at Trin. Coll. Dublin. He d. unm., 12, and was bur. 16 Apr. 1656,^(c) in Trin. Coll. afsd., "with Scutions and Pennons carried before him" (Fun. Entry), leaving, by will dat. 1656, and pr. in Ireland, his property "to his sole br. and h., John."

IV. 1656. 4. JOHN (COLVILLE), LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.], br. and h., an "infant" at his brother's death, under the guardianship of his sister, Marjory (who m. Apr. 1662, Isaac Dobson), as, also, in Feb. 1663. He was granted the lands of Bally McLaughlin, co. Kilkenny, under the Act of Settlement, 17 July 1667.^(d) He was living in 1678, but probably d. s.p. shortly after that date.

Alexander Colville, D.D. (b. 1610, and d. 1676), who was s. and h. of John C., Laird of Comrie (b. 1573, d. 1645-1650), who was s. and h. of Alexander C., the Commendator of Culross, who was yr. s. of Sir James C., grandfather of the 1st Lord Colville of Culross.^(f) He was b. 1666. He was collector at

(b) His recognition, during the lifetime of his father's widow, almost precludes the idea (which has been suggested) that he and his br. John were bastards.

(e) According to the statements (so far as they have not been subsequently disproved) in the petition of 1723, whereon the House of Lords decided that the then petitioner was entitled to the peerage of Colville of Culross.

(f) In The Ancestry of Lord Colville (see ante, p. 379, note "e"), the following note is given:—"In the narrative of the life of Alexander Colville, Commendator of Culross, the accounts given in the older peerages have been adhered to, between which, however, and other documents consulted on the subject, unquestionable discrepancies have been found to exist." Such is, most truly, the case, and there appears the Port of Dundee. He m. (cont. Apr. 1687) Mary, da. of Sir Charles ERSKINE, Bart. [S.], of Cambo, Lyon King of Arms, by Penelope, da. of Arthur BARCLAY, of Colhill. She surv. him. He d. 9 Aug. 1717, aged 51.

[VI. 1717.] 6. JOHN COLVILLE, of Kincardine, de jure^(a) LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.], s. and h., b. 1690. He was an Ensign at the battle of Malplaquet in 1709. On 2 Apr. 1722 he was served h. to John, 2nd Lord Colville of Culross, and, on the 21st, requested to vote at the gen. election of Scottish Peers, but was refused on the ground of the peerage not being on the roll at the Union. In 1723 he presented a petition, in which he stated "that James, 2nd Lord Colville of Culross, died about 50 years ago" [i.e. about 1673, instead of, as was the fact, in 1654] "leaving no male issue behind him" [whereas he, in fact, left at least two sons, one living 24 years after him], "and that thus [!] the heirs male of the body of the 1st Lord failing," the dignity "descended to the heirs male of Alexander, who was the only brother^(b) [sic but more accurately uncle] of the said first Lord," to which Alexander the petitioner was [which statement, so far as regards Alexander the Commendator is, apparently, correct] the h. male of the body. His right to the peerage claimed, under the charter of 20 Jan. 1609, as h. male of the grantee, was acknowledged 27 May 1723, by the House of Lords, to whom his petition had been referred by the Crown,^(c) whereby he became, de facto, LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.]. He was at the siege of Gibraltar, 1727; was Lieut. Col., 1739, in the war with Spain; being in command of a battalion off Cartagena in 1741, where he fell a victim to an epidemic. He m., in 1716, in Ireland, Elizabeth, da. of (—) JOHNSTON, of that kingdom. He d. as afsd. on board a transport off Cartagena, 20 Apr. 1741, in his 52nd year. Admon. 2 May 1744. His widow d. at Dundee, 3 Mar. 1747/8, aged 47.

little else but the unsupported, and by no means disinterested, statement of the claimant of 1723 to support such pedigree. The late Alexander Sinclair is said to have had proof that Alexander the Commendator was an uncle, not brother, of the first Lord. This is certainly the case (see Scots Peerage, vol. ii, p. 548), and it may be added that in 1566, when Alexander received the Abbey lands (of which, in 1569, he appointed Robert Colville, of Cleish, heritable baillie), he would, if a yr. br. of the 1st Lord, have been aged at the outside but 14, and there would be no apparent reason for preferring him to his elder br., whose preferment came much later on. The gross misstatements in the allegation of the petitioner of 1723 are referred to, ante, p. 380, note "d." It is to be regretted that the author of The Ancestry &c. does not indicate what the "other documents" say as to these "unquestionable discrepancies" from the statements in the peerage.

(b) See as to this and other statements in this petition, ante, note "d," p. 380, and note "f" on preceding page.

(c) He was accordingly placed on the roll in the precedency of 1609, i.e. before "Cranstoun" and after "Cardross," a lower precedency than that given at the decret of ranking. See ante, p. 380, note "d."

VII. 1741. 7. ALEXANDER (COLVILLE), LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.], s. and h., b. 28 Feb. 1717. He entered the Royal Navy 1731, becoming Rear Adm. 1762. He was in command in America in 1755; was at the reduction of Louisburg in 1758; made a gallant relief of Quebec, then besieged, in 1760, and drove the French from Newfoundland. He was continued in this command till 1766, when he returned to Scotland. He m., 1 Oct. 1768, Elizabeth,^(a) widow of Walter MACFARLANE, da. of Alexander (ERSKINE), 5th EARL OF KELLIE [S.], by his 2nd wife, Janet, da. of Archibald PITCAIRN, M.D. He d. s.p. legit., at Drumsheugh, near Edinburgh, 21 May 1770, in his 54th year. Will pr. Oct. 1770. His widow d. there 2 Nov. 1794, in her 60th year.

VIII. 1770. 8. JOHN (COLVILLE), LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS [S.], 4th^(b) but next surv. br. and h., b. 24 Jan. 1724/5, at Dundee. He entered the army in 1741, and served in the West Indies; was at the battle of Fontenoy, 1745; at Culloden, 1746; and at the reduction of Belleisle, 1761; retired in 1764. COLVILL OF OCHILTREE

BARONY [S.] 1. ROBERT COLVILL, s. and h. of Robert C., of Cleish
 (d. Jan. 1634), by Beatrix, da. of John HALDANE,
 I. 1651. of Gleneagles, was served h. to his father 12 Sep. 1643.
 He was knighted by Charles I, 2 May 1632. By Charles
 II when in Scotland, he was cr., on 4 Jan. 1650/1,^(a) LORD COLVILL OF OCHILTREE [S.], with rem. to his heirs male whatsoever. He
m. 1stly, Janet, sister of John, 1st EARL OF WEMYSS [S.], da. of Sir John WEMYSS, by his 2nd wife, Anne, da. of James (STEWART), LORD DOUN [S.].
 She d. at Cleish, Apr. 1655. He m., 2ndly, Euphemia, da. of Sir Thomas MYRTON, of Cambo, by Anne, da. of Sir Robert HALKETT, of Pitfirran.
 He d. s.p., 25 Aug. 1662, at Crombie, and was bur. there the same night.
 His widow m., before 10 Mar. 1677, James CARMICHAEL, of Balniblae. She
 d. 8 Nov. 1708, and was bur. at Crombie. Will pr. 5 Oct. 1709.

II. 1662. 2. ROBERT (COLVILL), LORD COLVILL OF OCHILTREE
 [S.], nephew and h., being s. and h. of David C., by Agnes, da. of David BEATON, of Balfour, co. Fife, which David was next br. of the last Lord, and d. Nov. 1647. He suc. to the peerage in accordance with the terms of the patent, as heir male of his uncle, to whom he was served h., 6 Nov. 1662. He m., 19 Aug. 1662, at Falkland, Margaret, da. of David WEMYSS, of Fingask. He d. at Cleish, 12 Feb. 1671. His widow was imprisoned by the Privy Council at Edinburgh, 2 Dec. 1684, for bringing up her son in fanaticism and disloyal principles.

III. 1671 3. ROBERT (COLVILL), LORD COLVILL OF OCHILTREE to [S.], only s. and h., took his seat in Parl. 27 May 1700.
 1728. He warmly opposed the projected Union, against which he voted on every occasion. He d. s.p., 25 Mar. 1728, when his Peerage, if not extinct, became dormant.^(b)

The title was however assumed as under, viz.:—

IV. By DAVID COLVILL, who called himself LORD COLVILL OF OCHILTREE [S.], claiming to be cousin and h. male of the last Lord, as s. and h. of William C., tenant of Balcormie Mill, co.
 Fife (bap. 1 Jan. 1676), s. of James C., whom he (falsely) stated to be next yr. br. to Robert, the 2nd Lord. This David, who was Major in the 51st Foot, never tendered his vote at the election of Scottish Rep. Peers, and d. suddenly, unm., 8 Feb. 1782, in London. Will dat. 7 May 1781, at Mahon, in Minorca, pr. 11 May 1782 by John Wemyss and Robert Colvill, Esq.

V. By ROBERT COLVILL, cousin and possibly h. male of the above, being only s. and h. of John C., of Ely, co. Fife, wright (bap. 12 Sep. 1691), yst. (but not the next) br. to William C., the father of the last claimant. He was served h. to the 3rd Lord 7 Apr. 1784. He not only called himself LORD COLVILL OF OCHILTREE [S.], but tendered his vote as such, which was received at the elections of Scottish Rep. Peers, 8 May 1784 and 28 Mar. 1787. It was again tendered at the election of 10 Jan. 1788, but was disallowed, it appearing from very sufficient evidence that Robert, the 2nd Lord, had no brother of the name of James, but that the James Colvill of Nether Kinloquhie (ancestor of the claimant), alleged to be such br., was son of an Arthur Colvill at Mylnetown, Pitmillie.^(a)

VI. By a person calling himself Lord Colvill of Ochiltree, who tendered his vote at the election of Scottish Rep. Peers in 1847, which was (notwithstanding a protest of the Earl of Selkirk) accepted; when, however, in the following year, he tendered the same, the title of Colville of Ochiltree was (under an Act^(b) passed in the interval) ordered not to be called, until the right thereto had been established.

I. STAPLETON COTTON, 2nd but 1st surv. s. of Sir Robert Salusbury COTTON, 5th Bart. [1677], of Combermere, co. Chester, by Frances, da. and coh. of James Russell STAPLETON, of Bodrhyddan, co. Denbigh, was b. 14 Nov. 1773, at Llewenny Hall, co. Denbigh; ed. at Westm. school, 1785-89; joined the army, as 2nd Lieut. 23rd regt., the Welsh Fusiliers, Feb. 1790; Lieut. 1791; Capt. 6th Dragoon Guards 1793, served in Flanders 1793-94; becoming in 1794, at the age of 21, Lieut. Col. of 25th Light Dragoons, with whom he served against Tippoo Sahib at Malavelly, and, in 1799, at the siege of Seringapatam; Col. in the army and Lieut. Col. of the 16th Light Dragoons, 1800. Major Gen. 1805, Lieut. Gen. 1812, General 1825. M.P. (Tory) for Newark, 1806-14. He suc. his father in the Baronetcy and family estates 24 Aug. 1809, being then in command of a Brigade in the Peninsula, and for his signal services at Talavera, 28 July 1809, received the thanks of Parl. Being in command of the 1st division of the Cavalry, he covered the retreat (July to Sep. 1810) to Torres Vedras. As Commander of the whole of the allied Cavalry (1811-14) he, being then second in command under Wellington, led the famous charge at Salamanca, 22 July 1812, which decided that victory. For this they both received the thanks of Parl., and he was nom. K.B. 21 Aug. 1812, G.C.B. after Jan. 1815. CONINGSBY, and CONINGSBY OF HAMPTON COURT BARONY. I. THOMAS (CONINGSBY), BARON CONINGSBY OF CLANBRASSIL [I.], was, on 18 June 1716, cr. BARON CONINGSBY OF CONINGSBY, co. Lincoln, with a remarkable rem. to the heirs male of his body by any wife he might thereafter marry,^(c) and, on 30 Apr. 1719, was cr.

(^a) He disinherited her on account of this marriage, and left his property to Greenwich Hospital. V.G.

(^b) His hanging a man named Gafney without trial in 1691 in Ireland, was afterwards made the subject of a serious parliamentary enquiry at Westminster, and found to have been an arbitrary and illegal act. Matthew Prior fiercely attacked him in a long and indifferent ballad, and Pope refers scornfully to his "harangues." His gallantry at the Boyne and Aughrim got him his Barony, and his zeal for the Hanoverian cause his Earldom. He was a dull, muddle-headed man, as can be gathered from his State Paper on the policy of William and Anne; he hated Harley, and when the latter was told at the time of his threatened impeachment that Coningsby had declared that he would have his head, he replied, "I am sorry I cannot return the compliment, for I would not have his if he would give it me!" V.G.

(^c) He was then a widower, with sons (by his 1st wife) living. He is said to have proposed marriage to Sarah, the celebrated Duchess of Marlborough.

EARLDOM. EARL OF CONINGSBY, co. Lincoln, with a similar spec. rem., failing which (in this last case) with rem. to his elder da., suo jure VISCOUNTESS CONINGSBY. See fuller account of him above, under "Coningsby of Clanbrassil." He d. 1 May 1729 when the Barony of Coningsby (cr. 1716) became extinct, but the Earldom devolved as under.

By him Hampton Court was sold in 1809 to Sir Richard Arkwright, whose descendant J. S. Arkwright sold it in June 1912. Leland wrote of this "goodly mansion place" that it was "sumptuously erected by one Sir Lenthall," who "was at Agincourt and took many prisoners there, by which prey he beganne the new building at Hampton Court." See vol. ii, p. 323, note "c," sub "BRISTOL." The "violence" of young Seymour must, however, have been of small moment. G.E.C. The 5 peers cr. in one month (as regards the first 4 of them, at the instance of the then Tory Ministry) were, in order of their creation, Lord Granville 13, Lord Guernsey 15, Lord Gower 16, Lord Conway 17, and Lord Hervey 23 Mar. 1702/3. This was for that date an unusual number of peers to make at one time, and it formed a precedent for the still stronger step taken in 1711/2, when 12 peers were created in 5 days, for a similar object (see vol. ii, p. 28, note "b"), and for the creation of 10 peerages in one day in 1776 (see note sub FOLEY). CONYERS

WRIT.

I. 1509. I. WILLIAM CONYERS, 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h. of John C. (who d. v.p.), by Alice, 3rd da. and coh. of William (NEVILLE), LORD FAUCONBERGE and EARL OF KENT, was b. 21 Dec. 1468; suc. his grandfather 14 Mar. 1489/90. He was knighted about 30 Sep. 1497. He is known to have borne the title of LORD CONYERS (1506-07) 22 Hen. VII, and was sum. to Parl. from 17 Oct. (1509) 1 Hen. VIII to 23 Nov. (1514) 6 Hen. VIII, by writs directed Willelmo Conyers de Conyers chivaler, whereby he became LORD CONYERS.^(a) Bailiff of the Liberty of Richmond, and Constable of Richmond Castle 22 Aug. 1509. He was head of a Commission to treat with the Scots 1 Feb. 1511/2, fought at the battle of Flodden, 1513, and served in Scotland under George, Earl of Shrewsbury, Sep. 1522. He m., 1stly, Mary,^(b) da. of John, LORD SCROPE (of Bolton), by his 1st wife, Joan, da. of William (FITZHUGH), LORD FITZHUGH, being related to her in the 4th degree (cont. 21 June; lic. reg. at York 24 Sep. 1479). He m., 2ndly,^(c) Anne, da. of Ralph (NEVILL), 3rd EARL OF WESTMORLAND, by Margaret, da. of Roger BOOTH. He d. 1524, before 14 Apr., aged 55.^(d) His widow m., 2ndly, as his 1st wife, Anthony SALTMARSH, of Hornby (lic. to m. in the chapel of Aldwark, 29 Apr. 1525), whose will, dat. 28 July, was pr. 9 Oct. 1550.

II. 1524. 2. CHRISTOPHER (CONYERS), LORD CONYERS, s. and h.^(e) Knighted 25 Sep. 1523. He had livery of his father's lands 16 July 1524. He was sum. to Parl. from 9 Aug. (1529) 21 Hen. VIII to 27 Apr. (1536) 28 Hen. VIII, by writs directed Christofero domino Conyers chivaler.^(f) In 22 Hen. VIII (1530-31) he signed the

^(a) He figures in a bogus list concocted by Dugdale (Summonses, pp. 491-2) as having been sum. to the Parl. beginning 12 Nov. 7 Hen. VIII (really the date to which the Parl. which first met 5 Feb. 1514/5 had been prorogued). As to this list see sub II Lord Willoughby (of Broke). V.G.

^(e) On 26 Oct. 1516 Lord Dacre writes to Wolsey that whereas at the request "of me and my brother Lord Conyers our son Christopher Conyers" was then to enter the Cardinal's service, he now desires that it may be delayed till Easter, and that in the meantime he may remain in Lincoln's Inn. He m., 28 Sep. 1515, at Kirkoswald, Anne, da. of Thomas [not William], LORD DACRE (of Gilsland), by Elizabeth, da. and h. of Sir Robert GREYSTOCK. He d. 14 June 1538. His widow's will^(a) dat. 16 Dec. 1547, was pr. 21 Apr. 1548.

III. 1538 3. JOHN (CONYERS), LORD CONYERS, s. and h. Knighted to 11 May 1544. He was sum. to Parl. by writs from 1 Dec.

(a) In her will she calls herself "Anne Lady Conyers Dowager of Skelton," and directs her burial to be "in Skelton, beside my lord my husband." There is no reference to any 2nd marriage, though she is commonly said to have m., 2ndly, in 1552 or 1553 Henry (Clifford), 2nd Earl of Cumberland; but the proof of her will in Apr. 1548 disposes of this story. Moreover, the Visitation pedigree of Yorks, 1584-85, "put in" in the Conyers case (1798) gives "Anne, da. of Thomas Lord Dacres" (1485-1525) as the wife. The Anne, da. of William, Lord Dacre, who did so marry, did not die till July 1581, and was presumably her niece. V.G.

Lancaster, by whom she had an only child, John Atherton, whose only da. and h., Anne, m. Sir William Pennyman, Bart., and d. 13 July 1644, s.p. G.E.C.

J. H. Round, who was consulted by the Crown on the Darcy (de Knayth) claim in 1903, writes that "the subsequent history of the Conyers barony has been unduly complicated by its conjunction with that of Darcy. Conyers Darcy was, through his mother, a coheir (according to the doctrine of abeyance now accepted) to the barony of Conyers and also, through Conyers, to the much older barony of Darcy, of which the earliest writ of summons was 1332. But the doctrine of abeyance, under Charles I, had not been clearly defined, and he petitioned in 1640 or 1641 for the old barony of Darcy with limitation to the heirs male of his body (see DARCY of Knayth). Not only was this petition granted, but he was also given, as shown in the text, his grandfather's barony of Conyers with the same limitation.

"No question as to the validity of this action by the Crown arose till 1798, when the Duke of Leeds, as heir-general of the above Conyers Darcy, claimed the barony of Conyers (but not the barony of Darcy). His petition is recited in 'Cruise' (1823), pp. 209-210. Search was then made for the patent of 1641, but in vain, and reliance appears to have been placed, in default of it, on the entry in the Lords' Journals of 20 Jan. 1641/2 recording that Conyers Darcy then took his seat as 'Lord Darcy

IV. 1641. 4. CONYERS DARCY, s. and h. of Thomas DARCY, of Hornby Castle, co. York (jure uxoris), Lieut. of the Tower of London, d. 6 Nov. 1605), by his 1st wife, Elizabeth (d. 6 June 1572), 2nd da. and coh. of John (CONYERS), LORD CONYERS, last abovenamed, was b. in York, and bap. at St. Michael le Belfry, 27 Aug. 1570; admitted Fellow Commoner at Caius Coll. Cambridge, 10 Dec. 1588, and then said to be aged 17. He was knighted 23 July 1603, and resided at Hornby Castle, co. York, the inheritance of his maternal ancestors. In the Parl. which first met at Westminster 3 Nov. 1640, he petitioned the King for the restoration to him of the dignity of Baron Darcy.^(a) On 2 Aug. 1641 a Royal Warrant directed the preparation of two bills to restore to him the ancient liberties, places, and states of John, Lord Darcy, and of John, Lord Conyers, and accordingly two signed bills issued on 10 Aug. and 12 Aug. 1641 respectively, the former stating that Conyers Darcy Knight is to be Lord Darcy, and the latter that Conyers Darcy Knight, Lord Darcy, is to be Lord Conyers, with in both cases Declaration and Confirmation of the said dignities to him and the heirs male of his body.^(b) He was sum. to Parl. 28 Oct. 1641, taking his seat 20 Jan. 1641/2, as "Lord Darcy and Conyers" under "his Patent of restitution and creation and his Writ of summons," when he was placed next below Lord Dacre [1321].^(c) On 13 July 1644, by the extinction of the issue of the other coheirs, he became the representative of his maternal grandfather, and consequently, according to modern doctrine, became de jure Lord Conyers [1509]. Previous to the determination of the abeyance of the Barony of Darcy in 1903, the Committee for Privileges decided that the effect of the signed bills referred to above was to terminate the abeyance of the ancient Barony of Darcy [and by inference that of Conyers]. It is held therefore that he became BARON DARCY (of Knayth) [1344]^(d) and BARON CONYERS [1509], both baronies being held in fee. He m. (lic. 1594) Dorothy, da. of Sir Henry BELLASIS, 1st Bart., of Newborough, co. York, by Ursula, da. of and Conyers' under 'his Patent of restitution and creation and his Writ of summons.' The evidence of the Warrants, cited in the text, that the limitation was to heirs male of the body appears to have been known but ignored, and the Patent treated as a determination of the abeyance without argument as to its terms.

"It seems a very singular fact that the barony was not then claimed de jure by the determination of the abeyance on the death of Dame Pennyman in 1644, which would have obviated any risk of discussion as to the Patent of 1641, though the fact of such determination was asserted by the Petitioner. But when that determination took place, in 1644, the doctrine had not been settled, nor indeed was it established till nearly half a century later." V.G.

^(b) He was given the old precedency in the Parl. of 1661, being placed between Lord Dacre (1321) and Lord Stourton (1448), and in the Parl. of 1679 was placed between Lord Ferrers (1299) and Lord FitzWalter (1369).

^(c) The Barony of Meynell, or Meinill, cr. by the writs of summons [1336-42], which, owing to absence of proof of sitting, is not considered to be a heritable dignity (see sub MEINILL), has by some been held to have been vested in the Lords Darcy from 1342 to 1418, and to have fallen into abeyance at the latter date between the families of Conyers and Strangeways. (See tabular pedigree sub DARCY). In 1644 Conyers Darcy represented the former coh. It was probably from an erroneous impression that the signed bill of 1641 "restored" this Barony as well as that of Darcy, that the words were here inserted.

^(d) This is the only instance of the s. and h. ap. of a Baron (possessing two Baronies) being sum. v.p. in one of his father's Baronies; a like summons, in the case of the s. and h. ap. of a Viscount, occurred in 1628, and in 1723. See ante, p. 401, note "a." See also vol. i, Appendix G.

AMELIA, suo jure BARONESS DARCY [1344]^(a) and suo jure BARONESS CONYERS [1509], also de jure Countess of Mertola [Portugal 1668], only surv. child and h. of Robert (DARCY), EARL OF HOLDERNESS, LORD DARCY and LORD CONYERS, &c., abovenamed, by Mary, da. of Francis DOUBLET, Member of the States of Holland, b. 12 Oct., and bap. 10 Nov. 1754, at St. Geo., Han. Having eloped, 13 Dec. 1778, from her husband, she was divorced by Act of Parl. in May 1779, and on 9 June 1779 m., also at St. Geo., Han. Sq., as 1st wife, John BYRON, 1st s. of Admiral the Hon. John BYRON. She d. in Upper Brook Str., of a "lingering disorder" 27 Jan., and was bur. 11 Feb. 1784, at Hornby, in her 30th year.^(b) Her 2nd husband d. 10 Apr. 1786, aged 63, being, by his 2nd wife, father of Lord Byron, the poet.

FRANCIS GODOLPHIN D'ARCY (OSBORNE, afterwards, 1849, D'ARCY-OSBORNE), DUKE OF LEEDS, MARQUESS OF CARMARTHEN, EARL OF DANBY, VISCOUNT LATIMER, LORD DARCY^(a) and LORD CONYERS, &c., s. and h., b. 21 May 1798. He d. s.p., 4 May 1859, when the Dukedom of Leeds, &c., devolved on his cousin and h. male, but the Baronies of Darcy and of Conyers devolved on the h. general as under.

^(b) A rather scurrilous account of her in The Abbey of Kilkhampton, 1780, pp. 59-60, by Sir Herbert Croft, states that she "Dared fly from the Arms of a Husband who treated her with Tenderness to the Embraces of a Profligate, who, from a spirit of Gallantry consented to an Union which neither his Honor or his Inclination prompted him to accept." V.G.

^(c) The patent of 1641 (see ante, p. 405, note "b"), under which Conyers D'Arcy took his seat, was not to be found. It is remarkable that "the [previous] Attorney Gen., to whom the consideration of the petition by the mother of the claimant was referred, was of opinion that since the abeyance determined [1644] there had been no sitting in Parl. which could be referred to the original [1509] title" (see Cruise); ignoring, apparently, the precedency [of 1509] allowed to Conyers Darcy, when sum. (v.p.) as Lord Conyers in 1680 (see ante, p. 407, note "e"); or, perhaps, considering it as of no moment and liable to be abated, as in the case of Clifford [1628] in 1737. See vol. i, Appendix D as to Precedency anomalously allowed.

MARQUESSATE [I.]

I. 1816.

(a) He appears in 1774, "Lord C . . gh . m and Miss F . . . r," in the notorious tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. vi, p. 519. See Appendix B in the last volume of this work.

(b) His Arms, Crest and Supporters were the same as those of his uncle the 1st Earl, but without the Williams quartering. V.G.

(c) At the same date his only br., the Rt. Hon. William Burton, received a similar licence, he having inherited the estates in co. Donegal, as also Slane Castle, &c., co. Meath, from Lord Conyngham, who devised those in co. Limerick and in England to his successor in the peerage. This William d. unm., 31 May 1796, aged 63, when the late Earl's estates became again reunited with the Peerage.

(d) Twin with his br., the Hon. Sir Francis Nathaniel Burton Conyngham, G.C.H., Lieut. Gov. of Lower Canada 1808-25, who d. 27 Jan. 1832.

(e) See note "b" on preceding page.

(f) See note sub Charles, EARL CADOGAN [1800].

15 Jan. 1816 he was cr. VISCOUNT SLANE, EARL OF MOUNT CHARLES and MARQUESS CONYNGHAM [I.],^(a) and 17 July 1821, was cr. BARON MINSTER OF MINSTER ABBEY,^(b) co. Kent [U.K.]. During almost the whole reign of George IV, 1821 to 1830, he was Lord Steward of the Household, and as such, Judge of the Marshalsea Court and of the Court of the King's Palace; P.C. 10 Dec. 1821. Constable of Windsor Castle 1829 till his death. He m., 5 July 1794, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields (spec. lic.), Elizabeth, 1st da. of Joseph DENISON, Banker, of St. Mary Axe, London, and of Denbies, in Dorking, Surrey, by his 2nd wife, Elizabeth, da. of William BUTLER, Merchant, of Lisbon. He d., after a lingering illness, aged 66, in Hamilton Place, Midx., 28 Dec. 1832, and was bur. 4 Jan. 1833, at Patricbourne, Kent.^(c) Will pr. June 1833. His widow, who was sister and eventually sole h. of William Joseph Denison, of Seamer, in the East Riding of co. York, and who, in her husband's lifetime, had been notorious as mistress^(d) of George IV, d. 11 Oct. 1861,

(a) See note sub Charles, EARL CADOGAN [1800].

(b) This was one of the "Coronation Peerages" (19 July 1821) of George IV, for a list of which see vol. ii, Appendix F. As to the choice of this title, see note sub John, EARL OF ENNISKILLEN [1803].

(c) He voted in the Parl. [I.] for the Union, and in that of the U.K. generally with the Tories, though he supported Cath. emancipation. The account of him in Sketches of Irish political character, 1799, though written by a political opponent, is favourable. "To the advantage of a good voice, but with some tendency to a lisp, he adds a pronunciation perfectly accurate . . . His language is precise, and unites elegance with force . . . His manner is warm and spirited . . . In reasoning he is condensed and argumentative, pointed and powerful. His speeches are full of instruction; apposite, solid, well digested. He has ever been a steady supporter of administration, and has always deserved the thanks of the minister, though, perhaps not always, those of his country." V.G.

(d) She succeeded Isabella, Lady Hertford, in that position, who had ousted from it Frances, Lady Jersey. It is said that she had received jewels worth £80,000 from the King. Anyhow, Greville, in his Memoirs, states (1821) "she comports herself entirely as Mistress of the Household," "lives in one of the houses in Marlborough Row," "has presents of enormous value," and (1829) "the wealth Lady C. must have accumulated by savings and presents must be enormous; the King continues to heap all kinds of presents upon her, and she lives at his expense. They [i.e. the Marquess and herself] do not possess a servant; all [such] have situations in the King's household from which they receive their pay, while they continue in the service of the Conynghams. They dine every day, while in London, at St. James's, and when they give a dinner, it is cooked at St. James's, and brought up to Hamilton Place." G.E.C. "It is said that two waggon loads of jewellery, plate, &c., were sent away from the Castle [at Windsor] by Lady Conyngham during the last months of the King's illness. All the time she professed the greatest distress, and prayed with unction for his recovery:—

First she packed and then she prayed
And then she packed again."

II. 1620.

I. RICHARD BOYLE,^(a) 2nd s.^(b) of Roger B., of Preston by Faversham, Kent, by Joan, da. of Robert (or John) NAYLOR, of Canterbury, was b. 13 Oct. 1566, at Canterbury; ed. at the King's school there; admitted to Corpus Christi Coll., Cambridge, 1583; sometime Student of the Middle Temple, London (being Clerk to Chief Baron Manwood), but on 23 June 1588, emigrated to Ireland,^(c) and became, in 1590, Sub-Escheator to the Escheator Gen.^(d) He was repeatedly accused of embezzlement, and several times apprehended, being, when he had returned to England after the rebellion in Munster, imprisoned in the Gatehouse for 2 months, but acquitted, to the discredit of his accusers,^(e) and made Clerk of the Council of Munster, 8 May 1600. He bought, through the mediation of Cecil, all the lands of Sir Walter Raleigh in Ireland, 7 Dec. 1602 (some 12,000 acres in the counties of Cork, Waterford, and Tipperary, for the small sum of about £1,500), obtaining ratification thereof from the Crown, 10 May 1604, and again 5 Mar. 1606. He was knighted (on the day of his 2nd marriage) 25 July 1603, at St. Mary's Abbey, Dublin, by the Lord Dep. Carew; P.C. for Munster, 12 Mar. 1606; P.C. [I.], 15 Feb. 1612/3; M.P. for Lismore 1613-15; Gov. of Loughfoyle, for life, 1614. On 6 May

(a) The Editor of the 1st Edition was indebted for a good account of the numerous Peers in the Boyle family (as also of those in several other noble families connected therewith) to Edmund Montagu Boyle (grandson of the 8th Earl of Cork), whose premature death at the age of 40, 11 Aug. 1885, deprived the world of a competent and most courteous genealogist. From his executors, by his request, G.E.C. received two large MS. vols., containing (as far as practicable) the names of the ancestors in the "seize quartiers" of all the Peers existing in 1884, compiled by E. M. Boyle with great care. Of this valuable MS. free use has been made in this work. G.E.C. His Arms as entered in Ulster's office on his elevation to the Peerage were:— Per bend embattled Gules and Argent, a crescent Argent charged with a crescent Sable for difference. Crest. A lion's head erased per pale embattled Argent and Gules, a crescent Gules charged with a crescent Argent for difference. Supporters. Two lions per pale embattled, the dexter Gules and Argent, the sinister Argent and Gules. Motto. "God's Providence is My Inheritance." Shortly afterwards the tinctures of the Arms were changed from Gules and Argent to Argent and Gules. There is no authority in Ulster's office for the Cap Coronet until the investiture of the 9th Earl as K.P. in 1860. (ex inform. G. D. Burtchaell). V.G.

(b) John Boyle, the 1st son, Bishop of Cork and Cloyne in 1618, d. at Cork 10 July 1620.

(c) With but £27 3s., a diamond ring and a bracelet. V.G.

(d) "A situation which he doubtless knew how to utilize to his special personal advantage." See article on him by T. F. Henderson in Dict. Nat. Biog.

(e) The following extract from Pym's MSS. (Hist. MSS. Com., 10th Rep., App. vi, p. 84) shews the bitterness of many towards him. As, on his marriage in 1595, he enjoyed an estate of £500 a year, the account of his pennilessness cannot have been true at any rate after that date. "The Lord Boyle made a Baron [1616] who they say not above 16 years afore, being a poore fellowe and in prison at Monster in Ireland, borrowed 6d, and now hath a great estate £12,000 yearly of Irish Land." G.E.C. According to Gardiner's History of England, vol. viii, p. 33, he was "a prosperous man of the world, imagining that a nation can be governed in accordance with the rules on which a pettifogging lawyer conducted business." V.G.

1616 he was cr. LORD BOYLE, BARON OF YOUGHAL, co. Cork, and, on 16 Oct. 1620, VISCOUNT OF DUNGARVAN, co. Waterford, and EARL OF THE COUNTY OF CORKE [I.].^(a) On 26 Oct. 1629 he was made one of the Lords Justices [I.], and on 9 Nov. 1631, Lord High Treasurer [I.], holding office till his death. In July 1633 Lord Wentworth (afterwards Earl of Strafford) became Viceroy, to whose measures he was mostly opposed, and by whose judgments against him he "was prejudiced in no less than £40,000." On 14 July 1634 he first took his seat in the House of Lords. P.C. [E.] 28 June 1640. In the rebellion of 1641 he raised two troops of Horse, fortifying his Castle of Lismore, and, at the battle of Liscarroll, 2 Sep. 1642, no less than 4 of his sons^(b) were engaged, one of them, Viscount Boyle of Kinalmeaky [I.] (who had been so cr. v.p.), being slain. He m., 1stly, 6 Nov. 1595, at Limerick, Joan, da. and coh. of Capt. William APSLEY, of Limerick (5th s. of Nicholas A., of Pulborough, Sussex), by Annabella, da. of John BROWNE, of Awney, co. Limerick. She d. s.p.s., at Moyallow, 14 Dec. 1599, and was bur. in the church of Buttevant, co. Cork. He m., 2ndly, 25 July 1603, at Dublin, Catherine (dowry £1000),^(c) da. of Sir Geoffrey FENTON, Prin. Sec. of State [I.], by Alice, widow of Hugh BRADY, BISHOP OF MEATH, da. of Robert WESTON, LL.D., Lord High Chancellor [I.], Dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin, and (1570-73) Dean of Wells. She (by whom he had 7 sons and 8 daughters) d. in Dublin 16 Feb., and was bur. 11 Mar. 1629 [1629/30],^(d) in St. Patrick's Cathedral there. M.I.^(e) He d. at Youghal 15 Sep. 1643, and was bur. in ^(a) The preamble of creation of the Barony is given in Lodge, vol. i, p. 156. The title of the Earldom was spelt Corke till the time of the 8th Earl, who first adopted the modern spelling of Cork. (ex inform. E. M. Boyle).

^(b) As to his sons, four of whom became Peers, see vol. ii, p. 264, note "a." As to his daughters, all of whom married into the nobility, (1) Alice, m., 1stly, David (Barry), 1st Earl of Barrymore [I.], and 2ndly, John Barry of Liscarroll; (2) Sarah, m., 1stly, Sir Thomas Moore (yr. s. of Garrett, Viscount Moore of Drogheda [I.]), and 2ndly, as his 1st wife, Robert (Digby), 1st Baron Digby of Geashill [I.]; (3) Lettice, m. George, styled Lord Goring, 1st s. and h. ap. of George (Goring), 1st Earl of Norwich; (4) Joan, m. George (FitzGerald), Earl of Kildare [I.]; (5) Catherine, m. Arthur (Jones), Viscount Ranelagh [I.]; (6) Dorothy, m., in 1627, Sir Arthur Loftus, of Rathfarnham, father of Adam, 1st Viscount Lisburne [I.]; (7) Mary, m. Charles (Rich), Earl of Warwick. V.G.

^(c) "I never demanded any marriage portion neither promise of any, it not being in my consideration, yet her father, after her marriage, gave me one thousand pounds in gold with her. But that gift of his daughter unto me I must ever thankfully acknowledge as the crown of all my blessings; for she was a most religious loving and obedient wife, and the happy mother of all my hopeful children." V.G.

^(d) According to her funeral cert. as given in Foster's Collectanea Geneal. V.G.

^(e) This "very fair monument" was actually "fixed in the place where the high altar anciently stood, directly facing the door of the choir, for the erecting of which, in that place, his Lordship was [not unnaturally] called in question by the Lord Dep. Wentworth." It was removed to the south side of the altar. The action of the Lord Deputy, "though not unjustifiable, was sufficiently indicative of his sentiments" towards the Earl.

III. 1643. 2. RICHARD (BOYLE), EARL OF CORKE, VISCOUNT DUNGARVAN, VISCOUNT BOYLE OF KINALMEAKY, LORD BOYLE, BARON OF YOUGHAL and BARON OF BANDON BRIDGE, 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h.,^(c) b. 20 Oct. 1612, at Youghal. By the death s.p., 2 Sep. 1642, of his br. Lewis, VISCOUNT BOYLE OF KINALMEAKY, and BARON OF BANDON BRIDGE, co. Cork [I.], who had been so cr. 28 Feb. 1627/8 with a spec. rem., failing the heirs male of his body, to those of his father, &c. (see under that title, vol. ii, p. 264), he may possibly have suc. to those dignities, though at that date (1642) he was only heir apparent of his father; anyhow on his father's death in the next year (1643) he suc. thereto, as also to his father's titles. Having m. Elizabeth, suo jure BARONESS CLIFFORD [1628], he was on 4 Nov. 1644 cr. BARON CLIFFORD OF LANESBOROUGH, co. York,^(d) and on 20 Mar. 1663/4 cr. EARL OF BURLINGTON, otherwise BRIDLINGTON, co. York. He d. 13 Jan. 1697/8.

[CHARLES BOYLE, styled VISCOUNT DUNGARVAN, 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h., was v.p. sum. to the House of Lords [I.] 20 Feb. 1662/3 as VISCOUNT DUNGARVAN, and to the House of Lords [E.] 16 July 1689 as LORD CLIFFORD OF LANESBOROUGH.^(e) He d. v.p. 12 Oct. 1694.]

(^a) The most interesting account of "the great Earl of Cork" (as he is usually styled) down to the year 1632 is, by himself, in his True Remembrances, printed in Birch's edition of the works of (his son) Robert Boyle, the Philosopher. "One of the chief causes of his success was the introduction of manufactures and mechanical arts by settlers from England. From his ironworks alone, according to Boate, he made a clear gain of £100,000." Sir Richard Cox, in his Ireland, says of him that he "was one of the most extraordinary persons, either that or any other age has produced, with respect to the great and just acquisition of estate that he made, and the public works that he began and finished, for the advancement of the English interest and the protestant religion in Ireland, as charities, almshouses, free schools, bridges, castles and towns, viz., Lismore, Tallaghe, Cloghnikilty, Tunyskeen, Castleton and Bandon, which last place cost him £14,000." G.E.C. He was "a letter writer of extraordinary talent. His style is light, witty, and allusive." V.G.

(^b) A long extract therefrom is in Lodge, vol. i, p. 152.

(^c) His elder br., Roger Boyle, b. at Youghal 1 Aug. 1606, d. at school at Deptford, Kent, 10 Oct. 1615, before his father's elevation to the peerage, and was bur. there. M.I. He was not slain at Liscarrol in 1642, as stated in Dict. Nat. Biog., which fate befel the 4th son, Lewis, Viscount Boyle of Kinalmeaky. V.G.

(^d) As to the only record of this creation see vol. ii, p. 454, note "b."

(^e) See vol. i, Appendix G, as to this instance of an eldest son being sum. v.p., both to the English and Irish House of Lords in one of his father's peerages in each Kingdom, which has only one parallel in the case of the eldest son of the 1st Duke of Ormonde. V.G.

IV. 1698. 3. CHARLES (BOYLE), EARL OF BURLINGTON, Éc. [E.], also EARL OF CORKE, Éc. [I.], grandson and h., being s. and h. of Charles BOYLE styled VISCOUNT DUNGARVAN abovenamed. He d. 9 Feb. 1703/4.

V. 1704. 4. RICHARD (BOYLE), EARL OF BURLINGTON, Éc. [E.], also EARL OF CORKE, Éc. [I.], only s. and h. He d. s.p.m., 3 Dec. 1753, when the Earldom of Burlington and the Barony of Clifford of Lanesborough (English Peerages by Patent) became extinct, the Barony of Clifford (1628) and the large estates of the Clifford and Boyle families devolving on his da. and h., but the Earldom of Corke, Éc. [I.] devolving as under.

VI. 1753. 5. JOHN (BOYLE), EARL OF CORKE, EARL OF ORRERY, VISCOUNT DUNGARVAN, VISCOUNT BOYLE OF KINALMEAKY, LORD BOYLE, BARON OF YOUGHAL, BARON OF BANDON BRIDGE, and BARON BOYLE OF BROGHILL [I.], also BARON BOYLE OF MARSTON [G.B.], cousin and h. male,^(a) being s. and h. of Charles, 4th EARL OF ORRERY and BARON BOYLE OF BROGHILL [I.], 1st BARON BOYLE OF MARSTON,^(b) Somerset, by Elizabeth, da. of John (CECIL), 5th EARL OF EXETER, which Charles was br. and h. of Lionel, 3rd EARL OF ORRERY, both being sons of Roger, the 2nd Earl, who was s. and h. of another Roger, the 1st Earl of Orrery and 1st Baron Boyle of Broghill [I.], who was the 2nd surv. s. of Richard, 1st Earl of Corke [I.]. He was b. in Glasshouse Str., 13, and bap. 18 Jan. 1706/7, at St. James's, Westm.; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 16 Aug. 1723; suc. his father^(c) as EARL OF ORRERY, Éc. [I.], and BARON BOYLE OF MARSTON, 28 Aug. 1731; took his seat in the House [I.]

^(a) As to the smallness of the estates which he thus inherited, see vol. ii, p. 433, note "b," sub BURLINGTON.

^(b) The estate of Marston was purchased by the 1st Earl of Cork for £10,350, and left by him to his yr. s. Roger, afterwards the 1st Earl of Orrery, whose grandson, Charles, the 4th Earl, was, in 1711, cr. Baron Boyle of Marston.

^(c) In his father's will, dat. 6 Nov. 1728, reference is made to him as having never "shewed much taste or inclination for the knowledge which study and learning afford," but this paternal pique is attributed by Dr. Johnson to the son not allowing his wife "to keep company with his father's mistress," and it is stated in Lodge (vol. i, p. 196) that "his Lordship hath been eminently distinguished in the literary world." Johnson, however, described him as "A feeble-minded man . . . His conversation was like his writings, neat and elegant, but without strength. He grasped at more than his abilities could reach; tried to pass for a better talker, a better writer, and a better thinker than he was." Pope writes of him as one whose praises are "that precious ointment Solomon speaks of." In parliament he was an active opponent of Walpole, but he is chiefly known as a friend of Swift, of Pope, and of Johnson, and as the author of some not very able though spiteful Remarks on Swift, Translation of the Letters of Pliny, Éc. See article on him by Sir Henry Craik, in Dict. Nat. Biog. G.E.C. and V.G.

(^b) Her picture by Reynolds is well known from Jacobé's print thereof, in 1779, as "the Hon. Miss Monckton." The description of her, by Miss Burney, in 1782, as "very short, very fat, but handsome, splendidly and fantastically dressed, rouged not unbecomingly, &c.," ends with the sarcastic remark that "her rage of seeing anything curious may be satisfied, if she pleases, by looking in a mirror." She was noted for her eccentricities, and as a leader of fashion. G.E.C. Lord Broughton in his Diary writes of her in 1824 as "a very singular personage. She is 76 years of age and has all the vivacity of 16. Her memory seems very accurate." Again, on 10 July 1830, he says:—"I dined with Lady Cork, Dr. Johnson's dunce. She seemed physically to be rather breaking, . . . intellectually she is as strong as ever." V.G.

BARONY BY WRIT. JOHN CORNEWALLE, s. and h. of Sir John C., was sum. to Parl. from 24 May (1433) 11 Hen. VI to 3 Dec. (1441) 20 Hen. VI, by writs directed Johanni Cornewayll' (or Cornewail') Chivaler, whereby he is held to have become LORD CORNEWALLE.^(d) About 3 weeks later, on 17 July 1433, he was cr., in open Parl., BARON OF FANHOPE, co. Her natural intelligence and keen wit had been fostered by an excellent education. She was very well read . . . a brilliant talker . . . She published a small volume [of verse], Memories and Thoughts, in 1886 . . . Thin and disappointing as it is, and eked out with enigmas, charades, and translations, the book at any rate reveals Lady Cork's warm heart." (The Times, Obituary Notice). V.G.

As might be expected, no contemporary document describes him as Lord Cornewalle, and in spite of his having been undoubtedly cr. Baron Fanhope, he is not called anything but Sir John Cornewalle, either in the writs or in the enrolment of his creation as Baron Milbroke.

CORNWALL (County of)

EARLDOM. BRIENT DE BRETAGNE, a Count of Brittany, 2nd s. of Eudes, COUNT OF PENTHIEVRE, in Brittany, by Onguen or Agnes, da. of Alan Caignard, COUNT OF CORNOUAILLE in Brittany, is often considered to have been EARL OF CORNWALL.^(a) He is mentioned in a charter as Comes Anglice terre.^(b) He was br. of Alan, who received the honour of Richmond [see sub "RICHMOND"], with whom he is said to have commanded a band of Bretons at the battle of Hastings. He received Cornwall and West Devon, when that region had been reduced into possession. Early in 1069, he witnessed a charter in favour of Exeter Cathedral, and, in June, put to flight the sons of Harold near the river Taw. He was probably deposed after the rebellion of Ralph de Gael in 1075. He was, subsequently, among the invaders of South Italy.

1. ROBERT, COUNT OF MORTAIN in Normandy, one of the two sons^(c) of Herluin DE CONTEVILLE, by Herleve, mother of William the Conqueror, was b. about 1031. About 1050 he received, from his

It is hard to believe that even at this late date (1433) a summons to Parl. by writ was looked upon as conferring a peerage with rem. to heirs gen. of the body, when we find Sir John Cornewalle, almost directly after the receipt of his writ, obtaining a peerage in the patent for which there is no explicit grant of any power to transmit the title at all, and which, if interpreted most liberally could only have given him that power with respect to his heirs male of the body. See note sub FANHOPE, Barony; and on the general question of how far early writs of summons did confer a Peerage see Appendix A in the last volume. V.G.

^(a) Chester Waters writes, as to the Earldom of Cornwall, that "the first Earl after the Conquest was Brient of Brittany, the elder br. of Alan, who was created Earl of East Anglia to soothe the Bretons in England, when they were indignant at the expulsion of Ralph de Guader, in 1075, and the transfer of Brient's Earldom to Robert of Mortain."

^(b) His nephew, Alan de Bretagne, by his charter dated 1140, in which he styled himself "Alanus Dei gratia comes Britan' et Cornubie et Richemuntis," gave a rent of 10s. to the church of St. Michael's Mount, "pro redemptione anime Brientii avunculi mei de cuius hereditate terram Cornubie possideo" (Monasticon, vol. vi, p. 990). As J. H. Round first suggested (Genealogist, N.S., vol. xvii, p. 1), it appears most probable from this charter that Brient, "Comes Anglice terre," was antecessor of Count Robert of Mortain in Cornwall and Devon as well as in Suffolk. (ex inform. G. W. Watson).

uterine br., William, then Duke of Normandy, the comté of Mortain,^(a) and was thenceforth known as COUNT OF MORTAIN.^(b) He accompanied William in the invasion of England, where he was in command of the chivalry of the Côtentin at the battle of Hastings, 1066. His share of the spoil was one of the greatest, as, with the exception of the lands of the King and the Church, he received nearly the whole of the county of Cornwall, and is, consequently, usually considered EARL OF CORNWALL, though only known as Comes Moritoniensis. At the time of Domesday he was possessed of 797 manors in various counties, besides the borough of Pevensy in Sussex, &c. In 1069 he, with Robert, Count of Eu, defeated the Danes in the parts of Lindsey with great slaughter. He joined his br. the Earl of Kent in 1088 in a rebellion against William II in favour of Robert Courthose, but was subsequently pardoned. He m., 1stly, before 1066, Maud, da. of Roger (DE MONTGOMERY), EARL OF SHREWSBURY, by his 1st wife, Mabel, da. and h. of William, SEIGNEUR D'ALENÇON and BELLÈME. 2. WILLIAM (DE MORTAIN), EARL OF CORNWALL, also COUNT OF MORTAIN, s. and h. He appears to have been b. before 1084, and to have coveted the Earldom of Kent, held by his uncle, Eudes (1067-97), and, being disappointed thereof, to have rebelled, with Robert de Bellême, against the King in Normandy, in an endeavour to recover that Duchy for Robert, the King's elder brother. They were defeated and taken prisoners, 24 Apr. 1106, at Tinchebray, when, being attainted, his honours became forfeited. He m. Adilidis.^(e) After many years' imprison-

JOHN,^(d) COUNT OF MORTAIN, 5th s. of HENRY II, having received from his br., Richard I, in 1189, six counties, including Cornwall,^(e) has by some been held to have become EARL OF CORNWALL, but no evidence is forthcoming that he ever bore that title. At the Coronation of Richard I he is styled Count of Mortain, and (jure uxoris) Earl of Gloucester. On 27 May 1199 he became King, when all his honours merged in the Crown. See fuller account under "GLOUCESTER," Earldom of.

This grant was renewed by Henry III, by patent dat. at Gloucester 7 Feb. 1216/7, with the words that he should hold the same sicut Reginaldus Comes Cornubie pater suus illum tenuit, but, though he is called EARL OF CORNWALL in a charter to the Priory of St. Nicholas, Exeter,^(a) such a grant can hardly be regarded as carrying with it the Earldom.^(b) He resigned the said County to the King in 1220, when he took the cross, and d. a Crusader in 1222.^(c)

He was Guardian of the Realm, Dec. 1307 to Feb. 1308; was Bearer of the Crown at the Coronation, 25 Feb. 1308; Chief Governor of Ireland, June 1308 to Sep. 1309. Constable of Berkhamstead Castle, and Provost of the county and city of Bayonne, 1307/8; Keeper of the Castles and Honours of Knaresborough and Wallingford, 1309; Keeper of Nottingham Castle and Chief Justice in Eyre, North of Trent, 1310 and again 1312; Keeper of Carlisle Castle, and Constable of Scarborough Castle, 1311/2. The nobility being, not unnaturally, displeased at the influence over the King exercised by this foreigner, demanded his banishment, and on the refusal thereof, captured the Earl, at Scarborough, and beheaded him, without any form of trial, 19 June 1312, on Blacklow Hill (where a cross has been erected), near Warwick. He m., 1309, Margaret, da. of Gilbert (DE CLARE), EARL OF GLOUCESTER AND HERTFORD, by Joan, da. of Edward I, the said Margaret being, consequently, niece of the Earl's patron, the reigning King. He d. s.p.m.,^(c) when the Earldom of Cornwall reverted to the Crown. His body was carried to Orford, whence, two years afterwards, it was bur. in the presence of the King and others, 2 Jan. 1314, at King's Langley, Herts, in the church of the Friars Preachers, newly founded by the said King. His widow, one of the coheirs of the great family of Clare, being sister of Gilbert, the last Earl of Gloucester and Hertford of that family, m., 28 Apr. 1317, Hugh D'AUDLEY, who, on 16 Mar. 1336/7, was cr. Earl of Gloucester, and d. 10 Nov. 1347. (a) "By a subsequent charter, 5 Aug. 1309, the county of Cornwall with its appurtenances was settled upon the said Piers and Margaret his wife, and the heirs of their bodies, by reason of which charter Margaret, widow of Gaveston and wife of Hugh de Audley, petitioned for restoration of the lands which had been seized into the hands of the Crown, and stating that there was issue of the said Piers by the said Margaret then living. But the Parliament ordained that the county, &c., should remain to the King, quit of the claim of Hugh and Margaret and of the issue of Gaveston and Margaret for ever." (Courthope).

1326. In the Parl. at Salisbury, Oct. 1328,^(a) he was cr. EARL OF CORNWALL, with rem. to the heirs male of his body. Guardian of the Realm, May to June 1329, and again Apr. 1331. Warden of the Northern Marches, 1335, and Commander against Scotland, 1336. He had Papal disp. to m., Oct. 1334, Mary, da. of Fernando IV, KING OF CASTILE AND LEON, by Costanza, da. of Diniz, KING OF PORTUGAL, though related in the 3rd and 4th degree. He d. s.p., 13 Sep. 1336, aged 20, being killed, it is said, by his br. the King,^(b) at Perth, when his honours became extinct. He was bur. in Westm. Abbey, under a magnificent monument.

DUKEDOM. EDWARD,^(c) styled "OF WOODSTOCK," but known, long after his death, as "The Black Prince," it is said, from the colour of his armour, 1st s. and h. ap. of EDWARD III, I. 1337 to by Philippe, da. of Willem, COUNT OF HAINAULT, 1376. was b. 15 June 1330, at Woodstock, Oxon. He was, by charter, 18 May 1333, cr. EARL OF CHESTER (being invested with that county), with rem. "to his heirs, being Kings of England." On Monday next after the feast of St. Matthias the Apostle, viz. on 3^(d) Mar. 1336/7, he was in Parl. cr. DUKE OF CORNWALL,^(e) and ^(a) In the [contemporary] chronicle of Geoffrey le Baker, it is stated that in the Parl. of Salisbury, Oct. 1328, the King cr. three Earls, viz. (1) "Dominum Johannem d'Eltham, fratrem suum," Earl of Cornwall; (2) Roger de Mortimer, Earl of March; and (3) the Butler of Ireland, Earl of Ormond [L.]. The date of the Earldom of March is usually given as 9 Nov. 1328, and there can be no doubt that the King's brother would have ranked before Mortimer.

^(b) Edward III slew him, in Sep. 1336, according to the Scotichronicon:—"Tandem sibi occurrit ad villam de Perth frater ejus Johannes, Heltham nomine, per partes occidentales Scotie iter agens, que terras quas frater suus nuper ad pacem acceperat et ecclesiam Prioratus de Lesmahago gladio et igne consumpsit ac plures animas ad ecclesias confugientes igne supposito cum ipsis ecclesiis extinxit et penitus delevit. Cumque idem Rex ante magnum altare Sancti Johannis super premissis eum, ut debuit, argueret: et ipse Regi indignanti animo responderet, subito fratris spata sive cuttello extracto percussus, rebus exutus est humanis." ^(e) This is the first instance of the creation of a Duke in England. There has been some confusion as to the facts of this creation. In the Third Report on the Dignity of a Peer (p. 186) it is observed that "In the patent for this purpose the words of creation used are," etc. But, firstly, the instrument in question is a charter, not a patent, and, secondly, it was not issued for the purpose of this creation. The charter—Rot. Cart. 11 Edw. III, no. 60, printed in Appendix to the Lords' Reports (vol. v, p. 358)—was granted in Parliament 17 Mar. 1336/7, and begins by reciting that the King had previously created his son Duke of Cornwall ("filio nostro nomen et honorem ducis Cornubie dedimus ipsumque in ducem Cornubie prefecimus et gladio cinximus"). It then describes itself as granted for the purpose of defining what the newly-created duke "seu alii duces dicti loci qui pro tempore by a charter of a fortnight later (17 Mar.) certain possessions were inseparably annexed to the Dukedom. On 12 May 1343 he was, also in Parl., cr. PRINCE OF WALES,^(a) and invested with a coronet, &c. He was knighted by the King, 12 July 1346, at la Hogue, winning his spurs at the battle of Crécy on 26 Aug. following.^(b) K.G., being included in the list of the founders of that Order.^(c) On 19 Sep. 1356 he gained the splendid victory of Poitiers, taking prisoner Jean, King of France. From 1355 to 1372 he was Lieut. of the Duchy of Aquitaine, and by charter,^(d) 19 July 1362, was cr. PRINCE OF AQUITAINE. On 23 Sep. 1366, he was cr. (by Pedro, King of Castile) LORD OF BISCAY AND CASTRO URDIALES, in Spain. He was sum. to Parl. 24 Feb. (1367/8) 42 Edw. III, 8 Jan. (1369/70) 44 Edw. III, and 6 Oct. (1372) 46 Edw. III, under the style of "Prince of Aquitaine and Wales," and the Principality of Aquitaine having been confiscated by the King of France, 14 May 1370, was sum. as "Prince of Wales" (only) on 28 Dec. (1375) 49 Edw. III. He m., 10 Oct. 1361, at Windsor, by papal disp. dat. 10 Sep. (she being 1st fuerint" ought to possess as belonging "ad ipsum ducatum." This it does by a grant of certain specified possessions to him as Duke ("sub nomine et honore ducis dicti loci") for the support of the dignity, with the habendum "eidem duci et ipsius et heredum suorum regum Anglie filiis primogenitis et dicti loci ducibus in regno Anglie hereditarie successuris" and the reservation that in the event of no qualified heir being in existence, at any time, the whole of the premises and the Duchy ("idem ducatus cum castris burgis villis et omnibus aliis supradictis") should revert to the Crown until such heir made his appearance. It is this limitation, "inconsistent with the ordinary rules of law," which eventually gave rise to the famous "Prince's Case" (see below); but it will also be observed that there is nothing to show if or how the dignity itself was limited when it was actually created, though the intention seems to have been to annex the possessions to the dignity and to make them both descend in accordance with the above limitation. (ex inform. J. H. Round). V.G.

(a) There had only been one Prince of Wales before, viz. his grandfather, Edward "of Carnarvon" (afterwards King EDWARD II), who was, in 1301, cr. Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester. See "CHESTER," Earldom of, cr. 1301. His father, King EDWARD III, though Earl of Chester in 1320, or before, was never created Prince of Wales.

(b) The tradition that the three ostrich feathers, with the motto "Ich Dien" (I serve), borne by him and by subsequent Princes of Wales, was the device of John of Luxemburg, King of Bohemia, slain at Crécy (1346), is discredited by the fact that such device does not appear to have appertained to that King, whose crest was an eagle's wing, the arms of his kingdom being the double-headed eagle. Moreover the ostrich feathers appear to have been a badge, not only of this Prince, but of Edward III, Richard II, and even of John "of Ghent," Duke of Lancaster, and his descendant, the Duke of Somerset. The motto seems singularly appropriate to the heir apparent, in the sense of St. Paul's words, "that the heir, while he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant." See Sandford (who evidently distrusts the "Bohemian" story), and see also an able article on "Feathers" in Parker's Glossary of Heraldry, 1847, where the matter is fully discussed.

wife, suo jure COUNTESS OF KENT, was b. 6 Jan. 1367, at Bordeaux in Aquitaine, but did not (owing to the spec. clauses^(d) creating those dignities) inherit any of his father's said honours. Being grandson of the reigning King (Edward III) and h. ap. to the Crown, he was, by charter, dat. at Havering, 20 Nov. 1376, cr. PRINCE OF WALES, DUKE

DUKE OF CORNWALL at his birth.^(d) Being but

^(a) Though, on the accession of his father to the Crown, he was the eldest s. of a King of England, that King was not the heir general (the obvious construction of heres), though he was heir male of Prince Edward, the original grantee of the Dukedom of Cornwall. It was therefore supposed that Prince Henry was not entitled thereto, under the terms of the grant of 1337, and that “a new creation became therefore necessary; but notwithstanding the express limitation contained in the preceding and subsequent charters, the limitations in this case are the same as those of the Principality of Wales—sibi et heredibus suis Regibus Anglie—the effect of which would be to vest that dignity in the Crown upon accession, there to remain until regranted.” See Courthope, p. 9.

^(b) In an Act (9 Hen. V), 1421, reciting the Act of (11 Edw. III) 1337, all reference to the heirs of the grantee (Prince Edward) is omitted. Courthope speaks of this (garbled) recital as a “construction given to the original statute.” See post, p. 448, note “c.” This theory would no doubt, if admitted, account for the allowances of the Dukedom in Dec. 1421 and in 1453, as well as for certain other allowances before, and all after, 1714; but it seems hardly tenable, inasmuch as the Act of 1421 was not passed for the purpose of explaining the original statute, and, apparently, was itself totally ignored in all subsequent proceedings respecting the Dukedom of Cornwall. The following is the account of this Act of 1421 given in Courthope, p. 12, note “r” :—“This Act, which is for disuniting the manor of Isleworth from the Duchy of Cornwall, and annexing it to the Monastery of Sion, recites the intent and meaning of the Act of 11 Edw. III in the following words :— ‘fuiſt accordee qe les fitz eisnes des Rois d’Engleterre c’est assavoir ceux qe serroient heirs proschiens du Roialme d’Engleterre fuissent Ducs de Cornewaille et q. le Countee de Cornewaille tous jours demoreroit come Duchee a les eisnes fitz des Rois d’Engleterre q. serroient heirs proschiens du dit Roialme sans estre aillours donee.’—Rot. Parl. 9 Hen. V (1421).”

^(c) As to his supposed name of “Plantagenet,” see vol. i, p. 183, note “c.” He is not included in Courthope among the Dukes of Cornwall. V.G.

^(d) Probably by the same force majeure as that under which Henry IV became King; possibly by interpreting “heres,” in the Act of 1337, as heir male; or, under the construction given, to that Act, in the Act of 1421. See note “b” above.

nine months old at the death of his father, he was never created either Earl of Chester or Prince of Wales.^(a) On 1 Sep. 1422 he ascended the throne as HENRY VI, when all his honours merged in the Crown.

bur. in Westm. Abbey.

RICHARD (PLANTAGENET), DUKE OF YORK (whose son, shortly afterwards, ascended the throne as EDWARD IV), having obtained possession of the person of the then King, Henry VI, was, on 25 Oct. 1460, declared by consent of Parl., HEIR APPARENT TO THE CROWN, and on 8 Nov. following, PROTECTOR OF THE REALM, and was granted in Dec. of that year, for the King's life,^(c) the Principality of Wales, the Counties of Chester and Flint, and the Duchy of Cornwall. It has been supposed that he thus became

(a) There have been six Dukes of Cornwall (heirs ap. to the Crown), none of whom were cr. Prince of Wales, viz. (1) Henry (afterwards Henry VI), s. and h. ap. of Henry V, 1421-22; (2) Henry, 1st s. and h. ap. of Henry VIII, 1510; (3) [Henry?], 2nd s. but h. ap. of Henry VIII, 1514; (4) Edward (afterwards Edward VI), 3rd s. but h. ap. of Henry VIII, 1537-47; (5) Charles, s. and h. ap. of Charles I, 1628; and (6) James Francis Edward (titular Prince of Wales, and afterwards titular King James III), s. and h. ap. of James II, 1688-1701.

(b) "Henry VI expressly states (Rot. Parl., vol. v, p. 293) that his 'first begoten sonne [at the] tyme of his birth was Duke of Cornewayle' so that the limitation [of 1399] was considered to have been the same as in the case [1337] of the Black Prince; added to which King Henry VI gives the Duchy to his said son to be enjoyed in as ample form as Edward, son of King Edward III, or as Henry V, his father, has enjoyed it." (Courthope, p. 9).

VI. 1470 EDWARD (PLANTAGENET), DUKE OF CORNWALL, and at his birth,^(a) being 1st s. and h. ap. of EDWARD IV, 1471 by Elizabeth, da. of Sir Richard WYDEVILE. He was b. to 2 or 3 Nov. 1470, in the Sanctuary at Westminster. By 1483. charter, 26 June 1471, he was cr. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, being invested by charter of 17 July following with the Principality of Wales and the counties of Chester and Flint. By patent of the same date 17 July 1471, he was, in Parl., cr.
DUKE OF CORNWALL,^(b) "habend. et tenend. eidem Duci et ipsius et heredum suorum Regum Anglie fil. primogenitis et dicti loci Ducibus," &c.
He was knighted by the King, 18 Apr. 1475. Nom. K.G., 15 May 1475. On 18 July (1479) 19 Edw. IV, he was cr. EARL OF MARCH and EARL OF PEMBROKE, to hold the same during the King's pleasure. On 9 Apr. 1483 he ascended the throne as EDWARD V, when all his honours merged in the Crown.

VII. 1483 EDWARD (PLANTAGENET), EARL OF SALISBURY, has been to held to have become, on the accession of his father to the 1484. throne, 26 June 1483, DUKE OF CORNWALL.^(c) He was b. at Middleham Castle, co. York, 1473, being only
s. and h. ap. of Richard, DUKE OF GLOUCESTER (afterwards RICHARD III),

^(a) Under the Act of 1337.

^(b) "Edward IV, though heir of Edward the first created, was not the heir of Henry [afterwards Henry V] the last created Duke of Cornwall. He probably considered therefore, that a new creation was the safer means of vesting the Duchy in his eldest son, and quotes the acts of his predecessors, Edward III and Henry IV, the latter 'indede and not in ryght Kyng of Englund' as the 'reason for his having delyvered the said duchie to his said first begoten sone.'" (Courthope, p. 10, note "g"). It seems, however, more probable that the reason of this creation was that the King considered that the original creation of 1337 was somewhat invalidated by the usage of the last 70 years, which had set it aside. The death (6 May 1471) of Edward, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, &c. (of the house of Lancaster) had occurred but a few months before this creation.

^(c) "There are several documents to testify to the fact of his having been considered Duke of Cornwall, amongst them a patent for the foundation of a chantry at St. Mary of Rykall (York) to say mass for the earthly welfare and the souls of the King, Queen Anne, Edward, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, and Earl of Chester, and the founders, dated 4 Dec. 1483; it is, nevertheless, difficult to conceive upon by Anne, yr. of the 2 daughters and coheirs of Richard (NEVILLE), EARL OF WARWICK AND SALISBURY. (See "CORNWALL," Dukedom of, 1453). On 15 Feb. 1477/8 he was cr. EARL OF SALISBURY, by his uncle Edward IV, and (under the name of "Edward, eldest son of the King") was cr. (by his father) 24 Aug., and inv. 8 Sep. 1483, as PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, with rem. to his heirs, Kings of England. He was knighted 8 Sep. 1483. He d. unm. and v.p., aged 10 years, suddenly, 9 Apr. 1484, at Middleham Castle, and was probably bur. at Sheriff-Hutton, when his peerage dignities lapsed to the Crown.

VIII. 1486 ARTHUR (TUDOR), DUKE OF CORNWALL,^(a) at to his birth, being 1st s. and h. of HENRY VII, by 1502. Elizabeth, "of York," eldest sister, and heir of line to EDWARD V. He was b. in St. Swithin's Priory, Winchester, 20, and bat. 24 Sep. 1486, at Winchester Cathedral, his grandmother, Elizabeth, the Queen Dowager, being one of his sponsors. K.B. 29 Nov. 1489. On the same day (by charter delivered into Chancery 1 Dec. following) he what ground a legal title to the Duchy was established, without charter or patent, unless the King considered that the Act of Parliament passed immediately upon his accession, which declared King Edward's marriage to have been a 'pretensed marriage,' all the children of the said King Edward 'bastards,' and all the issue of George, Duke of Clarence, 'dishabled by attainder,' had constituted him heir to the first created Duke, Edward the Black Prince." (Courthope, p. 10, note "h"). Such, doubtless, was the ground, being the same as that of the King's own title to the Crown. See, however, ante, p. 438, note "b."

(^a) Probably by the same force majeure as that under which his father became King. See, however, ante, p. 438, note "b." It is also to be noted that "his mother, Queen Elizabeth, was not only heir to the throne as eldest daughter and coheir of her father, King Edward IV, but, as such, she was also heir to the first created Duke of Cornwall; King Henry trusted not, however, to a title to the Duchy for his son, which should be derived through his mother, and in the Parl. held at Westm., 7 Nov., 1st of his reign, it was therefore enacted that the King should have, hold, and enjoy from the 21st Aug. last past the Dukedom of Cornwall, in as large and ample manner and form as the Kings Henry VI and Edward IV enjoyed the same, and further ordained that 'whensoever our sovereign lord have first a son of his body lawfully begotten, that the same son and prince have and enjoy the said duchy of Cornwall, &c., in as ample and large form and manner as any Prince first begotten son of any King hath had and enjoyed before this Act.' Coke's Reports, part 8." See Courthope, p. 10, note "i." To this, however, it may be added, that, granting that Elizabeth was heir to the 1st Duke of Cornwall, she can hardly (though Queen Consort) as the wife of one who was acknowledged as "Rex," before their marriage was arranged, be considered as Rex Anglie, under the meaning of the Act of 1337, and that, unless she was both such heres and such rex, her son could have no claim under that Act to the Dukedom of Cornwall. It has, however, been ingeniously queried whether Henry VII could not, jure uxoris, be reckoned the heres of the first Duke (Prince Edward), in which case his son would, of course, be entitled to the Dukedom under the Act of 1337.

Inst. K.G. 8 May 1491. He m., 14 Nov. 1501, at St. Paul's, London, Katherine, 3rd da. of FERNANDO V, KING OF CASTILE AND ARRAGON, by his 1st wife, Isabel, da. and h. of JOÃO, KING OF CASTILE AND LEON. He d. s.p. and v.p., 2 Apr. 1502, at Ludlow Castle, Salop, and was bur. with great state in Worcester Cathedral, aged 15. M.I. On his death, his peerage dignities lapsed to the Crown. She d. 6 Jan. 1535/6, at Kimbolton Castle, and was bur. in Peterborough Abbey.

IX. 1502 HENRY (TUDOR), DUKE OF YORK, next br. to the above-to named Arthur, Duke of Cornwall, &c., becoming, 2 Apr.
1509. 1502, on his said brother's death s.p., h. ap. of the King of England, was held to have become DUKE OF CORNWALL, and is so styled, in Oct. 1502, under the Great Seal.^(c)

(a) "The Signet Bill, of 27 Feb. following, for his investiture with the castles, manors, &c., recites his creation to have taken place 29 Nov. preceding, with consent and advice of the Peers of Parliament." (Courthope, p. 10, note "j").

(b) These facts are obtained from the Household Books of Henry VIII, and from a letter by that King, of date 26 June, both printed in Court and Society, by the Duke of Manchester, vol. i, pp. 118-121. Historians give a wrong date and a wrong place. (ex inform. G. W. Watson). V.G.

(c) "This being the first occasion on which an eldest son of any King of England had (since the creation of the dignity) died without issue in the lifetime of the King his father, leaving a second brother, then living, the question arose whether by the words, sense, and meaning of the Statute of 11 Edw. III, the filius primogenitus natus only, or filius primogenitus existens, were by the limitation of that Statute to be the inheritor of the Dukedom and possessions of Cornwall. On this occasion the latter construction was adopted (under what authority is not known), for in the October following the decease of Arthur, Prince of Wales, we find a commission issued under the Great Seal, in which Henry is named Duke of Cornwall, and in the same instrument called second begotten son of his father. The question was afterwards incidentally raised in the 'Prince's Case' (3 Jac. I), reported by Coke (part 8), in which it appears to have been the opinion of Lord Chancellor Ellesmere and the judges who assisted him (Coke, Fleming, and Williams) with their advice, 'that he who should inherit ought to be first begotten son of the heirs of the Black Prince, be he heir general or collateral, but such heir ought to be King of England;' and, in the course of the proceedings, it is expressly stated that Henry VIII, on the death of his brother Arthur, did not inherit, 'forasmuch as he was not the first begotten son, he was not within the said limitation,' which is at variance with the fact already recited. In 1613 the question again became the occasion of solemn inquiry before the King, and Lords and others of the Privy Council, the Master of the Rolls, and the King's Counsel, when

He was 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h. of HENRY VII, by Elizabeth "of York," eldest sister and h. of line to EDWARD V. He was b. 28 June 1491, at Greenwich, and bap. there in the church of the Observants, by Fox, Bishop of Winchester. On 31 Oct. 1494, under the name of "Henry, second s. of the King, Constable of Dover Castle, Warden of the Cinque Ports [both 5 Apr. 1492], Earl Marshal of England [31 Oct. 1494] and Lieutenant of Ireland" [12 Sep. 1494], he was cr. DUKE OF YORK,^(a) being (with several others, so as to celebrate that creation) made K.B. 31 Oct. 1494.^(b) He was inst. K.G., 17 May 1495. After his succession as Duke of Cornwall (as above-mentioned), he was (though not under that style, but merely) as "Henry, only s. and h. of the King," cr., 18 Feb. 1503/4, PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, with rem. to his heirs, Kings of England.^(c) On 9 Feb. 1506, he was made Knight of the Golden Fleece by the Emperor Maximilian. On 22 Apr. 1509, he ascended the throne as HENRY VIII, when all his honours merged in the Crown.

X. 1510. HENRY (TUDOR), DUKE OF CORNWALL, was, at his birth, entitled to the abovenamed dignity, being 1st s. and h. ap. of HENRY VIII, by his 1st wife, Katherine, da. of FERNANDO V, KING OF CASTILE AND ARRAGON. He was b. 1 Jan. 1510/1, at Richmond, Surrey, and d. there 22 Feb. following, and was bur. in Westm. Abbey, when the Dukedom lapsed to the Crown.

it was resolved that the words of limitation possessed the more extended meaning of filius primogenitus existens, and that upon the decease of Henry, Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall, Charles, Duke of York, had, both by reason and precedents, become entitled to the honour, style, and dignity of Duke of Cornwall, which he had and enjoyed accordingly." (Courthope, p. 11, note "k"). The King issued a "Declaration" announcing this decision, and it is reprinted in Collins's Proceedings, pp. 148-161.

(^a) "Upon his creation to the Principality of Wales, the letters patent of 31 Oct. 1494, creating him Duke of York, were declared to be 'utterly voyde and of none effect,' he having become heir apparent to the Crown; there appears to be no charter investing him with the Principality and Counties, as in his brother's case. (Courthope, p. 11, note "l").

(^b) From the time of Henry IV to that of Charles II inclusive, these Knights appear to have been generally made only at Coronations, royal marriages, or on the creation or marriage of a Prince of Wales. Exceptions, however, occur in 1478, 1494 and in 1605, on all of which occasions they were in honour of the marriage or creation of a DUKE OF YORK, the second son of the King. The Dukedom of York was held by every such second son from the accession of the House of York to that of George I, who, having no second son, cr. his brother Duke of York, in 1716, a precedent followed, in 1760 by George III, who, subsequently, in 1784, according to the time-honoured usage, conferred that title on his second son.

(^c) A reference to this creation on Parl. Roll [no. 130], 19 Hen. VII, no. 10, states that the ceremony was to take place on 23 Feb. 1503/4.

XI. 1514. [HENRY?] (TUDOR), DUKE OF CORNWALL, was, at his birth, entitled to the abovenamed dignity, being 2nd but (at his birth) 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of HENRY VIII,^(a) by his 1st wife, Katherine, abovenamed. He was b. Nov. 1514, and d. the same day, when the Dukedom lapsed to the Crown.

XII. 1537 EDWARD (TUDOR), DUKE OF CORNWALL, was, at to his birth, entitled to the abovenamed dignity, being 1547. 3rd but (at his birth) 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of HENRY VIII,^(a) and only child by his 3rd wife, Jane, da.
of Sir John SEYMOUR. He was b. at Hampton Court, Midx., 12, and bap.
there 15 Oct. 1537, the day of his mother's death. He was about to be
cr. Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester at the time of his father's death, 28 Jan. 1546/7,^(b) at which date he ascended the throne as EDWARD VI, when the Dukedom merged in the Crown.

XIII. 1603 HENRY FREDERICK (STUART), DUKE OF ROTHSAY,^(c) to &c. [S.], became, on 24 Mar. 1602/3, DUKE OF 1612. CORNWALL at the accession of his father to the throne of England.^(d) He was s. and h. ap. of JAMES I

^(a) See ante, p. 442, note "c."

^(b) "He was christened the Munday following [the Friday of his birth] with great magnificence, &c. . . . Garter King of Arms proclaiming the name of the Prince, whence possibly Grafton supposed him created Prince of Wales, as he hath it, six days after his birth, which he never was, for in the 9th year of his age, when all things were prepared and in readiness for his creation, his father dy'd." (Sandford, p. 497).

^(c) Since the Act of Parl. [S.], 27 Nov. 1469, enacting "that the Lordship of Bute, with the Castle of Rothsay, &c.," should be settled upon the eldest born princes [presumably sons] of the Kings of Scotland, each of those Princes has held the style of "Duke of Rothsay, Earl of Carrick, and Baron of Renfrew" as a Peerage dignity, together with that of "Prince and Steward of Scotland and Lord of the Isles," which last seem in no way connected with the said Act, which Act, indeed, appears more to refer to territorial possessions than to personal honours, though, doubtless, by seizin and investiture, the latter would follow the former. Accordingly, since the accession of the Kings of Scotland to the throne of England (1603) the Dukedom of Rothsay, &c. [S.] has been held by the same person and on the same tenure as the Dukedom of Cornwall. In 1751, on the death of Frederick, Prince of Wales, the heir apparent, the devolution of the Scottish dignities was dealt with as that of the Dukedom of Cornwall. See post, p. 449, note "f."

It might be doubted whether a dignity, so called into existence, continued to be a bonâ fide Scottish Peerage after the Union [S.]. On the accession, however, of George I, the heir ap. (afterwards George II) was added, as the first Duke to the list of the Scottish Peers, as Duke of Rothsay, and exercised his privilege as such by voting at the election of Scottish Rep. Peers, both in 1715 and 1716, an example which was followed by his great-grandson, afterwards George IV. In the return to the House of Lords, of the Roll of Scottish Peers, 27 Feb. 1739/40, by the Lords of Session, they stated particularly that the title of Duke of Rothsay had been added to the Union Roll.

Nom. K.G., 14 June and inst. 9 July 1603. On 4 June 1610 he was cr. in Parl. PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, which dignities by patent of even date were confirmed "sibi et heredibus suis, regibus Anglie."^(a) He d. unm. and v.p., not without suspicion of poison,^(b) in his 19th year, at St. James's Palace, 6 Nov., and was bur. 8 Dec. 1612, in Westm. Abbey, under the monument of his grandmother, Mary, QUEEN OF SCOTLAND, whose remains had been brought there from Peterborough Cathedral 11 Oct. 1612. At his death his peerage dignities lapsed to the Crown.

XIV. 1612 CHARLES (STUART), DUKE OF YORK, as also DUKE OF to ALBANY, &c. [S.], next surv. br. to the abovenamed 1625. Henry Frederick, Duke of Cornwall, &c., becoming, 6 Nov. 1612, on his said brother's death s.p., the 1st surv.
s. and h. ap. of the King of England and Scotland, became, as such, DUKE OF CORNWALL,^(c) as also DUKE OF ROTHSAY, &c. [S.]. He was 3rd but 1st surv. s. and h. of JAMES I (JAMES VI [S.]), by Anne, da. of FREDERIK II, KING OF DENMARK; he was b. at Dunfermline, 19 Nov., and bap. 23 Dec. 1600. On the same day he was cr. DUKE OF ALBANY, MARQUESS OF ORMOND, EARL OF ROSS, and LORD ARDMAN-
NOCH [S.]. On 6 Jan. 1604/5, he was cr., in presence of the Privy Council, DUKE OF YORK, being, at the same time (with several others in celebration of that creation) made K.B.^(d) He was nom. K.G. 24 Apr., and inst. 13 May 1611. Having, 6 Nov. 1612, become the h. ap. of the Realm (as abovementioned), he was, 4 Nov. 1616, under the designation of "Charles, Prince of Great Britain, Duke of Cornwall and York, and

Although the judges unanimously decided that the charter had the force of a statute, their reasoning, as reported, is not convincing, and their conclusions have been impugned by Sir H. Nicolas when dealing with the words "Assent of Parliament" in his book on the Earldom of Devon case. (ex inform. J. H. Round). V.G.

(^c) The like event had happened in 1502, when Henry (afterwards Henry VIII) became, by the death of his elder br., Arthur, the 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of the King, and was, accordingly (though not "primogenitus"), styled Duke of Cornwall under the Great Seal. Notwithstanding this precedent, "the case of the Duchy of Cornwall" was fully discussed at this time (as if it were unprecedented), and Prince Charles' right thereto was declared by the King, with the assent of the Privy Council, &c., and published 1613. He was b. 13 May 1629, at Greenwich,^(b) and d. the same day, and was bur. as "Charles, Prince of Wales," the same or the following day in Westm. XVI. 1630 CHARLES (STUART), DUKE OF CORNWALL, as also to DUKE OF ROTHSAY, &c. [S.], was, at his birth, 1649. entitled to the abovenamed dignities, being 2nd but
(at his birth) 1st surv. s. and h. ap. of CHARLES I, by Henrietta Maria, his wife, abovenamed. He was b. at St. James's Palace, Midx., 29 May, and bap. there 27 June 1630 (reg. at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields), the Queen Dowager of France (his grandmother), Louis XIII, King of France (his uncle), and Friedrich V, Elector Palatine (husband of Elizabeth, his father's sister), being sponsors. Nom. and inst. K.G., 21 May 1638. He was declared PRINCE OF WALES^(d) and EARL OF CHESTER, but appears never to have been formally so created. He was, however, so recognised probably before Nov. 1641, and certainly before 3 Apr. 1646. By his father's judicial murder he became King of England, de jure, 30 Jan. 1648/9, and de facto, 29 May 1660, as CHARLES II, when all his honours merged in the Crown.

XVII. 1688 JAMES FRANCIS EDWARD (STUART), DUKE OF CORN-

Dowager and the Pope (represented by his Nuncio) being sponsors. In the Gazette of 4 July, and again when bap., he was styled PRINCE OF WALES, and (in consequence would thus be considered) EARL OF CHESTER. On 11 Dec. following, his father was declared (such declaration being confirmed by Act of Parl. 2 Feb. 1689/90) to have abdicated the throne, but was, as well as the Prince, his son, recognised by the French King under their former rank. Nom. K.G. 1692, by his father when in exile. On his father's death, 16 Feb. 1701, his succession to the kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was acknowledged by Louis XIV, and he was proclaimed King at St. Germain. In consequence thereof (at the age of 13!) he was attainted of high treason! under the title of the pretended Prince of Wales, 2 Mar. 1701/2 (6 days before the death of his br.-in-law, William III), whereby all his honours became forfeited. His subsequent career is a matter of history. By his adherents he was styled King James III, though generally known (the Order of the Garter having been conferred on him in 1692 by the exiled Sovereign) as the Chevalier de St. George. In England he was often called the Pretender,^(a) and, after 1745, The old Pretender. Two celebrated Risings took place, one in 1715, and the other (under his son, Charles Edward) in 1745, to restore him to the throne of his father. He m. (cont. dat. 22, 23 July 1718, at the Castle of Ohlau, in Silesia), by proxy, 9 May 1719, at Bologna, and in person 1 Sep. 1719 (by the Pope), at Montefiascone, near Viterbo,^(b) Maria Clementina, da. of James Louis Henry SOBIESKI, PRINCE OF POLAND, by Hedwig Elisabethe Amalie, 7th da. of Philipp Wilhelm, ELECTOR PALATINE, which Prince was son of John, King of Poland, famous for his victories over the Turks. They are good, fine boys, especially the younger, who has the more spirit of the two, and both danced incessantly all night long. For him, he is a thin, ill-made man, extremely tall and awkward, of a most unpromising countenance, a good deal resembling King James II, and has extremely the air and look of an idiot, particularly when he laughs or prays. (c) On this allowance Courthope adds the following note. "Until this time the Dukedom of Cornwall had been enjoyed [save in a few instances] by the heirs apparent of the existing heirs of the Black Prince, in accordance with the more literal construction of the original limitation adopted by Lord Chancellor Ellesmere, or the more extended sense and meaning allowed to it in the later resolution of the Privy Council (see ante, p. 442, note 'c,' under '1502 to 1509'); in such few instances where heirship in blood did not exist, or might have been considered doubtful, special Acts of Parl. had been obtained. Upon the accession of the House of Brunswick, all right derived by inheritance from the Black Prince ceased and determined, and it is difficult to conceive by what title George Augustus, s. and h. ap. of King George I, became possessed of the Dukedom of Cornwall, unless we adopt the construction, still more liberal than that of the Privy Council of James I, given to the original statute (1337) in an act (1421) of Hen. V." See this Act quoted ante, p. 438, note "b."

Hanover. He appears, after the accession of his grandfather, in 1714, to the throne, to have been known as DUKE OF GLOUCESTER, and certainly received, 10 Jan. 1717/8, a royal warrant for being so created. Nom. K.G. 3 July, and inv. 24 Dec. 1716 at Hanover, being installed (by proxy) 30 Apr. 1718. On 26 July 1726 he was cr. (by his grandfather) BARON OF SNAUDON^(a) [Snowdon], co. XX. 1762 H.R.H. GEORGE AUGUSTUS FREDERICK, Prince of to Great Britain, Electoral Prince of Brunswick-Lüne-1820. burg,^(a) DUKE OF CORNWALL, as also DUKE OF ROTHSAY, &c. [S.], was, at his birth, entitled to the abovenamed dignities, being 1st s. and h. ap. of GEORGE III,^(b) by Charlotte Sophia, da. of Karl Ludwig, GRAND DUKE OF MECKLENBURG-STRELITZ. He was b. at St. James's Palace, 12 Aug., and bap. there 8 Sep. 1762, his grandmother, the Dowager Princess of Wales, and his great-uncle, the Duke of Cumberland, and the Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, being sponsors. He had, previously, when 7 days old, been cr.
19 Aug. 1762, PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, with rem. to his heirs, Kings of Great Britain. Nom. and inv. K.G., 26 Dec.
1765, inst. 25 July 1771; Col. in the Army 1782;^(c) P.C. 21 Nov. 1783; F.R.S. 26 Jan. 1789; Grand Master of Freemasons 1790-1813; Col. of the 10th Light Dragoons, 1796 till his accession to the throne. D.C.L. of Oxford (by diploma), 2 May 1810. REGENT OF THE KINGDOM, 6 Feb. 1811.
Knight of St. Andrew of Russia, 25 Nov. 1813; of St. Alexander Newski of Russia; of the Sainte Esprit of France, 20 Apr. 1814; and of the Golden Fleece of Austria, July 1815. He m., 8 Apr. 1795,^(d) at the Chapel Royal, Duchy of Cornwall was governed, but no instance having occurred of a like nature in Scotland, no certain opinion could be given; a draft of an Act of Parl. was prepared in order to obviate the difficulty, but no further steps in the matter appear to have been taken." (Courthope, with MS. corrections, p. 13, note "t"). An elaborate account of these proceedings is in Wood's Douglas, vol. ii, p. 437-439; but the period during which the heir apparent was of full age was only about 16 months, and the matter was concluded when on 25 Oct. 1760 he ascended the throne as George III.

^(a) See ante, p. 448, note "a."

^(b) George III, not being filius Regis, was consequently not Duke of Cornwall, and was the only instance, since the creation of that Dukedom in 1337, of the heir apparent not possessing that dignity. In the parallel case of a grandson and heir ap. (that of Richard, afterwards Richard II), the Dukedom was in Nov. 1376, conferred by creation, as it was also, when Richard (Plantagenet), Duke of York was declared "heir apparent" by Act of Parl. in 1460. There are six instances, however, where the Dukes of Cornwall never obtained the Principality of Wales and Earldom of Chester. See ante, p. 179, note "a," circa finem.

^(c) He and Miss Robinson appear in 1781, as "The Illustrious Heir and the fair Ophelia," in the notorious tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. xiii, p. 9. See Appendix B in the last volume of this work. V.G.

^(d) He m. 15 (not 21) Dec. 1785, at her house in Park Str., Mayfair (a marriage void under the Royal Marriage Act, but ecclesiastically valid), Maria, widow of Thomas Fitzherbert, of Swinnerton, and before that of Edward Weld, of Lulworth, St. James's Palace, his first cousin, Caroline Amelia Elizabeth, 2nd da. of Karl Wilhelm Ferdinand, DUKE OF BRUNSWICK-WOLFENBÜTTEL, by Augusta, eldest sister of GEORGE III. She, who was b. 17 May 1768, was living when her husband, on 29 Jan. 1820, ascended the throne as GEORGE IV, whereby all his honours merged in the Crown.

XXI. 1841. H.R.H. ALBERT EDWARD, Prince of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, DUKE OF CORNWALL, also DUKE OF ROTHSAÿ, EARL OF CARRICK, BARON OF RENFREW [S.], Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland, also DUKE OF SAXONY, was, at his birth, entitled to the abovenamed dignities, being 1st s. and h. ap. of Queen Victoria, by H.R.H. Albert, PRINCE CONSORT, Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and Duke of Saxony. He was b. at Buckingham Palace, Midx., 9 Nov. 1841, and was bap. (in state) 25 Jan. 1842, at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, the King of Prussia being in person one of the sponsors. He had previously (like his great-uncle, George IV), when less than a month old, been cr., 8 Dec. 1841, PRINCE OF WALES and EARL OF CHESTER, with rem. to his heirs, Kings of the United Kingdom,^(a) by which creation he became K.G., though not installed till 9 Nov. 1858, on his 17th birthday.^(b) On 17 Jan. 1850 he was cr. EARL OF DUBLIN "to hold to him and his heirs Kings of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for ever."^(c) Knight of the Golden Fleece, May 1852; Col. in the Army 1858; Knight Grand Cross of the Tower and Sword of Portugal, Mar. 1859;

Dorset, 1st da. of Walter Smythe, of Bambridge, Hants (yr. son of Sir John Smythe, 3rd Bart. [1661]), by Mary, da. of John Errington, of Red Rice, near Andover, Hants. She d. s.p., 29 Mar. 1837, in her 82nd year, and was bur. in the Rom. Cath. Church of St. John the Baptist, Brighton. Her character is generally (and probably correctly) highly spoken of, but Lady Anne Hamilton, in her Secret History of the Court of England, states that having "been left a widow twice, she afterwards accepted the protection of the Marquis Bellois, which intimacy was of considerable duration."

^(b) In the statute, 10 Jan. 1805, it was recited that "the Prince of Wales is a constituent part of the original institution" of the order. The effect of this was "to restore the Prince of Wales to his former position within that number" (i.e. the original number of 25 Knights) of which he had been deprived by the statute of 1786 whereby "all the sons of the Sovereign" were excepted from forming part of the original number of 25. See vol. ii, Appendix B. It is to be observed also that [long before 1786] George, Prince of Wales (1762), was not nominated K.G. till 1765, vice the Duke of Devonshire, while Edward, Prince of Wales (1471) appears not to have been nominated till 1475.

^(c) His grandfather, the Duke of Kent, had, in 1799, been cr. Earl of Dublin (extinct 1820), and a like title (extinct 1790) had previously been conferred in 1766 on the Duke of Cumberland, br. of George III, but both of these Peerages were of the kingdom of Ireland only, whereas this Earldom of Dublin is one of the United Kingdom.

CORNWALLIS AND CORNWALLIS OF EYE

BARONY.

I. 1661. I. FREDERICK CORNWALLIS, a yr. s. of Sir William C., of Brome, Suffolk, by his 2nd wife, Jane, da. of Hercules MEWTAS, was b. Nov. 1610; suc. his elder br. (of the half-blood) Thomas C. in the family estates in 1626, was cr. a Baronet, 4 May 1627, and was knighted 1 Dec. 1630; M.P. for Eye Mar. to May, and Oct. 1640, till "disabled" 23 Sep. 1642, and for Ipswich Oct. to Dec. 1660. He distinguished himself against the rebels in the civil war, particularly 30 June 1644, in the fight at Cropredy. He followed the King into exile and, returning with him, was Treasurer of the Household, 30 May 1660 till his death; P.C. 6 July 1660. On 20 Apr. 1661, he was cr. BARON CORNWALLIS OF EYE, Suffolk.^(b) He m., 1stly, about 1630, Elizabeth, da. of Sir John ASHBURNHAM, of Ashburnham, Sussex, by Elizabeth, suo jure BARONESS CRAMOND [S.]. ^(b) See an account of this and other creations, ante, p. 264, note "d," sub "CLARENDON."

^(c) Her husband was then attending the Oxford Parliament. V.G.

^(d) "A man of so cheerful a spirit that no sorrow came next his heart, and of so resolved a mind, that no fear came into his thoughts." (Lloyd's Characters).

III. 1673. 3. CHARLES (CORNWALLIS), BARON CORNWALLIS OF EYE, 3rd, but 1st surv. s. and h., hap. 28 Dec. 1655 at Culford; served in the King's troop of Horse Guards, 1673; took his seat 15 Feb. 1676. He was tried by his peers, 30 June 1676, for manslaughter, and found not guilty by 21 to 5.^(a) Said to have been Joint Registrar of the Court of Chancery, 1676;^(b) Lord Lieut. of Suffolk, 1689 till his death; P.C. 1 Mar. 1691/2; First Lord of the Admiralty, 1692-93; High Steward of Ipswich, 1692. He was a Whig. He m., 1stly, 27 Dec. 1673, at Westm. Abbey, Elizabeth, sister of the half-blood of Stephen, 1st EARL OF ILCHESTER, 1st da. of Sir Stephen Fox,^(c) by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, da. of William WHITTLE, of co. Lancaster. She d. at Tunbridge Wells, 28 Feb., and was bur. 5 Mar. 1680/1, at Brome, aged 25. M.I. He m., 2ndly, 6 May 1688, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Anne, suo jure DUCHESS OF BUCCLEUCH [S.], widow of James, DUKE OF MONMOUTH. He d. of fever, 29 Apr., and was bur. 5 May 1698, at Brome, aged 42. Will dat. 9 Oct. 1697, pr. 5 Aug. 1698, by his son Charles. His widow d. 6 Feb. 1731/2, in her 81st year, and was bur. at Dalkeith. Will dat. 16 Mar. 1723, pr. Feb. 1731/2.

IV. 1698. 4. CHARLES (CORNWALLIS), BARON CORNWALLIS OF EYE, 1st s. and h. by 1st wife; b. 1675; served in the campaigns in Flanders; M.P. (Whig) for Eye, 1695-98; took his seat in the House of Lords, 11 May 1698; Lord Lieut. of Suffolk, 1698-1703; Joint Postmaster Gen. 1715-21; cr. LL.D., Cambridge, 16 Oct. 1717; P.C. 11 Nov. 1721; Paymaster Gen. of the Forces 1721 till his death; Recorder of Eye, &c. He m., 6 June 1699, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields (lic. Fac. Office), Charlotte (then aged 20), only surv. da. and h. of Richard (BUTLER), EARL OF ARRAN [I.], by his 2nd wife, Dorothy, da. of John FERRERS. He d. "at 1 in the morning," 20 Jan. 1721/2, in his 47th year, in New Bond Str., of gout in the stomach, and was bur. at Culford. Will pr. Feb. 1721/2.^(d) His widow d. 8 Aug. 1725, at Tunbridge. Will pr. Sep. 1725.

(a) The facts were that he had been, when drunk, in the company of, and possibly abetting, a Mr. Gerard, who had killed a boy named Robert Clerk, by whom he conceived himself to have been insulted. (See State Trials, vol. vii, p. 143). "He was a young spendthrift, was very extravagant, loved gaming, lost as much as anyone would trust him, but was not quite so ready at paying." (Gramont, Memoirs, cap. ix). He is said to have been "in the especial favour of King William." V.G.

(b) So in 1st edit., but probably he only had the reversion of the office, which never fell to him, as the holder, the Earl of Dover, surv. him. His name does not appear as Joint Registrar in any edition of Chamberlayne's Anglie Politia. V.G.

(c) "He [Sir Stephen Fox] has married his eldest daughter to my Lord Cornwallis, and gave her £12,000, and restored that intangled family besides." (Evelyn's Diary, 6 Sep. 1680). V.G.

(d) "A gentleman of sweet disposition, a great lover of the Constitution, and well esteemed in his native county of Suffolk; inclining to fat, fair complexion." (Macky's Characters). In a letter of the Duchess of Richmond, dat. 31 Jan. 1721/2 (A Duke and his Friends, by the Earl of March, vol. i, p. 57), it is stated that he "killed himself with strong waters, which none suspected him for." V.G.

V. 1722. 5 and I. CHARLES (CORNWALLIS), BARON CORNWALLIS OF EYE, 1st s. and h., b. and hap. 29 Mar. 1700, in the par. of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields; Groom of the Bedchamber, 1721-22; Ch. Justice in Eyre, South of Trent, July 1722-40. Constable of the Tower, Lord Lieut. of the Tower Hamlets, both 1740 till his death; P.C. 12 May 1740. On 30 June 1753 he, being a Whig, was cr. VISCOUNT BROME of co. Suffolk and EARL CORNWALLIS.^(a) He m., 28 Nov. 1722, at St. James's, Westm., Elizabeth, 1st da. of Charles (TOWNSHEND), 2nd VISCOUNT TOWNSHEND OF RAYNHAM, by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, da. of Thomas (PELHAM), 1st BARON PELHAM OF LAUGHTON. He d. at the Hot Wells, near Bristol, 23, and was bur. 26 June 1762, at Culford, aged 62. Will pr. Sep. 1762. His widow d. 1 Dec. 1785, and was bur. at Culford.^(b)

CHARLES (CORNWALLIS), EARL CORNWALLIS, VISCOUNT BROME, and BARON CORNWALLIS OF EYE, 1st s. and h., b. 31 Dec. 1738, in Grosvenor Sq.; ed. at Eton, and at the Military Academy of Turin; Ensign Gren. Guards, 1756; A.D.C. to the Marquess of Granby (in Germany) 1758-59; Lieut. Col. of the 12th Foot 1761, and fought at the battle of Minden 1 Aug. 1759, and of Kirch Donkern, 15 July 1762. M.P. (Whig) for Eye, 1760-62.^(c) Under the Rockingham Ministry, he was Lord of the Bedchamber 1765, resigning the same year, and A.D.C. to the King, 1765-66, and Ch. Justice in Eyre, South of Trent, Jan. 1766-69. Col. 33rd Foot, 1766 till his death; Major Gen., 1775; Lieut. Gen., 1777; General, 1793. Vice Treasurer of Ireland, 1769-70; P.C. 21 Nov. 1770; Constable of the Tower, &c., 1770 to Feb. 1784, and again Nov. 1784, till his death. In the war with America (though opposed to the measures that caused it, and having voted for the repeal of the Stamp Act) he applied for employment, and held most important command, winning, under Howe as Com. in Chief, the victory of Brandywine, 13 Sep. 1777, and occupying Philadelphia next day; winning a decisive victory at Camden, 16 Aug. 1780, and another, though with great loss, at Guildford, 15 Mar. 1781. He then planned a general invasion of Virginia, but being expressly ordered by Sir Henry Clinton to remain at Yorktown (an exposed post), he and his 4,000 men were surrounded and outnumbered by the American and French troops, and on 19 Oct. 1781, obliged to capitulate. From Aug. to Sep. 1785, he was Envoy Extraordinary to Frederick the Great. He was GOVERNOR GENERAL OF BENGAL, and Commander in Chief in the East Indies, 1786-93, during which period he finally broke the power of the Mysore dynasty, and by the siege of Seringapatam, Feb. 1792, compelled the Sultan Tippoo (who in 1790 had attacked one of our allies) to surrender half his territory and to pay £3,600,000. He also effected many useful reforms in the East Indian administration. He was nom. K.G. 2 June 1786 (the ensigns being delivered to him at Calcutta, 4 Mar. 1787), and inst. 29 May 1801. On 8 Oct. 1792, he was cr. MARQUESS CORNWALLIS.^(a) Spec. Commissioner to the allied armies in Flanders, 1794; Master Gen. of the Ordnance, 1795-1801. App. Gov. GEN. OF BENGAL for the 2nd time Feb. 1797, but did not proceed there, and resigned in the following Aug. From June 1798 to May 1801, he was LORD LIEUT. OF IRELAND, and Commander in Chief, finally suppressing the rebellion of 1798 and assisting in carrying the act of Union. In Sep. 1801, he was sent as Plenipotentiary to Amiens, signing the treaty there (an unfavourable one for England) on 27 Mar. 1802. Early in 1805 he was, again, made Gov. GEN. OF BENGAL and Com. in Chief, with the intention of putting an end to the "ruinous warfare," but he died soon after landing. He m., 14 July 1768, in Stratton Str., Piccadilly, St. Geo., Han. Sq., Jemima Tulikens, sister of Arnoldus JONES, afterwards SKELTON, of Branthwaite, Cumberland, da. of James JONES, sometime Capt. of the 3rd Guards, by Mary his wife, formerly Mary TULIKENS, spinster. She d. at Culford Hall, 14, and was bur. 16 Apr.^(b) 1779, at Culford. He d. 5 Oct. 1805, aged 66, at Ghazipore, in the province of Benares, East India, where a mausoleum was erected over his remains. M.I. at St. Paul's, London. Will pr. May 1806.^(c)

(a) See note "a" on preceding page.

(b) The month of her death is usually given as July, but see her husband's letter of 5 May 1779, in Hist. MSS. Com., Various MSS., vol. vi, p. 319. V.G.

(c) He and Mrs. Powell appear in 1782, as "The British Fabius and Mrs. P. . w . . ll," in the notorious tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. xiv, p. 68. See Appendix B in the last volume of this work. As to his love for "Military glory," see some satirical lines in vol. i, Appendix H. "In addition to mental powers of a high order, he possessed moral attributes, a noble, humane, and generous spirit, unselfish devotion to duty, modesty and fortitude in good and evil fortune, which, more than mere intellectual superiority, make a man great, an honour to his country, and an ornament of its public life." (Hist. MSS. Com., Various MSS., vol. vi, Preface, p. xlii). Lord Teignmouth, who served under him and succeeded him in India, says of him, "I love and esteem his character, the honesty of his principle is inflexible; he is manly, affable, and good-natured; of an excellent judgement, and has a degree of application to business beyond what you would suppose." De Quincy writes of him in 1861, long after his death, "I was disappointed to find no traces in his manner of the energetic activity I presumed him to possess: he seemed, on the contrary, slow and even heavy, but benevolent and considerate in a degree which won the confidence at once." Bishop Percy refers to him, on his arrival in Ireland, as "very civil and pleasant, but he will not be a favourite here, for he is very sober himself, and does not push the bottle. They also think him too merciful to the rebels." During his short Viceroyalty in Ireland there were no less than 44 creations and promotions in the Irish peerage (see Appendix H to this volume). His disgust at the dirty work he had to do was forcibly expressed by him: "How I long to kick those whom my public duty obliges me to court." V.G.

Clarendon, in his History of the Rebellion, calls him "a master of temper and of the most profound dissimulation"; and later on in the same work says, "He had a very fine and extraordinary understanding in the nature of beasts and birds, and above all in all kinds of plantations and arts of husbandry. He was born a gentleman both by his father and mother . . . His mother was a Stafford [sic], nearly allied to Sir Edward Stafford . . . He was of an excellent humour and very easy to live with, and under a grave countenance covered the most mirth and caused more than any man . . . though he loved money very well and did not warily enough consider the circumstances of getting it, he spent it well all ways but in giving which he did not affect . . . He left behind him a greater esteem of his parts than love of his person . . . His greatest fault was that he could dissemble and make men believe that he loved them very well when he cared not for them." Browning, in his Stratford, Act I, Sc. i, describes him, by the mouth of Rudyard, as "the muck worm Cottingham." V.G.

^(b) He had, when weak both in body and mind (Riddell, p. 86) been inveigled into resigning his honours and estates in favour of his young wife and any one whom she might marry; obtaining a crown grant under the caschet [i.e. Sign-manual] thereon. This, however, on an action of reduction by Lord Balmerinoch, the heir-at-law, was set aside, 28 June 1671, by the Court of Session, under the law of death-bed. The report is very full, and clearly shews (what has sometimes been ignored) that the dignity as well as the estates were in question.

^(c) The title of Balmerinoch, the issue male of the 1st Lord having failed, became extinct; some doubt, however, may remain as to that of Coupar, as the "infeftment of the Barony of Balumby" referred to in the charter of creation is unrecorded, and its terms unknown. COURTENAY OF POWDERHAM CASTLE

VISCOUNTCY. I. SIR WILLIAM COURTENAY, Bart., de jure^(b) EARL OF DEVON, s. and h. of Sir William C., of Powderham Castle, Devon, also de jure^(b) EARL OF DEVON, was b. 11 Feb. 1710, suc. his father, 10 Oct. 1735, and was, on 6 May 1762, cr. VISCOUNT COURTENAY OF POWDERHAM CASTLE, Devon. He d. ten days afterwards, 16 May 1762. See fuller account under "DEVON" (de jure) Earls of, 1735 to 1835.

(a) Any Barony of Courtenay that may be supposed to have been cr. by the writ of 1299, and that vested in this Earl, would, except for the attainder, have passed, on his death unm., to his brothers (the last of whom d. unm. 1471), and then to his sisters or their descendants. Of these, three d. young, while (1) Joan, b. 1447, m., 1stly, Sir Roger Clifford, who was beheaded 1485; she m., 2ndly, Sir William Knyvett, and left issue. (2) Elizabeth, b. 1449, m. Sir Hugh Conway, living 1471/2, aged 22. On the failure (only) of the issue of these two sisters would it vest in the numerous representatives of the 4 daughters of Sir Hugh Courtenay, of Boconnock, father of Edward, cr. Earl of Devon in 1485, whose issue became extinct in 1556.

(b) According to the extraordinary decision of the House of Lords, 14 Mar. 1831.

II. 1762. 2. WILLIAM (COURTENAY), VISCOUNT COURTENAY OF POWDERHAM CASTLE, and de jure^(a) EARL OF DEVON, only s. and h., b. 30 Oct. 1742. He d. 14 Dec. 1788.

III. 1788 to 1835. 3. WILLIAM (COURTENAY), VISCOUNT COURTENAY OF POWDERHAM CASTLE, and de jure^(a) EARL OF DEVON, only s. and h., b. 30 July 1768. On 14 May 1831 he was declared EARL OF DEVON by the House of Lords, under the rem., in the creation of that Earldom, 3 Sep. 1553, to the grantee "and his heirs male;" he being, indeed, collaterally (though most remotely) heir male to the grantee, inasmuch as his grandfather's grandfather's grandfather's grandfather (though all these were unconscious of their right to such dignity), Sir William Courtenay (d. 1557), was cousin and h. male of the grantee of 1553, whose ancestor in the seventh degree was Sir William's grandfather's grandfather's grandfather's grandfather. The Earl d. unm., 26 Nov. 1835, when the Viscounty of Courtenay of Powderham became extinct; the Earldom of Devon devolving^(a) on another branch of the Courtenay family, as heirs male of the grantee of 1553.

then. In 1766 he protested against the Repeal of the Stamp Act, and in 1770 against the Middlesex election proceedings; i.e. he was for the Court in the first case and against it in the second, voting with the Grenville section of the Whigs in both cases. In 1778, 1779, 1780 and 1781, he signed protests against North's Govt. and their American policy. From 1783 he voted with Pitt against the Coalition's India Bill in that year, and for the Regency Bill in 1789. Apparently he was anti-North, except on the one point of the repeal of the Stamp Act. (Thackeray, Four Georges). "She [Mary Gunning, Countess of Coventry] is a fine figure and vastly handsome, notwithstanding a silly look sometimes about her mouth; she has a thousand airs, but with a sort of innocence that diverts one." (Mrs. Delany, 10 Nov. 1754). V.G. She was the more lovely of the two (or rather three) sisters, so famed for their beauty, of whom Elizabeth was Duchess of Hamilton and afterwards Duchess of Argyll. See vol. i, p. 210, note "a." Horace Walpole writes, 27 Feb. 1752, of "the extempore wedding of the youngest of the two Gunnings" [with the Duke of Hamilton, for the two sisters married within less than three weeks], and adds that "Lord Coventry, a grave young Lord, of the remains of the patriot breed, has long dangled after the eldest, virtuously with regard to her honour; not very honourably with regard to his own credit," [and] "declares that now he will marry the other." The portrait of this lady, by various painters, has been many times engraved.

III. 1661. 3. GEORGE (COVENTRY), BARON COVENTRY OF AYLESBOROUGH, 1st s. and h., b. about 1628; Custos Rot. of co. Worcester, 1660. He m., 18 July 1653, Margaret, da. of John (TUFTON), 2nd EARL OF THANET, by Margaret, da. of Richard (SACKVILLE), EARL OF DORSET. He d. 15 Dec. 1680, at Lincoln's Inn Fields afsd., aged 52, and was bur. at Croome. Admon. 17 Jan. 1680/1. His widow, who was b. 13 July 1636, was living July 1687, and d. at Canterbury.

(^a) By his 2nd wife he was father of Henry Coventry, sometime Secretary of the North, and of Sir William C., both leading politicians in the reign of Charles II. V.G.

(^b) Bacon in 1616 speaks of him as a "well learned and an honest man; but he hath been, as it were, bred by Lord Coke and seasoned in his ways." Lord Clarendon writes of him that "he was a man rather exceedingly liked than passionately beloved," and that "he discharged all the offices he went through with great abilities and singular reputation of integrity," which last good quality appears to have been generally acknowledged by his contemporaries. He was, however, more of a lawyer than a politician, and appears to have had little influence at Court. Lord Hardwicke states that he "was very able, and contributed a great deal towards modelling the Court of Chancery." Sir Henry Craik remarks that "from small beginnings he had by profound knowledge and consummate dexterity attained the highest position in the law;" and that he had "managed to combine the grace of the courtier with a simplicity of his own." ^(a) Of the five brothers who survived infancy, no less than 4 held separate Peerages (1) Richard, the eldest br., was Marquess Wellesley, Earl of Mornington, &c. [I.], and Baron Wellesley [G.B.]; (2) William, the 2nd br., was Baron Maryborough [U.K.], and afterwards Earl of Mornington [I.]; (3) Arthur, the 3rd br., was the well-known Duke of Wellington; while (4) Henry, the 5th br., was Baron Cowley as above. Had the 5th and only remaining br., Gerald Valerian Wellesley, D.D. (who d. 24 Oct. 1848, aged 78), obtained a Bishopric, all five brothers might have had seats together in the House of Lords. For similar instances of several brothers sitting together in the House of Lords, see vol. ii, p. 264, note "a."

^(b) He was elected for Athlone at the same time, but chose Eye, for which place he had also been elected at a bye-election 9 days before the dissolution. V.G.

^(c) See an account of these special Garter missions, in vol. ii, Appendix B.

^(d) The paternal name of this family was COLLEY or COWLEY, formerly of Castle Carbery, co. Kildare; but the name of Wesley was assumed, 15 Nov. 1728, by his Lordship's grandfather, Richard Colley of Dublin (afterwards [1746] cr. BARON MORNINGTON [I.]), in compliance with the will of that gentleman's cousin, Garret Wesley, then "late of Dangan and Mornington, co. Meath, Esq." (who d. 23 Sep. 1728), whose estates he inherited upon that condition. Testator's mother was Elizabeth Colley, aunt to Richard Colley, the devisee, who thus, though inheriting the Wellesley estates, in no way represented that family. He had, indeed, a descent in the 8th degree (not one involving any representation) from Sir Wm. Wellesley, of Dangan (who d. about 1495), through Sir William's daughter Alison, who m. John Cusack, and was grandmother of Katherine Cusack, who m. Sir Henry Colley, and d. 1597. (^d) "The history of Lord Cowley's Embassy at Paris is the history of the Second Empire in its relations with this country. Lord Cowley went to Paris a little more than two months after the Coup d'Etat, and he finally quitted it just three years before the declaration of war in 1870 between France and Prussia. In those 15 years he was a witness and an actor in some of the most momentous events of modern history. There were not wanting occasions between 1852 and 1867 when a lack of discretion, good sense, and forbearance on the part of the British Ambassador might easily have endangered the peaceful relations of the two countries." Such were (1) the alliance between France and England during the Crimean war, at the conclusion of which he, together with Lord Clarendon, was one of the English Plenipotentiaries for the Treaty of Paris, in 1856; (2) the peace with Persia, also signed at Paris, 1857; (3) the plot of Orsini against the Emperor's life, 14 Jan. 1858, which having been "hatched in England" exasperated the public feeling of France against us; (4) the war between France and Austria, 1859, followed by the "cession of Savoy and Nice to France, which caused so much irritation in England;" (5) The treaty of Commerce between France and England, signed 23 Jan. 1860, in which Lord Cowley was Joint

I. 1718.

I. WILLIAM COWPER, s. and h. of Sir William C., 2nd Bart. (of Ratling Court^(a) in Nonington, Kent), by Sarah, da. of Samuel HOLLED, of London, merchant; is said to have been b. about 1665, at Hertford Castle;^(b) ed. at St. Albans' school; Barrister (Mid-Temple) 1688; K.C., 1689, having, with 30 volunteers, joined the King (when Prince of Orange) at Wallingford some short time before;^(c) Recorder of Colchester; M.P. (Whig) for Hertford, 1695-1700, and for Beeralston, 1700/1-05.^(d) By Queen Anne he was continued as Q.C., 1702, and on 11 Oct. 1705, was, by the Whig party (the Attorney and Sol. Gen. being both passed over) made KEEPER OF THE GREAT SEAL and P.C.; Commissioner for the Union [S.], 1706. F.R.S. 3 Apr. 1706. On 26 Nov. 1706 he suc. his father as a Baronet [E. and S.]. On 14 Dec.^(e) 1706, he was cr. BARON COWPER OF WINGHAM, Kent. LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF GREAT BRITAIN 4 May 1707, but resigned that office 23 Sep. 1710, was re-appointed by George I, 21 Sep. 1714, and held office till Apr. 1718. Lord Lieut. of Herts 1710-12, and 1714-21. One of the Lords Justices Regents of the Kingdom during the momentous period, 1 Aug. to 18 Sep. 1714;^(f) and acted as Lord High Steward 10 Jan. and 15 Mar. 1716, for the trial of "the rebel lords," and again, 24 June 1717, for the trial of the Earl of Oxford. ^(b) "Mr. Cowper who is made Lord Keeper is but 41 years of age, being the youngest Lord Keeper ever known; but he is a man of parts and learning, though of very bad principles and morals, being well known to have had two wives at a time; a man of no religion." (T. Hearne, 14 Oct. 1705). A rumour that he had contracted an informal marriage with his mistress, Miss Ailing, led Swift to give him the nickname of "Will Bigamy." V.G. "His person was handsome, his voice melodious, his elocution perfect, his style pure and nervous, his manner engaging; on the other hand, in logical faculty and grasp of legal science he was deficient." (Dict. Nat. Biog.). "His strength as an orator," says Lord Chesterfield, "lay by no means in his reasonings, for he often hazarded very weak ones;" but, says Bishop Burnet, "he managed the Court of Chancery with impartial justice and great despatch;" and it is much to his credit he refused the New Year's gifts, which had hitherto been customary. In his politics, however, he was not so equitable, and his "Impartial History of Parties," which he presented to the King in 1714, and in which "he artfully depreciates all the acts and principles" of the Tories "is anything but what its title imports." See Foss's Judges of England.

V. 1799. 5. PETER LEOPOLD LOUIS FRANCIS NASSAU (CLAVERING-COWPER OR COWPER), EARL COWPER, &c., br. and h., b. 6 May 1778, at Florence; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.), 20 Mar. 1794, B.A. 1797; Student (Mid. Temple), 1794; F.R.S. 11 May 1809. A Whig.

(a) "Sacri Romani Imperii Princeps de Cowper," says the patent. In the obituary notice in the New London Magazine, Feb. 1790, it is stated that "it is by mistake that he was called a Prince of the Holy Roman Empire, for no man can be a Prince of the Empire who does not possess the landed territory in the Empire from which he derives his title, and a seat in the Diet among the Princes." The Lordship of Mindelheim in Suabia, which was granted to the Duke of Marlborough and erected into a Principality (he being thereupon admitted, by his deputy, to sit in the College of Princes), is quoted as an example; it being added "this never was the case with the late Earl Cowper, who was no otherwise a Prince of the Empire, than that his present Imperial Majesty created him a Prince of the Milanese, one of his Italian provinces, which is considered as a fief, and consequently a branch of the Empire. His Lordship therefore was, strictly speaking, a Prince of Milan in the Holy Roman Empire." However this may be, he appears to have obtained this great honour at the request of the Emperor's brother, Leopold, Grand Duke of Tuscany, the Countess being at that time "distinguished by his attachment." In 1786, however, "her attachment" was to Mr. Merry, the poet (known as "Della Crusca"), according to Mrs. Piozzi. See Wheatley's Wraxall's Memoirs, vol. i, p. 195.

(b) It was during his stay in this city that he secured the two magnificent Raphaels which still (1913) adorn Panshanger.

(Queen Victoria, letter to Prince Albert, 8 Dec. 1839). "Lady Cowper has courage to face her angry children. I cannot say how much I blame them for telling what they feel, but I wonder she can encounter their antipathy. He had courteous manners, rather of the old school, a capable intellect with a good deal of historical knowledge, and an interest in literature which made him a very agreeable companion. Besides these qualities there was in him a sort of stately kindliness." (Notes from the Life of an Ordinary Mortal, Family Estates.—These, in 1883, consisted of 10,122 acres in Herts; 9,105 in Beds; 5,294 in Notts; 3,227 in Essex; 2,787 in Derbyshire; 2,536 in Wilts; 2,078 in Kent; 1,067 in Northants; 913 in Leicestershire; 696 in the N. and W. Ridings of Yorkshire (worth £3,865 a year), and 44 in Suffolk. Total, 37,869 acres, worth £60,392 a year, of which the estates in Beds, Essex, Wilts, Leicestershire, &c. (some 16,000 acres), were inherited from the family of De Grey. Principal Residences.—Panshanger, Herts, and Wrest Park, near Amptill, Beds.

CRAMOND

BARONY [S.] I. ELIZABETH BEAUMONT, 1st da. of Sir Thomas B., of Stoughton, co. Leicester, by Catherine, da. and h. of Thomas FARNHAM, of Bedworth, in the same co. I. 1628. She m., 1stly, Sir John ASHBURNHAM, of Ashburnham, Sussex, who d. 29 June 1620, aged 48, and was bur. at St. Andrew's, Holborn. M.I. She m., 2ndly (as 2nd wife), 14 Dec. 1626, at St. Giles's-in-the-Fields, Sir Thomas RICHARDSON. By the influence of her husband she was cr., 29 Feb. 1627/8,^(a) BARONESS OF CRAMOND [S.], for life,^(b) with rem. of the title of "Lord Baron of 1911, p. 212). A cultivated, agreeable, handsome, and capable man, he acted with coolness and courage during the trying time when he was Lord Lieut. of Ireland. Having previously been a Liberal, he energetically opposed Gladstone's Home Rule schemes, but during the latter part of his life, ill health prevented his taking an active part in politics. V.G.

^(a) Not 1628/9 as in Dict. Nat. Biog. The Record says "ultimo Februarii," and it is so given in Wood's Douglas. Probably the date of 23 Feb. in the 1st edit. of this work, which has been followed in Scots Peerage, arises from G.E.C. having overlooked the fact that 1628 was leap year, and written 28, for which 23 is a common misprint. V.G.

^(b) In Crawford's Peerage (1716, p. 81) it is stated by that author that this "was the only female creation I have at any time observed in this realm" [S.]. It was doubtless granted to the lady, instead of to her husband, as, at that time, it was unusual to raise a Judge to the Peerage, when in office, though, as this was not an English peerage, the objection would not have had so much force. The remainder is remarkable as excluding the heir male of the body of the grantee, the Ashburnham family (the present Earl Ashburnham being now such heir male), and limiting it to a stranger in blood.

Cramond, Baron of Parl." S. to Sir Thomas Richardson, Knt., s. and h. [ap.] of the said Ch. Justice and his heirs male^(b) [i.e. those of his body], whom failing to the heirs male of the body of the said Sir Thomas Richardson, the father. He was bap. 3 July 1569,^(c) at Hardwick, near Shelton, Norfolk; matric. at Cambridge (Christ's Coll.) June 1584; was admitted to Lincoln's Inn, and became a Barrister, 1595. Under Steward to the Dean and Chapter of Norwich; Recorder of Bury St. Edmund's, and subsequently of Norwich; purchased the estate of Honingham, Norfolk, about 1600; Serjeant-at-Law and Reader of Linc. Inn, 1614; Chancellor to the Queen Consort; M.P. for St. Albans, 1620-22; being chosen

(*) "There is no doubt that in the great majority of cases [of Scottish creations] the word Baron is not used, but I find, in 1587, Lord ALTRIE is given statum unius liberi Baronis ac domini nostri Parliamenti, in 1627, NAPIER is made Lord and Baron in Parliament and, again, in 1627, ASTON is made a Lord Baron of Parl., and is spoken of, in the patent, as Lord Baron of Forfar; in 1628, Dame Elizabeth Richardson is made Baroness CRAMOND, with rem. to her husband's son and h. ap. of the dignity of Lord Baron of Cramond, Baron of Parl.; in 1636, HOME [receives a] confirmation as Earl, Lord and BARON of Parl.; CARNEGIE (1616) is peculiar, Baronem Majorem et Dominum, &c. Here you have the distinction between greater and lesser Barons emphasized." (Letter, Mar. 1885, from R. R. Stodart, sometime Lyon Clerk Depute). "To these instances of the word Baron used in the English sense (all of which are subsequent to the final exclusion of the lesser Barons from Parl. in 1587), may be added the case of SPYNIE. On 6 May 1590, Alexander Lindsay had a charter erecting certain church lands into the Barony of Spynie, with the title and rank of a free Baron to himself, his heirs, and assignees, to be called Barons of Spynie, the investiture taking place on 4 Nov. following. It was contended (wrongly, I believe) by Lord Mansfield, and his contention was eventually acquiesced in by the claimant of the Spynie peerage in 1785, that this was not a grant of a hereditary peerage." (ex inform. G. Burnett, sometime Lyon). It appears therefore that there are only, apparently, about half a dozen cases where the word "Baron" occurs in the creation of a Scottish peerage, and that it is subordinate to "Lord of Parliament."

(b) "Suisque hæredibus masculis, quibus deficientibus hæredibus masculis de corpore dicti Domini Thomæ Richardson, patris." This is one of the strongest examples of "heirs male" being indiscriminately used in patents as "heirs male of the body," for else the extended limitation of the dignity to the heirs male of the body of the father would be utter nonsense, when the son had the dignity to "heirs male," if such last expression be tantamount to "heirs male general."

(c) There is a MS. insertion in the margin of the parish Register that "This gentleman, Thomas Richardson, was Lord Chief Justice, &c." On 7 Apr. 1572, William, son of the same parents, is bap. There is nothing to indicate the position of the father, who is generally said to be "Dr. Thomas Richardson," a clergyman of Mulbarton, near Norwich. At Mulbarton, on 6 Apr. 1582, occurs the burial of Agnes, wife of William Richardson, and on 20 Nov. 1587, that of William, s. of Wm. and Agnes Richardson; also the baptism of 5 children (Jean, Elizabeth, William, Ann, and Robert) of William and Joan Richardson, 1585 to 1602. In no case is the rank of this "William" indicated, which, had he been in Holy Orders or a Doctor in any of the Faculties, is very unlikely. (ex inform. W. H. Richardson).

SPEAKER for that Parl. (1620/1-1621/2) but never re-elected. Knighted at Whitehall, 25 Mar. 1621; King's Serjeant, 20 Feb. 1624/5; Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, 22 Nov. 1626;^(a) Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 24 Oct. 1631, till his death. He m., 1stly, 20 July 1595, at Barham, Suffolk, Ursula, 3rd da. of John SOUTHWELL, of Barham Hall, by Margaret, da. of Edmond CROFTS, of West Stow, Suffolk. She, who was bap. 5 Oct. 1567, at Barham, was bur. 13 June 1624, at St. Andrew's, Holborn. He m., 2ndly, Elizabeth BEAUMONT as afsd., for whom he obtained a Peerage within 15 months of his marriage as above.^(b) He d. at his house in Chancery Lane, Holborn, 4 Feb. 1634/5, in his 65th year, and was bur. in Westm. Abbey. M.I. Will dat. 16 Jan. 1634/5, pr. 15 Apr. 1635. Fun. cert. at Coll. of Arms.^(c) His widow, suo jure BARONESS CRAMOND [S.], by whom he had no issue, d. at Covent Garden, Midx., and was bur. (with her 1st husband) 3 Apr. 1651, at St. Andrew's, Holborn. Will dat. 19 Feb. 1650/1, pr. 7 Apr. 1651.

[THOMAS RICHARDSON, who, as h. ap. to the Barony of Cramond [S.], was MASTER OF CRAMOND, was only surv. s. and h. of Chief Justice Richardson, by Ursula, his 1st wife abovenamed, and was under the spec. lim. in the creation next in rem. to the peerage conferred on his step-

(^a) Not without suspicion that its acquisition cost him £17,000, besides having to appoint a royal nominee to the profitable office of "Clerk of Hell," i.e. to a Clerkship of the Treasury. (Foss's Judges of England).

(^b) Lord Campbell considers that this was attained by another good round sum of money. It gave occasion to many gibes and pasquinades for the amusement of Westm. Hall.

(^c) "This is that Judge Richardson, who, to please the faction of his time, issued out an order [when on the Somersetshire circuit] against the antient custom of wakes, and ordered every Minister to read it in his church." (Dart's Westm. Abbey, vol. ii, p. 78). For this insolent and illegal encroachment on the Ecclesiastical authority, he was, on the complaint of the Bishop (Laud) of Bath and Wells, "at the Council table, so severely reprimanded that he came out complaining that he had been almost choked with a pair of lawn sleeves. This was a specimen of the facetiousness for which he had a reputation. He is called by Evelyn "that jeering Judge," and "although esteemed a good lawyer, he was not respected on the bench." (Foss's Judges of England). When some were questioning where one of his sons, who died before him, would be buried, the answer was "where should he be buried but at Westminster, where his father lies." (See Anecdotes, &c., pub. by the Camden Soc.). He was probably by nature inclined to puritanism, taking great pains to mitigate the fine imposed on (his friend) Mr. Sherfield, Recorder of Salisbury, for breaking the coloured glass in church windows, &c., yet in the same court (the Star Chamber) he was loud against the much more eminent Prynne, and concurred in his truly excessive punishment. He was Speaker of the Parl. in which the famous Lord Chancellor Bacon was impeached, and advised on the proceedings connected with it. His inconsistency to all things but his own interest was such that he was actually considered by the Parl. party "to be a favourer of the Jesuits." (Parl. Hist., vol. ii, p. 475).

(a) On the monument erected by him to his father he styles himself "Thomas Richardson, fil. unicus, Eques Auratus, Baro Scotiae Designatus" and is so styled on his own monument, with the addition of "claris majoribus oriundus" which, presumably, alludes to his mother's ancestry.

In the return of the Lords of the Session, 1740, of the subsisting Peerages [S.], it is observed that "it does not appear that any person ever sat [in Parl.] or voted as Lord Cramond, or that any one offered to vote at any election, since the Union, under that title; but as the descendants of the said Sir Thomas Richardson, if any there were, had, probably, their residence in England, their not having claimed hitherto can be no objection to their title, if they can verify their right to it."

He was not of the stuff of which Prime Ministers are made, though he might have made a more capable and vigorous leader of the House of Commons than Stafford Northcote, who was preferred to him when Disraeli went to the House of Lords. But he was a very eminent public man of his day, a strong, capable, and painstaking Minister, sagacious in counsel and powerful in debate, a tower of strength to his party, a very ready help to his colleagues in all emergencies, a Minister who early won the full confidence and warm personal regard of Queen Victoria and thoroughly justified both throughout a long and varied official career, a man of engaging personal character, of strong family affections, and of exemplary conduct in all the relations of private life. Always ready, always combative, very often cogent and even eloquent, and never quailing before the most redoubtable of his adversaries, lucid in exposition and versatile in debate, he stood forth as a Minister of high mettle and capacity and as a powerful Parliamentary force." (^c) There is no mention of the limitation being to heirs bearing the arms of Cranstoun (as is generally supposed) in the patent recorded in the Reg. of the Great Seal.

(^d) He was great-grandson and h. of William of Cranstoun, one of the lesser Barons (but not a Lord of Parl.) in the Parl. of 18 Mar. 1481/2, who d. 1515.

(^e) Elizabeth Macgill, sometimes attributed to him as 2nd wife, was wife of his son James. V.G.

(^f) The heir presumptive to a Scottish Peerage was styled "MASTER," though it is presumed that this was only done where the appearance of an heir apparent was improbable. An instance of such use by the heir presumptive occurs in a charter 23rd July 1631, by "Alexander Lindsaye, Crafurdie Magister, frater legitimus et natu maximus Comitiss Georgii, Crafurdie Comitiss." He m. (cont. 10 July 1643) Mary, "a vitious woman," 5th and yst. da. of Alexander (LESLIE), 1st EARL OF LEVEN [S.], by his 1st wife, Agnes, da. of David RENTON. He, being then of St. Margaret's, Westm., was found guilty, 15 Jan. 1661/2, of slaying "Alexander Skringer Esq." with a rapier in self-defence.^(a) He was living 29 July 1664.

IV. 1680? 4. JAMES (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], s. and h., had a charter of lands as "MASTER OF CRANSTOUN" 29 July 1664. He m. Mary, da. of Sir Alexander DON, Bart. [S.], of Newton, co. Roxburgh. He d. between 1685 and 1688.

V. 1687? 5. WILLIAM (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], s. and h. He was a supporter of the Scottish Union in 1707. He m., before 1703, Jean, da. of William (KERR), 2nd MARQUESS OF LOTHIAN [S.], by Jean, da. of Archibald (CAMPBELL), 9th EARL OF ARGYLL [S.]. He d. 27 Jan. 1726/7.^(b) His widow survived him 41 years, and d. Mar. 1768.

VI. 1727. 6. JAMES (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], s. and h.^(c) Grand Master of Freemasons 1745-47. He obtained an act in 1756 for the sale of estates in Northumberland (settled on his marriage) for the disencumbering his Scottish estates. He m., before 1749, Sophia, da. of Jeremiah BROWN, of Abscourt, Surrey, and by her had £12,000 (besides a larger fortune afterwards), an estate in the West Indies, &c. He d. in Portman Sq., 8, and was bur. 14 July 1773, in Westm. Abbey. Will, as "of Portman square," dat. 23 Mar., pr. 8 July 1773. His widow m. (4 months after his death), 10 Nov. 1773, Michael LADE, Barrister-at-Law. She d. 26 Oct., and was bur. 1 Nov. 1779, at St. James's, Westm., where on the 2 Dec. following, her 2nd husband was bur. also.

VII. 1773. 7. WILLIAM (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], s. and h., b. 3 Sep. 1749, at Crailing, co. Roxburgh. He d. unm., in St. James's Str., 30 July, and was bur. 6 Aug. 1778, in Westm. Abbey, aged 27. Will dat. 12 July, pr. 24 Nov. 1778.

^(a) See Midx. Sessions Rolls.

^(b) His 5th son, William Henry Cranstoun, was lover of the notorious Mary Blandy, who was executed in 1751. Her relations with him having led to her poisoning her father, she alleged that the powder which she administered was sent to her by Cranstoun as a love potion. V.G.

^(c) Among the Cambridge graduates is a "James Cranston, Jesus, A.B. 1711; A.M. 1715."

VIII. 1778. 8. JAMES (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], br. and h., bap. 26 June 1755, at Crailing afsd.; Lieut. R.N., 1776; Capt. 1782, in which year being in command of a ship, he distinguished himself in Rodney's victory (12 Apr.) over Count de Grasse. He received the thanks of Parl. 17 Nov. 1795 for his brave resistance to a French fleet of double his number. He was appointed Gov. of Grenada, 1796, but d. before going out. He m., 19 Aug. 1792, at Darnhall, Elizabeth, yst. da. of Lieut. Col. Lewis Charles MONTOLIEU, Baron of St. Hypolite, in the Holy Roman Empire, by Elizabeth, da. of Peter LETREUP. He d. s.p., 22 Sep. 1796, in his 42nd year, at Bishops Waltham, Hants, being accidentally poisoned,^(a) and was bur. in the Garrison Chapel at Portsmouth. Will pr. Mar. 1797. His widow d. of a decline, in St. James's Sq., Bath, 27 Aug., and was bur. 2 Sep. 1797, in the Abbey there, aged 27. Admon. Sep. 1797.

IX. 1796. 9. JAMES EDMUND (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], nephew and h., being s. and h. of the Hon. Charles CRANSTOUN, of Creeling Castle, Midlothian, by Elizabeth, da. of (—) TURNER, of co. Worcester, which Charles was next br. to the last Lord. He matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 23 Oct. 1802, at the age of 18. He m., 25 Nov. 1807, at the Retreat, in the island of St. Christopher, Anna Linnington, 1st da. of John MACNAMARA, of that island. He d. 5 Sep. 1818, at St. Kitt's afsd. His widow d. 22 Nov. 1858.

X. 1818. 10. JAMES EDWARD (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], s. and h., b. 12 Aug. 1809, at Cranstoun House, St. Christopher's, afsd. He matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 23 Oct. 1828. He m., 1843, Elizabeth, 1st da. of Sir John Henry SEALE, 1st Bart., by Paulina Elizabeth, only child of Sir Paul JODRELL. He d. s.p., 18 June 1869, at Duncroft House, St. John's Wood, Midx., aged 59. Will pr. 2 Aug. 1869, under £45,000. His widow d. 31 Dec. 1899, at Culver Lodge, Shanklin, I. of Wight, aged 84. Will pr. over £5,000 gross and over £4,000 net.

XI. 1869 June to Sep. II. CHARLES FREDERICK (CRANSTOUN), LORD CRANSTOUN [S.], only br. and h., b. in St. Christopher's, 1813; matric. at Oxford (St. Alban Hall) 30 June 1829, at the age of 18, B.A. (Jesus Coll.) and 2nd class in classics, 1836, M.A. 1849. He d. unm., 28 Sep. 1869, at Brighton, aged 56, when the Peerage became either dormant^(b) or extinct.

(^a) "By drinking cider which had been kept in a vessel lined with lead." (Dict. Nat. Biog.). V.G. By sign manual, 6 Mar. 1799, a pension of £300 a year was granted in trust for James, Lord Cranstoun. [Query, if not for his nephew?]

(^b) The 5th Lord (who d. 1727) had a son, George, who d. at Edinburgh in 1788, leaving male issue. There were also two yr. sons (Henry and Thomas) of the 1st Lord who are unaccounted for. The heirs male of the 1st Lord, other than his issue, are unknown.

CRANWORTH

BARONY.

ROBERT MONSEY ROLFE, 1st and only surv. s. of the Rev. Edmund R., Rector of Cranworth, Norfolk, by Jemima, da. of William ALEXANDER (and Charlotte, da. of the eccentric Messenger MONSEY, Physician to Chelsea Hospital, 1738-88). He was b. 18 Dec. 1790, at Cranworth Rectory; ed. at Bury Grammar school, and (1803) at Winchester College, and at Trin. Coll. Cambridge, 17th Wrangler and B.A. 1812; Fellow of Downing Coll. and M.A. 1815; Barrister (Linc. Inn) 1816; Recorder of Bury; K.C., 1832; M.P. (Liberal) for Penryn, 1832-39; Sol. Gen., 6 Nov. 1834, for about a month, and again 30 Apr. 1835, for about 4 years, being knighted 6 May 1835; one of the Barons of the Exchequer 1839-50, acting, from 19 June to 15 July 1850, as one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal; one of the Vice Chancellors 2 Nov. 1850, and P.C. 13 Nov. 1850. On 20 Dec. 1850, he was cr. BARON CRANWORTH of Cranworth, Norfolk.^(a) One of the two Lords Justices of Appeal, 8 Oct. 1851, being the next year, 28 Dec. 1852, appointed LORD CHANCELLOR;^(b) resigned 26 Feb. 1858, on the accession of the Derby ministry, and was not re-appointed (June 1859) by Lord Palmerston, till after the resignation of Lord Westbury, when, for the 2nd time, he became LORD CHANCELLOR 7 July 1865 to 6 July 1866. He m., 9 Oct. 1845, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Laura, yst. da. of Thomas William CARR, of Frognal, in Hampstead, Midx., and of Esholt Heugh, Northumberland, Solicitor to the Excise, by Frances, da. of Andrew MORTON, of Ouzeburne, Northumberland. She, who was b. in London, 30 Mar., and bap. 27 Apr. 1807, at St. George's, Bloomsbury, d. 15 Feb. 1868, at 40 Upper Brook Str., Midx., in her 81st year. He d. there, s.p., within 5 months' time, 26 July 1868, in his 78th year, when his Peerage became extinct.^(c) Will dat. 23 Apr., pr. 15 Sep. 1868. Both were bur. (from his seat at Holwood) at Keston, Kent.

^(a) The first and only instance of a Vice Chancellor being so honoured.

^(b) For this and other great offices of state see vol. ii, Appendix D.

^(c) "He had good practical sense and a sound knowledge of the law, if not in its great and leading principles, at all events in its minutiæ and technicalities. He had good connexion among the Solicitors: he had also the highest reputation for honour, integrity and good faith, and, above all things, great faith in himself." (Annual Register, 1868). G.E.C. "Nobody is so agreeable as Rolfe . . . a clear head, vivacity, information, an extraordinary pleasantness of manner, without being either soft or affected, extreme good humour, cheerfulness and tact, make his society on the whole as attractive as that of anybody I ever met." (Greville Memoirs, 18 Jan. 1845). "Our Chancellor, Cranworth, was personally a most excellent and honest man. He had been a successful lawyer and an efficient judge. His charge to the jury in the case of the famous Norfolk murder by Rush was the admiration of all England at the time. . . . Nevertheless, Cranworth as Chancellor was not a very strong man. He was a great friend of mine, and on one occasion I ventured to advise him to show his teeth a little more to the aggressive lawyers round him in the House, who treated him sometimes with but scant respect." BARONY.

I. 1666.

I. WILLIAM CRAVEN, s. and h. of Sir William C., Lord Mayor of London (1610-11), by Elizabeth, da. of William WHITMORE, was hap. 26 June 1608, at St. Andrew Undershaf, and suc. to his father's large fortune when aged about 10; five years later he matric. at Oxford (Trin. Coll.) 11 July 1623, being cr. M.A. 31 Aug. 1636. He was knighted 4 Mar. 1626/7, at Newmarket, and 8 days afterwards, on 12 Mar. 1626/7, was cr. "BARON CRAVEN OF HAMPSTED MARSHALL, Berks,"^(a) with rem. to the heirs male of his body, which failing, with rem. to John Craven, his brother,^(b) rem. to Thomas Craven,^(b) another brother, in like manner. He gained some military distinction under the Prince of Orange, as, also, in 1632, as commander of the English forces in Germany, at the taking of Kreuznach on behalf of the Elector Palatine, where he was wounded. Again, in 1637, he was with the force [to which he was willing to contribute £30,000] sent to assist the young Elector and his widowed mother, the Ex-Queen of Bohemia, which was defeated by the Imperialists, near Wesel, he himself being wounded and (together with Prince Rupert) taken prisoner, though released in Aug. 1639 for a ransom of £20,000. He is said to have, soon afterwards, contributed to the unfortunate Ex-Queen of Bohemia her English pension of £10,000 a year, which was unpaid. In her court at the Hague^(c) he continued till the restoration of Charles II, who, himself, had received at least £50,000 from him during his exile, in addition to large sums advanced to the late King. He placed his London house (in Drury lane) at the disposal of the Ex-Queen of Bohemia, where she resided 26 May 1661 till within a fortnight of her death, which occurred 23 Feb. 1662.^(d) During the great plague in 1665 he (with Archbishop Sheldon and the Duke of Albemarle)

^(b) See tabular pedigree.

^(c) He is sometimes said to have been her "Master of the Horse," a post which he may have nominally held at the Court of her husband Frederick; but query if this is not a confusion with Sir Robert Craven, who d. 6 Oct. 1672, aged 40, and who is stated on his monument in Bath Abbey to have been "sometime Master of the Horse to the Queen of Bohemia."

^(d) As to the popular belief that they were married, there appears to be no foundation for it, and the rumour was not even contemporary, the idea then current being that he wished to marry the Queen's 1st da., Elizabeth, who was but 7 years his junior. The matter is well discussed in Dict. Nat. Biog. It may also be mentioned that there being no executor named in the Ex-Queen's will, the proving it was granted 4 Mar. 1661/2 to her son Prince Rupert, which, there being no renunciation thereof on behalf of (the next of kin) her husband, certainly implies that she did not then possess one.

devoted himself to the relief of sufferers.^(a) Col. of a regt. of Foot, 1662. A Lord Proprietor of Carolina, 1663.^(b) On 16 Mar. (1664/5) 17 Car. II, he was cr. VISCOUNT CRAVEN OF UFFINGTON, Berks, and EARL OF CRAVEN, co. York, receiving also an extension of the title of BARON CRAVEN OF HAMPSTED MARSHALL, Berks, to William Craven,^(c) s. and h. of Sir William C. of Lenchwick, co. Worcester, decd., with rem. to Sir Anthony Craven,^(c) br. of the said Sir William C. of Lenchwick, in like manner. Finally, on 11 Dec. 1666, he received a further extension of the title of BARON CRAVEN OF HAMPSTED MARSHALL, Berks, to Sir William Craven,^(c) s. of Thomas C. (another br. of the said Sir Anthony C. abovenamed) in like manner. P.C. 11 Apr. 1666 till 21 Apr. 1679, and 9 Mar. 1680/1 till Feb. 1688/9. High Steward of Cambridge Univ., 1667 till his death; Col. of the Coldstream Guards, 1670-89; Master of the Trinity House, 1670-71; Lord Lieut. of Midx. and Southwark, 1670-89; a commissioner for the government of Tangier, 1673; Lieut. Gen. 1678-89. When the Dutch troops came to take possession of the guard at St. James's and Whitehall, 27 Dec. 1687, he refused to lead off his troops till authorised by King James so to do. Under the new reign, having always been a staunch Tory, he was deprived of his regiment and his other appointments. He d. aged 88 years and 10 months, at his house in Drury lane, 9 Apr. 1697, unm., when all his honours, save the Barony conferred in 1666, became extinct. He was bur. at Binley, near Coventry. Will, dat. 4 July 1689 to 7 July 1691, pr. 11 Apr. 1697.^(d)

^(a) He gave a piece of land "wherein some thousand of corpses" of those that died of the plague, were buried. It was near Carnaby Str., Golden Sq. It was exchanged for a field in Paddington, called Craven Hill, to be used for a like purpose if a like plague should occur, which, again, in 1845 was exchanged for lands further off.

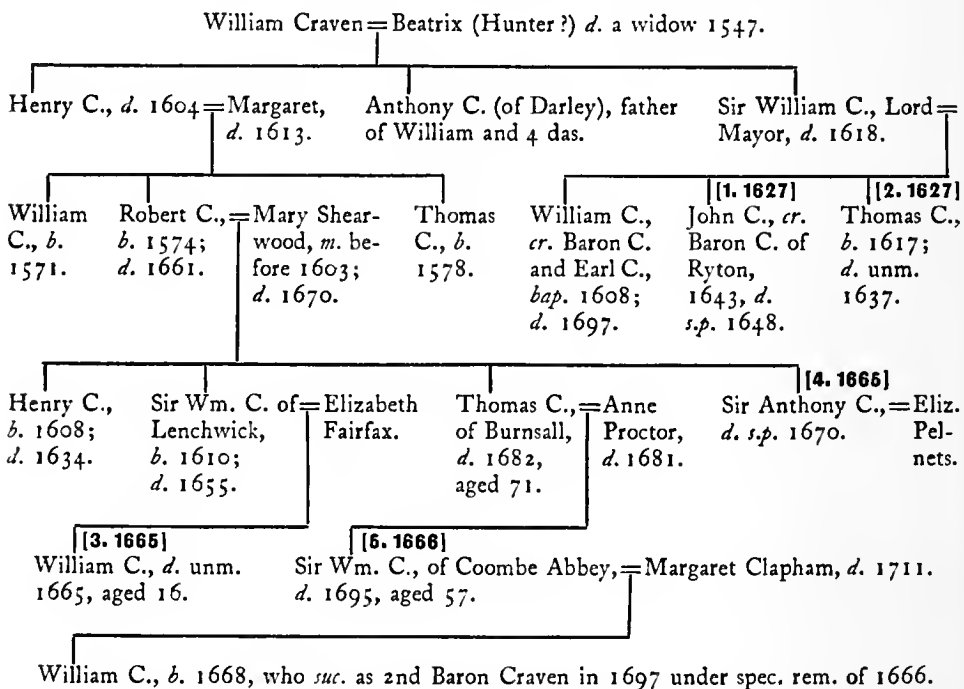

^(b) On 24 Mar. 1663, Charles II, by charter "granted to Edward, Earl of Clarendon, George, Duke of Albemarle, William, Lord Craven, John, Lord Berkeley, and others their heirs and assigns," all the tract of land in North America commonly called Carolina, to be held of the Crown of England as a County Palatine. (Hist. MSS. Com., House of Lords MSS., vol. vi, N.S. pp. 406-7). The Chief or President of these proprietors was known as Lord Palatine. V.G.

^(c) See tabular pedigree.

^(d) In the Verney Papers he is referred to as "Little Lord Craven, whose bounty makes him the subject of every man's discourse." In a letter of Sir Nathaniel Hobart he is thus described: "His wealth is his greatest enemy and yet his only friend. It begets in his inferiors a disguised friendship, in his equals envy. His vanity makes him accessible to the one, the meanness of his birth, person and parts, contemptible to the other; and though in those great ones envy may be the true motive, yet his many follies rendering him obnoxious to a just censure, that passes away unseen." His humble origin is mentioned in England and the English, by Price Collier, 1910, where the writer says:—"The Dukes of Leeds trace back to a clothworker; the Earls of Radnor to a Turkey merchant; the Earls of Craven to a tailor; the families of Dartmouth, Ducie, Pomfret, Tankerville, Dormer, Romney, Dudley, Fitzwilliam, Cooper, Leigh, Darnley, Hill, Normanby, all sprang from London shops and counting-houses, and that not so very long ago." He appears to have been ever ready to devote himself to the welfare of others, munificent in his gifts, and pre-eminently loyal. V.G.

PEDIGREE OF CRAVEN *

The relationships of the [5] various remainder men to the grantee and to one another is shown in the following tabular pedigree, in which the dates, within square brackets, [1627], [1665], [1666], indicate the persons mentioned in remainder in the grants of those dates, which persons are also numbered [1] to [5]. All of these died in the grantee's lifetime, one only, the one last mentioned, leaving male issue, who inherited the Barony of 1666.

* This pedigree is based on that published by the Rev. W. J. Stavert in Yorks Archæol. Journal, vol. xiii (1894).

II. 1697. 2. WILLIAM (CRAVEN), BARON CRAVEN OF HAMPSTED MARSHALL, cousin and (apparently) h. male, who under the spec. lim. in the creation of that dignity, in 1666, suc. thereto, taking his seat in the House of Lords 6 Dec. 1697.^(a) He was b. 24 Oct., and bap.

^(a) He was placed between Arundell of Trecice (1664) and Dartmouth (1682), on taking his seat, but his permanent place was between Arundell and Ossulston (1682), who was senior to Dartmouth, but absent from the House on the day (6 Dec. 1697) when Craven took his seat. There were in 1697 three Baronies in existence conferred between those of Arundell of Trecice and Ossulston which were not then merged in higher titles or Baronies of older creation, i.e. Clifford (1672), then held by a Romanist, who, as such, was excluded from Parliament by the Test Act; Belasyse (1672), held by a female; and Carteret (1681), held by a minor. VI. 1769. 6. WILLIAM (CRAVEN), BARON CRAVEN OF HAMPSTED MARSHALL, nephew and h., being s. and h. of the Rev. John C., B.C.L., Vicar of Staunton Lacy, and Rector of Felton, Salop, by Mary, da. of the Rev. Baptist HICKES, of Stretton-on-the-Foss, which John was next br. to the last Lord and d. 21 Aug. 1752. He was b. and bap. 11 Sep. 1738, at Staunton Lacy; matric. at Oxford (Ball. Coll.) 20 Oct. 1756, Fellow of All Souls' Coll. and B.A., 1762, M.A., 1766; cr. D.C.L., 7 July 1773, on the installation of Lord North as Chancellor. Lord Lieut. of Berks, 1786 till his death. A Whig.^(a) He m., 30 May 1767, at Spring Gardens, St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Elizabeth, 2nd da. of Augustus (BERKELEY), 4th EARL OF BERKELEY, by Elizabeth, da. of Henry DRAX. He d. 27 Sep. 1791, at Lausanne in Switzerland, aged 52, and was bur. at Binley.^(b) Will pr. Nov. 1791. His widow, who was b. 17 Dec. 1750, in Spring Gardens afsd., and had been separated from her husband in 1780,^(c) took up her abode at Anspach, and m., 13 Oct. 1791, at Lisbon (sixteen days after her husband's death), as his 2nd wife, Christian, MARGRAVE OF BRANDENBURG-ANSPACH. He (who was b. 24 Feb. 1736) sold his Principality to the King of Prussia, and settled in England at "Brandenburg House," Hammersmith, and d. 5 Jan. 1806, at Benham Valence, Berks, "of a pulmonary complaint," and was bur. in a mausoleum there. She d. at Naples, 13 Jan. 1828.

(^a) The Royal Register, vol. ii, dismisses him in a line—"Is it my Lord that is in Opposition or my Lady?"—implying that his politics were dictated by his wife. V.G.

(^b) He and a Mrs. Coxe appear in 1780, as "Lord C. . . . and Mrs. C. xe," in the notorious tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. xvi, p. 401; and in 1789 his wife and the Margrave appear therein as "The Literary Traveller and the German Correspondent," vol. xxi, p. 51. See Appendix B in the last vol. of this work for a list of these Portraits of Peers.

(^c) According to her story, owing to his infidelity, but in this regard there does not seem to have been much to choose between the pair. A rather scandalous book, The Whig Club, 1794, speaks of her "unblushing profligacy." She was well known in contemporary society as the Margravine of Anspach. She was author of numerous plays, and of A Journey through the Crimea to Constantinople. She is often mentioned by Horace Walpole, who admired her beauty, talents, and her perfect frankness. "Serena" Holroyd writes from Bath, 23 Nov. 1791, "I was told that Lady Craven, on hearing of her Lord's death, put on deep mourning that very day, wept, and went through the whole ceremony of a widow. The next morn she wiped her tears, threw off her weeds, put on bridal trappings, and was married to the Margrave!" And again, from the same place, 18 Jan. 1792, "They told me the Margrave and Margravine of Anspach were all the amusement . . . Only think of her dancing a minuet and country dance . . . He is an insignificant-looking man, and undoubtedly he must be a poor, mean silly fellow to leave his country, &c., for such a purpose." V.G.

EARLDOM [S.] DAVID LINDSAY,^(d) b. about 1360, s. and h. of Sir Alexander L., of Glenesk, in Angus, by his 1st wife, Catherine (heiress of the same), da. of Sir John STIRLING, of Edzell (which Alexander was 3rd s. of ^(c) See Lives of the Lindsays, or a memoir of the houses of Crawford and Balcarres, by Alexander W. C. Lindsay, styled Lord Lindsay, afterwards [1869-80] Earl of Crawford [S.], 1843 and 1858. This valuable work is generally admitted to be a model for the history of a family.

^(d) Although the account of the Lindsay family here given begins no earlier than the title of Crawford, some allusion is not inappropriate to the continuous sittings in Parliament enjoyed by the ancestors of the first Earl, more especially as, though other families in Scotland may have more historic interest, none can in genealogical importance equal that of Lindsay, not only as to antiquity in the male line, but in all probability as to the number of Parliamentary sittings, such sittings beginning, also, at the earliest period of which any record exists, and, though not conferring of themselves (as has been held in England) an hereditary peerage dignity, shew at least the high position held from the remotest antiquity by that family. The first of their ancestors who settled in Scotland was Sir Walter Lindsay, who as “Noble and Knight” was a witness to the inquisition of the See of Glasgow, in 1116, having doubtless attended David, Earl of Huntingdon, afterwards King David I, in his colonization of the Lowlands. During a great part of the period of some 300 years that elapsed between that time and the creation of the Earldom, there were three contemporaneous branches of the family of Lindsay (descendants of the abovenamed Sir Walter), holding the following baronies; one branch holding Lamberton in Scotland, as also Kendal and Molesworth in England; another branch holding Luffness and CRAWFORD in Scotland, as also half the Barony of the Limesis in England; and the third branch holding Breneville and BYRES in Scotland, as also certain lands (such lands, however, not being held by Barony in chief of the King of England) in England. The heads of these three branches all sat in Parl. [S.], holding the highest offices of State in every generation, before the elevation in 1398 of the heir male and chief of the house to the rank of Earl. The family (as also was the case with some other families, most of which, however, are now extinct), were undoubtedly “MAGNATES” ab initio, although the first person

Sir David Lindsay of Crawford), suc. his father Oct. 1381; Justiciary, 1389; Sheriff of Banff; and is celebrated for having, on St. George's Day, 1390, as the representative of the Scottish chivalry, unhorsed the English champion, John, Lord Welle (formerly Ambassador to Scotland), in the presence of King Richard II and his Court, on London Bridge. In 1397 he suc. his cousin, Sir James Lindsay (who d. s.p.m.), in the Barony of Crawford,^(a) in Clydesdale, and other entailed estates of the house of Lindsay, of which he then became the Chief. He was, "by solemn belting and investiture in the Parl. held at Perth," 21 Apr. to 2 May 1398,^(b) cr. EARL noticed in the text is he in whom there first existed an hereditary Peerage of the kind now recognised.

The Lindsays claim that "the predecessors of the 1st Earl of Crawford were Barons, at the period of the earliest Parliamentary records, and that, in fact, they were never ennobled in the modern sense of the term, but were among the Pares, of which Kings are Primi, from the commencement of recorded history."

(^a) The great mountain territory of Crawford, in Clydesdale, forms the southern extremity of Lanarkshire, and, being the highest district in the south of Scotland, was sometimes called the south Highlands. It was held by the family of Lindsay certainly as early as the 12th century, till the close of the 15th, when it passed to the family of Douglas, of the house of Angus.

(^b) The Earldom of Crawford was but "the third created since the extinction of the Celtic Dynasty [1290]; that of Douglas [1357] having been the second, and that of Moray [of which 1312, the charter being undated, is the probable date] the first." Two other then [1398] existing Earldoms, Mar and Sutherland, claimed an antiquity long prior. The question of precedence between the Earldom of Crawford and that of Sutherland, was, at the Union, 1707, "settled or rather reaffirmed, after long and learned investigations, in favour of the Earls of Crawford, who rank, accordingly, as Premier Scottish Earls on the Union Roll. If date of creation were the sole criterion, there is no doubt but that the Earldom of Mar would take precedence of all other existing British Earldoms, and that of Sutherland, would, in Scotland, assume the second place. Precedence, however, did not depend, in Scotland, exclusively on the date of creation; the will of the Sovereign and other collateral circumstances controlled it. For example, the Earls of Argyle, of later creation by 60 years, took precedence of those of Crawford, in virtue of the hereditary High Justiciarship of Scotland, bestowed upon the family in the 16th century; the Earls of Angus, similarly, had received a grant of perpetual precedence over all other Earls in Scotland, and they were accordingly ranked first, before those of Argyle, though much more recent than either Sutherland or Mar. Crawford can assert no such grant, nor were there any great public offices hereditary in the family, such as those possessed by Argyle, and yet, whether through the non-appearance of the Earls of Sutherland in Parl. previously to the year 1477, whether, through the honours having lapsed to female heirs, or through whatever cause, it was a fact that the Earldoms of Sutherland and Mar had lost the precedence, and that Crawford possessed it; and on this immemorial usage and prescription the family lawyers rested their defence on the two great occasions when the question was mooted [viz.] in 1606, when the 'Ranking of the Nobility' took place at the command of James I (with a view to settle the feuds then existing regarding precedence), and at the Union in 1707, at both which times the sentence was given in favour of the Earl of Crawford." See Lives of the Lindsays. To this it may be added that these Earls long held a position and influence beyond that of any others of that rank, excepting only the Earls of Douglas.

OF CRAWFORD [S.], "accompanied by a regrant of the principal fief of Crawford, with a regality, or, as it was technically phrased, cum quatuor punctis coronæ, conveying privileges to him and his posterity analogous to those enjoyed by the Earls Palatine of England and the Continent."^(a) He was Adm. of Scotland before Oct. 1403. In 1404, and again in 1406, he was on an Embassy to England. Dep. Chamberlain, North of the Forth, 1406. s. and h. He was b. about 1387, and was a minor at his father's death; was styled "consanguineus" by Henry VI of England, in which kingdom he was engaged in negotiations for the ransom of the Scottish King in 1421, being also a hostage many times between 1406 and 1427; was knighted, 21 May 1424, at the Coronation of James I, and was Ambassador to England 1429-30. He and the Earl of Douglas, being, during the minority of James II, "the most powerful subjects in Scotland,"^(d) and endeavouring "to rule paramount in the State,"^(e) were opposed by Bishop Kennedy, of St. Andrew's, whose lands they invaded and plundered, and by whom Crawford was excommunicated. ^(c) He is so designated in 1443, and the designation has been "ever since borne by the Earls of Crawford." (Idem).

^(d) "That nothing should be wanting to the feudal power of the family, the Earls of Crawford acquired, early in the 15th century, the Sheriffdom of Aberdeenshire [which they held till 1511, and only finally resigned in 1541] in hereditary right, and soon after the middle of the century that of Forfarshire. The Earldom of Crawford, therefore, like those of Douglas, of Moray, Ross, March, and others of the earlier times of feudalism, formed a petty principality, an imperium in imperio—the Earls affected Royal State, held their courts, had their heralds or pursuivants, and occasionally assumed the style of Princes, &c. They had also a Concilium, or petty Parliament, consisting of the great vassals of the Earldom with whose advice they acted on great and important occasions." (Idem).

thereof he received his death wound while vainly endeavouring to prevent a bloody fray, fought 13 Jan. 1445/6, between the Ogilvies and Lindsays at Arbroath. He m. (mandate for Papal disp. to m. 4 Kal. Mar. 1422/3) Marjory, da. of Alexander OGILVIE, of Auchterhouse, Sheriff of Angus. His wife is said to have smothered her cousin, Alexander Ogilvie of Inverquharitie, then a wounded prisoner at Finhaven, in revenge for her husband's approaching death. He d. 17 Jan. 1445/6 (after great suffering) at Finhaven Castle (the day twelvemonth since he ravaged "St. Andrew's land," in Fife), and remained unburied 4 days till the excommunication was taken off. His widow was living 1476.

IV. 1446. 4. ALEXANDER (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], s. and h., the victor in the fray of Arbroath mentioned above, was knighted before 1 July 1445, and was known as "the Tiger" or "Earl Beardie." (a) Hered. Sheriff of Aberdeen 1446 till 1452, when he was deprived. Like his father, he allied himself with the Earl of Douglas (as also with the Lord of the Isles) (b) against the Court party. He was Ambassador to England, 1451. After the murder of Douglas by the King, he rebelled, but was defeated by the Earl of Huntly, 18 May 1452, after a desperate fight, near Brechin, when his "lands, life and goods" were declared forfeit, but were, on submission, restored in Apr. of the next year; Guardian of the Marches, 1453. He m. Margaret, da. and h. of Sir David DUNBAR, of Cockburn and Auchtermonzie, br. of George, last EARL OF DUNBAR, or MARCH [S.]. He d. at his Castle of Finhaven, Sep. 1453, but six months after his pardon, and was bur. "regia prope pompa" (c) in the Grey Friars, at Dundee. His widow, afterwards wife of Sir William WALLACE, of Craigie, about 1470, d. between July 1498 and Jan. 1499/1500.

V. 1453. 5. DAVID (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], s. and h., b. 1440. (d) Sheriff of co. Forfar Oct. 1466. He greatly increased his influence through the interest of his wife's family. On 9 Mar. 1472/3 he was granted for life the Lordships of Brechin and Navar, which, joined with his former possessions, made him absolute in Forfarshire; on 17 July 1473 he was made Keeper (for 3 years) of Berwick, and in May 1476, High Adm. of Scotland. In 1474 he entailed the family estates on his heirs male for ever. He was "for 20 years employed in almost every embassy that took place between England and his native country.”^(a) Master of the Household, 1480; Lord Great Chamberlain [S.], in or before 1483; Joint High Justiciary of the North, 1487. On 18 May 1488, he was cr. DUKE^(b) OF MONTROSE [S.], the castle and borough of Montrose, &c., being erected into a Duchy and conveyed to him and his heirs. Soon afterwards he distinguished himself on the side of James III at the battle of Sauchieburn, 9 June 1488, where the King was slain, and himself taken prisoner and deprived of his public offices. His Dukedom was forfeited by “the Rescissory Act,” 17 Oct. 1488, annulling all grants made by the late King during the 8 months preceding.^(c) In Nov. 1488 he was constrained to resign to Lord Gray [S.] his hereditary Shrievalty of Angus. On 19 Sep. 1489, he, under the name of “David, Earl of Crawford and Lord Lindsay,” received a new patent^(d) of the Dukedom of Montrose [S.] under the Great Seal, in accordance with an Act of Parl. P.C. [S.]

^(a) For which “he was indeed well qualified, being princely in all his dealings,” and his “magnificence” being “unbounded.” See Lives of the Lindsays, where it is stated that “His heralds, the appendage of Sovereignty, are mentioned in the Exchequer Rolls, and as having exchanged their earlier name, ‘Endure’ for ‘Lyndesay,’ the former having apparently been suggested from the motto of the family ‘Endure fort.’ He seems to have been the first of the Nobility upon whom the honour of having a herald was conferred in Scotland [Endure Pursuivant became Lyndesay Herald in 1463 or 1464]. In England, however, Lindsay Herald is mentioned long previously, and in that Kingdom George Dunbar, the celebrated Earl of March, at the beginning of the 15th century, had a pursuivant under the title of Shrewsbury, evidently derived from his so signally conducting to the victory [1403] which fixed Henry IV upon the throne.”

^(b) The first Dukedom conferred in Scotland, save those granted to the Royal family.

^(c) Only one other peerage dignity, the Earldom of Glencairn, was affected by this act.

^(d) The analysis or abstract (all that is preserved) of the second patent commences thus:—“Data est litera Comiti Craufurdie, creando ipsum DUCEM DE MONTROSE, pro toto tempore vite sue et concedendo sibi cap. mess. et locum castrum de Montrose, &c.” This has been generally considered as restraining the title to a life interest, but it is contended otherwise, and that “this new patent has been misunderstood, from an abbreviated phrase in the abstract, as restrictive of the honour to the Duke’s lifetime.” There were also other arguments in favour of the Dukedom continuing to the heirs of the grantee, as that the Duke was not affected by the act rescissory, “the young King having already taken steps which rendered it, in his case, nugatory;” and again, that even had it been so affected, the act was itself rescinded in Mar. 1503/4, when all things done by the then King, which were “either hurting his Soul, his Crown, or Holy Kirk,” were revoked. See Lives of the Lindsays. The chief arguments in favour of the claim, set forth in a long letter, written by the then Lord Lindsay in Sep. 1865 to Sir Bernard Burke (printed in full in Burke’s Extinct Peerage, edit. 1866), appear to be that the patent of 18 May 1488, “changing” the grantee’s Earldom into a Dukedom to him “et heredibus suis” could only be annulled (1) by resignation, (2) by attainder or (3) by special annulment. Neither of the first took place. As to the last (1), the act rescissory of 17 Oct. 1488, “being a general and penal act, could not per se and without specification affect a dignity,” as was “established by a leading case,

Feb. 1489/90. He m., 1stly (when only 18), in 1459, Elizabeth, da. and h. of James (HAMILTON), 2ND LORD HAMILTON [S.], by his 1st wife Eupheme, da. of Patrick (GRAHAM), EARL OF STRATHERN. She was divorced in or before 1484.^(a) He m., 2ndly, before 27 Sep. 1484, Margaret, da. of (—) CARMICHAEL, of Meadowflat.^(b) He d. Christmas 1495, in his 55th year, at Finhaven Castle, and was bur. at Dundee. His widow d. in 1534, after 11 Nov.

[ALEXANDER LINDSAY, MASTER OF CRAWFORD, styled LORD LINDSAY, s. and h. ap. by 1st wife, had charter of lands, with the Shrievalty of Aberdeen, 1474, and sat in Parl., Mar. 1481/2. He m. Janet, 2nd da. of George (GORDON), 2ND EARL OF HUNTLY [S.]. Having led "a wild and ungovernable life," taking part against his father and quarrelling with his brother, he d. v.p. and s.p., 16 Sep. 1489, being "smothered in his bed at Inverqueich, and, as was thought, not without knowledge of his wife," and, apparently, of his brother also. His widow m., between Feb. 1491/2 and Feb. 1492/3, Patrick (GRAY), 3RD LORD GRAY [S.], who d. Apr. 1541. This marriage must have been annulled between 1500/1 and 1507/8, when she m., 3rdly, Patrick BUTTER, of Gormock. She m., 4thly, before Nov. 1535, James HALKERSTON, of Southwood. She d. before Feb. 1558/9.]

VI. 1495. 6. JOHN (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], 2nd, but 1st surv. s. and h. by 1st wife; retoured h. to his br. 15 June 1493; sat in Parl. 13 Mar. 1503/4, and was one of the 4 Governors from Tay to Shetland, 1503. He mortgaged the Shrievalty of Aberdeen in 1509 to William, Earl of Errol.^(c) He m., in 1493, before Aug., Mariot, da. of Alexander (HOME), 2ND LORD HOME [S.], by his 2nd wife, Nichola, da. of Sir George KER, of Samuelstown. He d. s.p. legit.,^(d) 9 Sep.

that of the Dukedom of Norfolk [1425] in the same century." (2) "If any of the grants of James III survived the act rescissory all survived," inasmuch as the Earldom of Glencairn was held "in 1640 by the only competent tribunal" to have so survived, the Dukedom of Montrose must be held to have likewise so survived.

^(a) In 1502/3 she was wife of John Forrester of Niddrie; this marriage must also have been dissolved, for Forrester appears in record with another wife in 1507/8. The Countess was living 11 Mar. 1516/7, the date of her will, which is preserved in a fragmentary Register of Testaments indexed by the Rev. Hew Scott about 1815, soon afterwards lost, and only lately recovered, long after G. Burnett's remarks on the subject which are given in a note to the 1st edit. of this work. (ex inform. J. Maitland Thomson). V.G.

^(b) Her cousin was made Capt. of Crawford Castle, hereditarily, by which designation this branch of Carmichael was afterwards known.

^(c) "His career was not a happy one—his extravagance was great; he alienated lands held in capite of the Crown, &c., the charge of fratricide hung over his head, and his children all died in infancy."

^(d) Of his two sisters the elder (or her issue) was the heir of line, viz.: (1) Margaret, who m. John Blair, of Balmyle, and had issue; the other (2) Elizabeth, or Isabel, m. David Lyon, of Baikie, and had issue.

1513, being slain, with his King, at the battle of Flodden.^(a) He was bur. at Dundee. His widow was living 16 Jan. 1533/4.

VII. 1513. 7. ALEXANDER (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], uncle and h. male, being 2nd s. of the 4th Earl. He was of Auchtermenzie, Knt., Sheriff Dep. of Forfar, 1483. He, in 1513, was one of 4 Councillors appointed for the Queen Regent, and in 1515 was High Justiciary North of the Forth. He m., before 18 Mar. 1470, Isobel, da. of (—) CAMPBELL, of Ardkinglass. He d. at Finhaven, May 1517, aged about 74, and was bur. at Dundee.

VIII. 1517. 8. DAVID (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], s. and h., knighted in or before 1512, served h. 18 July 1517. He was deprived by the King of large estates in the Lowlands, as also of lands in the Hebrides. By charter, confirmed by the King (after resignation), he, 16 Oct. 1541, conveyed the Earldom (subject to his own life interest) to his cousin and (failing his own issue) next heir male, David Lindsay of Edzell, with rem. to his heirs in strict tail male. He m., 1stly, before 6 Nov. 1500, Elizabeth, da. of William (HAY), 3rd EARL OF ERROLL [S.], by his 2nd wife, Elizabeth, da. of George (LESLIE), 1ST EARL OF ROTHES [S.]. She was living 24 Jan. 1510/1. He m., 2ndly, Catherine STIRLING. He m., 3rdly, before 1526, Isobel, da. of (—) LUNDY, of Lundy. He d. at Cairnie Castle, in Auchtermenzie, 27 Nov. 1542. His widow m., before 10 Apr. 1543, as his 4th wife, George (LESLIE), EARL OF ROTHES, who d. 28 Nov. 1558. She d. before 2 Feb. 1549/50.

[ALEXANDER LINDSAY, MASTER OF CRAWFORD, usually known as “the wicked Master,” 1st and only surv. s. and h. ap. by 1st wife. “He had been put in fee of the Earldom by his father, and the Barony of Glenesk had been assigned to him.” As early, however, as 1526, his father had claimed protection against him from “bodily harm,” and on 16 Feb. 1530/1, he was arraigned at Dundee, found guilty of constructive parricide and various other crimes, and condemned to death. By this was effected “the legal exclusion of himself and his posterity from succession to the estates and honours of Crawford, blotting them out as if they had never existed.” In this exclusion he acquiesced, renouncing all his right 30 Mar. 1537. He m. Jean,^(b) da. of Henry (SINCLAIR), LORD SINCLAIR [S.]. He was killed v.p., in a broil, by a cobbler of Dundee, not long before 5 July 1542. His widow d. between 1546 and 1562.]

IX. 1542. 9. DAVID (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], frequently called “The interpolated Earl,” and in family papers, “frank tenementar” of the Earldom, cousin^(c) of the last Earl, and (the issue of

"the wicked Master" being legally excluded) heir male. His right to the lands was good under the entail of 1474, while that to the Earldom was confirmed by the Royal charter of 16 Oct. 1541 abovementioned. He was s. and h. of Walter LINDSAY (slain at Flodden, 1513), by (—), da. of John ERSKINE, of Dun, which Walter was 1st s. and h. ap. of Sir David L., s. and h. of Walter L., both of Edzell, the last named Walter being br. of the 4th and s. of the 3rd Earl.^(a) To him the late Earl had, in addition to the Lindsay estates (entailed in 1474) devised the Auchtermenzie estates inherited from the said late Earl's grandmother, Margaret Dunbar, in token of his "cordial love." This Earl, however, was not unmindful of these favours: he adopted the orphan boy of the late "Master," and, very generously (to the detriment of his own issue and more immediate race), reinstated him, 2 May 1546, with consent of the Crown, putting him "in fee of the Earldom as Master of Crawford." He sat in Parl. 1542-43; was a Member of the Privy Council, 1546. He spent the greater part of his revenue in freeing the estates from the incumbrances placed thereon by the later Earls. He m., 1stly, before 12 June 1535, Janet, widow of Thomas (FRASER), LORD LOVAT [S.] (who d. 21 Oct. 1524), and before that of Alexander BLAIR, of Balthyock, da. of Sir Patrick GRAY, MASTER OF GRAY, by his 2nd wife, Annabel, da. of Alexander (FORBES), 1ST LORD FORBES [S.]. By her, whose will is dat. 5 Feb. 1549, he had no issue.^(b) He m., 2ndly, in 1549, Catherine, widow of James OGILVIE, MASTER OF OGILVIE, da. of Sir John CAMPBELL, of Lorn (yr. s. of Archibald, 2ND EARL OF ARGYLL [S.]), by Muriel, da. and h. of John CALDER. He d. 20 Sep. 1558, at Invermark Castle, co. Forfar, and was bur. at Edzell. By his 2nd wife he left numerous issue.^(c) Will dat. 20 Sep., pr. 1 Oct. 1558. His widow d. 1 Oct. 1578, at Brechin Castle, in Angus. Her elaborate will, dat. 10 June to 10 Aug. 1578, pr. 2 June 1579. Both wills are among the family MSS.

X. 1558. 10. DAVID (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], 1st s. and h. of Alexander LINDSAY, "the wicked Master," who was s. and h. ap. of David, the 8th Earl, was aged 24 on 14 Apr. 1551. He was served h. to his grandfather 23 May 1554, and suc. to the Earldom (to which, but for his father's disqualification, he would have been entitled) by virtue of the deed of 1546, on the death of the last Earl. With great ingratitude he obtained a new charter of the Earldom, 8 July 1559, limiting it to the heirs general of his body, thus preferring his own female issue to the issue male of the last Earl. This, however, was annulled by Queen

Mary, who, on 22 Mar. 1564/5, restored the right of succession to the line of Edzell, as in the deeds of 1546 and 1474.^(a) On 29 July 1565, he was Cupbearer to the Queen at her marriage, and was one of the faithful few who rallied around her at the battle of Langside in 1568, but submitted to the ruling party in 1570. Member of the Privy Council, taking his seat 29 Oct. 1565. He m., with great pomp, at Finhaven (cont. 10 Apr. 1546), Margaret (whose dowry was 4,000 marks), illegit. da. of the celebrated David BETHUNE, CARDINAL ARCHBISHOP OF ST. ANDREW'S, by Marion, da. of James, 1ST LORD OGILVIE OF AIRLIE [S.]. She surv. him. He d. at Finhaven, or at Cairnie, shortly before 1 Nov. 1574, and was bur. at Dundee. Will pr. 25 July 1579.

XI. 1574. II. DAVID (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], s. and h., b. about 1557. He was, though "ane princely man, a sad spendthrift." He was P.C. from 28 Oct. 1575; was involved in a fray, 17 Mar. 1577/8, in which the Chancellor [S.] John (LYON), 8th LORD GLAMIS [S.] (a family always hostile to that of Lindsay), was slain. He, the Earl of Arran (Lieut. of the Realm), and the Earl of Montrose, were the only Peers with the King, when, 1 Nov. 1584, he fell into the hands of the insurgent Lords at "the raid of Stirling." On 11 Sep. 1587 he was made Hereditary Constable of Brechin. In 1588 he joined the faction to make the King of Spain supreme over Scotland, and, in 1589, with 2 other Catholic Earls (Huntly and Erroll), rose in rebellion in the North, but though he fell into the King's hands, was pardoned and allowed safe conduct through England to France in 1590. He m., 1stly, at Perth, 12 Feb. 1572/3 (cont. dat. previous day), Liliast, da. of David (DRUMMOND), 2ND LORD DRUMMOND [S.], by his 2nd wife, Liliast, da. of William (RUTHVEN), 2ND LORD RUTHVEN [S.], receiving with her 10,000 marks. This lady, soon afterwards, he sent home in disgrace,^(b) where she died. He m., 2ndly (cont. dat. 1581, reg. 18 Jan. 1583), Dec. 1581, Grizell, 4th da. of John (STEWART), 4th EARL OF ATHOLL [S.], by his 2nd wife, Margaret, da. of Malcolm (FLEMING), 3RD LORD FLEMING [S.]. He d. at Cupar, in Fife, either early in Oct. or 22 Nov.^(c) 1607, aged 55, and was bur. at Dundee.

^(a) The entail of 1546 was renewed in 1589, and continued in force till 1642, when it was superseded, on the resignation of the 16th Earl, in favour of John, Lord Lindsay of Byres [S.] and the heirs male of his body, whereby the line of Byres "were interpolated between the [Lords Spynie] descendants of the wicked Master and the line of Edzell," whose succession to the Earldom was "thus unjustly postponed for two centuries," i.e. 1642 to (1808, or, rather, till its acknowledgment) 1848.

^(b) See the ballad thereon in Lives of the Lindsays, edit. 1849, vol. i, p. 472, where the reason given is her having made a light jest as to the paternity of her child, a son who d. young.

^(c) In Dict. Nat. Biog. it is pointed out that in the Privy Council Register (vol. vii, p. 448) of 15 Oct. 1607, his son is spoken of as "now Earl of Crawford," but the 1st edit. of this work, and the recent Scots Peerage give the date of death as

XII. 1607. 12. DAVID (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], s. and h. by 1st wife, hap. 8 Mar. 1575/6, at Perth; was served h. 28 June 1608. P.C. [S.], taking oath as such 10 Mar. 1608. He slew his cousin, Sir Walter Lindsay, of Balgavies, 3rd s. of David, 9th Earl of Crawford, and was himself nearly slain in revenge (his uncle, Lord Spynie [S.], being actually so slain) by the young Laird (or h. ap.) of Edzell, nephew to the murdered man.^(a) He is called "the prodigal Earl," and sometimes "the captive Earl," from his having been incarcerated in Edinburgh Castle by his relatives to prevent the utter ruin of the family. He m., between 4 Mar. 1606, and 16 Apr. 1610, Joan, widow of Robert BOYD, MASTER OF BOYD (who d. May 1597), da. of Mark (KERR), 1ST EARL OF LOTHIAN [S.], by Margaret, da. of John (MAXWELL), LORD HERRIES [S.]. From her he was divorced.^(b) She m., 3rdly, before 16 Feb. 1618, Thomas HAMILTON, of Robertoun, who d. 17 Aug. 1632. She d. before 1633. He d. s.p.m.,^(c) June 1620, at Edinburgh Castle, and was bur. in the Canongate.

XIII. 1620. 13. HENRY (LINDSAY, afterwards CHARTERIS), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], uncle and h. male, being next br. to the 11th Earl. He had been Master of the Household to Anne of Denmark, the Queen Consort, but was "wild, prodigal, and tyrannical." He was best known as "Sir Harry Lindsay, otherwise Charteris," being by charter 25 Sep. 1584, the adopted son of John CHARTERIS, of Kinfauns, by Janet CHISHOLM, and having taken the name of Charteris, obtained a ratification of the said charter of adoption by Act of Parl. 20 Sep. 1587. He m., 1stly, before 26 July 1586, Helen, da. of James CHISHOLM, of Cromlix, by Jean, da. of Sir John DRUMMOND, of Innerpeffry, probably niece, or perhaps a sister of his adopted father's wife. He m., 2ndly, 2 Dec. 1599, Margaret, da. of Sir James SHAW, of Sauchie, by Marjory, da. of James KIRKCALDY, of Grange. He d. at Finhaven Castle, 1623, and was bur. in the church there. His widow was living 2 Oct. 1644.

22 Nov. 1607 on the authority of his son's retour, and on 18 Oct. 1607 his successor is still called Master of Crawford in a Royal Charter, so if the 11th Earl was then dead it cannot have been long before. V.G.

(^a) He "exceeded even his father in recklessness and extravagance, riding through the country illegally armed and pursuing his feudal or personal enemies with unrelenting bitterness."

(^b) In the register of confirmed testaments she is styled "Dame Jeane Ker, Countess of Crawforde, and last spouse to Mr. Thomas Hamilton, of Robertoun in Edinburgh, who d. 17 Aug. 1632." V.G.

(^c) In spite of the date of his death as given in the text being established both by the Canongate Register and the Privy Council Register, his successor curiously enough is still called Sir Henry Lindsay only, in Feb. 1620/1. (Reg. Mag. Sig.) V.G. His only child, Lady Jean Lindsay, destitute and uncared for, ran away with a common "jockey with the horn," and lived latterly by mendicancy. She was, however, granted an annual pension of £100 by Charles II.

XIV. 1623. 14. GEORGE (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], 2nd^(a) but 1st surv. s. and h., served h. to his br. 11 Apr. or 1 Aug. 1615. He "sold Finhaven and the tombs of his ancestors" to his cousin, Lord Spynie [S.], and served abroad as "Col. of a Foot Company of Dutch" under Gustavus of Sweden. He m. (cont. dat. 21 May 1621) Elizabeth, da. of George (SINCLAIR), 5th EARL OF CAITHNESS [S.], by Jean, da. of George (GORDON), 5th EARL OF HUNTLY [S.]. He d. s.p.m.,^(b) 1633, being "basely killed" by a Lieut. of his own regt., and was bur. at Staten, in Germany.

XV. 1633. 15. ALEXANDER (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], br. of the half-blood and h. male, being s. of the 13th Earl by his 2nd wife. He was a minor in 1617; first sat in Parl. [S.] in 1633. He d. unm., 1639, before 29 Aug., being "frantic" or insane.

XVI. 1639. 16. LUDOVIC (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], br. and h., only surv. s. of the 13th Earl, was served h. to Earl David, his "patruus," 24 Aug. 1639. He, who was called "the loyal Earl," served, when young, in the Spanish service, but returned to support his own King in or before 1640. He (aided by Montrose) appears to have been chief contriver of the plot called "the Incident," whereby the leading Covenanters (Hamilton, Argyll, &c.) were to have been captured, but the plot being discovered, Crawford was imprisoned and his life in danger. He was, however, soon afterwards released by the influence, apparently, of his cousin, the Earl of Lindsay [S.], a leading Covenanter, who had (probably on that condition) induced him to surrender the Earldom of Crawford, 15 Jan. 1641/2, into the King's hands at Windsor, receiving it back, with a new destination, viz. (1) to Earl Ludovic and the heirs male of his body, (2) to the Earl of Lindsay in like manner, failing whom (3) to the heirs male collateral of the said Earl Ludovic.^(c) When war was proclaimed, he joined the King at Nottingham, 25 Aug. 1642, fought at the head of his regt. at Edgehill, 23 Oct. following, at Lansdowne, 5 July, and at Newbury, 20 Sep. 1643. Early in 1644 he joined Montrose in an attempt on Dumfries, for which he was excommunicated, 26 Apr. 1644, and after having been defeated at Marston Moor on 2 July, sentence of forfeiture was pronounced against him by Parl. [S.], 26 July 1644, and the Earldom of Crawford was propelled and ratified to the Earl of Lindsay (as then belonging to him) under the remainder of 1642.^(d) In Oct. 1644 he was taken prisoner at Newcastle, carried to Edinburgh, and condemned to death, but was released after the battle of Kilsyth, Aug. 1645, being, however, excepted from pardon by the articles of Westm., 11 July 1646. In Aug. 1646 he escaped to Spain, and was living at Madrid, "in great honour and credit," during the year 1649. He m., before 5 Oct. 1643, Margaret, widow of Alexander STEWART, styled LORD GARLIES (who d. 1638), da. of William (GRAHAM), EARL OF MENTEITH [S.], by Agnes, da. of Patrick, LORD GRAY [S.]. He d. s.p. legit.,^(a) of ague, at the Hague, about 7 Nov. 1652. His wife was living 4 Dec. 1649, being said to have "turned Catholicke Romane."

XVII. 1652. 17. JOHN (LINDSAY), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], EARL OF LINDSAY [S. 1633], LORD LINDSAY OF THE BYRES [S. 1445], and LORD PARBROATH [S. 1633], cousin, though not heir male,^(b) but who, under the regrant of 1642 (abovementioned), suc. to the Earldom of Crawford,^(c) and who, since 1644, had under a decree of Parl., 26 July 1644, abovementioned, which was alleged to have propelled to him the Earldom of Crawford, called himself "Earl of Crawford-Lindsay," as did also his successors. He was s. and h. of Robert (LINDSAY), 9th LORD LINDSAY OF THE BYRES [S.], by Christian,^(d) da. of Thomas (HAMILTON), 1st EARL OF HADDINGTON [S.]. He was b. 1596, suc. his father 9 July 1616. Hereditary Steward of the Regality of St. Andrew's, 1618. During the King's visit to Scotland he was, 8 May 1633, cr. EARL OF LINDSAY^(e) and LORD PARBROATH [S.], to him and his heirs male bearing the name and arms of Lindsay; his cousin, Sir David Lindsay of

(a) The following entry appears in the Douai Diary under date 7 Mar. 1656/7. "Henricus Lindsaius, æt. 12 . . . filius unicus Comititis Crawford et Margaretæ Græmiæ Comititis Monteithii filiæ. Dimissus quia illegitimus." V.G.

(b) Such heir was George (Lindsay), 3rd Lord Spynie [S.], in whom the remnant of the Crawford estate vested, but on his death s.p. in 1671, the heirship passed to Lindsay of Edzell, who, to avoid liability for Spynie's debts, "renounced the succession." David Lindsay of Edzell claimed the Earldom (as heir male of the grantee) in 1685. On the extinction of the line of Lindsay of Edzell, in 1744, the representation passed to James (Lindsay), 5th Earl of Balcarres, whose son (the 6th Earl) became, in 1808, entitled as such representative to the Earldom of Crawford.

(c) See his (very distant) relationship to the last Earl in tabular pedigree, p. 511.

(d) As "son of the celebrated Lady Christian Hamilton, better known by the name of her second husband as Lady Boyd, he had sucked in the tenets of Presbyterianism with his mother's milk, independently of the heritage of similar traditions derived from his paternal ancestry." (Lives of the Lindsays).

(e) John, Lord Lindsay, says Sir James Dalrymple, in anno 1633, was the first Lord in the Rolls of Parl., and there being a question of precedency betwixt the Lords of Parl. and the Earl's eldest sons (anciently called Masters, and then Lords according to the custom of England), the decision being in favour of the latter, the Lord Lindsay was cr. an Earl, as Earl of Lindsay. (Lives of the Lindsays). It is to be observed that at the decret of ranking, "Lindsay" is the first Barony, followed by (2) Forbes, (3) Glamis, (4) Fleming, (5) Saltoun, &c.

[S.]; and (with Argyll, Glencairn, and Loudoun) Joint Treasurer of Scotland; an extraordinary Lord of Session 1641-49, and again 1661-64. By act of Parl., July 1644, confirmed by the King in 1646, the Earl of Crawford-Lindsay, as he was now styled, was made High Treasurer [S.], and in Jan. 1644/5, President of the Parl. [S.]. He acquired the revenues of at least 5 Bishoprics, and obtained a charter, 1 Mar. 1648 (invalid as not proceeding on resignation and Royal authority), with a view of extending the Earldom of Crawford to his own heirs general. He (with Hamilton and Cassillis) was one of those sent to the King at Newcastle, in Sep. 1646, to urge him to accept the English propositions. After this he appears to have befriended the King's side, was deprived of his offices 13 Feb. 1649, and was promoting the intended march of Charles II into England, when he was taken prisoner by the Parliamentary Col. Alured (together with the Earls Marischal and Leven), 28 Aug. 1651, at Alyth, co. Forfar, carried to Dundee, the Tower of London, and Windsor Castle, and not released till Mar. 1660. He had been specially excepted from Cromwell's "Act of grace and pardon," 14 Apr. 1654. In 1661 he was restored as High Treasurer [S.], and President of the Council. P.C. [S.] again 13 Feb. 1660/1, sworn 5 Sep. 1661. Original F.R.S. 20 May 1663. In 1663, scrupling to take the declaration and renounce the Covenant, he resigned his office in favour of his son-in-law, the Earl of Rothes [S.], and retired to his home at the Struthers. He m., about 1630,^(b) Margaret, 2nd da. of James (HAMILTON), 2nd MARQUESS OF HAMILTON [S.], by Anne, da. of James (CONYNGHAM), 7th EARL OF GLENCAIRN [S.]. She was living 1666. Will pr. Jan. 1810.

(b) The marriage was clandestine, and much to her father's annoyance, as he was much older than his wife and deeply in debt. V.G.

(c) Not Cupar as in Scots Peerage. V.G.

(d) "The most generous, the most gallant, the bravest, and the finest nobleman of his time." (Chambers' Traditions of Edinburgh, p. 93). A life of him, written by John Rolt, was pub. 1753 and 1769. Among his pictures sold by auction at Edinburgh, on his death, were several interesting family portraits enumerated in the Lives of the Lindsays.

(e) See tabular pedigree, p. 511.

(f) The fine old castle of Kilbirnie, co. Ayr (which he had inherited from the family of Crawford through his great-grandmother, Margaret, wife of the Hon. Patrick Crawford, formerly Lindsay), was destroyed by fire, Apr. 1757, and never rebuilt. After that date, he settled at the old residence of the family of Lindsay of the Byres, at Struthers, co. Fife, building there a house, since called Crawford Lodge, or Priory.

(g) The marriage proved unhappy, and they were separated, the Earl having several bastard children. V.G.

XXII. 1781. 22. GEORGE (LINDSAY-CRAWFORD), EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], EARL OF LINDSAY [S. 1633], VISCOUNT GARNOCK [S. 1703], LORD LINDSAY OF THE BYRES [S. 1445], LORD PARBROATH [S. 1633], and LORD KILBIRNY and DRUMRY [S. 1703], s. and h. He was b. 31 Jan. 1758, at Bourtree hill, co. Ayr; ed. at Eton from 1765; entered the army, 1776; Col. 2nd Batt. 71st, 1782-83, Col. of the 63rd Foot, 1789-1808, becoming finally, 1805, Major Gen. Lord Lieut. of co. Fife, 1794 to Mar. 1807, and May 1807 till his death. He d. unm., 30 Jan. 1808, aged 50, at his mother's house, Rosel, co. Ayr, and was bur. in the mausoleum at Crawford Lodge, co. Fife. Admon. June 1811. By his death the issue male of John, 17th Earl of Crawford and 1st Earl of Lindsay, became extinct, and the Earldom of Crawford devolved as below, while all the other honours, abovenamed, devolved on the heir male collateral of the said Earl John. See "LINDSAY," Earldom of [S.], cr. 1633, under the 7th Earl.

[XXIII. 1808.] 23. ALEXANDER (LINDSAY), EARL OF BALCARRES [S. 1651], LORD LINDSAY OF BALCARRES [S. 1633], LORD LINDSAY AND BALNEIL [S. 1651], and de jure (^a) EARL OF CRAWFORD [S.], being h. male of Ludovic, 16th Earl of Crawford, and h. male of the body of the 1st (as also of the 2nd, 3rd, and 9th) Earl,^(b) and, as such, entitled to that Earldom, on failure of the heirs male of the body of John the 17th Earl, under the regrant of 1642. He was s. and h. of James (LINDSAY), 5th EARL OF BALCARRES [S.], by Anne, da. of Sir Robert DALRYMPLE; was b. 18 Jan. 1752; suc. his father, 20 Feb. 1768, as Earl of Balcarres [S.]. (^c) The journal of Maria, Lady Nugent, wife of Sir George N., K.B., who suc. Lord Balcarres as Gov. of Jamaica, is full of accounts of his dirty, slovenly habits. "I wish Lord B. would wash his hands and use a nail-brush, for the black edges of his nails really make me sick. He has besides an extraordinary propensity to dip his fingers into every dish. Yesterday he absolutely helped himself to some fricasee with his dirty finger and thumb." (31 Aug. 1801). On another occasion having gone to his country place with the idea of breakfast, the lady had to declare her intention of returning home for it "upon his secretary whispering me that there was but one whole teacup and saucer and a half." She also writes, "of Lord B.'s domestic conduct and his ménage here altogether, never was there a more profligate and disgusting scene, and I really think he must have been more than half mad." Notes under 5 Dec. 1801 show that the Chief Justice of Jamaica, then dead, was not a lawyer by calling, but had "had charge of Lord B.'s property, who, the scandalous chronicle said, received a douceur of 1,000 guineas for giving him the appointment." I. 1806. 1. JOHN CREWE, s. and h. of John C. (M.P. for co. Chester 1734 till his death, 18 Sep. 1752),^(a) of Crewe Hall,^(b) Cheshire, by Anne, da. of Richard SHUTTLEWORTH, of Gawthorp, co. Lancaster, was b. 27 Sep. 1742, and bap. at St. Geo., Han. Sq.; matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.), 19 Feb. 1760; was High Sheriff for Cheshire, 1764; M.P. (Whig) for Stafford, 1765-68; for Cheshire 1768-1802.^(c) Having been in Parl. above 48 years and a constant Whig, he was cr., 25 Feb. 1806, BARON CREWE OF CREWE, co. Chester. He m., 4 Apr. 1766, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Frances, da. of Fulke GREVILLE, of Wilbury, Wilts, by Frances, da. of James MACARTNEY. She d. 23 Dec. 1818, in Liverpool, and was bur. at Barthomley, co. Chester.^(d) He d. 28 Apr. 1829, in Grosvenor Str., Midx., aged 86. Will pr. Dec. 1829.

II. 1829. 2. JOHN (CREWE), BARON CREWE OF CREWE, only s. and h., bap. 1772, at St. Geo., Han. Sq.; served in the army, Major Gen. 1808, Lieut. Gen. 1813, Gen. 1830, retired 1831. A Whig. He m., 5 May 1807, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Henrietta Maria Anne, da. of George WALKER-HUNGERFORD, of Calne, Wilts, by Henrietta Maria, da. of John Hungerford KEATE.^(e) She d. 14 Jan. 1820, in Cavendish Sq., Midx., aged 48. M.I. at Calne. He d. 4 Dec. 1835, at his Château, near Liège.^(f) Will pr. May 1838.

^(a) He was s. and h. of John Crewe, formerly Offley, of Crewe Hall, who took the name of Crewe by Act of Parl. 1708, being s. and h. of John Offley, of Madeley manor, co. Stafford, by Anne, da. and h. of John Crewe of Crewe afsd.

^(b) Sir Randolph Crew (see ante, p. 532, note "i") built Crewe Hall 1615-36, from designs of Inigo Jones. It was restored in 1837, almost totally burnt in Jan. 1866, and rebuilt by Barry. V.G.

^(c) He is well known for having proposed and carried the Bill disfranchising Officers of Customs and Excise. He got his Peerage on the recommendation of Fox. V.G.

^(d) Fox "preferred Mrs. Crewe to all women living," but she "never lost an atom of character, I mean, female honour; she loved high play and dissipation, but was no sensualist." (See Mrs. Piozzi's note in Wraxall's Memoirs, vol. ii, p. 10). In her honour the Prince of Wales gave the well-known toast of "True Blue and Mrs. Crewe" at a banquet to celebrate Fox's re-election for Westminster in 1784, the colours of which were, like those of General Washington (the same as the Edinburgh Review adopted for its cover) blue and buff. G.E.C. The Rt. Hon. Charles Arbuthnot says of her, about 1790, "She, I think, is a charming person, and I find her particularly pleasant . . . Instead of a fine lady she is a comfortable kind of creature that has read a great deal and is amazingly well informed." Madame d'Arblay, writing of her beauty, says, "I know not even now any female in her first youth who could bear the comparison. She uglifies everything near her." (Diary, 1792). V.G.

^(e) He was s. of John Keate, by Frances, da. of Sir George Hungerford.

^(f) The well-known portrait of him as a child (in fancy dress as Henry VIII), by Sir Joshua Reynolds, now (1913) belongs to the Marquess of Crewe. V.G.

CRICHTON

BARONY [S.] I. WILLIAM CRICHTON, s. and h. of Sir John C.,^(a) of I. 1443? Crichton, co. Edinburgh, by Christian his wife, was knighted, May 1424, at the Coronation of James I; Gent. of the Bedchamber; on an embassy to Norway, May 1426, and on his return was appointed Keeper of Edinburgh Castle; Master of the Household before Apr. 1435; Sheriff of Edinburgh in or before 1435. As Keeper, he had the young King James II in his power; accordingly he was made Chancellor [S.] in May or June 1439. In 1443, or possibly later, but certainly before 1447, he was^(b) cr. LORD CRICHTON [S.]; he was one

^(a) This Sir John was kinsman, though probably not (as is often stated) elder br. of Stephen Crichton, of Cairns, the father of George, Earl of Caithness [S.], 1452.

^(b) "In the Exchequer Rolls [S.] he begins to be persistently called Lord Crichton (dominus de Crechtoun) in 1444. The evidence as to whether he was made a Lord of Parliament before or after his disgrace is in favour of the earlier date, as it was not till 1445, that, being besieged in Edinburgh Castle by the faction that then had the possession of the King, he, on capitulating, had a promise of remission for the past, and favour for the future." "The habitual use of Dominus de, for what would now be called the Laird of, renders it very difficult to distinguish that class of Lords, or Lairds, from the actual Lords of Parliament. Making, however, every allowance for the carelessness and laxity prevailing in the 14th and 15th centuries, the following conclusion seems in all probability to be correct.—When such designations are met with as 'Hugo Giffard, Dominus de Yester,' 'Alexander Setoun, Dominus de Gordoun,' or even, simply, 'Dominus de Calenter,' they may be considered as equally applicable to the Laird of the territory, as to the Lord of Parliament; but when the christian name is found, without surname, followed by Dominus de, as 'Willelmus, Dominus de Crechtoun' 'Patricius, Dominus de Glammis,' and still more in a designation like 'Andreas, Dominus LE Gray' (or, similarly 'David, Comes Craufurdia et Dominus LE Lyndessay'), with the title taken from the surname, not from the lands, it is an almost certain assumption that the person referred to was a Lord of Parliament."

"James I [S.] created very few Lords of Parliament, though his successor, James II [S.], created a good many; such creations appearing to be one of the novelties brought out of England by the former in 1424. Before that date, none such existed, save, perhaps, Sir William Graham of Kincardine (Willelmus, Dominus Le Graham), on whom the dignity was, apparently, conferred by the Regent Albany (under the of the conservators of a nine years' peace with England from 1 May 1438; in temporary conjunction with his great rival Sir Alexander Livingstone, he was one of the chief contrivers of the murder of the Earl of Douglas 24 Nov. 1440; dismissed from the Chancellorship and attainted in 1443, being, in 1445, blockaded in Edinburgh Castle, but surrendering on such advantageous terms that he was pardoned in full; he was again received into favour and re-appointed Chancellor [S.] in 1448, which office he held till his death; he had a safe conduct through England as Willelmus Dominus Creghton Miles, Cancellarius, 23 Apr. 1448, to conclude the marriage of the King with Mary of Gueldres. He founded the Collegiate Church at Crichton, 26 Aug. 1449. He m. Agnes. He d. 1454, before July.^(a)

II. 1454. 2. JAMES (CRICHTON), LORD CRICHTON [S.], s. and h.,
 ?May was knighted Oct. 1430, by James I, at the baptism of his twin sons. Under the designation of "Sir James Crichton of Frendraught," he is said to have been made in 1440, Great Chamberlain [S.], retaining that office till 1453.^(b) In the Parl. of June 1452 he was "belted EARL OF MORAY" [S.], in spite of the fact that the Earldom was then held by Archibald Douglas, br. of the Earl of Douglas abovementioned; he is so called in the Exchequer Rolls, both in his lifetime, July 1454, and after his death in 1456, but he appears never to have been in the actual possession of that Earldom, or, if so, not improbably resigned it to the Crown. His wife, however (the heir of line thereof), in 1454, appears to have assumed her father's Earldom, being styled Janeta, Comitissa Moraviae,^(c) Domina Frendraught et Crichton. He m., between 1442 exceptional powers exercised by that Regent), and subsequently confirmed or renewed by James I [S.]" (ex inform. G. Burnett, sometime Lyon, who adds, as to this Barony of Crichton, "There are undoubtedly instances in the records where, apparently, per incuriam, the 1st Lord Crichton is designated 'Dominus Willelmus de Crechtoun,' all of them about the year of his death, 1454: his son is designated as a Lord of Parliament, after his death in 1454 or 1455.")

(^a) According to Sir Walter Scott, as quoted in Scots Peerage, vol. iii, p. 61, he was "a consummate statesman according to the manner of his age . . . as destitute of faith, mercy, and conscience, as of fear and folly." V.G.

(^b) The Editor can give no real authority for this statement, which appears in Haydn's Book of Dignities and has been copied in Dict. Nat. Biog., and elsewhere. "No trace of his having ever exercised that office appears in the Exchequer Rolls." (Scots Peerage). V.G.

(^c) Archibald Douglas, who m. Mary, her younger sister, was (through the influence of the Douglas family) cr. Earl of Moray about June 1445. He was slain at Arkinholm 1 May 1455. In 1452 Sir James Crichton is said to have been "belted Earl of Moray," as in the text. "If the standing investiture of that Earldom was still that of 1371/2, his wife was, de jure, Countess of Moray, though supplanted by her younger sister, but there may have been an intervening resignation and regrant, not now on record, in favour of heirs male. Crichton is supposed to have made a compulsory resignation of the Earldom into the King's hands." (ex inform. G. Burnett, sometime Lyon).

and 1446, Janet, 1st da. and coh. of James (DUNBAR), 4th EARL OF MORAY [S.], and, with her, acquired the Lordship of Frendraught. He d. within a few months of his father, Aug. 1454, at Dunbar.^(a) His widow m., before 17 Jan. 1458/9, John SUTHERLAND, who was living at that date. In 1493 she resigned the Barony of Frendraught to her grandson, Sir James Crichton. She d. between 1494 and 1505/6.

III. Aug. 1454 3. WILLIAM (CRICHTON), LORD CRICHTON [S.], s. to and h. He sat in Parl. on 14 Oct. 1467. Joining 1484. in the rebellion of the Duke of Albany against James III, he was "forfeited" by Parl. 24 Feb. 1483/4, when all his honours became extinct. He m., before 1478, Marion, da. of James (LIVING-STON), 1st LORD LIVINGSTON [S.], by Marion, his wife. She is said to have
d. before him. He d. before 23 Oct. 1493.^(b)

IV. 1642. 1. JAMES CRICHTON, s. and h. ap. of James C.,^(c) of Frendraught, was v.p., in consideration of his father being the heir male of the Lord Chancellor Crichton, cr. 29 Aug. 1642, VISCOUNT OF FRENDRAUGHT and LORD CRICHTON, to him, his heirs male and successors. See "FRENDRAUGHT," Viscounty [S.], cr. 1642; forfeited,

VIII. 1569. 8. ROBERT (CRICHTON), LORD CRICHTON OF SANQUHAR [S.], s. and h., b. about 1568, retoured h. to his father and infest Apr. 1589. He was a Rom. Cath.^(a) He m., 10 Apr. 1608, at St. Anne's, Blackfriars, London (by lic.), Mary, da. of Sir George FERMOR, of Easton Neston, Northants, by Mary, da. of Thomas CURZON, of Addington, Bucks. Having, in Aug. 1604, when on a visit at Rycote, Oxon, been deprived of the sight of an eye by a thrust from a fencing master, John Turner, he, for more than 7 years planned his death, which was effected by his accomplices 11 May 1612. These having been hanged, he surrendered himself, and being refused (as a Scottish Peer) trial in the Court of the High Steward of England, was arraigned as "Robert Crichton, Esq.," in the King's Bench, found guilty, and hanged 29 June 1612,^(b) in Great Palace yard, Westm. He d. s.p. legit. His widow, who was bap. at Easton Neston, 12 Mar. 1591/2, m. there, 17 July 1615, Barnaby (O'BRIEN), 6th EARL OF THOMOND [I.], who d. 15 Nov. 1657. She was bur. 13 Apr. 1675, at Great Billing, Northants. Will dat. 22 Feb. 1672, pr. 17 May 1675.

His illegit. son, William Crichton, was, 15 July 1619, served heir of entail to him in the Barony of Sanquhar. He was b. in France, and was legitimated 8 Aug. 1609. He assumed the title and claimed the estates, on his father's death, but on 7 May 1614, James VI decided against him, holding that the legitimation did not make him his father's full successor.

IX. 1612. 9. WILLIAM (CRICHTON), LORD CRICHTON OF SANQUHAR [S.], cousin and h., being s. and h. of William C., Tutor of Sanquhar, by Katherine CARMICHAEL, which William was 5th s. of William, 5th Lord Crichton of Sanquhar. He was served h. to Robert, the last Lord, 15 July 1619. On 2 Feb. 1622, he was cr. VISCOUNT OF AIR and LORD OF SANQUHAR, and on 12 June 1633, he was cr. EARL OF DUMFRIES, VISCOUNT OF AIR, and LORD CRICHTON OF SANQUHAR AND CUMNOCK [S.]. See "DUMFRIES," Earldom of [S.], cr. 1633.

^(a) He was one of the 12 performers (the costumes costing each about £300) at a splendid court masque, 8 Feb. 1608.

^(b) A full and interesting account thereof is in Craik's Romance of the Peerage, vol. iii, where also is mentioned a report of his relict's remarriage with "one Sands" within 6 weeks of his death, which, however, seems to have been false. In Osborne's Elizabeth, he is spoken of as "a man of eminent parts." Lord Bacon calls his execution "the most exemplary piece of justice that ever came forth in any King's reign." (State Trials, vol. vii, p. 86). V.G.

^(a) One would have expected some words to have been here inserted (as in the Barony of Lucas of Crudwell, cr. 1663) to prevent the dignity from falling into abeyance. Possibly, however, the Scottish title of this [U.K.] peerage gave rise to a notion that it would devolve (without any special limitation) on the senior coh. as heir of line.

^(b) This extraordinary proviso, whereby the attempt is made to subject a peerage dignity to a shifting remainder (so that, on certain contingencies happening, it should pass from one person to another), was, at the time of its perpetration, unprecedented. It was, however, shortly followed, 27 Apr. 1864, in the case of the Barony of Buckhurst, and these two creations have been called "the jumping Peerages." In the case of Buckhurst, however, when the contingency (i.e. the succession of the then Baron Buckhurst to the Earldom of Delawarr) happened, on 23 Apr. 1873, the claim of the Hon. Mortimer Sackville-West to the Barony, under the shifting clause, in its creation was disallowed, the peerage not being allowed "to jump" from him who had sat therein to another. In the Scottish peerage, however, with sanction of the Crown, some such devolution of dignities (though not to the extent of depriving a living man or a peerage he actually held) has occasionally been essayed, and even (in 1748) effected in the case of the Earldom of Stair, thus kept separate from the Earldom of Dumfries. See Her. and Gen., vol. viii, pp. 81-83.

^(c) This word "other" would appear to have the effect of excluding Florence, the eldest da., and the only one mentioned in the patent.

(^a) The issue of these letters has been relied on as evidence that the doctrine of abeyance applies to Earldoms precisely as it does to Baronies, but the action of the Crown in this instance was based on a report from the Attorney Gen., not from the House of Lords: consequently the question was treated as an open one in the Earldom of Norfolk case, which was disposed of on another point. The question was again raised in the Earldom of Oxford case (1912), but this also was disposed of on another point before the question of abeyance was reached. An elaborate argument in favour of the application of the doctrine of abeyance to Earldoms was appended to the Petitioner's Case, a counter-memorandum being prepared for the Crown by J. H. Round, who has kindly furnished this note. V.G.

CROMWELL or CRUMWELL

BARONY BY WRIT. I. JOHN DE CROMWELL, probably yr. s. of Ralph de C. (who d. 1289, see p. 551), by his 2nd wife, Margaret, da. of Roger DE SOMERY. In 1305 he accused Sir Nicholas Segrave of treason, and was defied by him to battle; Constable of Chepstow Castle 1307-08, of the Tower of London 1307/8, and for life 1310, which office he ceased to hold in 1323, but was re-appointed by the new King 1326/7. He fought ex parte Regis at Boroughbridge, 16 Mar. 1321/2.^(c) He was sum. to Parl. from 10 Mar. (1307/8) 1 Edw. II to 1 Apr. (1335) 9 Edw. III, by writs directed Johanni de Crumwell or Crumbewell, whereby he is held to have become LORD CROMWELL.^(d) He was Justice of the forest South of Trent Sep. 1317, and was engaged in the French and Scottish wars. Adm. of the Fleet 16 July 1324.^(e) He m., before 25 June 1302, Idoine, widow of Roger DE LEYBURNE (d. 1283), 2nd da. and coh. of Robert DE VIPONT, of Brougham Castle, Westmorland, being niece and coh. of Richard FitzJohn [Lord FitzJohn]. She, who was heiress to large estates, d. s.p., 1333, before 18 Nov., when the writ for her Inq. p. m. is dated. He d. before 8 Oct. 1335.^(f)

(a) In 1440 he re-built, at a cost of 4,000 marks, the fine castle of Tattershall, of which about a third part still stands. In 1551 it passed to Edward, Earl of Lincoln, and about 1700 to the Fortescues, who sold it in 1910. In Sep. 1911 the owner sold the three famous stone mantelpieces, which, in spite of general protests, were torn out with a view to their despatch to the United States. They were, however, recovered in 1912, by Lord Curzon of Kedleston, who had meanwhile bought the Castle in order to preserve it. As to some earlier owners of the property see post, note sub "TATESHALE." V.G.

(b) These were the daughters of his only sister, Maud, the 2nd wife of Sir Richard Stanhope, of Rampton, who d. an old man in 1436, leaving his grandson and heir aged above 26. [If this Maud was living 20 years later (which apparently was not the case) and so survived her brother, she, according to modern doctrine, would have been entitled to the Barony, which on her death would have fallen into abeyance.] These coheirs (sisters of the whole blood of Henry Stanhope, who d. s.p. 31 Hen. VI) were (1) Maud Stanhope, who m. Robert, Lord Willoughby of Eresby (by whom she had no issue), and d. 30 Aug. 1497, being bur. at Tattershall. In her M.I. she is called consanguinea et hæres illustris domini Radulphi, nuper domini Cromwell. (2) Joan Stanhope, who m. Sir Humphrey Bourchier, who, in 1461, was sum. to Parl. by writ directed Humfrido Bourchier de Cromwell (see following page). She d. s.p., 1490.

(c) For an account of this battle see vol. ii, Appendix C.

(d) See note "b" on preceding page.

(e) For a list of great offices of State, see vol. ii, Appendix D.

(f) Patent Roll. It is not, of course, certain that he did not have issue by a previous wife, as, if such existed, they would not necessarily appear in the records. V.G.

BARONY.

THOMAS CROMWELL,^(a) only s.^(b) of Walter CROMWELL, otherwise SMYTH, of Putney, Surrey, fuller and shearer of cloth, as also brewer and blacksmith, was b. about 1485, and is stated, apparently in error, to have served at the battle of Garigliano, 27 Dec. 1503, being after June 1504 a trader at Florence and elsewhere abroad, but in 1513 was established in London, apparently as a lawyer, as well as a cloth-dresser; was, in 1514, Collector of the revenues of the Archbishop (Wolsey) of York; M.P. as early as 1523, representing Taunton 1529-36; admitted Gray's Inn, 1524;^(c) was, in Jan. 1525, one of the three persons appointed for the suppression of small monasteries, "incredible things" being spoken as to the way in which he so acted, and was from this time to the fall of Wolsey (17 Oct. 1529) that statesman's most important and trusted agent.^(d) At this period began his rapid rise in the Royal favour. P.C. early in 1531;

^(a) See an able account of him in Dict. Nat. Biog., incorporating the recent discoveries of John Phillips, of Putney, as to the family of Cromwell, otherwise Smyth.

^(b) Of his two sisters, Catherine m. Morgan Williams, a Welshman, from Glamorganshire, Ale brewer and Innkeeper at Putney, by whom she had a son, Sir Richard Williams, otherwise Cromwell, who adopted the name of his uncle and patron, the Earl of Essex, and became of Hinchinbrooke, co. Huntingdon, being great-grandfather of the notorious Oliver Cromwell, who was s. of Robert, 2nd s. of Sir Henry C. of Hinchinbrooke, the s. and h. of Sir Richard Williams, otherwise Cromwell above-named.

^(c) Being the second nobleman on the roll of that society, though not ennobled till 12 years after his admission. Thomas (Fiennes), Lord Dacre, had been admitted 32 years earlier. V.G.

^(d) His "most devoted attachment to his old master in trouble" is generally assumed, and "as this view is set forth in Shakespeare it is, of course, indelible;" it was, indeed, at first (but, apparently, not latterly) believed in by Wolsey himself. Self interest, however, alone seems to have been Cromwell's ruling star, and his defence of Wolsey was limited accordingly. It has even been suggested that he stole from Wolsey's papers the all important Royal Licence for the use of the Legatine prerogative, a loss which enabled the King (who could hardly, in the face of his own permission, have done so) to proceed against the Cardinal under the statute of præmunire, and so possess himself (always a great point with his Majesty) of Wolsey's vast estates. Wolsey expressly states that this licence was "now in the hands of my enemies," and it is difficult to see who else but Cromwell could have had access to it so as to transfer it from its proper custody. See Henry VIII and the English Monasteries, by F. A. Gasquet. G.E.C. "Putney saw his cradle in a cottage, and England saw his coffin in a ditch; his original was mean, his end meaner. . . . His apprehension was quick and clear; his judgment methodical and solid; his memory strong and rational; his tongue fluent and pertinent; his presence stately and obliging; his heart large and

He also held ecclesiastical appointments, being May 1536, Prebendary of Sarum, and, 1537 till his death, Dean of Wells. Having been instrumental in effecting the King's marriage (6 Jan. 1539/40) with Anne of Cleve, he was (as it were in reward) cr., 17 Apr. 1540, EARL OF ESSEX,^(f) and the noble; his temper patient and cautious; his way industrious and indefatigable." (Lloyd, 1665). J. S. Brewer calls him "clever, facile, if not unprincipled yet troubled by no stern dogmatic faith or unbending integrity." V.G.

(^a) The joint holders of this office (according to James Gairdner's Preface to Letters and Papers Henry VIII, vol. v, p. 7, as also in Doyle and Dict. Nat. Biog.) from 3 Nov. 1526 to 21 Dec. 1534 were Serjeant Englefield and Sir William Paulet. But the statement that Cromwell held the office, or that his appointment to it was contemplated, is borne out (1) by a letter from Sir William Paulet addressed to him as "Master of the Wards" (Letters and Papers Henry VIII, vol. v, p. 574), and (2) by a letter dat. 18 Oct. [1532], from John Legh to him beginning "I am told you are Master of the King's Wards. If so I have need of a substantial favor." (Id. p. 610). V.G.

(^b) His name appears on p. 499 of Dugdale's Summonses as last of a list of persons alleged to have been summoned to Parl. 8 June (1536) 28 Hen. VIII, by writ directed Thomæ Cromwell (de Wimbleton) Ch'. The whole of this list is a pure fabrication, as is that on pp. 501, 502, of the same work, as to which see note "d" on following page. Dugdale's statement has no doubt gained increased currency from an old MS. in the College of Arms (printed in Summonses, p. 500), which speaks of Thomas Cromwell as being admitted a peer by "writ and patent." V.G.

(^c) Patent Roll, 28 Hen. VIII, part 1, m. 17. In the writ of 1 Mar. 1538/9 he is called Lord Cromwell of Wimbledon. There is no authority for the statement of Dugdale and others that he was cr. "Baron Cromwell of Oakham, co. Rutland," and indeed he did not acquire that estate till later in that year. V.G.

He had, also, Launde Abbey in Leicestershire; the Grey Friars, Yarmouth; the vast estates of the Priory of Lewes in various counties as far north as Yorkshire, &c.; the manor of North Elmham, Norfolk, &c.; a portion of the lands taken from the see of Norwich; also the Lordship of Oakham, Rutland (forfeited by the family of Stafford), &c. His personal property at his death was worth £24,000, a very large sum for that period.

same day made GREAT CHAMBERLAIN. The disgust of the King with this wife was the ruin of the Minister who had introduced her, so that, being no longer sheltered by Royalty, and being exceedingly unpopular, as an upstart, among his fellow nobles, he was accused of treason 10 June following, at the Council table, by the Duke of Norfolk, and sent a prisoner to the Tower. On 29 June 1540 a bill of attainder passed both houses, whereby all his honours were forfeited.^(a) He m., about 1513, Elizabeth, widow of Thomas WILLIAMS, Yeoman of the Guard, da. of Henry WYKES, of Putney, Surrey, shearman, Usher of the Chamber to Henry VII. (d) Dugdale's statement that he was v.p. sum. 28 Apr. 1539, by writ directed Gregorio Cromwell chl'r, which has led astray Professor Gairdner in Dict. Nat. Biog., vol. xiii, p. 201, is pure myth. No writs at all were issued 28 Apr., which was the day of the meeting of Parl., and Gregory was never sum. at all till he was cr. a peer by patent. A similar misstatement by Dugdale with regard to Gregory's father having been sum. by writ before he was cr. a peer by patent has already been exposed on the preceding page. The list of persons given in Dugdale's Summonses, pp. 501-502, is neither a copy of the Parl. Pawn in the Petty Bag Office nor an extract from the Lords' Journals. The genesis of Dugdale's error is doubtless that he found in the Journals of the House that both the Earl of Essex and Lord Cromwell were sitting at the same date, and wrongly assuming that the former was Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex (whereas in fact it was Bourchier, Earl of Essex), inferred that the latter must relate to Thomas Cromwell's son; accordingly, after his manner, he fabricated writs to suit a condition of things which he imagined to have occurred. It is really comic that some 60 years afterwards a lady should have walked as a peeress (see post, p. 559) at the funeral of Queen Mary in consequence of this misstatement of Dugdale. V.G.

V. 1607. 4. THOMAS (CROMWELL), BARON CROMWELL, s. and h., by 2nd wife, b. 11 June 1594. He was, on 22 Nov. 1624, cr. VISCOUNT LECALÉ [I.], and, on 7 Jan. 1644/5, EARL OF

^(a) In Dict. Nat. Biog. it is wrongly stated that he died in 1557. V.G.

^(b) The estate of Oakham was sold in 1596 to Sir John Harington; that of Launde, co. Leicester, was in possession of Sir William Smith in, or before, 1603.

LADY ELIZABETH CROMWELL, only da. and h. of Vere Essex (CROMWELL), 4th EARL OF ARDGLASS AND VISCOUNT LECALÉ [I.], and BARON CROMWELL, b. 3 Dec. 1674, assumed the style of BARONESS CROMWELL on the death of her father, 26 Nov. 1687, in the erroneous belief that that Barony was one in fee, cr. by a supposed writ of 28 Apr. 1539,^(a) instead of one in tail male, cr. by the patent of 18 Dec. 1540. She, however, walked as a Peeress, both at the funeral of Queen Mary II and at the Coronation of Queen Anne. She m., 29 Oct. 1704, the Rt. Hon. Edward SOUTHWELL, who d. 4 Dec. 1730, aged 63. She d. of consumption, 31 Mar. 1709, and was bur. at Henbury, co. Gloucester, aged 34, when the assumption ceased.^(b) Admon. as the "Hon. Elizabeth Southwell, alias Cromwell," granted 7 Dec. 1710 to her husband, the "Hon. Edward Southwell, Esq."

CRONE

MATTHEW CRONE, "Brigadier Gen. in the service of his Catholic Majesty, and Governor of Lerida," in Catalonia, had a certificate from King James II, dat. 14 Mar. 1696/7, at St. Germain-en-Laye, that he was descended from a good family in Ireland. He was cr. LORD CRONE [I.], with the usual rem., 16 Feb. 1727/8, by the titular James III. See also vol. i, Appendix F.

CROSBIE

VISCOUNTCY [I.] WILLIAM (CROSBIE), 2nd BARON BANDEN [I.], was, 30 Nov. 1771, cr. VISCOUNT CROSBIE OF ARDFERT, co. Kerry [I.]. On 22 July 1776 he was cr. EARL OF GLANDORE [I.]. See "GLANDORE," Earldom of [I.], cr. 1776; extinct 1815.

(a) No such writ, however, ever issued; see ante, p. 557, note "d." V.G.

(b) Lady Wentworth writes, 1 Apr. 1709, that "she made a very good wife and he a fond husband." V.G. Edward Southwell, her s. and h., b. 1 June 1705, d. 16 Mar. 1755, having never assumed (jure matris) the style of Lord Cromwell. His s. and h. (another) Edward Southwell, b. 6 June 1738, likewise never assumed such style, but in his favour the abeyance of the much more ancient Barony of Clifford was, in 1776, terminated, he being (through his mother, Lady Catherine Watson) a coh. of that dignity.

CROSS OF BROUGHTON-IN-FURNESS

VISCOUNTCY. I. RICHARD ASSHETON CROSS, 3rd s. of William C.,^(a) of Red Scar and Cottam, Dep. Prothonotary for co. Lancaster, by Ellen, da. and coh. of Edward CHAFFERS, of Everton and Liverpool; was b. 30 May 1823, at Red Scar, and hap. at Grimsargh, in Preston, co. Lancaster; ed. at Rugby, from Aug. 1836, and at Trinity Coll. Cambridge; Pres. of Cambridge Union Soc., 1845;^(b) B.A., 1846; Student (Linc. He d. of typhoid fever, 11 Dec. 1892, at 93 St. George's Road, Pimlico, aged 36. His widow was b. 8 Mar. 1855.]

(^a) He was only s. of John Cross, also Dep. Prothonotary for co. Lancaster, by Dorothea, da. of Richard Assheton, of Preston, co. Lancaster, a scion of the family of that name long settled at Downham, Cuerdale, and Whalley in that county.

(^b) For a list of peers who have been Presidents of the Union Soc. at Oxford or at Cambridge, see vol. iv, Appendix F. V.G.

(^c) He is described in Men and Manners in Parliament, 1874, as "a sensible, amiable, shrewd man of business, but neither a strong man nor a great administrator." He proved in fact a particularly capable Home Secretary. He is one of the numerous peers who are or have been directors of public companies, for a list of whom (in 1896) see vol. v, Appendix C. It is said that he acted as private financial adviser to Queen Victoria. V.G.

VISCOUNTCY I. CHARLES COKAYNE, 2nd but only surv. s. and h. of
AND Sir William C.,^(a) of Rushton Hall, Northants, and BARONY [I.] Elmesthorpe manor, co. Leicester, Lord Mayor of London
(1619-20), by Mary, da. of Richard MORRIS, sometime
I. 1642. Master of the Ironmongers' Company, was b. at Cokayne House,^(b) Old Broad Str., London, 4, and bap. 11 July

(^a) His funeral certif. (1626) and the elaborate and much more interesting one of his father (1599) are both at the College of Arms (I. viii, 62, and I. xxiii, 12). In each are the six quarterings (Herthull and five others) brought into the family, temp. Ric. II, by the match of Edmond Cokayne, of Ashbourne, co. Derby, with Elizabeth Herthull, of Pooley, co. Warwick, and each is signed by the son of the deceased; the first by "William Cokayne," the future Lord Mayor, and the last by "Charles Cokayne," the future Viscount.

(^b) This which, according to Aubrey, was "a noble house," was exactly opposite the Church of St. Peter le Poer, and was standing in 1770, and probably a good deal later, having thereon the Cokayne crest. It was sold in 1653 by Lord Cullen to 1602, at St. Peter le Poer; suc. his father 20 Oct. 1626; M.P. for Reigate 1628-29; High Sheriff of Northants, 1636, when he supported the royal measure for levying "ship money." He raised a troop of Horse for the King, and is said, including fines and sequestrations (he was a "compounder" for £7,515) to have lost above £50,000 in the royal cause, whereby he was compelled to sell his manor of Coombe Nevill in Kingston, Surrey, and other his outlying estates. He was cr., 11 Aug. 1642,^(a) BARON AND VISCOUNT CULLEN,^(b) co. Tipperary [I.], with a spec. rem., failing the heirs male of his body, to "Peregrine Bertie, Richard Bertie, Vere Bertie, and Charles Bertie, 4 yonger sons of the Lo. Willoughby of Erisby,^(c) and the heires males of their bodies successively."^(d) He m., 24 June 1627, at St. Giles's-in-the-Fields, Midx., Mary, 1st da. and coh. of Henry (O'BRIEN), 5th EARL OF THOMOND [I.], by Mary, da. of William (BRERETON), 1st BARON BRERETON OF LEIGHLIN [I.]. He survived the Restoration but a short time,^(e) being bur. 19 June 1661, at St. Peter's, Rushton, aged 59. Will dat. 21 May, pr. 17 June 1661. His widow m., as his 1st wife, George BLOUNT, of Sodington, co. Worcester, who d. May 1732, and was bur. at Mamble, aged 80. By her he had no issue. She was bur. (with her 1st husband) 31 May 1686, at St. Peter's, Rushton.

II. 1661. 2. BRIEN (COKAYNE), VISCOUNT AND BARON CULLEN [I.], only surv. s. and h., hap. 12 Sep. 1631, at St. Giles's, Eliab Harvey, merchant of London; was, in 1680, the Excise Office, and, subsequently, the (old) South Sea House (running back, at that period, as far as Threadneedle Street), and finally, having been completely rebuilt, 1833-34, became, and still (1913) is, the City Club, No. 19 Old Broad Str.

(^a) In an undated letter to the Duke of Buckingham, he states that he has had so many "mulcts of monies for his Majesty" that he cannot pay the sums necessary on becoming an English Viscount. (State Papers [I.], 1625-1660, p. 64). V.G.

(^b) The Sept of Macnamara "hereditary Marshals of the O'Briens, Kings of Thomond," was anciently the Lords of Clan-Cullen, of whom was Shedagh Cam Mac Namara, Lord of Clan Cuilein, the founder, 1402, of Quin Abbey. In 1543 the Privy Council [I.] advised the King that "an Irish Captain, called Shedagh Mac Namara, bordering on O'Brien's lands, and possessing those of Clan-Cullen in Thomond, sought to be advanced to the honour of Baron of Clan-Cullen, with his place in Parl., &c.," and recommended him to the Royal favour. See D'Alton's King James's Irish Army List, 1689, edit. 1855, p. 152. Cullen is three miles N.W. of Tipperary, on the western border of the Barony of Clanwilliam.

(^e) His name accordingly occurs in a list (in the handwriting of Sir Edward Walker) in Addit. MSS. 12,614, fo. 187, of "Noblemen and their wives who have died since his Majesty's happy restauration, the 29 May 1660, to the 10th of Oct. 1661."

Cripplegate. He was introduced to the House of Lords [I.] by proxy, 2 Sep. 1662. He was app., 18 June 1685, Capt. of "an independent troop of Horse" raised for H.M.'s service. He m., before 1 Apr. 1657, Elizabeth, da. and h. of Francis TRENTHAM, of Rocester Priory, co. Stafford, by Elizabeth, 1st da. of Sir William BOWYER, of Knipersley, in that co. He d. July 1687, and was probably bur. at St. Peter's, Rushton, aged 55.^(a) Will dat. 20 May 1687, pr. (the exors. having renounced 8 Dec. 1688) 11 May 1689 and 12 June 1713. His widow, who was bap. 22 Oct. 1640, at Biddulph, co. Stafford, suc., on the death of her great-uncle, Sir Christopher Trentham, not only to the estate of the Trentham family at Rocester abovenamed, but also in 1654 to that of the family of de Vere, Earls of Oxford, at Castle Hedingham, Essex; the two together amounting to £6,000 a year, at the then value of money.^(b) She, who was Lady of the Bedchamber to Catherine, the Queen Consort, d. at Kettering, 30 Nov., and was bur. 10 Dec. 1713, at St. Peter's, Rushton. M.I. Will dat. 5 June 1711, pr. 8 Feb. 1713/4.

III. 1687. 3. CHARLES (COKAYNE), VISCOUNT AND BARON CULLEN [I.], s. and h., b. 15, and bap. 25 Nov. 1658, at St. Peter's, Rushton. He was app., 10 July 1685, "Captain of that troop of Horse whereof Bryan, Viscount Cullen was Captain." He m., 26 Dec. 1678, at Swarkeston, co. Derby, Katherine, 5th da. of William (WILLOUGHBY), 6th BARON WILLOUGHBY OF PARHAM, by Anne, da. (whose issue became h.) of Sir Philip CARYE or CAREY, of Aldenham, Herts, brother of Henry, 1st VISCOUNT FALKLAND [S.]. He d. in St. Michael's parish, Oxford, of small-pox, 30 Dec. 1688, aged 30, and was bur. 3 Jan. 1688/9, at St. Peter's, Rushton.^(c) Admon. 27 Feb. 1688/9, to Frances, Countess of Bellomont [I.], maternal aunt and guardian of his children. His widow, who was b. at Stansteadbury, Herts, 14 May 1655 (baptism reg. at Hunsdon, Herts), d. also of small-pox,^(d) within 6 weeks of her husband, at Elmesthorpe manor-house, co. Leicester, 11, and was bur. 13 Feb. 1688/9, at St. Peter's, Rushton.

(a) The Parish Register is not very accurately kept at this period.

(b) Her extravagance, however, was such, that the whole of her property was alienated before her death, her husband having even to obtain, in 1676, a private Act of Parl. to enable him to pay her debts and raise portions out of his entailed estate at Elmesthorpe for the younger children. She was known as "the beautiful Lady Cullen." Two portraits of her by Lely still exist in the family, one when about 25, threequarter length, with long ringlets, and the other, when about 16, recumbent and whole length, as Venus, perfectly nude. This last is a picture of great merit and beauty. She is very coarsely alluded to in the well-known "State Poems."

(c) He was among "The Nobility in Arms with the Prince of Orange, 1688" (though one who refused to join the association for killing all the Papists in England), and formed part of Bishop Compton's escort of the Princess Anne to Oxford. See vol. ii, Appendix H.

(d) Said to have been conveyed to her in a ribbon round a locket worn by her late husband.

IV. 1688. 4. CHARLES (COKAYNE), VISCOUNT AND BARON CULLEN [I.], only surv. s. and h., b. at Swarkeston, co. Derby, 4, and bap. 17 Jan. 1686/7 (from Elmesthorpe manor-house) at Barwell, co. Leicester.^(a) In 1710, having obtained a private Act of Parl. for that purpose, he sold the estate of Elmesthorpe to Dame Mary Noel. He m., 11 July 1706, at Melbourne, co. Derby, Anne, 1st da. of Arthur WARREN, of Stapleford Hall, Notts, by Anne, da. of Sir John BORLASE, Bart., sister and coh. of the 2nd and last Bart. She, who was bap. 2 Nov. 1684, at Stapleford, was bur. there 17 Jan. 1713/4. He d. 6, and was bur. 8 Apr. 1716, at St. Peter's, Rushton, aged 29. Will dat. 2 Apr., pr. 12 June 1716.

V. 1716. 5. CHARLES (COKAYNE, otherwise COCKAYNE), VISCOUNT AND BARON CULLEN [I.], only surv. s. and h., b. 2 Sep. 1710; ed. at Eton; inherited, in 1714, the manor of Grindlow, in Hope, co. Derby, from his great-aunt the Countess of Bellomont [I.] abovenamed.^(b) He m., 1stly, 18 Apr. 1732, at Stapleford, Notts, Anne,^(c) 1st surv. da. of his maternal uncle, Borlase WARREN, of Stapleford Hall, by Anne, da. of Sir John HARPUR, 3rd Bart., of Calke, co. Derby. She, who was bap. 26 May 1703, at Stratton Audley, Oxon, d. 28 June, and was bur. 1 July 1754, at St. Peter's, Rushton. He m., 2ndly, 16 Dec. 1754, at Uppingham, Rutland, Sophia, 2nd and yst. da. and coh. of John BAXTER, Storekeeper of the Ordnance at Gibraltar, by Sophia, da. of Edmund WOODWARD, of Stratton Audley, Oxon, and sister and coh. of George W., of Stoke Lyne, in that county, Envoy to Poland 1728-35. He d. at Rushton Hall, 7, and was bur. 13 June 1802, at All Saints,^(d) Rushton, in his 92nd year.^(e) M.I. Will dat. 10 June 1771, pr. 28 June 1802. ^(a) His name occurs as one of the absentees from the Parl. [I.] of James II, 7 May 1689, for a list of whom, as well as of the peers present, see Appendix D to this volume. V.G.

^(b) He was a keen sportsman, and well known on the turf. One of the two, now extremely rare, engravings, of his famous stallion called "The Cullen Arabian," was re-issued in Taunton's Race Horses, 1887, vol. i, p. 5.

^(c) "A beautiful young lady." (Gent. Mag.). V.G.

^(d) The Church of St. Peter, which formed one side of the outer quadrangle of Rushton Hall, had (together with the buildings forming the opposite side) been pulled down about 1780, a serpentine drive being made over its site, with a view to render the place less "gothic"! A scarce engraving (W. Winstanley del. 1741) was pub. by Toms in 1750, giving a bird's-eye view of the park and of the fine old mansion in its pristine state.

^(e) He had then been in possession of his peerage and estates above 86 years, a longer period, apparently, than has been attained by any other nobleman. Charles (St. Clair), Lord Sinclair [S.], b. 30 July 1768, d. 30 Sep. 1863, was in possession of the family estates 87 years, since his father's death 24 Dec. 1776, but his claim to the peerage not having been allowed till 25 Apr. 1782, he must be considered as having been in possession of his peerage for only 81 years.

VI. 1802 6. BORLASE (COCKAYNE), VISCOUNT AND BARON CULLEN to [L.], 2nd but 1st surv. s. and h., by 1st wife; b. and bap.
1810. 30 Sep. 1740, at St. Peter's, Rushton. He d. unm., at St. Albans, Herts, 11, and was bur. 21 Aug. 1810, at All Saints, Rushton, in his 70th year. M.I. Admon. 17 Sep. 1810. By his death the issue male of the grantee came to an end, and the Peerage was considered extinct,^(b) on the exact date at which 168 years before, it had been created.

Family Estates.—These vested in the ten daughters and coheirs^(c) of the Hon. William Cockayne, of Rushton Hall, 2nd surv. and only s. that had issue, being only child by 2nd wife, and testamentary heir of the 5th Viscount. He d. 8 Oct. 1809, aged 53, ten months before his elder br., the last Viscount. The estate of Rushton (about 3,000 acres, with the advowson worth about £800 a year) was sold in 1828 for £140,000 to William Williams Hope, of Amsterdam.

(b) It was used in 1819 as one of the three extinctions required under the Act of Union [L.] for the creation of the Barony of Howden [L.]. According, however, to the spec. rem. in the creation (which see), Albemarle (Bertie), 9th Earl of Lindsey, would, in 1810, have been entitled thereto (he being h. male of the body of Charles Bertie, the last person mentioned in the remainder) and, at that Earl's death, his heirs male of the body, the subsequent Earls of Lindsey. The patent, however, which probably was produced at the sitting of 1662, has long been lost and was never enrolled.

(c) Of these ladies, Frances Annabella, the 9th da., wife of William Assheton, of Downham Hall, co. Lancaster, d. 25 July 1835, aged 40; Elizabeth Charlotte, 10th, and yst. da., widow of the Hon. Edmond Sexten Pery (s. of the 1st Earl of Limerick [L.]), d. 21 Apr. 1883, aged 84; while, of the other eight, four d. unm. and (1) Matilda Sophia Austen, widow, d. 23 Feb. 1869, aged 90, s.p.m.s. (2) Mary Anne Adams, widow, d. 16 June 1873, aged 91, leaving, among other issue, a son, George Edward Cokayne [compiler of the 1st edition of this work], who by royal lic. 15 Aug. 1873, took the name of Cokayne, in lieu of that of Adams, under her testamentary direction. (3) Georgiana, wife of John Edmond Maunsell, d. 19 Dec. 1864, aged 80, s.p. (4) Caroline Eliza, wife of Thomas Philip Maunsell, of Thorpe Malsor, Northants (M.P. for North Northamptonshire), d. 12 Mar. 1860, aged 72. The four last named ladies were raised by royal warrants (23 Sep. 1836 and 4 Sep. 1838) to the same rank as if their father had succeeded to the Viscountcy.

(Gramont, Memoirs, cap. x). In 1664/5 he was suffering from tertiarics, which had broken out to "a horrible degree" in his head; for this he was successfully trepanned. He was one of the earliest masters of work in mezzotint. There is a fine portrait of him, by Vandyke, in Warwick Castle, and another by the same artist at Hinchbrooke. His fiery temper, insubordination and rashness on several occasions, and notably at Marston Moor, were most damaging to the Royal cause, but it was not till his surrender of Bristol, 11 Sep. 1645, that his uncle the King ceased to favour him. (^a) This marriage (following that of his br. the Duke of Gloucester, 5 years previously, with the Dowager Countess Waldegrave) was the occasion of the Royal Marriage Act of (12 Geo. III, Cap. xi) 1772, whereby, before the age of 25, "no descendant of the body of George II, male or female (other than the issue of Princesses who have married, or may hereafter marry into foreign families) shall be capable of contracting matrimony without the previous consent of his Majesty, his heirs, or successors," and the consent of Parliament. This high handed measure, which bastardizes the issue of such marriage instead of, as it might well have done, merely declaring them incapable of succeeding to the throne, or even to any titles of honour, was very clumsily drawn by Mansfield, Thurlow, and Wedderburn; it makes "all parties present at the marriage, guilty of felony," and as no one is bound to admit his own guilt, it follows that it is impossible to prove such a marriage, or to convict any of the parties concerned. It was in this fashion that those engaged in the marriage of the Duke of Sussex in Hanover Sq. escaped when cited before the Privy Council. (See N. & Q., 9th series, vol. xi, p. 130). A previous marriage of the Duke, 4 Mar. 1767, with Olive, da. of D. J. Wilmot (said to have d. 5 Dec. 1774), and the birth of one child, Olive, 3 Apr. 1772, soi disante "Princess Olive of Cumberland, was alleged by a Mrs. Ryves and her eldest son, in a case, called Ryves and Ryves v. the Attorney General," tried in 1866 under the Legitimacy Declaration Act, the said Mrs. Ryves being the only child of John Thomas Serres by the said Olive, who was bur. 3 Dec. 1834 at St. James's, Westm., as "Olive Cumberland." The jury (naturally enough) were not satisfied with the proofs for the marriage of 1767, nor with those of the legitimacy of the said Olive. See a very full account of this trial in the Annual Register for 1866. G.E.C. and V.G.

(^b) Probably the most foolish of Frederick's sons. He and the Countess of Dunhoff appear, in 1769, as "Nauticus and the Countess of D..h. ff," in the notorious tête-à-tête portraits in Town and Country Mag., vol. i, p. 449, for an account of which see Appendix B in the last volume of this work. In 1770 he was defendant in an action for crim. con. with Countess Grosvenor. Lord Melbourne described him to the Queen in 1840 as "a little man and gay," a great Whig and hating the clergy. Lady Louisa Stuart calls him "an idiot prince," his wife "vulgar, noisy, indelicate, and intrepid, though not accused of gallantry, one who set modesty and decency at defiance in cold blood," and she repeats the remark of Lady Anne Fordyce, that after hearing her talk one ought to go home and wash one's ears. A lovely portrait of her, by Gainsborough, belongs (1913) to Lord Wenlock. Elizabeth, Countess Harcourt, writes of her in her Memoirs, "The widow of a private gentleman, without either beauty, fortune, or respectable connections to support her, and with a very equivocal character, had persuaded the Duke, who was a remarkably silly man, to marry her," as another writer remarks, "by means of some stern hints from a resolute brother." Her appearance and character are well described by Horace Walpole in a letter to Mann, 7 Nov. 1771. V.G.

On the death of his br., King William IV, 20 June 1837, he, under the Salic law, succeeded, as heir male of his father, to the German dominions of his family as King of Hanover. He at once cancelled a constitution founded on extreme "liberal" notions, that had been granted to that Kingdom in 1833 by the late King, replacing it, however, in 1840, with one so judiciously framed that it was able to bear the brunt of the great revolutionary reforms on the continent in 1848. Morse Stephens, in Dict. Nat. Biog. He took an active part in the House of Lords as a strong Protestant and Tory. The Whig Greville, in his Memoirs, vol. i, p. 180, gives a very unfavourable account of him as "a mixture of narrow-mindedness, selfishness, truckling, blustering, and duplicity, with no object but self, his own ease, and the satisfaction of his own fancies and prejudices." George IV is stated, in the same work, to have accounted for the Duke's unpopularity thus: "Because there never was a father well with his son, or husband with his wife, or lover with his mistress, that he did not try to make mischief between them." V.G.

(^b) Though blind since 1834, he was present at Langensalza, and remained under the fire of the Prussians at that battle, 27 June 1866, the day previous to the final capitulation of the Hanoverians, who were then surrounded by far superior numbers.

CURSON or CURZON

SIR ROBERT CURSON,^(c) of Ipswich, is, during the reign of Henry VIII, constantly styled LORD CURSON, or BARON CURSON. His parentage is unknown; he was knighted in 1489. He was Capt. of Hammes Castle, near Calais, 1499; fought against the Turks for the Emperor Maximilian, by whom he is said, in 1500, to have been made a Baron of the Holy Roman Empire. To this date also Prynne assigns his creation as an English Baron,^(d) but no authority for either the English or the foreign creation is forthcoming.^(e) He was proclaimed a traitor

^(a) "She was well known as a writer under the pseudonym of 'Violet Fane,' her first publication being From Dawn to Noon, in 1872; and this was followed by a large number of works, produced in the following years, including some volumes of graceful verse." (Times, 16 Oct. 1905). She is the "Mrs. Sinclair" of W. H. Mallock's New Republic, which book he dedicated to her. V.G.

^(b) "He failed to achieve either in Constantinople or in Rome the success which might have been otherwise expected from his admitted ability and social advantages. Possessed of considerable wealth—he belonged to the well-known banking family of Currie—he entertained en grand seigneur, whilst his refined and cultivated tastes and incisive powers of conversation delighted those who were admitted to the more intimate circle of his friends and acquaintances." (Times, 14 May 1906). V.G.

^(c) His arms were Argent on a bend Sable, between 3 wiverns' heads erased Gules, a popinjay Argent, beaked and legged Or. (Metcalf's Knights).

^(d) "Robert Curson, created a Baron of the Sacred Empire by Maximilian, the Emperor, acknowledged to be a Baron in England by King Henry VIII or his Nobles, till he created him a Baron himself by his charter, without giving him a voice in Parliament." (Parliamentary Writs, vol. i, p. 224).

^(e) An examination of the Calendars of Letters and Papers under Hen. VIII supplies the following evidence: "Sir Robert Curzon" is so styled on 30 June 1511 [vol. i, No. 1757], but on 3 June 1513 he appears as "Robert, Baron Curzon" [Id. No. 4160], and about the same date as "My Lord Corson" [Id. p. 553]. In the same year he is styled "The Baron Cursson" [No. 4253], and on 19 Mar. 1514 "Robert, Lord Curson" [No. 4899]. Similar evidence is supplied by the King's accounts [published in vol. ii of the Calendar], where, up to July 1512, the alleged Peer is styled "Sir Robert Corson" [p. 1457], but in and after Mar. 1513 is entered as "Baron Curson" [p. 1464], or "Lord Curson" [p. 1473]. In a document relating to the expenses of the war, dat. Oct. 1513, he is called "Sir Robert

(with 5 others, all severely punished) in Nov. 1501, as a Yorkist conspirator, but immediately pardoned, being probably a spy employed by the King, from whom he afterwards received a pension and many other favours. In a commission of the peace for Norfolk and Suffolk, 1 Mar. 1515, he is styled [only] "Sir Robert Curson," though it may be significant that he is there entered immediately after the Peers and at the head of the Knights.^(a) He was similarly entered on a Royal Commission relating to Ipswich in 1521.^(b) He entertained the Queen Consort Katherine in 1517, and Henry VIII in 1532, at his house in Ipswich. He was apparently in the employ, on the Continent, of the English Court, and there is frequent reference to him either as "Baron Curson" or "Lord Curson."^(c) He m. Margaret (—). Corson called Lord Curson, Master of the rearward," but three Privy Seals of 19 Mar., 3 and 11 July 1514, are headed "For Robert, Lord Corson, Master of the Ordnance in the rearward." He is mentioned as "Lord Curzon," serving on the Continent, by Sir William Sandys, 22 Sep. 1522, and under the same designation by Lord Berners 29 Jan. 1522/3. It will be noticed that he is never called the Lord Curzon, as is usual at that date in describing English peers. It is suggested by J. H. Round (who has collected most of this evidence) that this points to some action having been taken by the Crown in 1512-13 (when Sir Robert held command in the French war, undertaken in conjunction with the Emperor) for the recognition of Curson's foreign title, which recognition may have been mistaken for an English creation. Round considers this to have been also the case as to the Dukedom of Dudley in the 17th century, which he holds to have been similarly accepted as an English creation on the strength of a recognition of Lady Dudley as a Duchess of the Empire. The title of Count of the Holy Roman Empire, conferred in 1595 on Thomas Arundell, afterwards (1605) Baron Arundell of Wardour, was never acknowledged by Queen Elizabeth.

(^a) This creation follows (an interval of 30 [!] years having taken place) the creation, 21 Dec. 1868, of the Barony of Rathdonnell [I.]. Soon after that date a bill (the Royal permission having previously been obtained) passed the House of Lords to put a stop to these anomalous creations. This bill, however, failed to pass the House of Commons, so that the legal power (conferred by the act of the Irish Union) remains, though the general impression was that (in these circumstances) it would never again be acted upon. See The Genealogist, N.S., vol. v, for several articles, by G.E.C., on the Peerage of Ireland at and since the Union. From the creation of Rathdonnell [I.], in 1868, there have been, down to Dec. 1898, eleven extinctions of Irish peerages which had existed before the Union (Howden extinct in 1873, Bloomfield in 1879, and Clermont in 1898 were post Union creations), viz., Moira in 1868, Strangford in 1869, Blayney in 1874, Charleville in 1875, Aldborough in 1875, Ongley in 1877, Netterville in 1882, Rokeby in 1883, Ranelagh in 1885, Bantry in 1891, and Lismore in 1898. These, as well as the Barony of Gardner and the Earldom of Milltown, both of which were unclaimed for more than a year (one from Nov. 1883 and the other from March 1891), made a total of thirteen peerages available for new creations, to which may apparently be added one of the two Peerages of Kilwarden, which, existing separately at the time of the Union, became extinct together in 1830, and of which only one was made use of in a new creation. The peerage of Curzon of Kedleston, however, "was created not in lieu of the extinction of any three peerages, but in virtue of the number of Peerages of Ireland [i.e., those not held with any Peerage of England, Great Britain or the United Kingdom] being below the number of a hundred, according to the provisions in art. 4 of the Act of Union. The total number of Irish peerages at present [i.e., in Dec. 1898] existing, which have not an hereditary seat in the House of Lords is, including Curzon, 89." (ex inform. Sir A. Vicars, sometime Ulster). No Irish peerage has been created since 1898.

With reference to a Peerage [I.] being, if unclaimed for above a year, available as an extinction for a new creation, it may be observed that the Barony of Wallscourt [I.], which was more than a year unclaimed (there being in fact no heir to it from 28 Mar. 1803 to 19 Jan. 1806), was not so acted upon.

Flint, by Elizabeth,^(c) sister and h. of Charles JENNENS, of Gopsall, co. Leicester, da. of another Charles of the same. She d. 21 July, and was bur. 4 Aug. 1764, in Penn church. He m., 2ndly, 6 Feb. 1766, at St. Geo., Han. Sq.,

(^a) He has travelled extensively in Central Asia, Persia, Afghanistan, the Pamirs, Siam, Indo-China, and Korea, received the Gold Medal of the Royal Geog. Soc. in 1895, and is the author of several books dealing with problems of the Near and Far East. V.G.

(^b) "She was, it is needless to say, the first American to whose lot it fell to share with an English husband the greatest Viceroyalty in the world. By character, by personal charm, by a rare intelligence, Lady Curzon was admirably and perfectly fitted for this distinction. Her father was in every sense the architect of his own fortune. His origin is obscure; of family, as the word is here understood, he had none; of position, none save that which he created for himself . . . There were other characteristics of which it is, perhaps, less warrantable to speak freely; the beauty of her life in all domestic relations, no less remarkable than the beauty of face and form, were seen and admired of all." (Times, 19 July 1906). On this J. H. Round remarks that in strictness a Viceroy's wife does not "share" his Viceroyalty. In Lady Curzon's case some Americans made the mistake of describing her as "Vicereine" and of deeming her entitled to the same quasi-royal honours as the Viceroy. V.G.

(^c) This marriage brought into the Curzon family the Jennens estates, for which claimants have periodically come forward. V.G.

Dorothy, sister of Richard, 1st EARL GROSVENOR, 4th and yst. da. of Sir Robert GROSVENOR, 6th Bart., by Jane, da. and h. of Thomas WARRE. She d. 25 Feb. 1774, and was bur. at Penn afsd. He m., 3rdly, 17 Apr. 1777, at St. Geo., Han. Sq., Anna Margareta, widow of Barlow TRECOTHICK, Alderman, and in 1770 Lord Mayor, of London, sister of Sir William MEREDITH, Bart., da. of Amos MEREDITH, of Henbury, co. Chester. CUTTS OF GOWRAN

BARONY [I.] JOHN CUTTS, 2nd s. of Richard C., of Arkesden and Matching, Essex,^(a) and subsequently (1670) of Childerley, co. Cambridge, by Joan, da. of Sir Richard EVERARD, Bart., was b. in 1661, probably at Arkesden; entered Cath. Hall, Cambridge, as Fellow Commoner, Feb. 1676, being cr. LL.D. of that Univ. (comitiis Regiis) 1690. Before that date he had suc. his elder br. Richard in the family estates, then worth £2,000 a year. He distinguished himself as a volunteer with the Imperialists^(b) at the capture of Buda, July 1686, under the Duke of Lorraine, and in Mar. 1688 was Lieut. Col. of a regt. in Holland. He came over to England with William III as Lieut. Col. of an English foot regt., distinguished himself at the battle of the Boyne,^(c) and was wounded at the siege of Limerick. In reward for his services, he was, on 12 Dec. 1690 cr. BARON CUTTS OF GOWRAN, co. Kilkenny [I.]. He was wounded at Steinkirk, being then Brig. Gen.; took part in the Brest expedition in 1694, where he was again wounded; was Col. of the Coldstream Guards, Oct. 1694 till his death. He gained distinction from his valour at the siege of Namur (surrendered 26 Aug. 1695), the first check received by France during the war;^(a) was in 1696^(b) Major Gen.; accompanied Marlborough to Holland in 1701, and captured Fort St. Michel (an outwork of the fortress of Venloo) 18 Sep. 1702; Lieut. Cambridge, in 5 Parls., 1693-1702, and for Newport, Isle of Wight, 1702-07,^(c) having been from 1693 Gov. of the Isle of Wight; Col. of a regt. of Dragoons 1704 till his death. In 1705 he arrived in Ireland as Commander in chief, and was one of the Lords Justices of that Kingdom. P.C. [I.] May 1705. He m., 1stly (lic. at Fac. off.), 18 Dec. 1690, Elizabeth, then about 30, widow of John TREVOR, of Plas Teg, co. Flint, and before that of William MORLEY, of Glynde, Sussex, da. and h. of George CLARK, Merchant of London. She d. 19 Feb. 1692/3, whereby her jointure of £2,500 a year ceased. He m., 2ndly, about 31 Jan. 1696/7, Elizabeth, da. and h. expectant of Sir Henry PICKERING, 2nd Bart., of Whaddon, co. Cambridge, by his 1st wife, Philadelphia, da. of Sir George DOWNING, Bart. (a) Acquiring thereby the nickname of "The Salamander." Bp. Burnet's character of him when "towards 50" with Swift's remarks thereon in italics, is as follows. "Has abundance of wit, but too much seized with vanity and self-conceit; he is affable, familiar and very brave.—The vainest old fool alive." Swift also wrote a scurrilous lampoon on him entitled Ode to a Salamander. Lord Cutts was himself a writer of verses. His undoubted courage gained him the esteem of William III, who besides making him "a grant of lands belonging to the Jesuits in certain counties," bestowed on him the important estate of Durford in Harting, Sussex, forfeited by John Caryll (as far as his life interest), but redeemed by Caryll's nephew for £6,000 (or £8,000) paid to Lord Cutts. See H. D. Gordon's History of Harting, 1877.

Much of his correspondence is printed in the Astley MSS., published by Hist. MSS. Com., in 1900. He is said to have died so deep in debt that his Aides de Camp "clubbed £10 a piece" to bury him. He had 3 sisters, Anne, m. Serjeant John Thurbarne, M.P. for Sandwich; she is stated in Dict. Nat. Biog. to have m. John Withers, of the Middle Temple; Margaret, m. John Acton, of Bishopstoke, described as Solicitor to the Coldstream Guards; and Joanna, nm., who surv. him. His 1st wife's 1st husband was s. of Sir John Trevor, Sec. of State, and not the Sec. himself, as stated in Dict. Nat. Biog., sub "Cutts." V.G.

(b) At this date he is stated in Dict. Nat. Biog. to have been "Capt. of the Body Guard;" the Editor does not know of any such office, he certainly was never Capt. of the Yeomen of the Guard. V.G.

(c) He was also elected for Newport at the 4 successive general elections 1695, 1698, 1700, and 1701, but preferred to sit for Cambridgeshire. V.G.

APPENDIX A

SURRENDER OF PEERAGES IN ENGLAND

The surrender of a Peerage in England (so frequent in Scotland) whether to the Crown itself, or to a Subject with subsequent confirmation by the Crown, was by no means unusual up to the time of Charles I. The following is a list, chronologically arranged, of some such surrenders.

- 1232 LEICESTER, Earldom, confirmed to Simon de Montfort, on the resignation of his elder br. Amaury.
- 1233 LINCOLN, Earldom, confirmed to John de Lacy, on the resignation of [his wife's mother] Hawise de Quincy, to whom her br. Ranulph, Earl of Chester and Lincoln, had by charter resigned the said Earldom of Lincoln.
- 1302 NORFOLK, Earldom, together with the Marshalship of England, resigned by Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk, &c., to Edward I.
- 1309 HEREFORD AND ESSEX, Earldom. Recital in a charter (18 May, 2 Edward II) that Humphrey de Bohun did lately by charter surrender all his lands, &c., "with the name of Earl in the counties of Hereford and Essex," to the late King Edward I.
- 1372 RICHMOND, Earldom, resigned to Edward III by the grantee's son John, Duke of Lancaster, King of Castile and Leon, &c.
- 1377 BEDFORD, Earldom, resigned to Richard II by the grantee, Enguerrand de Coucy, together with all his English honours, on his devoting himself to the service of France.
- 1433 BEDFORD, Dukedom, and KENDAL, Earldom. These dignities which had been cr. for life only by Henry V, were resigned in 1433 to Henry VI, who granted a fresh patent thereof, 8 July 1433, with rem. to the heirs male of the body.
- „ GLOUCESTER, Dukedom, and PEMBROKE, Earldom, cr. for life only, were resigned and regranted on the same date and in the same manner as "Bedford."
- 1448 SAY, Barony, resigned by John, Lord Clinton, in favour of James (Fiennes), Lord Say and Sele. As to this resignation, see ante, p. 315, text and note "d."
- 1450 WARWICK, Earldom, confirmed 23 July 1449 to Richard Neville, who resigned the same, receiving a regrant thereof 2 Mar. 1450 to himself and Anne, his wife.

- 1469 NORTHUMBERLAND, Earldom, cr. 27 May 1464. The letters patent were brought into Chancery and cancelled (1468-69) 8 Edward IV, the resigner thereof, John Neville, being, 25 Mar. 1470, cr. Marquess of Montagu.
- 1478 PEMBROKE, Earldom. Recital in the creation of William Herbert, to be Earl of Huntingdon, that the said Earl had restored the charter (1468) creating the Earldom of Pembroke (which he had inherited) to be cancelled.
- 1493 SUFFOLK, Dukedom and Marquessate. Both were surrendered to the Crown in 1493 by Michael de la Pole, who accordingly was sum. to Parl. in 1495, as Earl of Suffolk only.
- 1500 WINCHESTER, Earldom. Letters patent creating the same (13 Oct. 1472) delivered to Henry VII at Calais (15 Henry VII), to be cancelled and were cancelled accordingly.
- 1514 SURREY, Earldom, surrendered to the Crown by Thomas (Howard), Duke of Norfolk, 1 Feb. 1513/4, "pro termino vite filii."
- 1523 DE LISLE, Viscountcy. Letters patent creating the same (15 May 1513) surrendered to the King to be cancelled, and were cancelled accordingly.
- 1640 STAFFORD, Barony. Surrender to the Crown for £800 by "Roger Stafford, Esq.," whereby he acknowledges "the Honor, Estates, Grade, Dignity, Title and Name of BARON OF STAFFORD" to be the right of the King as had "of the surrender of the afsd. Roger." The King regranted the Barony shortly afterwards with the ancient precedence, and "no question relating to the validity or effect of the Fine was ever raised."
- On 1 Feb. 1640/1, the House (on a question that came up incidentally in the claim of Charles Longvile to the Baronies of Grey of Ruthyn, &c.), resolved (such resolutions being merely obiter dicta):—I. "That no person that hath any Honour in him, and a Peer of this Realm, may alien or transfer the honour to any other Person. II. That no Peer of this Realm can drown or extinguish his Honour, but that it descend to his descendants, neither by Surrender, Grant, Fine, nor any other conveyance to the King."
- 1660 BUCKINGHAM, Earldom, &c. } Fine levied Michaelmas term 1660, PURBECK, Viscountcy, &c. } whereby for £3,400 "Robert Villiers, otherwise Danvers, surrendered these dignities to the Crown. This Robert was the s. of Frances, Viscountess Purbeck, b. in the lifetime of her husband the Viscount, but alleged not to be his son. He d. in 1675; and, soon afterwards, in the claim of his s. and h. to the VISCOUNTCY OF PURBECK, the House, on 18 June 1678, resolved "That no fine now levied, or at any time hereafter to be levied to the King, can bar such title of Honour, or the right of any Person claiming such title under him that levied or shall levy such fine." In the case of Roger Stafford and Robert Villiers "the dignities surrendered were Titular honours and the surrenders, unlike all former surrenders, were made by fine; and a fine, although a proper proceeding in the case of a Feudal or Territorial dignity, appears to have been inapplicable to a Titular dignity." Again—"The resolution of 1678 is expressly confined to surrenders by fines, and leaves wholly untouched the validity of surrenders made by deed, or otherwise than by fine." After the Union of 1707, when neither the Kingdom of England nor that of Scotland have any legal existence, "the power of the Crown to alter, to add to or to abrogate the limitations of dignities," in either Kingdom, "is completely lost." See (Fleming's) remarks on surrenders, in Authorities, &c., as to the Barony of Berkeley, 1862, pp. 66-80, where translations of most of the above surrenders are given. See, also, Cruise, pp. 109-114.

In the Peerage of Ireland, there was, in 1585, a surrender of the BARONY OF CAHIR to the nephew and h. male of the grantee, by the heirs general, on whom by the spec. rem. in the patent (1543) it had devolved.

APPENDIX B

A LIST OF PEERS AND HEIRS APPARENT OF PEERS WHO SERVED IN THE SOUTH AFRICAN WAR OF 1899-1902

The following peers and heirs apparent of peers served in various capacities in the Boer War. It will be noticed that the Lords bore an honourable and heavy share of the load of suffering, loss, and danger, which was entailed on the nation at that epoch in the effort to maintain our South African Empire, an effort made necessary in the main by the vacillating and pusillanimous conduct of our statesmen in the past.

Had brothers and younger sons of peers been included in this list the number would have been very largely increased.

ABINGER, James Yorke McGregor Scarlett, 4th BARON.

ACHESON, Archibald Charles Montagu Brabazon, styled VISCOUNT, 1st s. of the EARL OF GOSFORD.

APPENDIX C^(a)

SOME OBSERVATIONS ON MEDIÆVAL NAMES

In this work an attempt has been made to give to mediæval people something approaching to the names by which they were actually called, though owing to the fact that old documents are almost always in Latin it is sometimes very difficult to ascertain positively what these were, and it is far easier to say with certainty that no Englishman was ever called Dodo de Montalt than to declare with precision his Christian and surname to have been Doun Mohaut and not Down Maud. As to the names which were given at baptism, no evidence is obtainable beyond the fact that the Church service was in Latin, which does not necessarily imply that the names were latinized, and, indeed, it is difficult to imagine English rustics expressing a desire to have their children given such names as, say, Theophania.

If we examine Dugdale, who wrote about 1675, and who has done as much as anyone to familiarize certain names which he gives to the early nobility, we shall see that he proceeds on no system. Sometimes he chooses the simple English name (William), sometimes a latinization or supposed Latin equivalent (Egidia), sometimes an anglicization of the latinization (Reginald).^(b) The aim of the Editor of this work, on the other hand, is to use English names where possible, and when these cannot certainly be ascertained to give the names by which the person is described in the Latin or the French, but never to employ the made up artificial Anglo-Latin forms which were invented, or at any rate came into general use, in or about the sixteenth century. Some may say that it is no better to call these

^(a) The Editor has to acknowledge great assistance in the preparation of this Appendix from W. Paley Baildon, W. H. B. Bird, H. J. Ellis, Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte, J. H. Round, A. E. Stamp, W. H. Stevenson, J. Maitland Thomson, Josiah Wedgwood, M.P., and others.

^(b) W. H. Stevenson's views as to this name are that it is the Frankish form in which the name was taken into French (fifth or sixth century); that it was Latinized as Reginaldus, which was kept as the Latin form, whereas in French it developed into Reinaud. "The l in Reynold is as absurd as the g in Reginald, for both had ceased to be pronounced in French before the end of the eleventh century, though the spelling ald was kept long after it came to be pronounced aud (by the ordinary French vocalization of the l in such a position). The English form should have been Renawd, Renod (cf. Renald, where the l of the Latin form has been introduced into it)."

Use of French

people by French names than it is by Latin, but we do know that Latin was never the general speech in England at any period, and we also know that French was the habitual talk of the upper classes from the Conquest till towards the end of the fourteenth century, wherefore the French form of any name is primâ facie to be preferred to the Latin: for instance, Edward III's mother being French by birth naturally spoke French, as is shown by her often quoted endeavour to save her paramour—"Bel fitz ayez pitié du gentil Mortimer"—and that Edward III did so himself from his quite unquotable remarks when making over the charge of Scotland to John (de Warenne), Earl of Surrey. Nevertheless that English was in use then is proved by the following. In the Great Wardrobe accounts, Mich. 21 Edw. III to 31 Jan. 23 Edw. III, instructions are given for the embroidery on the King's tunic of this motto, "Hay Hay the Wythe Swan by Godes Soule I am thy man." And later in the same roll comes "unum doublet pro rege . . . cum dictamine regis it is as it is." (ex inform. A. E. Stamp). Again, to go further back, Edward I, however anti-French he may have been, never made English the language of his Court. That Henry IV understood all three languages is shown by a letter from him to his Council in 1403, now preserved in the Museum of the Record Office, which begins with a Latin quotation and ends with a holograph postscript in French, and by another letter from him to the Archbishop of Canterbury written about 1409, also preserved at the R.O., which has a holograph postscript in English. The sayings of Kings and Queens are not very good guides to the language of the country, and it is very difficult to be sure what were the ipsissima verba of anyone else.^(a) It is true that Freeman states in his Preface to William Rufus that Henry I spoke English familiarly, but J. H. Round has pointed out that this is not justifiable, owing to the fact that all he is really said to have done is to have expounded the meaning of certain Anglo-Saxon law terms, and this in a document which is gravely suspected of being spurious: no doubt Henry I was a cultivated man, but that is not the point. Nevertheless, even if it be agreed on all hands that we should call English people as far as possible by English names, it is by no means easy to settle what form or variant should be selected. For instance, Henry and Peter were uncommon in the Middle Ages, Harry and Piers being the usual forms,^(b) and the Editor must himself plead guilty to some inconsistency in having continued to use in this work, so far as it has gone, the name Henry, while he has altered Peter to Piers. It is not consistent, though it has usually been done, to talk in the same breath of Piers de Gavaston and Peter de Maulay,

nomenclature.

^(a) J. H. Round, however, has drawn the Editor's attention to the very remarkable exclamation attributed by William of Canterbury to the wife of Hugh de Morville (father of one of Becket's murderers), "Huge de Moreville ware ware ware, Litulf heth his swerd adrage" (drawn). Here the language is English but the form Huge is French.

^(b) Before Hen. VII the name Henry appeared almost invariably in the forms "Harry" or "Herry" in English Privy Seals. (ex inform. A. E. Stamp).

nor (as in a recent work on the Peerage) to say that Hugo de (—) had a son and heir Hugh, as if these men had borne different Christian names. Again, a man may have been Doun and his father have been Downe, or he may have been called Downe in his youth and Doun in his age, or Downe in the south of England and Doun in the north, but at no time and nowhere in England, Dodo. We cannot tell for certain that a woman was called Denise, but we know she was not called Dionysia. Accordingly in this work Almeric, Emeric, Nigel, Reginald and Alured (for which there is little more justification than for Galfrid, Henric, and Carol) give place to Amaury, Emery, Neil, Reynold and Alfred, and so far as surnames or titles are concerned, de Albini and Albemarle to d'Aubigny and Aumale.

When, however, people actually used certain names or titles, they will be given, however absurd: and it would seem very suitable that owners of pseudo antique titles, like "de Radley of Radley House" and "de Bungay of Bungay Abbey" (on which G.E.C. used to pour scorn), should also select sham mediæval Christian names like Nigel and Almeric for their offspring. It is true that Lord Kinsale, in his Will dated 20 Oct. 1699, signed himself "Almarick de Courcy," which shows that by that time, at any rate, Christian names formed from the Latin instead of the old French or English names, were coming into vogue. In this connection we may deplore the tendency displayed by nineteenth century gentry to displace their old family names by what G.E.C. used to call "Victorian Gothic" appellations: thus, Mullins becomes de Moleyns, while Wilkins turns into de Winton, and the undistinguished Morres gives place to the illustrious Montmorency (for other instances see vol. vi, Appendix A). Some of these examples recall a burlesque advertisement which appeared in The Times many years ago, beginning, "I John Bunn do take the name of de Bohun," and was, if memory serves, dated from "our château de Paille in the County of Ayr." Of the same character, too, is the adoption of the title "de Freyne" by an Irishman named French, under the delusion that his surname was a form of Freyne (lat. de Fraxinis), though any Mr. Dash or Dashwood would have been better justified in the choice of such a title. It will probably come as a shock to many that the first person to bear the title "Albemarle" was General Monck, in 1660, and that of "de Montalt" a gentleman of Ireland, in 1776.

There is not nearly the same objection to using the Latin names by which people were contemporaneously described (not called), as there is to bastard hybrids of the "Montacute" and "Montalt" order, but even this seems useless and unreasonable. It is certainly quite inconsistent to speak in the same work of Beauchamp and Montacute. If we are not to latinize Beauchamp, why should we subject Montagu or Mont Aigu to this treatment? Why call a man John and his wife Johanna, another Giles and his wife Egidia? There would be something incongruous if we were to read in the nursery rhyme that "Jack and Egidia went up the hill to fetch a pail of water!"

As to the principal source from which evidence of the use of mediæval names is obtainable, the following letter to the Editor from H. J. Ellis, Sources of names.

formerly of the MSS. department in the British Museum, may be read with advantage:

“Charters, of course, must be considered as the best, and perhaps only, original source from which we can gain evidence as to the scarcity or common use of Christian names. They all have testing clauses with a greater or less number of witnesses, and they can be, or are, dated.

“The names vary according to the social position of the grantor of the charter. A royal charter of the eleventh or twelfth century would only have, as a rule, the king’s tenants ‘in capite’ or barons as witnesses. These form a very small section of the community, and would be invariably Normans. Charters issued by tenants ‘in capite’ to their own under tenants, or to monasteries, would have witnesses with names of the same origin as their own in the first place, and a certain addition of witnesses from several lower grades in the social scale of the day. These latter might be attendants on the knight, or members of that large class called ‘nativi,’ ‘villani,’ &c., that is to say the main body of the native population. Their names would vary considerably according to the part of England in which the charter issued. Though the same Norman Christian names appear everywhere, yet the English or native names differ according to locality. Again, from a very early period, in such towns as London there appears a strange admixture of names both Norman and English borne by citizens. It is among this latter class that Edward and Edmund have always survived in rather common use. We must remember that in records and charters we do not as a rule get many names of persons below the rank of holders of property, especially in the early charters, hence the predominance of Norman forms. The evidence of a ‘nativus’ as a witness was not then of much account. By the time of Henry III the Norman forms had apparently swamped the native in most districts and towns, and the lower classes still using English names are not as a rule on record. Because evidence is not to be found of the use of a Christian name, it cannot safely be concluded that it was not in use. I believe that the supersession of the English or Saxon names by the Norman-French was practically complete by the end of the thirteenth century.”^(a)

the language.

In order to understand the influences which were at work in forming the names that have come down to us, it is necessary to bear in mind the development of the spoken and written languages in use during the Middle Ages. At the time of the Conquest, the educated of both peoples (or in other words the clerics) could speak and write Latin, the Normans

^(a) W. H. Stevenson writes:—“English names are very difficult, and philology is the only clue to them. We have Old English, Old Norse, both from the Danes (very often in older forms than are recorded in the Sagas), and from the Normans, who modified their Norse names in accord with North-French philological changes; we have French names (in various dialects) from the Normans, the Angevins, and the Southern French of Henry III’s relations and dependents. French personal names are mainly of Frankish origin, but in the South many are Gothic, and the same Frankish name will assume different forms in different dialects. French effects enormous changes in these Germanic names by the operations of its own sound conversed in French, and the natives in English: but it was not much before the beginning of the fourteenth century that the nobles and gentry of the conquering race adopted English to any extent (but see p. 598, text and note "a") and that the division of the nation into the French-speaking upper class and the English-speaking lower class began to disappear. A literary language, common to all in England, did not emerge until some fifty years later. The following passage from The Great Pestilence, p. 202, by the Abbé Gasquet, may here be quoted: "Before that time (1349), ever since the Conquest the nobility and gentry of this country affected to converse in French: children even construed their lessons at school in that language. So, at least, Higden tells us in his Polychronicon. But from the time of the first Moreyn, as Trevisa, his translator, terms it, this 'mauner' was 'som del ychaungide.' A schoolmaster, named Cornwall, was the first that introduced English into the instruction of his pupils, and this example was so eagerly followed that by the year 1385, when Trevisa wrote, it had become nearly general." Meanwhile, we are told by Maitland, "late in the twelfth or early in the thirteenth century, French was beginning to make itself a language in which not only songs and stories but legal documents could be written. About the middle of the thirteenth century, ordinances and statutes that are written in French began to appear," and that "under Edward I, French, though it cannot expel Latin from the records of litigation, becomes the language in which laws are published and law books are written."

This movement was not retarded by the use of English in a proclamation by Henry III in 1258, the royal proclamation at Worcester in 1299, or the grant of privileges to the City of London, in 1327, nor was it at first checked even by the patriotic Statute of 1362, which enacted that all pleas in whatsoever court should be pleaded and answered verbally in English. With regard to Ireland too, the Statute of Kilkenny, in 1367, ordaining the use of "la langue Engleis,"^(a) whatever precisely that tongue may have been, was quite inoperative. The Editor cannot say whether Norman French was still generally spoken in Ireland at this date; it certainly survived there longer than here. English seems to have been quite established in Ireland in the reign of Henry IV, as the proceedings in Parliament were then conducted in that language.

In spite of official encouragement, English was slow to assert itself in legal documents, for it would seem that the earliest known wills in the language are dated twenty years later, at least the first in Furnival's Fifty Earliest English Wills is that of Robert Corn, citizen of London, dated 1387, and in Scotland no legal documents in the vernacular exist earlier than 1370-80, and no original French charters at all, so that in that part of the changes. But they are no more surprising than the changes wrought in Latin words. Without the aid of philology one would never recognise that sarcelle is the regular French descendant of Latin querquedula, to take a single example."

(a) "Item ordine est et etablie que chescun Engleys use la lang Engleis et soit nome par nom Engleys enterlessant oulterment la manere de nomere use par Irrois."

island evidence of the early forms of names is to be sought for in vain from these sources. Even so late as 1438, the Countess of Stafford makes a sort of apology for, or at any rate thinks it necessary to explain, the making of her will in English, the reason doubtless being that she did not understand Latin. It was the custom at this time and down to the sixteenth century for the voluntas, which dealt with realty, to be in Latin, and the testamentum, which dealt with personalty, to be in English, as in Robert Corn's will referred to above. It may be the Countess was apologising for not observing this rule. "[I] ordeyne and make my testament in English tongue for my most profit, redyng and understanding in this wise."

Early Chancery Bills are almost invariably in French down to the reign of Henry V, when English becomes customary. (See Selden Soc., Select Cases in Chancery, ed. Baildon; only one Latin bill dated 1389 is to be found in this volume). The earliest English deed among the Calverley Charters is in 1431. (Thoresby Soc., vol. vi). Indeed, it was not until the reign of Henry VII that English became the language of the Law Courts, while for the official records of the law, and for letters patent, and writs, the use of Latin lasted even down to the reign of George II (1731), with the brief exception of the Commonwealth period. Maitland also points out that French became the language of litigants and their Counsel, and prevailed in the King's Courts when English was still in use in the local ones. Indeed a judge is found as late as the seventeenth century keeping his private diary in that strange French legal jargon which was used for so long a period by English lawyers, and of which the knowledge persisted almost into the nineteenth century.

Local dialects.

Till a comparatively late period moreover (and even to the present day in some measure), English has varied greatly according to locality. The dialects of the North and the South and West were widely different (as indeed they are to-day), the Midlands speaking a blend of all three. This is well illustrated as late as Caxton's day by his story of the good wife of Kent, who annoyed the mercer who asked for eggs by saying she knew no French, for he also knew none, but readily grasped what was wanted when someone else suggested the word eyren. Just as eggs was in use in one part of the country and eyren in another, so the form which any proper name took depended very much on the language spoken by the clerk who was endeavouring to give its written equivalent.

Spelling.

Spelling too, at this date was phonetic, and the same name might appear in one document with such varied lettering as to suggest two different ones. The Editor can recall a comparatively late will in which the testator's name (Nichols) was spelt in about a dozen different ways, and may mention that he knows of a child with the pet name of Tiny receiving a Christmas card from a Belgian girl addressed Taijnij. This modern instance has its counterpart in the Close Rolls of Hen. III, where Murdoch O'Brien figures as Moriar de Haghobren; and circa 1340, where one Edina, called in Erse Ny McEgan [i.e. daughter of the MacEgans], has figured for years in Peerages under the cacophonous and grotesque appellation of Snymecaga. There is too, the case of the famous condottieri

Sir John Hawkwood, whose surname the Italians could not pronounce, so called him Acutus.

As bearing on the question of what language was spoken in mediæval times the following extracts are worthy of note, showing in the first two cases that it was thought remarkable for an ecclesiastic to speak English at all in the thirteenth century, and in the fourteenth for an English gentleman to speak nothing but French, while in the third, familiar English is used in the fourteenth century by two men of knightly rank to illustrate that in warfare what matters is the men behind the guns. In the English Legend of St. Edmund the Archbishop (who d. 1240) we find it stated that he spoke English on his deathbed, "Surrexit et confessus est Anglice."^(a) (Thomas Eccleston, Monumenta Franciscana). "Dominus Matheus de Mylborne, miles probus et prudens, nacione Anglicus, sed usu loquendi Gallicus, Gallicum tantum loquens." (Annales Hiberniæ fratris Johannis Clyn, a contemporary (who died 1349), writing of 1326). In Annales Hiberniæ, vol. ii, p. 391, which Annals stop at 1370, and are written in Latin by a contemporary annalist, under date 1352, it appears that Henry, son of Sir Robert Savage, in conversation with his father, "Dixit in vulgari 'melius est castrum de bones quam de stones.'"

Evidence as to
language.

Owing to the fact that "u" and "n" are usually quite indistinguishable in early manuscript,^(b) divers forms of the same name have grown up, and the wife of Hugh [Lord] Despenser is variously described in Peerages as Alina and Oliva, these being probably not the same name, though confused by the scribe. Also in the Lords' Report on the dignity of a Peer, two summonses received by a Judge named Hervey de Stanton are printed as directed respectively Hervico de Stauntone and Hernico de Stantone; Mauger le Vavasour is there stated to have been summoned 29 Edw. I by writs directed Manço Vavassur, and John de Haudlo and Aucher fitz Henry have writs Johi de Andlo and Anchero fil' Henrici; Sir Walter de Mauny, the founder of the Charterhouse, who came from Mauny in France, is more commonly known as de Manny, and Chief Justice Parvyng appears in books as Parnyng. There is a woman's name occurring occasionally in old documents as to which it is impossible to say whether it should be read "Ivette" or "Julette"; a ship's name also occurs, "la Jouette," which appears to be a variant of the latter, and to point to that being the correct reading; but who can say that "la Jouette" should not rightly be "la Jouette," and therefore merely the equivalent of little Joan or Janet. Again there is a surname usually written Inge, which may equally well be Juge. The letters nn are often practically indistinguishable from mi, e.g. Anna, Amia.

Confusion of

^(a) J. H. Round informs the Editor that the Archbishop, who was the son of an Abingdon tradesman, is stated to have said, when dying, "Men seth gamen gooth on wombe, ac ich segge gamen gooth on herte" (Men say that pleasure is of the stomach and I say that it is of the heart). Several variants of this speech are given.

^(b) The Deputy Keeper states that in some of the Close Rolls temp. Henry III the two letters are perfectly distinguished, as they are in most of the early Fect of Fines.

Other instances of words or names which have become established in the language, but have their foundation in blunder, are the common legal term "message," which should be "mesnage"; the island of Iona, which should be I or Hy, Iona being nothing but a misreading of the adjectival "Ioua insula" used by Adamnan in his Life of St. Columba; the name Vans or Vance, as in Vans Agnew and in de Morgan's novel Joseph Vance, is but a corruption of Vaux (lat. de Vallibus). The letter "u" and not "n" is always the right reading in cases where a key to the pronunciation is found by an "l," the older form, being sometimes found, thus the fact that "Malger" de Staple was living in Exeter 10 Hen. II, shows that Mauger, not Manger, is the real name. Anselm is also certainly found written Alselm, but this must be a misreading for Anselin, for no one could suppose that the name should truly be Auselm. Besides Anselm (Fr. Anselles), there appears to be another quite distinct name which occurs in Notts, Derby, and Lincoln, viz. Alselin, Halselin, Auselin or Hauselin (see Intro. to Stapleton's Liber de Antiquis Legibus, Camden Soc.). The Hebrides comes from a similar mistake, the turning of "u" into "ri," this well known word having as its origin "Ebudae Insula" in the Latin transcription of Ptolemy's work. The surname Danvers (de Alvers, Dauvers, Daunvers, Danvers) also furnishes a good instance of the confusion of "n" and "u." The English Walkelin and its French form Waukelin were not uncommon Christian names in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, while Wanklyn still exists as a surname to the Editor's knowledge. Though not quite of the same kind, for it springs from fraud, not error, is the notorious case of Hugh de Puiset (de Puteaco), the twelfth century Bishop of Durham, whose name was, it is believed, changed to Pudsey by a sixteenth century herald to enrich the pedigree of a Yorkshire knight bearing the latter name; as Pudsey accordingly the good bishop appears in handbooks and reference books (the heading in Dict. Nat. Biog. being "Puiset or Pudsey"), and most people who know of him at all only know him as such. The letters "ph" and "f" are of course interchangeable, e.g. in Bardolf, Ralph, Eupheme, &c., "f," being the predominant old form. Another source of confusion in names is that the small "v" is sometimes so written that it is impossible to distinguish it from the small "b"; and yet another, that between capital "A" and "D," as mentioned in a later paragraph under women's names.

Christian names, their relative popularity at different epochs.

Many names which are now of the commonest were rare in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, e.g. George, James, Charles, Frederick, Arthur, Joseph, and Francis; on the other hand Thomas, William, Richard,^(a) John, Walter, Hugh, Philip, Robert, and Peter and Henry (in the forms of (^a) Richer (French Richier, Picard Riquier (= Sanctus Richarius), which might be thought to be an earlier form of Richard is, teste W. H. Stevenson, a different name. Richardus and Richarius are carefully distinguished by Orderic Vitalis, and also in the Chanson de Roland (Anglo-Norman), where they appear as Richarz (= Richard plus nom. s), and Richer respectively. A later form of the nom. of Richard, viz. Richers, might conceivably lead modern writers to regard this as the nom. of Richer. J. H. Round points out that Richer is found in the families of L'Aigle and Andeley in England.

Piers and Harry) were about as common then as now, while Adam, Andrew, Baldwin, Bartholomew (hence the surnames Barthelot and Bartlett), Fulk,^(a) Giles, Guy, Miles, Nicholas, Osbert, Ralph, Roger, Simon, Stephen, Theobald, and Thurston, seem to have declined in popularity, Giles being as a woman's name, Gille, practically extinct, except in the nursery rhyme above mentioned. Amaury, Aymer or Emery, all three distinct names according to W. H. Stevenson, of which the older forms were respectively Amalric, Hadomar, (H)aimarik (whence America), are latinized both as Almericus and Adomarus (hence probably the surname Merry; the surname Meyrick and the Christian name Merric are Welsh forms of Maurice); Ailwaker (O.E. Æpelwacer), Anketell, Anketin, Aucher, Bevis, the Scots name Bryce, Conan, Dige (temp. Ric. II), Drew, Ebles (lat. Ebulo or Eubulus), Ellis, Engelard, Engenulf, Engerolf, Eudes, Otes, Fremund (temp. Ric. II), Godric, Gudred, Guncelin, Hamond, Harsculph, Hervey, Howell, Inge, Ingold, Ingram, Jordan, Lambert, Litwin, Mahon or Mahoun (rectius probably Mahou (Mayhew) from the O.Fr. form of Matthew), Mauger (from the Frankish Malger), Meiler, Menaud (temp. Edw. III), Morgan, Otewell, Payn (lat. Paganus), Reiric, Reynold, Robylard, Saher or Sayer, Sampson, Savara (hence the surname Savory—Savara le Corvisere occurs c. 1200 in the Totness Guild Roll), Serle, Talbot, Tori, the Welsh name Urian, Villes (latinized as Vitalis), the Frankish Wace, Waleran, Walkelin or Waukelyn, Warin, and Wassall, except in the latinized forms of Reynold, Otes, and Amory, viz. Reginald, Otho, and Almeric, may be said to be practically disused, at least as Christian names, with the exception of Hamon, which has continued in the family of Le Strange of Hunstanton, Norfolk, till the present day, and of Harvey or Hervey which is still found in the north.

Arthur witnessed charters of his brother Ebrard, Bishop of Norwich, Arthur. a West countryman by birth, circa 1135-40 (Cotton Ch. ii, 1, and ii, 21, 8), Nigell. fil. Arturi, the ancestor of the Kingscote family, witnessed a charter of Will. de Braiosa circa 1150-60 (Berkeley Chs. S. 9). Arthur also occurs in a Glasgow Charter circa 1150, but never seems to have been common in any part of the British Isles, though more so in the west than elsewhere. Arthur's spring is given as a boundary in a grant to Cwmhyr Abbey by Roger de Mortimer circa 1150-60.

Bevis, of which there is a French form Beuves, and which has given Bevis. birth to the existing surname Beaves, has by some been supposed, on the authority of mediæval glosses, to be represented by the Latin (Frankish) Bogo, whereas W. H. Stevenson asserts that it comes from the Frankish Bobo.^(b) In two French lists of writs of 26 and 27 Edw. I, the man who in ^(a) W. H. Stevenson says that Fulk comes from the Frankish Fulko (whence Modern Fr. Foulques, O.Fr. Fulkes nom., Fulkon accus.), and that it is correctly represented by the surname Fowkes. W. Paley Baildon writes that the Yorkshire family of Fawkes of Farnley (ex quo Guy Fawkes) can be traced to an ancestor whose name is given as Falcasius, which is not related to Fulk.

^(b) With regard to these two names Stevenson writes:—"Accent influenced powerfully the vowels in Old French. This can be seen conveniently in the names

Latin lists is given as Bogo de Knovil, appears as Boges and Bouges, which fact supports Stevenson's contention, for, if the equivalent of the Latin Bogo were Bevis, the form in the French lists should have been Beuves. Richard, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford (m. 1238), had a son, a cleric, whose name has been latinized as Bozo, Bogo, and Bovo, but Stevenson is confident that these forms are due to error in transcription.^(a) Several of the Counts of La Marche were called Boson.

Charles Mercer was living temp. Henry III (Add. Ch. 945), Karolus occurs circa 1233 (Cotton Ch. xi, 38), Symon Karoli is mentioned towards the end of the reign of Edward I (Egerton Ch. 396), and Karolus fil. Karoli de Sislande is named in a grant of lands in Suffolk dated 1275 and 1276 (Add. Ch. 9516, 9517).

The following extract from the Rev. A. B. Beaven's Aldermen of London suggests at first sight that Drew was not much commoner 500 years ago than it is now, but in fact Walter fil. Driu occurs 1164-79 (Harl. 43 l. 35), and there was more than one Drew Barentyn in the thirteenth century, and the name is fairly often met with in the Montagu and other families. "On March 10, 1400, Drew Barentyn represented to the Mayor and his brother Aldermen that his name had been entered in 'the red paper of redemptions of freedom and apprentices of the City' as Andreas Barentyn on April 30, 1364, and afterwards in the 'black paper of redemptions of Bobo and Bogo, which are the forms in which the Germanic names represented by them were taken over into French. The accent modified the o in the nom. to ue, written in Anglo-French frequently œ, so that the French nom. of Bobo is Beuves, written in the Anglo-Norman Boeves de Hanstone, Boefs, Boves. In this poem the acc. is Bovoun, quite regularly, the first o of Bobonem not being affected by the accent. The English "Sir Bevis" uses the nom. Beves and the acc. Bevoun, which (unless it is an editorial blunder) must be due to the assimilation of the first vowel to that in the nom. Now with regard to Bogo, the nom. of this appears written Beughes, Bouges, Bueges, Boeges, in English-French records. These forms no one could confuse with Bevis. The g, gh, has the value of w, and the proper form would be Beues, etc. (cf. also Drogo, Dreues, Drew, whence the surnames Druce, Drew.) The g spelling seems to have been introduced, on the analogy of Hughes for Hues, specially to avoid confusion with Bevis. In the Annales S. Pauli, vol. i, p. 302, Bogo de Knovile is called Boves, which at first sight favours the identification with Bevis. But it should obviously be read Boues, when it falls at once into line with the correct descendants of Bogo in French. The acc. of Bogo should be Bouon (and the like), and here if you read v instead of u, you can at once confuse it with Bevis. Whether this ever happened outside the blunders of antiquaries I do not know, but prima facie it seems an impossibility in the thirteenth or fourteenth centuries."

(^a) He writes:—"The two latter are probably due to the graphic confusion of Bovon and Bouon; the first named must be a blunder, since Bozo notoriously produced through the acc. the name Bozon, Boson, and could not conceivably be confused either in the nom. Boce or acc. with either Bogo or Bobo, except in the way one might write Edward for Edmund, Robert for Richard. It would be possible to make out quite a good case for the identity of these names in the Middle Ages founded upon mere scribal blunders."

freedom and apprentices' was admitted a freeman by that name on October 26, 1370, and he requested to have 'Andreas' changed to 'Drugo.'" Evidently the clerk who took down his name from dictation thought he said Andrew when he said Drew, and so wrongly entered the Latin equivalent of the former.^(a)

Francis was decidedly rarer than James or George, and beyond Francis. Frank^(b) de Bohun, who is mentioned in Complete Peerage as dying 1273, his grandfather of the same name who died 1192, Frank Tyas, who was sum. 29 Edw. I (1301), and Frank de Aldham or Aldenham, who was executed in 1321 (Patent Roll, 1321-24, and Flores Hist., vol. iii, p. 208, Rolls Ser.), the Editor can name no others, but he cannot claim to have made an exhaustive search. Ric. fil. Frank, who occurs in a twelfth century document, was probably not the son of Frank, but son of the freeman or of the Frenchman, though W. Paley Baildon states that Franco, as a Christian name, is common in the Yorkshire family of Tyas in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. J. Maitland Thomson expresses his belief that this name is not to be found in Scotland before 1500.

Joh. fil. Frether[ic]^(c) was clerk to Simon Bishop of Worcester 1139-47 Frederick. (Campb. Ch. xviii, 2). Fredericus clericus de Bureford was Canon of Bromfield Priory, Salop, in 1155 (Cotton Ch. xxvii, 4); Frederic was a witness in twelfth-thirteenth century (Harl. MS. 2110), a summons issued Friderico de Tilneye de Sancto Botulfo 8 June 30 Edw. III (1356), and another of the name has been found in 1370.

George and James seem to be commoner than most of the preceding George. names. We have George Grim late twelfth century (Harl. Ch. 48 C. 10), "Georgius hujus carte scriptor" 1203-04 (Add. Ch. 7513), George de

(^a) The Editor is reminded here of confusion caused by his own name. He had occasion to write to Mons. Maurice de Vilmorin, a member of the world-known firm of seedsmen, and being under the impression that he was a nursery gardener, so addressed him. His correspondent replied that that was not his position in life and addressed his letter to the Revd. Monsieur le Vicaire. When the Editor pointed out that he was no more a clergyman than the other a nurseryman, Monsieur de Vilmorin informed him of a similar case in his own family, where a young naval officer named l'Eveque de Vilmorin on his arrival on a French man of war at Malta, found all the clergy of the island drawn up on the quay to pay him honour!

(^b) Franko is an old Germanic name; Francis is from St. Franciscus ("the Frenchman," Francese), and came into common use after Francis I of France. Franca is the O.E. name corresponding to Franco. (ex inform. W. H. Stevenson).

(^c) This seems to be O.E. Freoðuric. Our Frederick is of course a later importation from Germany. The name in this case may be O.E. Freoðuhere, which would be Frethere in the 12th century. (ex inform. W. H. Stevenson). J. H. Round points out that, according to the Liber de Hyda, Frederic, who was own brother to William de Warenne, was slain by Hereward early in the Conqueror's reign ("Fredericum germanum Comitum Willelmi de Warenna, genere et possessionibus insignitum occidit"), and that Frederic's existence is proved by several references in Domesday under the Warenne² fief, to the feodum Frederici (or "Fretherici").

Thorpe in 1304-05, and George de Thorpe, Miles in 1321 (Cotton Ch. xxviii, 75), and other Georges have been found in 1306, 1312, 1323, 1351, 1371, and 1425, whom it is not necessary to specify more particularly; two are enshrined in Complete Peerage, viz. George de Cantelou, feudal Lord of Abergavenny, b. 29 Mar. 1252, and George, Earl of Dunbar or March, who was born about 1336. The earliest instance that has been found of George as a surname is in 1414, "Rich. George et Will. Doune cives et aurifabri London" (Harl. Ch. 111 F. 50). The name Gregory, which was not nearly so rare in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries as George, is sometimes confused with it.

James^(a) de Houdernes occurs temp. John (Add. Ch. 21150), and James^(a) de Bakepuz in the twelfth-thirteenth century. James Blund was Mayor of London 1216, and James Blund, perhaps his son, but quite possibly the same person, was Alderman thereof for some years before 1230. James de Paunton was summoned cum equis et armis 18 Oct. (1261) 45 Hen. III, James de Pipe is to be found in 1339 (Add. Ch. 19842), and James d'Audley, b. about 1220, and James de Bohun, b. 1281, appear in Complete Peerage. It may be mentioned here that James, when not latinized as Jacobus, is always so written of Englishmen, and never Jacques; in the same way William and Walter, or Willelmus, Walterus, are commoner than Guillaume, Gulielmus, Gautier, or Gualterus. Among the hundreds of Williams summoned for one purpose or another only once has the form Guillelmus (de Lung) been found in the lists of Summons in the Lords' Reports on the Dignity of a Peer, namely in the year 22 Edw. I, and in the same list occurs Willelmus de Mortuo Mari and many another Willelmus. The G form, however, is not very uncommon in twelfth century charters.

Joseph was Abbot of Reading 1173-80 (Add. Chs. 19601, 19602). Joseph Gerard is found in 1302 (Chancery Warrants), and Joseph occurs as a witness to a charter dated 1321 (Harl. Ch. 112, F. 59).

Lancelot, an uncommon name at all times, occurs in a privy seal warrant of 3 Ric. II, "Lancelot Catewy."

Patrick occurs in the twelfth century but was a rare name among Englishmen in Edwardian times. It appears to have been introduced by Patrick de Sourches, founder of the Chaworth family in England temp. William Rufus, whose daughter's son was Patrick, Earl of Salisbury temp. Henry II, and whose descendant, another Patrick de Chaurces, was living, as also was Patrick de Malvelle, temp. Edward I. Patrick fil. Serle was also of Westwick, co. York, in 1252.

(^a) In these two cases the name James actually occurs in the charters, in the others the assumption is made that Jacobus stands for James. The Northern French form of the name was James, as in Saint James (de Beuvron) in the extreme south-west of Normandy (La Manche). As to Jacobus being sometimes rendered Jacob, W. Paley Baildon points out that on a Denization Roll of late fourteenth century two foreign merchants occur, named Jacobus Giles and Giles Jacob.

There can be no doubt that Randolph, in an earlier form Ranwulf (Fr. Ralph and Renouf), is distinct from Ralph, and that the former is latinized as Ranulfus Randolph. is proved by the fact that on the dorse of the Patent Rolls, where Commissions of enquiry as to trespasses are given, Ranulphus de (—) appears in Latin, as the leader of a band that had broken into a close, and later on in the same document, John, servant of Randolph de (—) is mentioned in English, as one of his abettors. As Randle the name is fairly common in Cheshire (cf. Randle Holmes, herald painter). In the list of summonses 24 Edw. I, a writ directed to Ranulpho de Freskeney, comes between writs directed Radulfo Paynell and Radulfo de Sancto Laudo, and in another list of the same year writs are directed Radulfo Wake and Ranulpho de Ry.

Reynold persisted until well into the seventeenth century, for Sir Reynold. Reynold Mohun was living at Boconnoc in 1621, and his son Reynold gave a bowl to Exeter Coll. in 1622, and the name, with the spelling Rainald, has been revived of late years in the family of Knightley. The Norse form of the name is Rögvaldr, which has produced the Scottish Ronald.

Vincent and Lionel were decidedly rare, but Vincent le Boteler is Vincent and found on the Close Roll for Edw. III (vol. xii), as is Leo, Lyonel, or Lyonet Lionel. de Bradenham.

With regard to Saxon names, Edgar was King of Scotland 1098-1106/7, and the name occurs occasionally in that country in the twelfth century, but in modern times only apparently as a surname under the forms Edzar, Edzar and Adair. Saxon names.

Alfred is not common among the gentry in the thirteenth and fourteenth Alfred. centuries, but Alfred was witness of a charter to Hurley Priory early in the reign of Henry II (Charter at Westm. Abbey), and Will. fil. Alfredi was witness to Sloane Ch. xxxii, 64, 1157-8; and Alfred de Lincoln was living late in the reign of Henry III. The name is usually latinized as Aluredus, but Elfred et Gerard filii Alexandri de Pointun were witnesses in co. Linc. c. 1150-60, and Alfridus de Sulny occurs in the Close Roll 1307 (Add. Ch. 20865). J. H. Round considers that this is one of the most difficult names to deal with, as Alfred the Breton (Brito), Alfred of Lincoln, Alfred of Malmesbury, and Alfred de Ispania, are all found as tenants in chief in Domesday, none of them apparently being English. He has found the last as “Ælfred despaine” in the Hyde Abbey Register. Alfred, a Norfolk thegn in Domesday, was clearly English, but “Aluredus cognomento gigas,” who is mentioned as a warrior in Normandy circa 1030, can hardly have been so, neither can Alfred (Alveredus) precentor of Coutances, under Henry II. W. Paley Baildon writes that in one or two Yorkshire families (e.g. the Manstons of Manston) the form of the name is always Alvery.

Edmund has always existed in England, e.g. in the families of Edmund. Courtenay, Montagu, Mortimer, and Despenser, and in Scotland in the families of Murray and Douglas, but seems never to have been very common among the nobility after the Conquest.

Edric de Buxle was a villein at Northwood in 2 Ric. II (Close Rolls). Edric. This is a late survival for a name of this type.

Edward.

It is strange that with an Edward on the throne for more than 100 years, 1272-1377, the name should not have become more widely spread among those who frequented the Court, and it contrasts strikingly with the increased popularity of Charles, Anne, and George, when in later times those monarchs were reigning. Possibly Henry III gave his sons the names of Edward and Edmund with a politic object (though most people consider that Edward was chosen out of respect to the Confessor's memory, and Edmund after St. Edmund of Bury), as Patrick was given to the Duke of Connaught in the nineteenth century, or possibly as Arthur was to Geoffrey's son in the twelfth. Though Edward and Edmund were not common among the nobility, they were common among the London citizens in the twelfth and early thirteenth centuries. Edward was Abbot of Reading about 1150, and Edmund was an Alderman of London at about the same time. Edward was prepositus of Westminster in 1202, and Edmund was porter of Southwark Priory at the same date, and several other instances could be given of the use of both names.

Ethel.

Ethel and Edith have not been found north of the Tweed in early times, though the latter is fairly common in early English charters, and in spite of the fact that the former occurs in composition among our Saxon monarchs, Aethelwulf, Aethelbald, Aethelbert, Aethelred, the Editor has never found it alone in any early document; indeed it has been stated that the simple form Ethel was invented by Thackeray for the heroine of The Newcomes.^(a)

Latinization of English names.

When a clerk had to render a name in a charter he usually sought for the nearest Latin equivalent, sometimes he took a correct one, as de Bello Campo for Beauchamp; sometimes a grotesque one, such as de Aureis Testiculis^(b) for Orescuilz (now preserved in Sampford Orcas), or (which occurs in a Lincoln Charter) such as Pedechen and Pedeken for Hundefot, i.e. Hounds foot; and in the Kirkstead Chartulary, Towilhes, whose real name, Twowithies or Willows, is shown by his appearing elsewhere as de Duabus Salicibus;^(c) sometimes a very dubious one, such as de Mortuo Mari for Mortimer, de Bello Manso for Beaumes, and de Campo Arnulphi for Champenowne; often one wholly wrong, as if someone should translate Gladstone Felix Lapis instead of Accipitris Lapis, e.g. de Vento Morbido, Windsor; de Bono Fossato, Goodrick; de Campo Bello, Campbell; de Cari Loco, Chenlewe; de Clivo Forti, Clifford; de Rubra Manu, Redmayne;

^(a) Prof. Gollancz however points out that in the Liber Vitae, a Northumbrian text, Eðilu (=Ethel) is written in letters of gold as the name of a great princess or abbess among the benefactors of Durham Cathedral, so Ethel Newcome may be looked upon rather as a revival than a creation.

^(b) The Italian family of Colleoni bore three scrotums proper on their shield. (W. Paley Baildon).

^(c) At first sight the name of a well known old firm of Highgate nurserymen, Cutbush, though singularly appropriate for their calling, does not suggest any connection with Talboys, but if the etymology of the latter, tailleur du bois, be considered, they will be seen to be the same. W. Paley Baildon points out that Talwood is a common word in early accounts for wood cut into billets.

Sacra Capilla, Halifax; Populorum Lapis, Folkestone; and Dei Donum, Dundee. Several of these of course are but sixteenth and seventeenth century inventions. (For other instances see Martin's Record Interpreter).

Many Christian names had already by the end of the thirteenth century come into use as surnames. The process by which this took place was the dropping out of the word "fitz" or "filius," which seems to have been very unusual before the reign of John, and took nearly a century to perfect. Willelmus Clemens canonicus, which occurs before 1158 in a Sempringham Charter, is clearly not a case of the elision of filius, but this is either an early instance of a surname of the epithet or nickname class, or Clemens was his name in religion. The earliest case found of such elision is that of Gervasius Caterine (presumably a bastard as being named after his mother), temp. Stephen or Hen. II (Harl. Ch. 50 B. 23), and Hubert Walteri in John's reign is another early instance. Ric. fitz Reyner, who is so called about 1200, appears thirty years later simply as Ric. Reyner, and Will. fil. Fardain occurs c. 1160 (Harl. Ch. 43 H. 13), and temp. Ric. I Will. Farthain is referred to (Harl. Ch. 44 A. 29). Meiler Scottot and Ralph Meiler (Meiler being a name at one time fairly common in S. Wales) were both sum. 9 Edw. III, and William Warin 21 Edw. III, and Robert and John Elys were Yarmouth men 14 Hen. III. Sampson de Matham was a Surrey man in 1334 and William Sampson was sum. to Parl. from 1299 to 1306. Richard Talbot of Eccleswell was living 29 Edw. I, and Talbot occurs earlier as a Christian name. Will. fil. Otuhari al. Otueli, uncle to William, Earl of Essex, granted lands temp. Stephen or Henry II (Harl. Chs. 50 B. 15, 53 B. 50). The name is also spelt Othuer, Otuhar, Hotuel, in other Harl. Charters. Otuel fil. Comitis was drowned in the White Ship 1120. Henry Cruce de Ottewelle was sum. 9 Edw. III. This last Ottewelle is however an English local name, and must be kept distinct from the above Christian name, which comes from the French Otuel. John Anketil occurs as a London citizen 14 Edw. III. John Aukelyn, Andrew Aubrey, and Richard Andrew, were living 16 Edw. III, and Jordan de Shepey and John Jordan five years later. Charles also occurs in the fourteenth century as a surname. The Norman name Raymond or Reimund became Redmond in Ireland. In this connection, and as illustrating the somewhat haphazard fashion in which surnames grew up, the following passage from A History of Baildon, by W. Paley Baildon, Introduction to vol. iii, of which the author has kindly submitted an advance copy, seems well worth quoting. John, son of Walter de Baildon (1347-49) appears as Johannes filius Walteri de Baildon or as Johannes Watson de Baildon. Another son of Walter's, Henry, also occurs as Henry Watson, and Henry's son John occurs both as "John son of Henry son of Walter de Baildon" and as "John Hanson." One of John "Watson's" sons, another Henry, appears as "Henry Johnson" to distinguish him from his contemporary and cousin "Henry Watson." Another John de Baildon, probably a son of John "Watson," was known indifferently as "John de Baildon, Smith," or "John Smith of Baildon." . . . There was yet another John, whose parentage is doubtful, who was known alternatively as "John de Baildon, souter," and "John Souter of Baildon." These facts set out in a chart are very striking, and show 5 different surnames borne in the same family.

Extinct Christian

Words which are now rare or quite extinct as what the Americans call front names, are still in use as surnames, e.g. Drew (lat. Drogo), Ellis, Gladwin (Sempringham Ch. twelfth century); Godard fil. Alselmi (rectius Alselini) (Harl. Ch. 53 B. 23); Grote (Groto Kokerel sum. 30 Edw. I); Gunter (Harl. Chs. 45 C. 2-5), Haldane (Add. Ch. 20864); Hamond (lat. Hamo); Hawkins; Hervey or Harvey; Ilbert was a witness in 1145 (Cott. Ch. xi, 6); Ingram, Jolland, Jordan, Lambert, Payn, Sayer, Talbot, Tiffany (lat. Theophania), the well-known American silversmith, and Wace.

An opportunity is afforded of getting the French equivalents of names usually written at that time in Latin by the fact that a few of the summonses to Parliaments or Councils were written in French. Of these the earliest that has been preserved is dated 26 Sep. (1298) 26 Edw. I. There the name Robert is written Roberd, Piers Peres, Walter Wauter, Alexander Alisaundre, and the latinized Bogo Bouges. The next is dated 7 May (1299) 27 Edw. I, and there the Christian name of de Knoville appears as Boges. The third is dated 15 Dec. (1334) 8 Edw. III, therein the names Anketin, Nicholas, Piers, Ralph, and Walter, appear as Aggatyn, Nicol, Peres, Rauf, and Wauter, but William is unchanged. The fourth is dated a few days later, 24 Dec., and the diminutives Randekyn, Thome-lyn, Janquin, Janekin, and Watquin, mentioned on page 615 in this paper, occur. Emery is the form of a name which is spelt in divers ways, and Robylard is the unusual Christian name of one of the Darcys. The fifth is dated 22 Jan. (1334/5) 8 Edw. III: here William is written Williemi, and Alexander, Saundre. The sixth is dated 1 Feb. following, and the seventh and last 12 Nov. (1342) 16 Edw. III, but neither contains names of special interest which have not already been mentioned.

The following Christian names occur in French among other witnesses in Latin, and may be compared with the succeeding list from Godstow:

forms of names.

- Aubri, ante 1166 (Harl. Ch. 86 C. 62).
- Berte uxor Ric., temp. Ric. I to John (id. 84 I. 22).
- Ernaud, c. 1176 (id. 84 H. 19).
- Raul, c. 1150 (id. 50 B. 15).
- Renalt, Fromont, Ricart, Simon, Raol, early Hen. II
(id. 51 D. 22).
- Robin, Geffrei, Henri, c. 1200-1250 (id. 48 C. 26).
- Roger, late twelfth century (id. 86 A. 3).

The following names are extracted from an English version of the Calendar of the Saints which was made in 1450 for the benefit of the nuns of Godstow who did not understand Latin. They have kindly been supplied to the Editor by Oswald Barron, and are given, not so much as showing the best or most accurate forms, but as showing how a man at that time dealt with uncommon Latin words when endeavouring to English them. Prisca, Prisce; Bathildis, Batylde; Brigida, Bryde; Agatha, Agas; Scholastica, Scolast (Fr. Escholace); Juliana, Julian; Gregorius, Gregour; Benedictus, Benett (O. Fr. Beneit); Tiburtius, Tyburce; Vitalis, Vital; Pancratius, Pancrace; Augustinus, Austin; Petronilla, Petronyl [rectius Peronel]; Praxedes, Praxede; Apollinaris, Appollinare; Felix, Felyce; Eusebius, Euseby; Cuthberga, Cuthburge; Hyacinthus, Jacincte; Tecla, Tecele; Fredeswitha, Fryswyde; Linus, Lyne; Lucia, Lucy.

Fifteenth century English forms of names.

The following are instances of the same name in Latin and in French: Gerardus Andegavensis, early thirteenth century (Add. Ch. 41371), Gerard Ancheuin, same date (id. 8335); Radulph Barba Aprilis 1162-9? (Stowe Ch. 153), Roger Barbe de Averil, same date (id. 159); grant by Matheus Agodeshalf^(a) to Rob. Artifex in London, temp. John (Harl. Ch. 45 B. 18), grant by Roger Agodeshalf to Rob. Lenginnour in London, temp. early Hen. III (id. 45 B. 19); Alveredus Franciscus occurs in one of the Laycok charters, and Averay le Fraunceis in another.

Latin equivalents of French names.

The terminal o in Christian names generally indicates a latinized form. Many names in o follow the common rule in forming a low Latin and subsequent English and French form from the accusative, e.g.

Latinized names.

Simo, Simonem, Simon.

Hamo, Hamonem, Hamon.

The Norman form of the Frankish Wydo and English Guy, was Wy, so that the surname Widdon cannot have sprung from Wydo, though similar in appearance. Wyatt is a more probable offspring. The surname Dudden comes from the Northumberland place Duddoe, formerly Dudden, Dudden in Cheshire, or possibly from the river of that name and not from Dodo. Modern surnames such as Bogg or Buggins cannot spring from Bogo for, as W. H. Stevenson points out, the Latin g could not have remained unchanged in English, but had become the French u before 1066,^(b) hence Bogo gives Bewes and not Bogg. Neither can De Burgh, which presumably became Borough and Burrows, be any offspring of Bogo. Possibly the true origin of Bugg is the O.E. Bucege (fem.). Bobo,^(b) Bogo,^(b) Dodo, Drogo, Hamo, Hugo, Ivo,^(c) Milo, Otho (of which Fitzooth and Fitzwith are forms, unless indeed, the latter should be fil. Widonis), Wydo, should figure as Bevis,

Bewes, Doone, Doun, or Down, Drew, Hamon, Hugh, Ives, Miles,^(a) Otes, Guy, if we are to give them what at any rate may have been their names. Oui (O.E. Ufig) occurs as a man's name 1172-80 (Egerton 433).

Janico, always a rare name (and best known as borne by the family of Preston, Viscounts Gormanston, into which it came through the marriage about 1430 of Christopher Preston with a daughter of Sir Jenico d'Artois), is an exception, being of Gascon origin and not a latinized form of name. It may conceivably be the same as the equally rare Inigo, but this is mere guesswork.

Diminutives.

Diminutives of Christian names are a fruitful source of existing surnames, whose origin is not always instantly apparent. To these belong Alcock and Saunders from Alexander, Alcock sometimes (according to W. H. Stevenson, a very careful authority) standing for Alan; Hancock, Janekin and Janquin from John (Jankyn Lloyd of Llanstephan was living as late as 27 Nov. 1531); Hal and Halkin from Harry; Hankyn,^(b) Hawkins and Rawlins from Ralph; Dawkins from David; Simkin from Simon; Rankin and Randekin from Randolph; Hamlet probably from Hamond, Hamlett Hancock was in Kent 1538-39 (Harl. 51 C. 48 and 46 l. 18, 19), and Hamlett Warburton was of Minshull Vernon, co. Chester, in 1660 (Add. Ch. 43818); Bibby, Wilkin (Will. Wilekin was an Alderman early in the thirteenth century (Harl. 54 H. 40)), Wilme and Wilmot (generally as a woman's name) from William, just as Emma gives Emmot; Filken, Filcock, and Philpot from Philip; Ridelot from Ridel (Sempringham Ch., 1160); Tomlin and Tomkin from Thomas; Perkin (whence come Perks and Parkins, &c.), e.g. Perkin Warbeck, and Perot (the name by which Piers de Gavaston was known to his friends) from Piers; Colin, giving the surname Collins (except in Scotland as mentioned later), from Nicholas; Hodge (Mid. Eng. Hogge) and Hodgkin from Roger; Hulkoc, Hutchins, and Huggin, from Hugh; and Watequin from Walter; Robin and Robinel from Robert. Robinellus Carnifex was a witness 1238 (Harl. Ch. 46 A. 22). Of the same type, but of very early use in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, are the names Gocelin, Jocelin, &c. Gascelyn, though a similar name, is, teste W. H. Stevenson, quite distinct, coming from the Frankish Wazelin, as the other does from the Frankish Gauzelin, of which Jocelin is a more southern French form. Gascelin was a fourteenth century surname, for Edward Gascelin was sum. cum equis et armis 21 Mar. 7 Edw. III. Other abbreviations with the termination "son" are numerous as Hobson, Dobson, and Robson in the north, and Robinson in the south, from Robert; Hanson, Watson, Pawson, and Nixon, from Henry, Walter, Paul,^(a) and Nicholas respectively; to which other examples could be added. J. H. Round points out the very early appearance of diminutives in the Rotulus Mise of 14 John (printed in Cole's Documents, pp. 231 et sqq.). Among them are Wilekin, Robin, Raulin (Raulinum), and Watekin, these homely names being applied not only to men of humble rank. See also ante, p. 612, where Randekyn, Thomelyn, Janquin, Janekin and Watquin occur among the names of men summoned in 1334. None of these diminutives except Colin and Robin can be said now to be in vogue as Christian names.

(^a) This name gives tempting occasion for an irrelevant anecdote of a family of this name having bought a house, lock, stock and barrel, family pictures included, and the fact that the portraits usually bore the inscription Sir John or Sir Ralph So-and-so Miles, rendered them particularly desirable as presentments of their ancestors!

(^b) This has all the appearance of being a diminutive of Henry, but that sometimes at any rate it equals Ralph is proved by the fact that Ralph de la Naperie (as Radulphus) in Close Roll (35 Edw. III, m. 13 d) is called Hankyn in the corresponding privy seal warrant (25505). See Cal. Close Rolls Edw. III, vol. xi, p. 290. (ex inform. W. H. B. Bird). But query, should Haukyn be read for Hankyn?

Among names common to both sexes were Philip, Reynold (Reginalda occurs twice circa 1150 (Egerton Ch. 428), but was never common as a woman's name), Gilbert (Gilberta, Egerton Ch. 428), Aubrey (lat. Albericus, Albredus, O.E. Ælfric and Albreda, Fr. Auberée), Peronel or Pernell, Basil, Nicholas, Eustace, Giles, Francis, Edmund, James, Simon^(b) and Florence, all epicene names in old times, the terminal "a" of Philippa having never been really used in speech, and being on a par with the Johanna, Adeliza, and such. Of these, Nicholas was particularly frequent as a woman's name in Scotland, and though Edmund and Raymond were never common as such, yet the da. and h. of John Botiller, who must have been born about 1250, is called in Latin Edmunda, and Reymunda de Bourk was living 2 Ric. II. Pernell only survives in the surname Parnell, or occasionally in its original latinized fem. form of Petronilla. Hoggera, a feminine form of the French Oger, is found in co. Lincoln in 1162 (Harl. Ch. 45 H. 7). Aubrey, Basil, Edmund, James, Eustace and Nicholas are now confined to men, and Florence to women; Francis is the only one which still retains its double use, the substitution of "e" for "i" in the last syllable to indicate the difference of sex being of course quite modern. The employment of Anne as a man's name, in the eighteenth century, as in the case of Lord Anne Hamilton, is always traceable to a complimentary adoption of the name of the queen. Lucy also occurs as a male Christian name in some families, but in this case it is the surname used as a Christian name.

Of uncommon and remarkable women's names^(c) that of Idonie or Idoine, latinized as Idonea, was borne among others both by a daughter of Robert, Lord Clifford, and of William, Lord Leyburne, both Cumberland people. In the will of Henry Lord Percy, husband of the former, dated 1349, his wife is called Imania (Ismania), and though there are not many instances of this name, it is stated to be the origin of the surname Ismay, now well known in

(a) In this case the identification is doubtful.

(b) A grant made by the Prioress and Sisters of Ilchester to a lady named Simon de Lyt led to a curious lawsuit in 1342, when one of the parties contended, unsuccessfully, that Simon was not a female name. (Proc. of Somerset Archæol. Soc., vol. xiii, part ii, pp. 51 and 115-17; and vol. xxxvii, part ii, pp. 17, 19).

(c) See valuable lists of these, appended by A. Story Maskelyne of the P.R.O., to vols. iv and v of the Calendars of Ancient Deeds.

shipping circles, just as Iseult or Isolt (Welsh Eysyll, lat. Isolda) is preserved in the surnames Issot, Isitt, and in the place near Dublin, Chapel Izod. The natural impression of anyone approaching the subject without previous study would be that names like Idoine and Joyce were corruptions of the Latin Idonea and Jocosa, whereas it is more likely that the former are the originals and the latter copies or fanciful translations. The following occur in Harl., Sempringham, and Egerton charters in the twelfth century: Hyngeleis, Sabeline, Goldeburg (O.E. Goldburh, taken no doubt from Romance of Havelock, Lincolnshire), Asceline, Fluria, Iveta, Elviva otherwise Alviva (O.E. Ælfgifu, latinized Alviva), Eularia otherwise Eulalia, Eililda (O.E. Æðelhild), Wenne, Mahald (otherwise Maud), Gumild (Gunnild, surname Gunnel, from Old Norse Gunhildr). Aunfelisa or Amfelisa (Cott. xvi, 40), though strange in sound, was not then uncommon. Gunware, Gunnor (Old Norse Gunnvör, the name of the wife of Richard II of Normandy, and as Gunnor the name of the sister of Walter de Huntercombe who d. 1313), fairly common, and Quenild, wife of Grip, occur in the twelfth century (Egerton Ch. 428). Wensiliana or Wenthiana is a latinization of the Welsh Gwenllian, and Athelina of Athelyn, which was a woman's name in 1441, and Ele occurs latinized as Elia in 1471; the Countess of Salisbury (d. 1261) was named Ele or Ela, which W. H. Stevenson believes to be the same as Adela. Violet, which many would imagine to be quite modern, was the name of the wife of Sir John Chaundos in 1363. Floria occurs in Close Roll 1243, Guernilla in idem 1380, Massilia Godde in idem Edw. III, vol. xii, and Stephanetta in Patent Roll 1373. Among other out-of-the-way names for women are Almodis, wife of Robert, Count of Mortain, c. 1080, Basilie, sister of Walter de Ridelesford, c. 1200; Alda=Aude (e.g. Aude Maubank), Leiarda (which has given the surname Legard), and Roberga, are Latin forms of women's names found on the Close Roll of 1244; Amygdonia, da. and h. of William de l'Isle, 1294, Merouda Pygot 1296, Mazera, da. of Philip Marmion and wife of Ralph de Cromwell. Perina, a feminine form of Piers, Jacoba (vol. xii, Close Rolls, Edw. III), and Jacomina (Cal. Inq. p. m., vol. iv); Tangustilla, wife of Payn Hergast (Close Rolls, 1 Ric. II), Tangwistel is common in Welsh charters of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries; Huwet, wife of T. Portman (Close Roll, 2 Ric. II); Laderine, da. of Piers de Brus, Egeline (Egeline was da. of Robert de Courtenay, and the Inq. p. m. of Egeline mother of Philip de Columbers is dated 5 Edw. I), Engelise, are also thirteenth and fourteenth century names. Goldcorn, wife of Michael the clerk, granted lands temp. Ric. I or John (Add. Chs. 28349, 28350). Sabine occurs also early in the thirteenth century. The latinized Geva or Jeva (O.E. Geofu) is a name for which no certain modern French or English equivalent can be given. Some have thought it to be Joan, regarding Jeva as a misreading of Jena, but Eve seems more probable (Geva was wife of William de Falaise soon after the Conquest; the wife of Sir Thomas Hungerford, Speaker of the House of Commons who d. 1398, is variously described as Jeva or Joan). Agnes and its French form Annes, though the latter comes very close in appearance to, are both distinct from, Anne. Ankaret (Welsh Angharat) is often written Aukaret, owing to the confusion of "n" and "u" referred to above. Rose, Clarice, Pernele, Eleyne, Felice, Jounette, Margrete and Denote (? Devote) are among women's names in Piers Ploughman, and Alisoun (= Alice), Gille, and Grisild, in Chaucer's rustic pieces.

John Cobham (father of Henry Lord Cobham), who d. 1300, left a widow whose name is latinized as Methania, and was presumably Methan or Mathan, which is found as a Norman surname; Maiheut or Maeut, forms of the Frankish Mahthild, being also a woman's name in northern France. Will. Walensis and Maisent his wife, held lands in Fordham, co. Cambridge, before 1227 (Phillipps MS. 32046); Roger Uphill, too, who occurs in Fine Rolls, 6 June 1302, had a wife Maisant, which name cannot be related to Maria Sancta or to the modern Maisie, for the terminal "sant" is the French representation of the Frankish "swinth,"^(*) the "May" being probably, according to Stevenson, the old German "Mag," Megisend actually occurring in Germany. Moisent (O.Fr. for Moses) was a man's Christian name in Wilts late in the twelfth century (Campbell Ch. XIII, 15) and a surname, Helyas and Walter Moysant having been tenants in co. Linc., temp. Henry II (Harl. Ch. 48 C. 10 and 52 B. 12); as Moïssant it occurs in some MSS. of the Song of Roland. Tecent or Tecenta, which was borne by a woman in Notts in late twelfth century, seems to be a name of the same type as Maisant. Jacoba occurs infrequently as a woman's name, but whether the English name James had any modification when used for a woman the Editor cannot say, probably Jacobine or Jacqueline. Scholastica, now quite obsolete, was not very uncommon formerly. Lecia and Brictive were fairly common in the twelfth century, the former is a latinization of the Old French Lece (= Letitia). Sarra, or Sarah, probably not the Old Testament name, is found in the early thirteenth century, but was never very common. Wymark (cf. the Breton Guiomark) is not infrequent as a woman's name in the twelfth century, and Wymark Auuteyn was a nun of Sempringham in 1366. Hawise, otherwise Avise, has by some been wrongly supposed to be another form of Alice, but Alice Parlebien and Hawyse Pykeworth were nuns of Sempringham in 1366. Hawise, which occurs as Hadewisa and in other forms in charters, is from the Old French Ha(u)eis, representative of the Frankish Hathuwidis, whereas Alice is the Frankish Adaliz through the Old French Aaliz, and is a pet form of Adelaid or the like. Joan (lat. Johanna), though very common in the thirteenth century and onwards, was very uncommon before that date. As Egidius was certainly the latinization of Giles, the English equivalent of Egidia is assumed to be Gille, but Gille in France certainly and in England probably, was also a diminutive of Gilian, Julian. Delicia, which is sometimes given as a woman's name in early times, is a mere ghost word, and in fact nothing but (teste H. J. Ellis) a misreading for Aelicia, otherwise Alice. Devorgild, da. of (*) Anglo-Saxon Swið, as in Frideswith (corresponding to O.Fr. Fressende). The n was lost in English in prehistoric times (as in mouth = Germ. mund), and swinth became sent in French.

Alan, lord of Galloway, was b. about 1200. Other latinized forms of women's names occurring in Cal. Inq. p. m. are Agatha, Bona, Cassandra, Cutburga, Desiderata, Edelina, Fina, Gonnora, and Senicla. Damaris Ledgard (ancestress of H. J. Ellis, who has kindly helped the Editor with this paper) was wife of Joseph Ellis in 1720.

With reference to names which are often regarded as interchangeable, Margery and Margaret, though identical in origin (Margareta by French changes having produced Margerie), were not always treated as the same, and had different Latin equivalents, viz. Margeria and Margareta; in the following passage from Close Roll (1243) 27 Hen. III, part ii, the words "Pro Margeria Comitissa Kancie. Rex inspexit tenorem cartarum continencium donaciones factas conjunctim H. de Burgo quondam Comiti Kancie et Margarete uxori ejus," show the two names to be used indifferently. Elizabeth and Isabel, too, were not really looked on as the same, though often confused until the eighteenth century, for Elizabeth de Prestwold and Isabel Wrenne were nuns of Sempringham in 1366, and the names of the three daughters of Michael atte Pole, Earl of Suffolk, who died in 1415, were Katherine, Elizabeth and Isabel, and on the Patent Roll (18 Oct. 1420) is an entry, "The mandate cannot take effect because the wife of Nicholas had the name of Elizabeth and not of Isabel": the last Lord Maulay also had two sisters named Isabel and Elizabeth. John Everard, who died in 1524, left a widow called "Elizabella," a curious compound of two names. Another form of, or name confounded with, Isabel, is Sibel or Sibyl: e.g. the wife of William [Lord] Grandson is found called by both names. On the other hand, the seal (1484) of the wife of Fernando II, King of Castile, widely known as Isabella, is inscribed "Helisabet," Isabel being always Elisabetha in Spanish Latin.

It may be mentioned that in this connexion Sibyl has, the Editor believes, no more relation to the Roman propheticess than the name Ellis (lat. Elias, fr. Hélie), though often written Eliás in English works, has to the Hebrew prophet, or than the rather rare front name Manasses has to do with one of the twelve tribes (Manasses Marmion witnessed charters temp. Hen. I), or the surnames Homer (the name of a village in Salop) and Pindar (he who pens or folds) with the Greek poets, while Venus, which occurs as a surname among the country people of the present day in Sussex, and in Dickens's Mutual Friend, is related not to Love but, teste J. H. Round, represents Venoix ("de Venuz" in the Testa), as the Norman Maréchaux de Venoix held lands in Hampshire from the time of the Conquest. The English Bacchus is no god of wine, but equals the humbler Backhouse or Bakehouse. Aeneas McDonnell cannot claim Virgilian ancestry, but is in truth nothing more than Angus McDonnell.

Among contractions or corruptions may be mentioned Bellas^(a) from Ap Ellis, Bevan from Ap Evan, Pritchard from Ap Richard, Price or Preece from Ap Rhys, Prodggers from Ap Roger, Pugh from Ap Hugh, and Binyon from Ap Einyon, with many others. Nor are such Welsh names, though the best known, the only ones of the kind, for Phippen is certainly FitzPaine, and Fidge, FitzJohn, while in Scotland "Colin" is said not to come from Nicholas but from Mac Aileen, = Alwin, hence M'calein, the "c" of Mac adhering to the latter word and forming as Mc Cailean Mor the name of the descendants of the great progenitor of the Campbell Dukes of Argyll. Again in the case of "Tennant," the initial "T" is said to be only the adhesive tail of a preceding Saint, and the name should really be St. Adamnan=Ewnan or Enan, which derivation may remind some of the French distych:

an amusing remark, however faulty the etymology.^(a)

Dr. Maitland Thomson writes that it is curious how many old Scottish names [and the same remark applies to England] exist now only in place names or in surnames taken therefrom, e.g. Elphinstone, town of Alpin=Aelfwin or Alwin; Livingston, town of Leving, which name is frequent in Domesday; while Macus, Orm, Dolphin, Edulf, and Colban are preserved in Maxwell and Maxtone, Ormiston, Dolphinston, Eddleston, Covington; and many others are to be found.

Doubtless a good many of the strange forms which occur in old writings are due to scribal errors or mis-readings, but the following names may be instanced as curious, and some of them, by the Editor at any rate, inexplicable:—

Terric (lat. Theodoricus, fr. Thierra) occurs as a name among London citizens in early and late twelfth century, and Thetheric Ebryan was sum. 30 Edw. I. Litol Doge is to be found in vol. xii of Close Rolls, Edw. III.

Freemund or Fromund (Harl. Ch. 84 H. 31) which occurs in London Charters, twelfth century, has no relation to Freeman, and represents two Germanic names which became regularly in French, Frémond and Fromond, which are liable to be confused owing to the o and e being graphically indistinguishable in mediæval writing.

Hoger or Oger (Frankish Audger, Fr. Ogier, = Eng. Edgar), cf. the modern surname Odgers, occurs 1163-70 (Harl. Ch. 50 B. 24), and one of this name was a Breton, and a Domesday tenant in chief.^(b)

Costethinus fil. Ailof was a well known London citizen (Egerton Ch. 510) circa 1200. The name is a variant of, or error for, Constantine, by which name he is elsewhere described.

Ougin, which occurs in Sempringham Charters, twelfth century, is a scribal error for Ougrim (from O.N. Auðgrimr, a fairly common name in the eastern counties).

^(a) W. Paley Baildon draws the Editor's attention to a modern example of name corruption. A French family named L'Eglise, settled in London towards the end of the seventeenth century, became involved in lengthy Chancery proceedings. By 1701 their name was changed to "Le Glyse," and in 1709 it appeared as "Legless"!

^(b) Feudal England, by J. H. Round, pp. 216, 220.

Tollo de Poyntun is in a twelfth-century Sempringham Charter, possibly the same as Toli (Add. Ch. 21152), a name of Scandinavian origin frequent at that date.

Achille, a rare name which occurs also in a Sempringham Charter, may or may not be related to Achilles.

Arnibus=Hernisius or Ernisius, a Norman name, comes in Add. Ch. 20624 and is not uncommon (e.g. Ernisius de Nevill). Lesandus or Lesaudus de Avene appears in Close Roll, 2 Ric. II.

Chubboc was the name of a tradesman in 21 Edw. III, and Sewel (latinized^(a) Sevallus), a rare name of Norman origin which appears in Domesday, of another. The modern surname of Avory appears as the Christian name of Avry de Sully 11 Edw. III; and two years before de Was-tenays was bearing the now extinct name of Harduin, and in the same year the Welsh name Rhudder, sometimes written Retheric, appears latinized as Reiricus, who was summoned along with Mahoun Cruce and others. Anketell Maloure and Anketin Salwayn were sum. respectively in 18 Hen. III and 8 Edw. III, and though these sometimes appear with a n as the second letter, there can be no doubt that the n is correct. The old Norse is Ansketil, and the modern Fr. Anquetil. Genteschiv is a strange name; Genteschive Pauper or le Poher occurs in Lord Bath's Chartulary of Thame Abbey early in the thirteenth century. Noel, a name in favour nowadays with children born at Christmas, was borne by a Cornishman named Paderda in 3 Ric. II. It is at first sight rather surprising, too, to find such a purely German name as Reinbrun belonging to a younger son of Thomas Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, who married in 1337, but J. H. Round points out that this name was given him after Reynbrun, son of the mythical Guy, Earl of Warwick, just as his elder brother was named after that Earl himself, as were the late and present (1913) Earls of Warwick. The name of Reinbrun occurs several times in Yorkshire in the fifteenth century.

Latinizations.

In many cases the Latin names differ so much from their English equivalents that it is quite difficult to recognize what it is they represent, and many might pass over de Cadurcis, de Monte Caniso, de Nodariis, Strabolgi, and de Ergadia, without recognizing the comparatively familiar Chaworth, Munchensi, Nowers, Strathbogy and Argyll, nor, though the lettering is close, would it be really easy to see that de Pîtres, the department of Eure on the Seine, was signified by de Pistris. Violus was an alternative latinization of Villes, for Rob. fil. Vitalis, the ancestor of the early Braybrookes, and lord of Foxden, Northants, occurs circa 1140-60, both thus and as Rob. fil. Violi; the o in Violus must however be a misreading for e, for the regular Fr. form is Viel; Gacius de Calvo Monte disguises Wace de Chaumont and de Sancto Petro hides the personality of one Symper, and

(^a) W. H. Stevenson states that the original was a Frankish Saxwalo, which was preserved as the Latin form (also as Saxowallus). The Domesday Sasuallo, and forms such as Sesuallus (Abingdon Hist., ii, 32) are partly Frenchified. Sawalus (Pipe Roll 12 Hen. II) is a compromise.

Pontisara is said by some to do the same in the case of Bishop Sawbridge, but "Sawbridge" appears to be but a modern "fake," and the Bishop's true name to have been Pontoise. (Preface to Prerog. Court of Canterbury Wills, p. vi, ed. Challenor Smith.) Presumably Peter Simple would have been latinized as Petrus de Sancto Paulo. De Montalt (de Monte Alto) is troublesome from the number of forms of which this is the Latin, ranging as they do from Mold to Maude and Mohaut. Rudolph has not been found borne by an Englishman, except in modern times, as when used to emphasize a fancied Austrian descent by the Feilding family. Wychard seems to be the English form of the French Guichard (Scots surname Wis-hart), and as Wiscard it occurs in the thirteenth century both as a Christian and surname, e.g. John Wyschard was sum. 26 Edw. I.

A very good way of testing the fact whether a name is a genuine old English one, or of modern manufacture, is to look at the shop fronts as one goes down the street, and see whether it occurs among the tradesmen's surnames. Thus you will never find a tradesman called Reginalds or Red, for they are modern words, but you will find Reynolds, and Reade, Reid, Rous or Roth, or Rod or Rudd, or other forms which described the colour we now call red. Another parallel may be given in the fact that Vicars, Parsons, Archdeacons, and Priests, all furnish surnames, whereas Rectors do not, for the Rector, when a cleric, was in old times always called the Parson. This test may also be applied to check a previous statement that Henry and Peter were uncommon, and Harry and Piers the usual forms, for Harris, Harrison, Peers, and Pearson are ubiquitous, whereas Henryson is most rare, and Henson or Hanson throw no light on the point, whilst Peterson, though fairly common, is, it is believed, almost always of Scandinavian origin. No doubt, however, different forms of the same name prevailed in different localities, and it is unsafe to dogmatize too confidently, for though in Scots vernacular writs Hary or Harry is general if not universal, yet Harrison is not a Scots name, and Hendry and Henderson are.

Test as to antiquity of names.

The habit of giving children more than one name at baptism did not become common until the eighteenth century, and before the seventeenth century was very rare indeed. In the Visitation of Kent, 1619, the name of William John Brent occurs, and as his daughter married Lord Abergavenny before 1515, he must have been born not later than about 1475. This is so early for a man to bear two Christian names that it has been supposed to be an error in the Visitation, or it may be explained by the fact that the Herald was not sure whether his name was William or John; but what look like even earlier instances can be given, as Magister Will. Mich. Stonhard occurs in 1421 (Add. Chs. 23538 and 23539). Thomas Henry de Hope was living in Sandhurst, Kent, 30 Edw. I (1301/2) (Add Ch. 29550). In such a case as this it is possible that the names William Michael and Thomas Henry may really mean William son of Michael and Thomas son of Henry, or in the later case Hope may merely indicate Henry's place of origin. Thomas Arnold Williamson occurs in Harl. Ch. 50, D. 22, under date 1471, but this is not a case of a man having had two Christian names at baptism, but is equivalent to "Thomas, son of Arnold William." John Stokker Jekell, gent, was living in 1541 (Add. Chs. 21067 and 19878); Mark Alexander Boyd, the poet, was born 1563; Thomas Posthumous Hoby was born in 1566, and Sir Thomas Maria Wingfield was knighted 8 May 1597; Thomas Pope Blount occurs in 1602 (Egerton Ch. 303). One of the earliest examples to be found in Complete Peerage is that of Frederick Philip Bouchier, elder brother of Henry, Earl of Bath, which Frederick Philip died young 8 Mar. 1587; Anthony Ashley Cooper, 1st Earl of Shaftesbury, born 1621, was another; and William George Richard, Earl of Derby, born about 1655. The fashion of more than one Christian name seems to have come from Germany, or at any rate from the Continent, as in the case of Charles I's wife, Henriette Marie. In France two or more Christian names seem to have been common from very early times.

Pronunciation.

In this paper there has been no attempt to touch the difficult question of pronunciation, though it must have had much effect in the gradual modification of name forms, e.g. it is generally recognized that the mediaeval pronunciation of "eux" and "aux" was soft, and Devereux, Rievaulx, were sounded Deverose and Rievose, so we have now the family of Clarke Jervoise for Jervaulx.

Impoverishment of language.

It has been pointed out by other writers how much the language of England became impoverished during the reign of Henry III (1216-72), an immense number of English words becoming obsolete during that period. An examination of the list of names given below bears out this statement, and shows it to apply quite as much to Christian names as to other words, for the list of Edward III's time is seen to show far less variety not only than that of the present day, but than that of Henry II, for all the names of the Aelfric, Athelard, &c., class have disappeared.

Names of villeins.

It is true that we have little means of knowing what were the names borne by the peasantry or villeins in Edward III's time, or of finding names corresponding to Walter Scott's "Higg the son of Snell," but doubtless in this class names were preserved long after they had disappeared from the ranks of the gentry, as is shown by the following: Sebbe, Greu, Ulf, Grip or Gripe, Grimchet (from O.N. Grim-Ketill), Alfi, are all names occurring in twelfth century Sempringham Charters, which had belonged to original inhabitants before the Conquest, and became entirely extinct by 1400. Any number of them are to be found in and before the twelfth century, but as will be seen from Josiah Wedgwood's list of villeins beginning in 1299, nearly all had by then been replaced by Norman names. Of the same class, and probably in many cases of Scandinavian origin, are the names to be found in Add. Charter 20731, Hadde (O.E. Hadda), Goche (Old Norse gaukr=cuckoo, Scottish gowk), Spiwant, Baligan, Gunca or Gunghe, and Asco, spelt elsewhere also Azo. Sparahauk occurs in the same place as a Christian or nickname, but soon became a surname, as which it is found in the present day (cf. Patience Sparhawk, a novel by Gertrude Atherton). In Add. Chart. 20639 are also to be found Godith (elsewhere appearing as Godiot) and Gillegray. Bodin, Brittmar, Ragmer, and Godesman (=Goda's man) are all of the large class of small dwellers on the lands, and are fairly common in Lincoln charters. Indeed that district and the north of England seems, as is natural, to have been slower in adopting Norman names than the more accessible parts of the kingdom. Like these, of Scandinavian origin, is Wiger, a Lincoln Canon (Egerton Ch., 429).

The following (A) from Piers Ploughman, (B) from Chaucer's rustic pieces, give some idea of the popular forms of names prevalent among common folk in the last half of the fourteenth century. (A) Gibbe, Gregory, Hervy, Clement, Godefray, Griffin, Hikke, Hughe, Bette, Perkyn, Piers, Jagge, Danyel, Dawe, Wille, Watte, Waryn, Tomme, Hankyn. (B) Aleyn, Symkyn, Symond, Gerveys, Robyn, Nicholas, Adam, Walter, Ote, Perkyn, Hogge (Roger). There seems to have been more change in the nomenclature of our people from 1100 to 1400 than from 1400 to 1900.

As is well known nearly all surnames may be said to proceed from Christian names, place names, trade or professional names, and nicknames. It may sometimes be doubtful in which category to put them, but Nelson, for instance, clearly belongs to the first and not the second, as the Lancashire town so called is of modern origin; it is usually, and in the form Nielson always, son of Niel, but may be occasionally son of Ellen. Neel, Niel, Nele, Neale, has itself given birth to the modern Nigel (from lat. Nigellus), which has, like Reginald, been familiarized by Walter Scott, who, together with Dugdale, has done as much as anyone to establish pseudo-antiques in the language.

The following curious or interesting surnames have been kindly supplied by H. J. Ellis, and seem worthy of insertion, though pages might be filled with curiosities of the kind:

Gillebert Scerewind or Scorewind (modern Sherwin), occurs as witness late twelfth century in co. Lincoln. (Harl. Ch. 53 H. 11, 55 F. 5, 6). Curious surnames.

Sivard Dogheafd, co. Derby, circa 1170 (Harl. Ch. 45 H. 5).

Alfred Pied de Vilain occurs as witness to a charter to Hurley Priory, early temp. Hen. II (Charter at Westm. Abbey).

Richard Malamusca occurs as witness in Horsheath, Cambridge, late Hen. II (Add. Ch. 28338).

John le King, witness, late twelfth century (Harl. Ch. 53 B. 23).

Mainardus (Germ. Meinhart) cum barba, Ric. I (Harl. Ch. 83 D. 30).

Rob. Crazenzloil (Crack-in-the-eye), temp. John (Harl. Ch. 45 B. 18).

Galfr. Plantegenest, occurs in Keisby, co. Linc., circa 1170 (Add. 20903).

Will. Barefot witness in London, late twelfth cent. (Cott. Ch. xvi, 40).

Sabina uxor Osberti Piedefer and Will Piedefer (modern Pettifer), her son, occur in London early thirteenth cent. (Add. Ch. 7592).

John Domesofte witness in same charter. Also in Harl. 50 B. 40, same date.

Stephen Homo Regis occurs as a grantor of lands in co. Norf. circa 1200 (Harl. Ch. 52 E. 21).

Goscelin Gingesman occurs in 1203 in Harl. Ch. 54 D. 2, as well as in 52 E. 22 above.

Will Pedeleun (Lionsfoot), co. Notts, temp. John (Harl. Ch. 83 F. 47).

Petr. Beauwaleth=Beauvalet (Harl. Ch. 83 F. 51; 83 F. 53).

Gil. Wildgris (Harl. Ch. 83 F. 23).

Walt. Suaneshals=Swansneck (Harl. 112, H. 34).

Reinerus Waiueloch, witness in Beverley, temp. John (Add. Ch. 5720).

Ric. Sakespee,^(a) witness in North Lincolnsh. late twelfth cent. (Harl. Ch. 50 C. 24).

Aldelin (query Aldelm) Figulus occurs in co. Linc. late twelfth cent. (Harl. Ch. 51 8, 16).

Rainald Pedkin witness in co. Linc. late twelfth cent. (Harl. Ch. 47 I. 15); as Reginaldus Pedkin in 47 I. 14, and as Pedeken in 47 I. 16.

Ric. Peildecerf occurs as grantor in co. Linc. to Kirkstead Abbey, late twelfth cent. (Harl. Ch. 54 G. 2).

Petr. Passeleue, witness in Grimblethorpe, co. Linc., late twelfth cent. (Harl. Ch. 57 G. 23). Paslew is quite a well-known name in co. York. The last Abbot of Whalley (Lancs.) was of this family. The word is French for a holy-water sprinkler, qui passe l'eau.

Baldwin Pa de Loupe, occurs in Rippingale, co. Linc. early Edw. I (Add. 21098, & 9).

Aschetin Pail de lu, witness in co. Linc., late twelfth cent. (Harl. Ch. 49 H. 3). Vis de lou is fairly common.

Hugo Paisforiere, witness in co. Kent [1139-47] (Cott. MS. Nero C. iii, F. 188).

Thomas Gangeshid, witness in Bedfont or London, temp. John (Harl. Ch. 45 G. 67).

Galfrid Le Pus, witness in London circa 1162 (Cott. Ch. xxvii, 100).

Thomas Hartherugge (not as one might think, hearth rug, but a local name, Hartridge) and Ralph Hikkebrid (? Dicky Bird), which occur in Close Rolls, Edw. III, vol. xii, are also curiosities.

G. T. Clark, in an article on the West Riding Poll-Tax of 2 Ric. II (Yorks. Arch. Journ., vol. vii), analysed the names in the roll, and writes:—"Out of the whole 19,600 [names] John occurs 3,400 times, William 1,846, Thomas 1,062, Robert 1,004, Richard 806, Alicia 1,033, Agnes 835, Johanna 709, Adam 418, Matilda 374, Isabella 358, Henry 319, Cecilia 298, Margaret 278, Magota 209, Roger 166, Emma 160, Elena 154, Hugh 153, Beatrice 128; and the rest below 100, and very many only once or twice. Dionisia is rather a favourite, and occurs 68 times; George but once." He also points out that very few of the native names appear, although the district was so remote, and the population almost exclusively of the lower class. W. Paley Baildon, who examined an Index,

(a) W. H. Stevenson writes:—"This is in O. Fr. Sacque-espée (=Draw-sword, which name is found in Ireland 14th cent.) François de Sacquesespée de Selincourt was Abbot Commendatory of St. Evroul 1596-1613."

covering many pages, of the names in a Court Roll temp. Edward I, found only one native name—Sweyn. (*)

The following lists have been prepared to show the relative popularity of names at intervals of about 200 years from 1166 to the present day. They contain in each case 600 consecutive names drawn from (1) The Red Book of the Exchequer, (2) Audley Inqs. p. m. in North Staffs. 1299-1327, giving names of villeins, (3) Writs of Summons temp. Edward III from the Report on the Dignity of a Peer, (4) Chancery Proceedings temp. Elizabeth, (5) London Directory 1738, (6) Kelly's Handbook of the Titled, Landed, and Official Classes, 1911. It will be seen that in the twelfth century William was the commonest name, but by the middle of the fourteenth it had given way to John, which since then has never been ousted from its pride of place. The remarkable impoverishment of the nomenclature in the time of Edward III as compared with any other period is shown by the fact that whereas in 1166 and in the present day the five commonest names totalled only 259 and 213 respectively, in the fourteenth century they amount to no less than 410 out of the 600 names listed. The catalogue of villeins' names has kindly been supplied by Josiah Wedgwood, M.P. It is, of course, very difficult to obtain a list of the peasantry at this period. The one here given contains 42 distinct names, and does not differ as much as the Editor would have expected from that of the Nobility and Gentry at the same time, for the only names appearing here which would not be found among the upper classes are Honde, Dobbe, Dodde, Edy, Lovet, Mayot, Sigge, Swan, and the diminutive Alcock. It is clear that by the end of the thirteenth century even among the lowest class Norman names had almost entirely displaced Anglo-Saxon ones. The remarkable preponderance of Adam as a villein's name, and of Biblical names in the eighteenth century is also noticeable.

The following names first appear in 1911, and then once only :

Adrian, Ainslie, Apar, Aretas, Augustin, Awly, Baptist, Cyril, Douglas, Dunbar, Edgar, Egerton, Eldred, Eric, Gabriel, Gilfrid, Granville, Hans, Horace, Jesse, Justin, Kenneth, Llewellyn, Luke, Marcus, Marmaduke, Newton, Pelham, Percy, Redmond, Rees, Reuben, Rupert, Sabine, Shelley, Stanley, Sydney, Ulick, Watkin, Wentworth, Wilton.

The following names are found in London charters of the latter half of the twelfth century and in Pipe Rolls of the same date as the preceding list from the Red Book but do not occur among the 600 names given above in 1166 and in 1348: Acmund, Adelard, Ailbricht, Ailnoth or Alnoth, Ailric, Ailwyn, Akard, Albert, Albod, Aldelin, Aldred, Aleelm, Alfwyn, Algar, Alstan, Alulf, Alvric, Alwald, Archil, Aschetil, Auger, Aywak, Azor, Bastian, Berenger, Bertram or Bertrand, Blacsun, Bonenfant, Brihtmere, Claud, David, Dereman, Drew, Druard, Durand, Edred, Edward, Engelger, Ennian, Ernulf, Fulcher, Fulkwin or Fukwin, Gamel, Gerald, Gernagan, Godard, Godebold, Godgiet, Godman, Griffin, Grim, Gudred, Haddon, Hagaman, Harold, Herewald, Hermer, Holegar, Hubert, Joldewin, Jonas, Josce or Jocelyn, Jude, Julian, Lambert, Lewin, Lisor, Meiler, Morgan, Norman, Orgar, Osgot, Oswald, Owen, Pentecost, Picot, Saurin, Savaric, Sawin, Serle, Seward, Siric, Solomon, Stigand, Suen, Thorold, Tiold, Ulward, Urri, Walwan (Celtic, and older form of Gawain), Wulwyn (O.E. Wulfwine), Warner, Wibert.

Owing to the fact that four very common names, Charles, George, Arthur, and Edward, only came into general use in modern times, and therefore do not appear until very late in the above list, it has been thought worth while to print also the following short table of the 20 names which at different periods have been commonest in England in the order of their popularity:

APPENDIX E

PEERAGE TITLES CHOSEN TO COMMEMORATE FOREIGN ACHIEVEMENTS

The first title chosen to commemorate a foreign achievement is believed to be the Viscounty of BARFLEUR, conferred (together with the Earldom of Orford) on Admiral Russell, 7 May 1697, after his naval victory at that place. The following list comprises all titles of a similar nature conferred up to June 1913.

- 1717. Stanhope of MAHON in Minorca
- 1762. Clive of PLASSEY
- 1787. Heathfield of GIBRALTAR
- 1788. Amherst of MONTREAL^(*)
- 1797 and 1801. St. VINCENT
- 1797. Duncan of CAMPERDOWN
- 1798 and 1801. Nelson, of THE NILE (Barony), and in 1805, Nelson of TRAFALGAR (Earldom)
- 1800. Abercromby of ABOUKIR
- 1801. Hutchinson of ALEXANDRIA
- 1804 and 1807. Lake of DELHI and LASWARY
- 1809. Wellesley, DOURO (Barony) and Wellington of TALAVERA (Viscounty), and in 1812, DOURO (Marquessate)
- 1814 and 1816. Hill of ALMARAZ
- 1815. Harris of SERINGAPATAM and MYSORE
- 1826. Amherst of ARRACAN
- 1827. Combermere of BHURTPORE
- 1839. Keane of GHUZNEE
- 1846. Gough of CHING KANGFOO and of MAHARAJPORE and the SUTLEJ
- 1846. Hardinge of LAHORE
- 1849. Gough of GOOJERAT
- 1849. Dalhousie of the PUNJAUB
- 1866. Strathnairn of JHANSI

(*) The patent refers to Montreal in Kent, but that place had been so named a few years previously in celebration of the grantee's victory at Montreal in Canada.

APPENDIX F

SPECIAL REMAINDERS GRANTED TO COMMONERS

1643. John Byron, a zealous Royalist, cr. BARON BYRON OF ROCHDALE.
1711. Robert Harley, the celebrated Minister, cr. EARL OF OXFORD.
Extinct 1853.
1716. Sir Richard Onslow, Bart., sometime Speaker, cr. BARON ONSLOW.
1717. James Stanhope, a leading statesman, cr. VISCOUNT STANHOPE OF MAHON.
1722. David Graham, styled Marquess of Graham, s. and h. ap. of James, Duke of Montrose [S.], cr. EARL GRAHAM. [This, no doubt, was to give an hereditary seat in the House of Lords to those Dukes, which, according to the improper resolutions of 1711 and 1719, not upset till 1782, could not have been effected by conferring a peerage [G.B.] on an actual Peer of Scotland.]
1723. Robert Walpole, s. and h. ap. of the great Minister (Sir Robert Walpole, K.G.), cr. BARON WALPOLE.
1756. Thomas Villiers, cr. BARON HYDE, with spec. rem. of the Barony failing his heirs male of the body by his then wife Charlotte (heiress of the Hyde family), to the said Charlotte and the heirs male of her body.
1766. John Campbell, styled Marquess of Lorn, s. and h. ap. of John, Duke of Argyll [S.], cr. BARON SUNDRIDGE. [This creation was doubtless for the same reason as that of the Marquessate of Graham. See ante, under date 1722.]
1784. Henry Frederick Thynne, s. of Thomas, Viscount Weymouth, by Louisa Carteret, heiress of the large estates of the Carteret family, cr. BARON CARTERET. Extinct 1849.
1794. Welbore Ellis, who had held the appointment of Vice Treasurer in Ireland, cr. BARON MENDIP.
1797. James Grenville, connected with the powerful houses of Wyndham, Temple, and Pitt, cr. BARON GLASTONBURY. Extinct 1825.
[After a pause of some 34 years comes the exceptional case of] 1831. George FitzClarence, eldest of the illegit. sons of the reigning Monarch, cr. EARL OF MUNSTER, the spec. rem. (failing heirs male of the body) being in favour of the younger of such sons in like manner successively.

The above 13 creations (of which but one was in the 19th century) appear to be all of this nature that took place for 170 years; but, for some incomprehensible reason, in and after 1876, the merits of Commoners about to be raised to the Peerage were apparently so eminent as to command something greater than ordinary Peerages, such as those bestowed on statesmen like Pitt, Canning, Disraeli, or Russell, or on soldiers like Clive or Wellesley. Accordingly, within 20 years no less than seven Commoners and one Irish Peer have been thus exceptionally favoured, viz.: (1) Mr. Ormsby-Gore, cr., in 1876, BARON HARLECH; (2) Mr. Sackville-West, cr., (also) in 1876, BARON SACKVILLE; (3) Viscount Barrington [I.], cr., in 1880, BARON SHUTE; (4) Sir Thomas Bateson, Bart., cr., in 1885, BARON DERAMORE; (5) Sir Edmund Beckett, Bart., cr., in 1886, BARON GRIMTHORPE; (6) Sir John Savile, cr., in 1888, BARON SAVILE; (7) Mr. Tyssen Amherst, cr., in 1892, BARON AMHERST OF HACKNEY; and (8) Sir A. C. Campbell, Bart., cr., in 1892, BARON BLYTHSWOOD. In this last case no less than five other persons (collaterals) were placed in the spec. (and for civil service unprecedented) rem.

A spec. rem. in a Peerage granted to an actual Peer is reasonable enough; the subsequent merits of the Grantee (supposing his Peerage to be by creation and not inheritance) may demand such further recognition. Such spec. rems. are those of the Barony of Amherst conferred in 1788 on Lord Amherst, the Barony of Nelson in 1801 on Viscount Nelson, the Barony of Brougham in 1860 on Lord Brougham, &c. It seems time enough to provide for the ennobling of the collateral heir of a Commoner (about to be ennobled), when such heir has suc. to the estate of his relative, should he then merit such distinction. An hereditary Peerage with the ordinary limitation is generally a most sufficient reward for any ordinary Commoner.

In this year Irish honours were cast about with reckless profusion, and though in one or two cases they had no connexion with the Government of Ireland, in the rest "the terms of the bargain were well known to be an engagement to support the Government by their votes in the House of Lords, by their substitutes and their influence in the House of Commons." Horace Walpole (Last Journals) rightly called it "a mob of nobility," and adds that "the King in private laughed much at the eagerness for such insignificant honours."

The following is a list of the creations and promotions of this year, in numbers never before approached in the peerage, and only once surpassed afterwards in Ireland, in 1800, for the purpose of effecting the Union.
